MEN, INDUSTRY NOT CONSCRIPTED IN BILL

Women to Enlist in British Air Raid Precaution Units

HOME SECRETARY MAKES SECOND BID CIVILIAN DEFENCE

Civilian Defence Urged to Minimize Panic and Death Possibility

400,000 ENLIST

Woman's Work Can Be "Priceless Treasure in National Life'

(By Our Rhodes, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 1 (CP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, faced with a lagging response to his March appeal for 1,000,000 air raid precaution workers, has started a new drive to enlist women as well as men and bring the voluntary organization to the required strength.

The Home Secretary made his second bid for a vast corps of civilian defence workers in an address to the nation in which he traced the progress of the last three months and urged co-operation in the governments efforts to minimize the possibility of panic and wholesale death in the event of aerial attack.

Present Strength

Sir Samuel placed the present strength of the citizen defenders at 400,000, dealt with objections he had heard to enlistment, promised individual instruction for every family in the United Kingdom in the use of gas masks, in gas-proofing homes and dealing with fires that might be started by incendiary bombs.

He said he knew there were thousands of old and young women passionately anxious to serve their country in any hour of need.

"Be ready for this special appeal when it comes out in the immediate future," he told his women listeners, "and bring to the task you job the fresh mind, the keen imagination and the unfailing devotion that have made women's work a priceless treasure in our national life."

Criticism Unjustified

Sir Samuel said he had heard

Builds Schooner for Tahiti Voyage 71 Year Man to Realize Life Dream

Windsor, Ont., June 1—(CP)—In realization of a lifetime dream, 71-year-old Wm. B. Tripp, Belle Ile Heights, Mich., will take a trip to Tahiti in a boat he has built himself. The jaunt will be made following a trip of the Great Lakes, and Tripp plans to be gone two years.

Named "Irene" the schooner is anchored here and is a complete floating home. Tripp began to make the craft two and a half years ago. The vessel has an auxiliary engine in addition to lowlying white sails. The owner will be accompanied on the trip by his 45-year-old son, M. B. Tripp, Detroit. Two men can handle the craft easily, the elder Tripp said.

Seven years ago, Tripp retired from a sheet metal business and devoted his time to the making of sailboat models for which he was awarded a cup at Peterborough, Ont., in 1900.

BOIS ROUSSEL, A FRENCH BRED COLT WINS THE DERBY

Colt Was Purchased by Hon. Peter Beatty—Few Weeks Ago

FAVORITE THIRD

Pasch's Failure Cost Betters Plenty as Winner Paid 20 to 1

Epsom, England, June 1 (CP)—Hon. Peter Beatty's French-bred colt Bois Roussel today won the 150th running of the derby.

James V. Rank's Scottish Union was second with the favorite, H. E. Morriss' Pasch third in the field of twenty-two.

The king and queen and a crowd of 400,000 saw the race.

Bois Roussel came with a rush in the stretch to finish the 1½ miles at a mile and a length in front of Scottish Union. Pasch trailed by two lengths after running prominently with the leaders from the start.

$8 on 1 Betting

Ridden by C. H. Elliott, Bois Roussel ran the distance in two minutes, 33 seconds.

Bois Roussel was 20 to 1 in the betting. Scottish Union was held at 8 to 1 and Pasch at 9 to 4. Pointed Poolish, owned by Viscount Astor, was fourth.

Bois Roussel was purchased only a few weeks ago from the French owner, Leon Volterra, and was one of the "ups" heralded here as a parade of twenty-two started.

Viscount Astor's Pound Poolish and Cave Man finished fourth and fifth and again disappointed the thousands hoping for a victory for the sporting peer. His colors never have been carried to victory although his candidates have been prominent for two decades.

Golden Sovereign Fails

Another frustration for many was the failure of Golden Sovereign. Sir Abe Bailey's colt, who finished sixth. Sir Abe, recently reported broken in health, raked his life by travelling 6,000 miles from South Africa against doctor's orders to see the race.

Pasch's failure not only cut the bettors heavily, but again deprived Gordon Richards, England's crack jockey, of more than a decade, of his ambition to win the derby.

Bois Roussel, bought by the late year-old son of the late Admiral Earl Beatty, for $40,000 (U.S.), started poorly and trailed far behind over the first mile. Rounding the turn he responded to the strength-sapping uphill straight, and, French colt made his challenge, quickly took the lead and pulled away to win the purse of £8,250 ($44,550). Scottish Union won £1,097 ($5,485) and Pasch won £548 ($2,740).

TREATY HIGHLIGHTS

Honeymooners' Paradise Will be Preserved And Enhanced

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, June 1 (CP)—Realization of the full possibilities for power and navigation development in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin is planned in a draft treaty presented to the Canadian government by the United States administration today.

It is the latest in a long series of attempts by President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull to bring the two countries together in development of the common power resources and the building of a seaway that would bring ocean going vessels to the mid-west.

The treaty-contemplates flow in the Niagara river away from the American to the head of the lakes by Dec. 31, 1941, attempts to sweep aside opposition from the Ontario government by constructing, on Barnhart Island, a dam to create a joint control.

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

FIND MULTILATED BODY OF NEGRO CHILD

Atlantic City, June 1 (AP)—The multilated body of six-year-old Sara Marie Jones, negro, was found stuffed in a fruit basket with a batch of old newspapers in an alley back of the home yesterday. The child had been missing since yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Leonard Keller said a sex fiend had killed the child by strangulation.

HEPBURN MAKES TRIP BY AIRPLANE

London, Ont., June 1 (CP) — Sno-landed, and evidently fully recovered from a recent bout with pneumonia, Premier Hepburn came to London by airplane yesterday afternoon and made a hurried trip to his farm home near St. Thomas. "Just a quick afternoon trip home to see the family," Mr. Hepburn explained.

Mrs. Hepburn and their daughter, Patsy, returned to the airport with him. Patsy had to see the interior of the big machine before she would let her father leave.

BOYS RESCUE BIRD TRAPPED IN ROOF FLUE

Port Hope, Ont., June 1 (CP) —Donald McKinnon and Ray Johnson, Port Hope boys, said they did their good turn for the day, mounting a tall ladder to rescue a bird whose foot was caught in a crack near the eaves of the Johnson home. The bird, taken home and nursed by Miss Ellen Johnson, is now well again and will soon be fully recovered.

Racing Pigeon Walks into Office And into Hands of Corbyville Man

Showing not the least sign of fright, and appearing to be perfectly at home in the company of human beings, a handsome racing pigeon nonchalantly strolled into the office of the Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville shortly after five o'clock last night.

It walked straight into the hands of Norman Curlette, distillery employee, picked up the band that bore the figures, box, fed, and covered with netting between the proprietary of chance cals getting a free meal.

This morning, the bird was taken outdoors by J. Smallhorn of the distillery staff and freed. Circling twice over the plant office the bird headed away in a westerly direction.

On its right leg the pigeon wore a band which was inscribed "V.I.C. 126". On its left leg was a rubber band that bore the figures. leave the office. It was placed in a "8-27-575".

JOHN F. HOUSTON, MANUFACTURER OF THIS CITY, DIES

Resident in Belleville For Ten Years Coming Here From Tweed

ACTIVE FRATERNALLY

John F. Houston, president of the Houston Lumber Company, Limited, Belleville, passed away at the residence, 173 Charles Street, family residence, 173 Charles Street, on Tuesday, May 31st., after an illness of about four months' duration.

At the death of Mr. Houston the city of Belleville has lost a good citizen and one who was prominent in business and in the activities of church and fraternal organizations. Mr. Houston was born at Houston, removed from Tweed to Belleville in 1928. In addition to his lumber business he was interested in the life of the community and his death has brought deep feelings of regret to many personal friends there. For a considerable time he was active in the municipal affairs of Tweed.

In religion Mr. Houston was a member of Bridge Street United Church and was a valued member of the Official Board in connection with the church. Fraternally he was a member of Tweed Lodge No. 291, A. F. & A.M. and was affiliated with Eureka Lodge No. 282, A.F. and A.M., Belleville; Past First Principal of Madoc Chapter, R.A.M., and affiliated with Metra Chapter and with Belleville member of Tweed Chapter No. 148. Order of Tweed Chapter and a member of Tweed Loyal Orange Lodge No. 747. He was a Knight Templar and was an active member of the Belleville Bowling Club and the Quinte Golf Club.

Surviving to mourn his loss and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Ann Elizabeth Easterbrook; three daughters, Mrs. Grace Houston, Mrs. Harry Rollins, Miss Doris Houston, all of Belleville; one son, Mr. Robert E. Houston, Belleville; one sister, Mrs. B. A. Holville; one sister, Mrs. B. A. Holville; one sister, Mrs. Ida Eastergate, Kirkland Lake, Ont.; two brothers, Dr. George Houston, Hamilton, and Mr. Frederick E. Houston, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Esperantists Hope to Produce Play in International Language

By GUY BROADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 1 (CP)—About 2,000 speakers of Esperanto are expected here in August to take part in deliberations and social activities that will include production of a play in their little-used international language, Anita Comes to Star.

The reason they are coming is this: For the first time since Esperanto was started as an international language in 1887 the annual congress of Esperantists will be held in London during the first week in August.

Some Canadians are expected to attend the congress, the 42nd since the initial one in Boulogne 51 years after publication in 1887 of the original Esperanto grammar and vocabulary by Dr. L. L. Zamenhof, Warsaw oculist. Some of the expected delegates started studying the language only at the beginning of this year, but already they have become sufficiently proficient for general conversation.

Esperanto vocabulary is composed chiefly of words derived by way ahead to a marked degree and some Japanese units about which they were not free from communication with each other.

One could say flatly what was the fate of the division headed by the colorful veteran of many campaigns, Lieutenant-General Kenji Doihara. Chinese said it had been cut to pieces remained and Japanese admitted the possibility. Doihara had been encircled on three sides.

Air Raid Stories Vary

A Japanese naval communique said 30 Japanese planes yesterday raided Chinese capital at Hankow and shot down 20 Chinese planes in the course of three days. Chinese said 54 Japanese planes were in the raid and that 15 were shot down. Canton also was bombed.

DR. L. J. AUSTIN SPECIAL SPEAKER

Dr. L. J. Austin, of Queens University, Kingston, will be guest speaker at a special meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Medical Society held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, Belleville. Members of the medical profession from many parts of the district are present to hear Dr. Austin deliver an educational lecture on "Surgery". Motion pictures of major operations, that were obtained by Dr. J. J. Robertson, F.A.C.S., and President of the Society, were also shown for the benefit of the medical physicians. Following the lecture and motion pictures a social evening was enjoyed by the visiting members of the medical profession.

ARMY OF NIPPON BALKED IN EFFORT

Japanese Claim 20 Chinese Planes Lost, Chinese Say 15 Jap Planes Down

Shanghai, June 1 (AP)—Japanese said today General Chiang Kai-Shek's defense line in the north of the cross-country Lunghai Railway were giving way gradually before Japanese aerial power.

Japanese army planes intensively bombed Chinese troops near Lanfeng, although the army of Nippon reported that it had ended its efforts to reach Kaifeng and Chengchow, Railway points on the Central China front which are important to the Japanese offensive planned against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Units Cut Off

Japanese claimed capture of Ningling, 20 miles west of Kweihwa, as a further step in strengthening their 30 mile half-moon front, but they still were unable to close the gap between the two arms of the front and some Japanese units about Kweihwa were cut off from communication with each other.

No one could say flatly what was the fate of the division headed by the colorful veteran of many campaigns, Lieutenant-General Kenji Doihara. Chinese said it had been cut to pieces remained and Japanese admitted the possibility. Doihara had been encircled on three sides.

Air Raid Stories Vary

A Japanese naval communique said 30 Japanese planes yesterday raided Chinese capital at Hankow and shot down 20 Chinese planes in the course of three days. Chinese said 54 Japanese planes were in the raid and that 15 were shot down. Canton also was bombed.

76 OUT OF 138 ONLY SUCCESSFUL AT MEDICAL TESTS

First Year Results at University Called Poorest in Years

HIGHER STANDARDS

Toronto, June 1.—(CP)—Only 76 out of 138 first year medical students at the University of Toronto passed final examinations, the university revealed today.

Officials said "the poorest showing in years" was due to higher standards, made necessary by the number of poorer students who have repeatedly failed in previous years.

At the Toronto school anyone who has upper school matriculation can come in. It is said, whereas at Queen's the University of Western Ontario and all the United States universities take only the 50 best applicants or so.

Varsity Regulations

It was explained that it was that in the Toronto school students must attain 50 per cent in each subject and 60 per cent in the total to pass.

Under the next term, first-year students who fail in any single subject will be plucked.

TO CONVERT FARLEY RESIDENCE INTO APTS.

Sale of the well-known Dr. Farley property at 115 Bridge street east, by executors of the estate to a Toronto purchaser is indicated this week by the issuance of a building permit to Wm. Concentrate Search On 100-Mile Front

Zeballos, B.C., June 1—(CP)—Search for a Ginger Coote Airways seaplane missing with four persons aboard since Friday was concentrated today along a 100-mile strip of shoreline between Barclay Sound and Nootka, Sound on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

A dozen aviators were spurred in their hunt by fresh reports that a yellow machine like the one flown by 32-year-old Pilot Len Wasgers had been sighted in that area around noon Friday, when it was due here on a flight from Vancouver.

C. A. Elkington, District Magistrate at Tofino, B.C., 159 miles south of here, said three hunters at nearby Cypress Bay "definitely" saw a plane Friday.

It was heading westward over Herbert Arm, apparently toward the open sea, and seemed to be flying normally.

BILL IS PREPARED FOR PARLIAMENT IN EVENT OF WAR

Details Not Reached as Chamberlain Says They Can Be Changed

FORM OF TRAINING

Labor Anxious to Learn if Industrial Conscription Intended

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 1 (CP Cable) Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in draft since 1922, does not nounced in the House of Commons today that the government has a military conscription bill ready for introduction to parliament in the event of war. The bill, which has provide for conscription of man power or application of the compulsory principle to industry.

The announcement struck a crowded house with painful, if not unexpected, shock. It brought a whole series of supplementary questions. The opposition pressed for details. Geoffrey Mander, from the liberal benches, wanted to know whether compulsory military service would be accompanied by conscription of wealth.

Mr. Chamberlain replying to details and details did not think publication at present would be helpful. Some details were likely changed from time to time as conditions changed.

Possible Interpretation

Labor back-benchers pressed the point on the statement of Sir Thomas Inskip Minister for Coordination of Defense might bear the interpretation that some form of industrial conscription was contemplated.

The Prime Minister replied that the present is a precise discussion. Sir Thomas did not have time to prepare his words, therefore he did not express himself as otherwise he would have done.

"What my Right Honorable friend meant to say was that the Act as it now stands is limited or had been trained in say a fire brigade, as extra pointer, or as an artificer craft warden, must not be taken as affecting protection against military service in the event of war, should the government of the day find it necessary to introduce a compulsory military service bill in parliament."

Mr. Chamberlain

At the same time Mr. Chamberlain hoped his announcement would not be taken as meaning that Sir Thomas had been working these voluntary services.

If war should supervene, the Prime Minister added, the way in which the country could be best served would probably be the way in which he had been trained.

Clement Attlee, labor leader, questioned whether the Prime Minister in his broadcast Sir Thomas Inskip had been a little dishonest in appealing to the peers while he was using the draft of a conscription bill was in existence.

"I do not think there was any dishonesty," Mr. Chamberlain replied. "I think there was nothing that has been unintentionally misleading. I do not know how him would

Canadian with Nom-De-Plume 'Bad Luck' Wins $150,000 Sweeps

Toronto, June 1—(CP)—A Canadian who used the nom-de-plume "Bad Luck" today won $150,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes. Winner of the Bois Roussel won the 150th running of the Epsom derby. "Bad Luck" had ticket No. C116699.

Aurele Labelle, 33, of Buckingham Que., and employed by the Ford Motor Co. at Pleasant, Ont., won $50,000 each from the favorite, Pasch and Bois Roussel.

Total Canadian winnings in the sweep exceeded $500,000 was 78 held tickets on non-starters and horses unplaced with $2,650 each; four won residual prizes worth $5,065 and 122 won $500 consolation prizes.

Labelle an electric company employee, and Riddle both sold half-interests in their tickets on Pasch for $20,000. When the favorite came in third their net winnings amounted to $45,000.

Heard Winner From Neighbor

Riddle heard the result of the race at his home without betting an extra dollar. He had put a number on his radio set and heard the news. He was excited and jubilant. He worked all night as usual at a Brantford service station but staying home to hear the result.

In Sudbury Dave McVie and Harry Williams, two of the Falconbridge smelter, joint holders of a ticket, were celebrating. The two said they had sold a half interest in the ticket for $5,155, for Pound Poolish was not in the money. The two split altogether $6,460.

"We had plenty of plans and would have been out of here fast if Pound Poolish won," said McVie. "But we didn't win so it is back to work for me. And we won't be buying any more sewing machines, farms or anything else."

City and District News

STREETS QUIET ON FIRST HALF HOLIDAY

Front street was more than ordinarily quiet this afternoon following the closing of shops through the business section at noon for the first of the Wednesday half holidays of the year. Blinds were drawn in the shops in most instances while only a few pedestrians were observed along the main streets. Thoughtful residents were careful to conclude their day's purchases this morning following the first warning by merchants.

SHEEP KILLING DOGS NOW BEING WATCHED

Sheep-killing dogs in the district have commenced their depredations in pastured sheep folds. This week the loss of one lamb and a badly scattered flock is reported by S. F. Dodds of Cherry Valley attributed to two dogs, one being recognized by the owner as a small, black part collie and the second a brindle bull terrier. The dogs managed to escape.

EIGHT MILES STREETS TO BE OIL TREATED

Eight miles of city streets will be oiled by the city this year.

To cover the surface of these fifty streets listed by the city works department, an estimated total of 30,000 gallons of liquid asphalt and 1,700 tons of water-washed pea gravel will be needed.

No new streets are to be treated this year, according to plans of the department and work is expected to commence during the week of June 13th. The complete job which will be carried out by men taken from the city relief lists as far as possible, is expected to take about two weeks.

In order that the new oiling will not interfere with the circus due in the city the same week, first work of oiling is scheduled for the west side of the city.

WEED CROP HEAVY CITY SURVEY SHOWS

Improvement in growing conditions in the rural areas during the past week or so have also brought acres of weeds springing forth on empty lots and yards in the city. It is reported after a first of the season survey by the public works department this week.

"The crop this year is a heavy one, just about as heavy as 10 has ever been." it was stated by City Engineer Chas. Mott.

Employees of the department will commence the first of the season's weed cutting next week but in the meantime, residents are reminded that the removal of all cutting their own weeds on property is one which must be carried out through the provisions of a bylaw.

BATHING POOL OPEN ON VICTORIA PARK

Following its renovation and repainting this week, the children's swimming pool on Victoria Park has been opened for use of the smaller and inexperienced swimmers. This year the bottom and sides of the pool have been painted a contrasting white so as to make easier the watch by the lifeguard over the juvenile bathers. Since the construction of the pier at the end of the park both pier and diving tower have been in daily use by numbers of older swimmers.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR MAY TOTAL $5400

Seven building permits issued by the office of the city building inspector during the month of May authorize a total of $5,400 in new building within the city. Construction permits have been given to R. G. Coulter, 100 North Front street for a kitchen addition at $150; Goodrich Oil Company, East Dundas street for station alterations at $300; Swift Canadian plant addition at $1500; J. W. Hodson, Queen street, garage at $200; W. Bean, Front street, store front at $100; B. A. Oil Company, service station alteration, Coleman and Bridge streets, at $750; and Wm. Clarke, Toronto, alterations to the Farley property, 115 East Bridge street, at $2,500.

LOCAL 21ST . . . b dcoior . . .

Good comradeship fostered during the days of the great war when the men fought side by side, and kept alive through the intervening years, will again be exemplified in this city on Thursday evening of this week when members of the Belleville Club of the 21st Battalion will be hosts to visiting members of the Kingston 21st Club at a social evening being held at the armouries. A large delegation from the parent city of the Battalion is expected to be present. Chief among the guests will be Colonel H. E. Penne, Officer Commanding the unit overseas, and Padre, the Rev. Canon Bedford Jones. Special program of entertainment has been prepared for the visitors.

CHILD FALLS FROM SWINGING GATE

While swinging on a fence gate at the City Grounds during the evening's Bay of Quinte League baseball game, Jackie Dixon, West Bridge street, fell from his lofty perch and sustained a deep, nasty cut on the forehead. Park officials and provincial police rendered first aid while Provincial Constable D. Carruthers later escorted the lad to the surgery of Dr. A. Wallen, where two stitches were necessary in order to close the wound. As the lad fell the swinging gate is believed to have struck him a glancing blow on the forehead came in contact with a stone, as a large deep gash resulted. The wound bled profusely before first aid was rendered.

SPEAKS ON CANCER RESEARCH EFFORTS

Dr. Mairice Roberts Moore, pathologist at the William W. Backus Hospital at Norwich, Conn., and a member of the tumor clinic was one of the speakers at the convention of Connecticut State Nurses Association at Hotel Bond in Hartford, on the subject of "Promoting cancer research efforts through education." Dr. Moore is the youngest son of Mr. Alex Moore, 180 George street. He was born in Palmerston and educated in the school there, at Albert College, Belleville and at Queen's University, where he graduated eight years ago. He was awarded a scholarship.

Minister's Son Invents Invisible Ear Drum

The Invisible Ear Drum invented by A. O. Leonard, a son of the late Rev. A. A. Leonard, D.D., for many years secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for his own relief from extreme deafness and head noises, has so greatly improved his hearing that he can join in any ordinary conversation, go to church and the theatre and hear without difficulty, inexpensive, and has proven a boon to many people. Temperature Correctly Told by Thermometer

The While Rose Service Station, lower Front street, has solved the problem of those who are always at a loss to discover the atmospheric temperature.

For yesterday, Clarence Clapp, genial lessee of the station, installed a thermometer that not only tells the public the correct temperature, but shows it in such a manner that the readings are quite discernible across the street.

Octagonal in shape, the new thermometer, boasting a large open face with black numerals, is also lighted at night with seven neon lights. For the benefit of the general public, the thermometer will be illuminated each night, Mr. Clapp stated today.

The correct temperature Certainly, Mr. Clapp replied. The thermometer is guaranteed to be within two points of correct temperatures the year round.

Police Blotter

Local motorists continue to violate the city one hour parking by-law in the downtown area, necessitating the placing of police stickers upon the vehicles left too long in one parking position, Belleville police reported today. Each delinquent motorists will be summonned into court as the result of infractions by him during yesterday.

An 18-year-old Sulphide girl was removed from a local beverage room last evening and detained at the police station for safe keeping pent to remain the night with friends. Police revealed the girl is at present under suspended sentence and was previously warned to refrain from frequenting such places before being placed on suspended sentence. Today the girl was instructed to return to her home.

John Nolan, 37 St. Charles street, reported the theft of his bicycle to local police authorities yesterday. Mr. Nolan left his bicycle parked on McDonald avenue while employed, but upon his return the bike was missing.

Provincial police are in possession of a trailer license plate, number b; 1143-T. The marker was turned in to the authorities by a motorist who found it on the highway.

LATE MISS MARGARET KIRBY

Marmora, (Special) — The funeral of the late Margaret Kirby was held on Tuesday morning, from the residence of Mr. E. D. O'Connor to Sacred Heart Church, when a High Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Agnew. Rev. Father Hyland of Madoc, was in the sanctuary. Six cousins of the deceased acted as pall-bearers — Bernard Jackson, D. F. Kavanagh, James Hogan, John Kavanagh, Breen O'Connor, James Kavanagh.

Interment was made in the family plot at Bancroft.

MRS. MARTHA F. McLAUGHLIN (Colborne)

(Formerly of Wallbridge)

The death of Mrs. Martha F. McLaughlin, widow of Robert J. McLaughlin, which occurred at Cobourg, Ont., on Friday, May 27th, has brought sincere feelings of regret and loss to many friends. Her illness was of brief duration.

The late Mrs. McLaughlin who was in her 68th year was born at Osgoode Station, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. For some years she resided at Wallbridge in Sidney Township, where her late husband, Robert J. McLaughlin, was cheesemaker.

Mrs. McLaughlin was a woman of most estimable character and was held in affectionate regard by many relatives and friends. In religion she was a member of the United Church and when able to do so was assisted in the work of the church. Upon leaving Wallbridge, Mrs. McLaughlin resided in Toronto for a time and for the past five years made her home in Colborne.

Surviving to mourn her loss are one daughter, Mrs. Ella Otto, Colborne, and grandson, "Bobby" Otto; one sister, Mrs. John A. Campbell, Vernon, Ont.; four brothers, Mr. Samuel Smith, Osgoode Station, Ont.; Mr. Nelson Smith Osgoode Station, Ont.; Mr. Harvey Smith, Wales, Ont.; Mr. Andrew Smith, Ottawa.

The funeral service was conducted at her late residence in Colborne on Sunday last and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The service was conducted by the Rev. Roy Rickard, pastor of the Colborne United Church.

Interment was made in Belleville Cemetery on Monday afternoon, May 31st. The service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. Roy Rickard.

LATE MRS. JOHN WILLIAMS (Picton)

Picton, (Special)— Cynthia Jane Schnaser, wife of John Williams, passed away in Picton on Saturday, May 28th in her 68th year. The deceased had spent the greater part of her married life at Napanee, where she was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. For the past few years she has made her home in Picton.

She is survived by her husband and one son, Wilfrid Williams, and one daughter, Mrs. Herman Earlcon of Wauposs.

The funeral service at the home on Downs Avenue, was largely attended on Monday afternoon and interment made in the Rose Cemetery, Wauposs.

LATE THOS. WELLS (Picton)

Picton, (Special) — Death came very suddenly on Monday, May 30th, to Thomas Joseph Wells at his home in Picton. Mr. Wells was in his 68th year and was for many years C.P.R. Station Agent at Bloomfield. He retired a few months ago and since Spring has made his home in Picton. His wife, formerly Myrtle Mulholland, and one daughter, survive. One son, Damon Wells predeceased his father.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. M. E. R. Boudreau, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, June 1st. Interment was made in Mount Hope Cemetery, Brighton.

JOHN R. STILES (Hillier)

Picton, (Special)—The death occurred in Hillier on Thursday, May 26th of John R. Stiles in his 70th year. The funeral service was held at his late residence on Monday, May 30th and interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN WAGER (Sophiasburg)

Picton, (Special)— In Sophiasburg, Hattie C. Clark, wife of John C. Wager, passed away on Friday, May 27th in her 54th year. The funeral service on Sunday, May 29th, was attended by sorrowing relatives and friends in Bethesda Church and interment made in Cherry Valley Cemetery.

GRACE LUELLA CARTER HOLLOWAY

The death took place in Toronto on Monday, May 23rd of Grace Luella Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter of Holloway.

The late Grace Carter who was in her 27th year was of an affectionate disposition and her early passing will be keenly regretted by a host of relatives and friends.

An impressive funeral service was conducted at the home of her parents on Wednesday May 25th and was very largely attended. Rev. F. Horton of Foxboro circuit was in charge and gave a comforting message. Mrs. D. Rose aided with a feeling solo. The flowers were many and beautiful showing the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The bearers were Elmer Rollins, Lewis Reid, Clayton Prest, Arthur Reid, Ralph Smith and Lorne Carter, all cousins of the family.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her sorrowing father and mother, two brothers, Cecil and Arthur and six sisters, Mrs. Percy Bowen (Gladys), Mrs. Adam Kelly (Pearl) Mrs. James Begley (Eunice), Mrs. Leo Leslie (Doris), all of Toronto, Mrs. Arnold Wannamaker (Mildred) Downeyville and Miss Carrie at home, to whom is extended deepest sympathy in this sudden bereavement.

Interment was in the family plot in Cuffin's Cemetery in the 8th Concession of Sidney.

TRANSIENT HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

William McPhee, No Address Arrested Near Tweed Tuesday

Arrested on charges of breaking, entering and theft, a transient, who police say gave the name of William McPhee, was taken into custody near Tweed by Chief C. J. Mason, while working in conjunction with provincial police authorities late yesterday. McPhee is charged with entering the dental office of Dr. Grant Fraser, Madoc, and stealing gold and valuables to the value of nearly $500.00. The accused man was today lodged in the Hastings County jail on remand.

Upon information received from Provincial Constable J. Dymond of Madoc, Chief Hayes arrested McPhee as he was skirting No. 7 highway as an apparent effort to evade the village of Tweed as he was proceeding easterly. Police say they found a club bag and a quantity of gold, said to have been stolen from the latter's office on Monday in the accused man's possession.

Robbery was first entered the resident office of Dr. Fraser some time between Monday night and stole $150 worth of dental gold, a Masonic Shriner's emblem, valued at $150, a watch and other valuable household articles.

Large 'Snowball' Blooms Admired

Easily one of the outstanding floral growths of the city was brought to the office of the Ontario Intelligencer today in the form of eight large blooms, commonly known as "Snowball Blossoms."

The dense formation of the small petals that cluster in a solid circular mass of white color, measuring from six and one half to seven inches in diameter, mark these blooms that grow on a bush in the garden of Mr. J. M. Christie 30 Octavia Street as being some of the largest of their kind grown in the city.

Forced to Halt His Automobile On Railway Tracks

Forced to halt his automobile on railway tracks with a speeding express train approaching through the night towards his motor car, was the thrilling experience of Earl B. Ketcheson, of Foxboro last evening. Fortunately, however, Mr. Ketcheson was able to move his automobile off the tracks as the speeding express train, hissing and roaring, rushed by in mighty roar.

Mr. Ketcheson was driving easterly on highway No. 2 west of Belleville, when upon approaching the C.P.R. crossing near the Belleville Cemetery, another motor car in front suddenly halted directly in his path immediately after crossing the tracks. Mr. Ketcheson was forced to apply the brakes of his car in order to avoid striking the rear of the other vehicle. In so doing, however, Mr. Ketcheson's car came to a stop upon the C.P.R. crossing rails. At this time Mr. Ketcheson heard the shrill whistle of a train and frantically sounded the horn of his car in an effort to warn the lead vehicle of his dangerous position. The train continued to speed toward the automobile causing the driver to become anxious and undecided whether to vacate his automobile in an effort to save his own life, when most fortunately the car in front advanced slightly, allowing Mr. Ketcheson to proceed off the tracks only a few seconds before the C.P.R. express train speeded by.

Mr. Ketcheson reported his incident to Sergeant Arthur Boutin of the city police force later and gave the police the license plate number of the automobile to have stopped in front of him. "It was a thrilling position and one I never wish to experience again. Why, for a moment I didn't now just what to do," stated Mr. Ketcheson.

HARD LUMPS CAME ON HER LEGS

Ankles And Feet Swollen With Rheumatism

Rheumatism sent this woman to bed with lumps, swellings, and inflammation. Yet these symptoms soon disappeared, as they always will do when the root cause is removed. This letter tells you the method she used:—

"I was taken ill with terrible rheumatic pains in my legs. They were badly inflamed, swollen, and they were partly covered with red, hard lumps. To put my foot down to the ground was agony. After I had been in bed for 18 days, suffering agony all the time, my husband said, 'You can't go on suffering like this, let us try Kruschen Salts.' He got a bottle, and almost from the first I felt benefit. Before long, I was completely relieved — swellings, inflammation, and lumps all gone—and I am up again and doing my housework."—(Mrs.) E.L.

Do you realize what causes a good deal of rheumatic pain? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system.

LIGHTNING CAUSE MINE EXPLOSION

Dynamite Behind Men Drilling in Shaft Set Off by Lightning

Val D'Or, Que., June 1.—(CP)—Lightning which detonated a charge of dynamite was responsible for the deaths of three men as they drilled in the Sladen-Malartic mine Monday night.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Peter Prokyn, 32, K. C. Pupil, 32, and George Mackay, 38, all single residents of Val D'Or, died when an "electrical disturbance" detonated the dynamite with which they were to blast in the shaft down which they were drilling. Their deaths were declared accidental.

A fierce electrical storm raged over this village and over the mine seven miles away. Witnesses said they believed a bolt of lightning somehow was conducted underground to set off the charge at the men's backs. Wilfred Leroy, some distance from the actual explosion, suffered minor injuries.

Val D'Or is 253 miles northeast of North Bay.

DRAFT TREATY

advise the two governments on a building program.

Treaty Tabled

The draft treaty was tabled in the House of Commons here last night with only a few remarks, from Prime Minister Mackenzie King. He gave no indication of the attitude of the Canadian government toward it. In Toronto Premier Hepburn, who has shared honors with the United States Senate in opposition to the St. Lawrence development, said he saw no sound reason for [illegible]-way. It would have to be justified economically [illegible] government would agree to it.

Briefly, the treaty highlights are:

A 27-foot seaway to be built from the ocean to the head of the lakes, work to start as soon as possible. Canada undertaking to provide by Dec. 31, 1940, for its share.

An international commission to allocate to each country the part it would be asked to construct.

Works in the United States and Canada to be built by the governments of those countries, the American government bearing the bulk of the cost in the international section from just east of Cornwall, Ont., to near Prescott.

Remove Objections

The United States would remove its objection to export of power from Ontario and diversion of water from Long Lac and Ogoki river into Lake Superior. Ontario would get the benefit of that diverted water in power developed at Sault Ste. Marie, Niagara and in the international section.

Ontario would be empowered to postpone development in the international section until there was a demand for the power in Ontario. The United States would start development on its side of the river at once.

Beautification of Niagara Falls would be carried out by a provision for an unknown event at both the American and Canadian Falls.

Canada's Share 37 Million

Cost of the United States would be approximately $242,881,000 and of Canada about $38,071,00, Canada having already paid approximately $138,000,00 for the Welland canal. It would be paid $67,000,000 by Ontario if it is estimated, for the power that province would gain.

The new treaty combines in altered form the provisions of the St. Lawrence Treaty of 1932 and the Niagara beautification convention of 1929, both rejected by the United States Senate. The 1925 treaty was never considered by the Canadian parliament, the government awaiting action on it by the United States Congress.

The Niagara treaty was signed by Canada but never came into force because of defeat in the American Senate.

An important change from the 1925 treaty is the provision for construction of works in the international section. Under the old treaty costs in this section would be apportioned by an international commission which would carry out the works.

Under the new treaty the joint commission, an equal number of which would represent each country, would prepare plans for the development and allocate each country its share. But the development would be carried out by Canadian and United States governments as it was mapped out by the commission.

A major point of dispute between Canada and the United States before 1925 treaty was drafted was whether 2 stages or 1 should be used in international section. The United States, favored one while Canada wanted two. The United States engineers decided the one-stage development would be less expensive. The Canadians wanted one stage for safety. The Canadian view finally was accepted. Under the proposed treaty the International commission would decide on that point.

Ontario's Opposition

Ontario's strong opposition to the St. Lawrence development is reflected in clauses of the treaty which would provide that Canada need not develop waterpower on the Canadian side of the international section until there was a market for it. In addition the Ontario government would be given rights to export power in the United States and to divert water from Hudson's Bay into Lake Superior.

American disinclination to permit Ontario export of power unless the agreement to do so was embodied in a waterways treaty was announced last March 17 and formed part of a dispute between the Ontario and Ottawa governments over the latter's refusal of permits for Ontario exportation of power bought from Quebec in recently-revised power contracts with Quebec power companies.

Niagara, the honeymooners' paradise, would be preserved and "enhanced" under a clause of the treaty providing for works on both sides of the river. After projects designed to put an unbroken crest of water over the falls were completed both countries would be given further power at the falls.

They would be permitted to divert to their power houses from the Niagara River an additional 3,000 cubic feet a second. Experts would decide over a term of years whether this diversion would be cut or increased.

For years there has been discussion between the two countries, between diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the Chicago drainage canal. Under the treaty the diversion would be unchanged. If disputes arose over increase in the diversion in an emergency the international commission would decide on them.

Georgian Canal

One provision of the new treaty would obligate Canada to deepen the Welland ship canal to 27 feet. But this presents little difficulty as the canal now is 30 feet through most of its length. Dredging of mud would be required in only one short section.

Canada also would be required to deepen the St. Lawrence in Canadian section from Cornwall to the 27-foot depth. A canal already has been provided by the Beauharnois Power Company. The Dominion government would construct the locks.

Under the treaty the United States and Canada would have to do some additional work in the Thousand Islands area. Just what this work would be was not disclosed.

The treaty also would provide that the United States would have to provide a 27-foot seaway from the Lake Erie to Lake Superior, that is through the Detroit, St. Clair and St. Mary's River.

Take Tots Outdoors, Is Advice

Parents and Children Enjoy Nature, Says Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

ENJOYMENT of parks and the wide open spaces of the country probably is the least in the United States of any great nation of the world. How can one get enjoyment and appreciation of the country without going through it at 50 miles an hour? We need to go afoot and with leisure. There are a few hiking clubs in large cities, but oh, so few. Most people living in our towns and small cities never have walked beyond the city limits.

In this generation of litters, when every other bed in our hospitals on the average is occupied by a mental patient, it might be well if we and our children would often seek quiet and repose amid the trees, flowers and birds, provided we slowly walked among them, taking time to look and listen and respond to them. Parents who begin with the tot to go with him to enjoy the sights and beauty of Nature might be able to cultivate in him a lasting interest in such peaceful environment.

Five if dad would hike with his boy on Saturday or Sunday afternoon, if mother would hike with the girls, and on occasion, especially, all would go walking together into the neglected quiet places not so far away. Thousands of parents in big cities, if they cared, could drive out to good places from which to hike; thousands more could go by bus or train. The cost might be less than if they all went to a movie. And how much richer the returns? Why not more family picnic dinners, too?

Then if we parents would learn the names of trees and flowers and birds, how much more interesting to be among them with our children. As with a person, so with a bird, a flower or tree, we feel so much more friendly when we know the name.

Being Good Citizens

But we need to be good citizens when we are enjoying Nature with our children. Whether in the public park, the roadside, by the brook, in the woods or fields, we shall be careful not to litter paper or anything else to mar the beauty or to be a nuisance to others; careful to injure no trees, shrubs, flowers, trees or fences. We shall not even pick wild flowers without permission of the owner. In such situations we have rare opportunities to get over to our children basic moral principles, dramatizing them.

See how owners of farms and country places near towns and cities must be annoyed by city people who are selfish. When our children practice at doing nuisances to others together with us or with our approval, the damage to their character may be immeasurable. Fences might be mended, trees might be replaced, damage from trespass be paid for. I will all parents recognized this principle, who now will silently look on while their child is defacing or destroying the property of a neighbor. Then we might hope to be rearing good citizens.

MAYNOOTH RESIDENT PAYS $100 FINE

Convicted under the Excise Act, Henry Chamberlain, Maynooth resident, was fined $100.00 and costs by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court held at Bancroft yesterday. Chamberlain was arrested by the R.C.M.P. near his home when a large quantity of "moon", said to have been suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor, was found by the R.C.M.P.. The Accused man entered a plea of guilty and paid the assessed fine and costs.

MEXICAN REVOLT BEING KILLED WITH K INDNESS

With the Cedillo revolt degenerating into an affair of sporadic bandit attacks the Mexican government has adopted a new policy in handling captured rebel troops. Instead of standing them against a wall and shooting them, they are paternally reprimanded, then freed and told to go and convince their rebel friends of the hopelessness of their cause. Three shame-faced rebels are shown shuffling in the dust. TOP, as General Pedro Figueroa reads them the riot act prior to freeing them. Following the wrecking of a train by Cedillo bandits, federal troops are kept on the alert guarding railroad lines in the troubled San Luis Potosi area. The mounted troop is shown. Bottom, patrolling the line near the spot where the rebels wrecked the Mexico-Laredo train.

Poems That Live

A BALLAD OF DREAMLAND

I bid my heart in a nest of roses,
Out of the sun's way, hidden apart;
In a softer bed than the soft white snow's is,
Under the roses I bid my heart.
Why would it sleep not? Why should it start,
When never a leaf of the rose-tree stirred?
What made sleep flutter his wings and part?
Only the song of a secret bird.

Lie still, I said, for the wind's wing cleaves
And mild leaves muffle the keen sun's dart;
Lie still, for the wind on the warm south eaves does sweep,
And the wind is unquieter yet than thou art.
Does a thought in thee still as a thorn's wound smart?
Does the fang still fret thee of hope deferred?
What bids the lips of thy sleep dissent?
Only the song of a secret bird.

The green land's name that a charm encloses,
It never was writ in the traveller's chart,
And sweet on the trees as the fruit that grows is,
It never was sold in the merchant's mart.
The swallows of dreams through the dim fields dart,
And sleep's are the tunes in its tree-tops heard;
No hound's note wakens the wild-wood hart,
Only the song of a secret bird.

—Algernon Charles Swinburne

Pat O'Brien co-starred with Joan Blondell in "Back in Circulation" now playing the Capitol.

Envoi

In the world of dreams I have known my quest,
To sleep for a season and hear no word
Of true love's truth or of light love's jest,
Only the song of a secret bird.

TO THE HOUSEHOLDER:

We, the Resident Independent Bread and Cake Bakers of our fair city, who have for years and years been contributing in all forms of taxation to pave our streets, make our light and water systems possible: in fact, with our thought only for works our city a safe place for our families and the families of our employees to live

We find as time goes on greater competition coming from outside points made possible by our highway system, not railways, particularly from great milling organizations with Head Offices and plants in outside cities, which pay no taxes of any kind in our city. Realizing as we do that we are all Canadians, but as citizens of Belleville we feel that the Welfare of Belleville should share in your first consideration

Approximately fifty married men who are struggling to rear their families in our city, who spend every nickle of their wages here, will be forced out of employment if you, Mr. and Mrs. Householder don't give your neighbor, who is a tax payer and employer the consideration we think he deserves

Won't you, therefore, insist on buying products baked and sold by local labour and help solve the unemployment situation and help the already overburdened taxpayer.

FALSE ALARMS FOR HELP

Those who while bathing give the false alarm cry for "help" as is reported to have been done at the Beaches are doing something of which they should be ashamed. Such may leave an innocent bather some day to his death, because those who might be able to rescue might believe that they were fooled by a "practical joker." There is no joke in it at all to call for "help" when help is not necessary. It may mean that some one who cannot swim may thoughtlessly rush to the help of a bather and in so doing run the possibility of losing his own life, or a bather in danger might be left to his fate.

Those in authority at the beaches will see to it that the matter is brought to the attention of the police. Such tricks should be severely dealt with if possible.

Parents should warn their children from such dangerous and ungentlemanly and mean practices. It means making light of the human instinct to save, for there are few who will not go to the aid of any one in danger.

NEW RAILING ON FOOTBRIDGE

The board top placed upon the edge of the netting at the sides of the footbridge should give satisfaction to many who cross this structure daily. Used to the old oval wooden railings on the old footbridge, many have not become accustomed to the top of the netting when it is necessary to grip it and as a result it looks as if the present job should meet a need.

SOMETHING NEW ABOUT THE SUN

Few would believe it, but it is proven by experts that winter sunshine is a little hotter and brighter than summer sun. A new invention is a pyrheliometer which measures the intensity of sunlight simultaneously from all directions. The meter looks for all the world like an ordinary electric light, though in the place of the filament is a round black-coated silver ball about the size of a marble, which stands on a pair of wires. The black ball changes sunlight into electric current which flows over the wires to a recording instrument.

The new instrument shows that the extra winter heat is not all due to the fact that in winter, the earth is closer to the sun than in summer. Sunspots and magnetic currents seem to play a part in the winter at Tucson, Arizona, where the measurements were made. The heat has risen with the number of sunspots. These spots are cooler than the surrounding solar surface. But the metre indicates that the spots throw out more invisible heat rays than light, and these rays are changed partly into heat after being absorbed by the blackened ball.

The metre shows that some days half of the sun's radiation at the surface of the earth, comes from sunlight reflected from the sky and the clouds. On such days a person shaded by an umbrella from direct sunburn might receive a little burn from the indirect light.

NATIONALISM AS FOE

The most dangerous enemy on earth of Christian principles is the dogma of nationalism, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick said at New York.

Nationalism has become a competing religion in the last two centuries, Dr. Fosdick said. In its present form, he continued it is in direct opposition to the principles of Christianity in that, first, it makes monotheism impossible; second, it enslaves the Christian conscience by demanding supreme allegiance and obedience to national policies, no matter what they involve; third, by proclaiming that the nation "can do anything as long as it can get away with it," it reduces Christianity to a "harmless" myth and robs it of a program of action."

The absorption of individual freedom by political powers was criticized by the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of New York. He placed the blame for this on the pressure of foreign ideologies rather than on the direct intention of any political officials.

The attitude of Christians toward the problems of today was likened to that of the disciples after the ascension of Jesus by the Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, of Trinity Episcopal Church.

"The disciples felt as if they were stranded, sheep without a shepherd," he said, "lost in the selfishness of their sentimantality. Their attitude was extremely human; they were inconsistent in their faith and unworthy for the moment of the trust that had been placed in them.

"When things go wrong with the body politic, or social problems arise, it lessens faith in the power of the church. Men lacking a spring in difficult times are apt to say that the church has failed when in reality they are expressing their own lack of faith and responsibility. Unless we are persuaded that the church is the only moral force in civilization it will be inadequate in saving the world.

COUNTRY SUNSET

He has not seen the sun go down
Who has not seen a little town.
The city pattern stretches far
And close and high, and where you are
Is hard to find; when sunset wanes,
We push our noses to the panes.
While setting glory falls upon
So many lives in unison,
We scarcely feel the shattered part
Which lights a moment on each heart.

I had not seen the sun go down
Until I knew this little town
Where lesser houses sparsely stand
And straggle out to the fyled land,
Where wide about are sky and air,
Where the sun goes down with an open flare.
And the sky is lit for miles around,
The houses too, and even the ground,
Even my house—when the sun goes down
In a field outside this little town!

SUCCESS IS NOT ALWAYS ATTAINED IN ONE JUMP. Some of the men and women who have attained the highest pinnacles of success, as the world scores it, have first met with failure but refused to quit and pressed on over tremendous obstacles to redeem the past with a glorious present and assured future. It is worthy of note that two famous men won fame and fortune and then came a cropper by entering the publishing business which may look easy to many on the side looking in, or on. Sir Walter Scott attained fame and fortune the hard way. He suffered from lameness the result of a physical ailment in his youth. His books brought him fame and fortune, then he invested his fortune in the publishing business and was left penniless facing old age. To add to his troubles his wife died, but he refused to accept defeat and started all over again from scratch. He won out. Samuel Clemens ("Mark Twain,) had a similar experience. He won fame and fortune with his humorous tales, and he too invested his fortune in the publishing business and was left flatter financially than the proverbial pancake. Nothing daunted he undertook a lecturing tour around the world, and the proceeds of this together with his later writings won him added fame and a second fortune. And to show that a man can be down but he need never be out while he has courage to get up and keep going.

FIVE HUNDRED SUPER AERIAL BOMBERS ready on the extreme border of Russia facing Japan is one of the threats that country is facing and there is an ever present fear in the cities that some bomber will be made by the Japanese military party which will precipitate war with Russia. Japanese stolidity may well be shaken by the various fears which beset the inhabitants of that country every morn on waking. These fears include the realization that China can not be conquered in a matter of weeks or months and the war bids fair to go on and on indefinitely. Other fears include the ever present fear of fire, typhoons, epidemic and earthquake, for days when the earth does not shake in Japan are few, it is said, and fear of earthquake is coupled with that of fire for the houses are of bamboo and very inflammable. Such a little nation, worshipping its Emperor as "The Son of Heaven" with its wagon hitched to a star, should be going places, but at the present time seems to be going in the wrong direction.

EDICT OF PARK COMMISSIONERS that Victoria Park must be vacated by ten o'clock in the evening. Daylight Saving Time, does not meet with universal approval. Ten o'clock, Daylight Saving Time, is only nine o'clock, Standard Time, and some folks would only be going down to the park at that time. Why not base closing time on Moonlight Time? Just imagine a young couple sitting in the moonlight with the "sweetest story ever told" only half told when a great bulking bobby bobs up and shoos them out of the park. We can't imagine it.

Music Spurs Production

A Wembley firm which recently installed a wireless set in its factory has posited that the effect of music on the girl workers has been to increase production by more than 10 per cent, according to the London Observer. The music, however, was not appreciated by the male staff of the office.

The effects of music on general work appear, indeed, to vary considerably. There is no guarantee that one type of music will be acceptable to all.

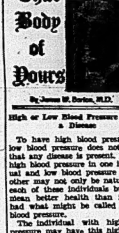
An investigator of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology visited a laundry in Scotland where shirts and collars were being treated with amazing expedition to martial music. These operations would not have jam at any price, and their output is now described as "astonishing, even alarming."

Their daily dose of martial music is an hour in the morning and an hour in the afternoon, and so successful has been the prescription that other Scottish firms are experimenting on similar lines.

On the other hand equally excellent results have been found in the case of the establishment of a Sheffield firm of tea packers where the girls by unanimous choice, are regaled with jazz and other forms of dance music.

Then there is the experience of a motor manufacturing company which has loud-speakers in the workshops. Programmes of one hour are given in the mornings and afternoons and many of the workers bring their own gramophone records to be played. Dance tunes are the most popular, followed by marches with a definite rhythm harmonizing with the routine of the workshops.

General results indicate that in repetition work the stimulus of music means an increase in output of as much as 10 per cent., and that its introduction has such an effect on fatigue and boredom that even the sickness rate falls.



The Industrial Health Research Board finds that it is dangerous to generalize in the "music and work" question, and that while on broad principles the introduction of music into industry is to be welcomed each case should have separate consideration before action is taken.

Opinions expressed by the workers themselves are illuminating. "Music makes you work better because you can't hear," said one girl. "If on a bad job, music helps you to forget, and it stops you getting ill," is another view.

The Rev. Andrew Fenlason, Principal of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology, agrees that the effect of music on office staff is likely to be more of a nuisance than a blessing, and that the more concentrated the mental work the greater the nuisance it may prove. In industry, in his view, it is best employed at certain hours of the day and not continuously.—Montreal Gazette.

SPIRITS THAT DARE

"You can only die once," was the war-cry which was shouted by the Canadian explorers through large areas of North America, which in former years flung French fur and trading posts from Montreal to the Arctic and on down to the Gulf of Mexico. It was a gallant challenge to date to die in world. That world typifies Young Canada today as truly as it ever did. It would typify all Canada if we did not allow our heads to be filled with senseless fears, imported for the most part in foreign ideologies which have no place in America. Citizens, made timid and hesitating by ignorance and superstition, lose heart when ill winds blow upon the country. They go about worrying, complaining, making themselves worse. The day will come when our youngsters will look back upon what is written by prophets of defeatism. Our boys and girls, eager, energetic and full of life, are not going to let themselves be held back forever by imaginary dangers. They will exert their right to try anything once. And, trying, they will succeed. Then they will fall. Canada today is acting like an aged country—stumbling along at less than a quarter the gait it could go if it would take its course in both hands and smash its way out of the fogs of gloom, suspicion, indecision, timidity and jealousy its intellectual leaders have allowed to gather over it.—La Jour (Montreal).

High or Low Blood Pressure is Not a Disease

To have high blood pressure or low blood pressure does not mean that any disease is present. In fact high blood pressure in one individual and low blood pressure in another may not only be natural for each of these individuals but may mean better health than if they had what might be called normal blood pressure.

The individual with high blood pressure may have this high blood pressure simply because he is excitable and emotional, or because he may have some recent infection. To overcome these two conditions which tend the blood vessels the pressure of the blood must be increased. High blood pressure in these two conditions is therefore necessary. When however, the blood vessels have lost their elasticity—hardening of the arteries—high blood pressure is also needed to pump blood through these non-elastic blood vessels.

The individual with low blood pressure may have this low pressure because he has been told that way is by perhaps, underweight, or taxes no exercise. In fact, as Dr. A. Blaine Bowyer, Dayton, in Ohio State Medical Journal states, "Low blood pressure is compatible with a long life and if no symptoms are present, no treatment is required. If there are no symptoms nor complications, low blood pressure after fifty-five (55) years of age should be considered a satisfactory blood pressure."

Sir: I am always interested in bird experiences, having had much opportunity to observe more than sixty varieties near my house since we allowed an acre to grow wild in the rear. This has increased my porch lamp is an odd piece of early Americana, a globe incrusted with rounds of colored glass, one inch in diameter. This small opening is the entrance to her nest which a house wren has built there for seven years. Regularly on April 28 she appears and scolds volubly if people who disturb her nest at work. This year she has quite a task—to carry out the shells of the nest she left there last year. And this is why she left them:

She always goes to bed before the electric light is turned on and it never disturbs her. One evening I tried upsetting her routine, to see what she would do, so I switched the light on before she retired. I was soon to regret this, for she became highly excited, flew in and out the entrance to her home, hid, and peeped out of it in alarm. When she saw me watching she spat away. Then I put out the light but she left the eggs there and never returned till this year. I have heard that birds have more eggs in electric lights and often do their nest repairing when they're turned on.

My wren builds on one side of the electric bulb. This year, for the eighth year, I shall allow her to obscure the light in that quarter but I shall turn it on according to Hoyle." — Gertrude L. Sloane—in New York Sun.

Frenchmen Turn to Hockey

The hockey public rather than the hockey game turned out to be the spectacle for the Canadian taking in the Prince of Wales cup series in the Paris Palais des Sports. No stadium in Canada ever drew one quite like it.

There is no reflection on the hockey. The exhibitions given by Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings were first-class for speed, science and thrills. Even during Paris practically speechless with boarseness. Roughly 10,000 persons attended each game and though they didn't quite know how to put their fingers into it in the end night, they were frankly pro-Canadien by the end of the series of boisterously partisan about it.

The crowds chanted "Os-sa-ca-ca-ca-da-da-da-da-da" and encouraged by the handful of genuine Canadians, who proved their presence on the shingles by shouting "Stop on it, Canada," "Pull your pants on, Delbert," "Watcha doing Cude, pesin'?" The Americans hadn't a chance to be heard.

Most of the fans had never seen hockey and women kept shrieking and ducking their heads behind their companions every time the puck came their way. The men in the boys dismayed them too. And no wonder, for many of the Canadian fellows at any time, when stuffed out with pads and extra underclothing, look as one French girl said, "simply colossal." Or perhaps it was the contrast with the female population here. At any rate, Canadian hockey is a popular sport. I'd be frightened to death to go to America if all the men looked as fat and as colossal as are they chewing?

What is new to a hockey game had obviously required deep thought on the part of the "chic" galleries suggests the future may change all that.—CP Paris Despatch.

YOUNG PREMIERS

The "Toronto Star" in one of the London daily papers claimed on Tuesday for R. M. Bruce, the high commissioner for Australia, the distinction of having been the youngest premier of any part of the British Empire had had since Pitt" at the early age of 40 when he became prime minister of Australia in 1923. Canada, however, can boast that Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard McBride became premier of British Columbia in 1903, the age was 37 years six months. Walter Scott, who died a few weeks ago, became Saskatchewan's first premier in 1905 when 38. To come to later times, Mitchell Hepburn, the present premier of Ontario, when he came into office in 1934, was just under 36. So Australians certainly cannot have it their own way.

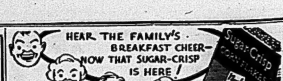
THE CAMP FIRE

Instead of noticing saking forest visitors to "put out your fire," the Forestry Service should tell people how and where to build cooking fires and particularly how to put them out. Camp fires should be built on sand or stones, and not on forest soil. Ground covered by a dozen pails of water should be used to drench the ground, and the blackened embers should then be thrown into water. Fire may smoulder in underbrush for days.—From the Sault Daily Star.)

FREE GARDEN SEED

The post office has announced the expression that he had "a hard row to hoe," much used by the public, especially the condition in which the Windsor Park Board finds itself. The board has been ploughed rows upon rows of garden plots for welfare recipients, that they may raise their own fresh produce, it finds more than a little difficulty in getting those for whom the gardens were intended, to accept even a paltry quart of seeds obtained for them. About three weeks ago, seed potatoes and onion sets sufficient to take care of all the garden plots in five districts were distributed to the recipients of relief, and to date the Park Board has failed to call for their free supplies.—Windsor Star.

HUSBANDS, NOTE



This is the time of the year when husbands and fathers should check up in the kitchen. A kitchen table, according to good measurements of over 500 women, should be 30 to 31 inches high, an ironing board 31 to 33 inches, a sink 31 to 32 inches and top shelves for china 72 to 74 inches high.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

BRITISH ARMY HONORS LATE BELGIAN KING

Representatives of the British army and air force attended the unveiling of a tablet, presented by the British army, in memory of King Albert of the Belgians. The unveiling ceremony was preceded by a special service in the Cathedral of St.-Martin, Brussels. King Leopold is shown here chatting with the Earl of Athlone as the latter arrived at the cathedral to attend the ceremony.

Mr. John M. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Clarke, passed his fourth year examinations in the College of Dentistry, University of Toronto.

Mr. C. R. Tilbrook spent Wednesday in Brockville and attended graduation exercises at Brockville General Hospital.

Mrs. (Rev.) George G. Wright, President of Belleville Canadian Club, Miss W. E. Mikel, Past President, Mrs. (Dr.) J. W. Kinnear, Past President, Mrs. A. E. Argue, vice president, are attending the Canadian Club Convention at the Windsor Hotel, Windsor. It is expected that Belleville may be the meeting place next year. The delegates are to be entertained by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario at his residence, Government House on Saturday afternoon.

At the home of Mrs R. A. Flynn, Queen Street, yesterday, the members of the Catholic Women's League held a very successful afternoon tea and sale of home cooking. The many guests were received by Mrs. Flynn, Mrs. A. B. Collins, president of the League, and Miss Margaret Hayes, past president. Mrs. Donna Flynn opened the door to the visitors. Mrs. F. S. Anderson, assisted by Mrs. Hughes and Miss Anna Hurley invited the guests to the tea room. The tea table made a charming picture with its centrepiece of deep red peonies, silver candelabra and silver in matching tones were used in candelabra effect. Mrs. J. Smith and Mrs. J. Lafferty poured and those who assisted in the tea room were Mrs. C. M. Bell, Mrs. Percy Doherty, Mrs. J. E. Logan, Mrs. E. G. Kennedy, Mrs. J. L. Calnan, Mrs. J. Legault, Mrs. T. R. Dolan, Mrs. A. G. Cicero and Mrs. J. Chappell. The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. J. M. Trudeau and Mrs. A. Wilkinson. Mrs. D. H. Donoghue acted as treasurer for the tea.

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD

The monthly meeting of the Young Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Allan Hitchon, West Moira Street, Monday evening, with President, Mrs. Archibald presiding.

After reading of the minutes and Treasurer's reports, with subsequent business, it was decided to hold the next meeting on June 20th to take care of the yearly business, elections of officers, etc. The nominating committee were Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Wishart, Mrs. Plumpton.

Miss Nicholls led the worship service which was very appropriate, arranged with reference to John Wesley, the subject of the evening's study.

Miss M. Lashbrook led the discussion on the life and teachings of John Wesley. With able direction the members were given a fine idea of John Wesley carried great experience as a Christian citizen in the world of affairs, in the eighteenth century.

Mrs. Graham gave John Wesley's account of his conversion, May 24th, 1738, at a meeting of the Christian Century, May 1938, two hundred years later. Miss Ann Hill read excerpts of "John Wesley and the Moral Awakening of the Common People" and "Wesley in the age of Wesley is one of the spectacular figures of his time, inspired by his religion not only to seek to save men's souls, but to care for their material welfare, organizing for lief, caring for orphans, founding schools, dispensing medicines to the sick, performing all the corporal acts of mercy."

Miss Olive Elson read selections from Wesley's social teachings.

Mrs. McIntosh gave the rules by which followers of Wesley had to abide, or be excluded from the group. John Wesley applied his mind, heart and conscience to every part of life as he saw it, concerned for the well being of his fellows, the stability of government, the integrity of public life and morals, and counting it part of his duty not to exercise his judgment therein, but also to influence opinions of others.

The hostesses for the evening were Misses Eardman, Coover, Daly, Catcher, and Mrs. Ferguson.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Can Woman's Laughter Save a Cockeyed World?

Women the world over want to keep their homes and save their husbands and sons from the insane whimsies of another World War. Will laughter do it?

In that question a wise hint is given by Mrs. William G. Winter, former president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, who thinks the dire predictions made by present day speakers are not helping to correct world blunders; that too many isms, handed out by speakers and pen-pushers, impede the progress of our own ship of state.

And so ladies, mightn't it be well if we take our own laughter-lessons now?

Begin with the strutting little boys playing at being world dictators in your own back yards or on the lot. It's the very latest little boys' game and they do it pretty well.

Watch your little son or a neighbor's boy puffing out his cheeks, sauce-pan on head for a helmet, strutting and playing that the world trembles at his feet.

Or can you smile and pretend not to see when another kid steals a bit of horse-hair stuffing from the old sofa, and makes a grotesque little mustache like Charley Chaplin's—the kind that made Charlie feel so proud for himself because no one would take him seriously, even off the stage?

Can you laugh when another youngster, still playing dictator, looks slyly down and issues the orders "You guys stand up against that fence, while I have you shot. I'm detailed to purge, see!"

If you can see the humor in those little-boy antics, acted today under the world's big top by grown-up little boys, who love to strut and have managed to put their act across temporarily, you may help to straighten out this cockeyed world.

The power of suggestion is one of the greatest of world forces, and if you sit round women's clubs, or continue to eat something creamed out of a pasty-shell at 'ladies' luncheons, listening meanwhile to all the dire predictions made by various speakers, you'll probably begin rolling linen bandages for the next World War before the holocaust begins.

Humor is almost as tremendous a world force as suggestion, and there is no more powerful antidote against all the strutting, cheek-puffing tin-hat-wearing, chopped-mustached play-acting than good ringing laughter.

Let our laughter begin at home, even while we spare a tear for those women, armed or unarmed, who didn't begin laughing soon enough. We have plenty of grownup little boys in the United States world give anything to strut and swagger the way they do in Italy and Germany.

And while there is still time to laugh, let's give them the gayest kind we can. Let's save our homes, husbands and sons. As Mrs. Winter reminds us, "Women are those people who lack a sense of humor. Humor is the human balance wheel, and the female is more funny you are, you will stay sane."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Table Manners.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have had a very quiet life, free from social obligations other, than the simplest hospitality. Occasionally I find myself in a social position where I am not sure of what is correct.

1—Recently I had dinner at a very nice hotel. The salad plate was brought in with the soup and placed on the table. Was it correct to eat the salad after the soup, while the main course was being prepared?

2—Should all the food be lifted at once to the dinner plate to allow the waiter to remove the individual oblong dishes on which the food and vegetables are carried in, or should it be taken gradually?

3—Should soup be served, about only one be put on the dinner plate at a time?

4—Is it correct to pick up these small dishes and "pour" the food into the dinner plate, or should the food be lifted to the plate with a knife and fork?

D.

May I bow my congratulations to you? You are doing just the right thing to develop your social consciousness and your appreciation of the Big Little Things, which, added together, give one assurance of charm.

1—This wasn't the best kind of service, albeit it is probably more convenient for the waiter. I judge from what you say, that the entree was served with the main course accompanied by the salad, and so the salad should have been served after the course.

2—When the foods are served in small individual dishes, it seems more mannerly to serve ourselves from some of the foods at a time, not to transfer all of the foods to our plate at once. For instance, it is best to take one piece of meat, one potato, and part of, say, another vegetable each time, and then help ourselves to another serving of any we wish. In this way our eating is done with more decided appearance, always to be desired when eating.

I find it most unpleasant to see a person pick up an individual service dish and "pour" the food into the plate. This should never be done. The food should be served to our plate by fork and spoon (not by knife and fork), if possible by the serving fork and serving spoon. At least a serving spoon should be used, and if the waiter hasn't provided this, he should be asked to supply it.

Wedding Guest's Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the proper dress for me to wear to a church wedding to be held in the morning? I am forty-seven years old, rather tall, fair and slender. The wedding breakfast is to be held in an important metropolitan hotel.

Ann

To this morning wedding and wedding breakfast you should wear street-length dress or ensemble. Perfect for this time of year would be a suit (with bolero jacket, if that is becoming to you, or a jacket reaching just below the waist, or long coat, of the length of your skirt) of plain or printed lightweight crepe, and the ever-fashionable printed georgette or marquisette. Dark shoes as you have described, in the fashion this season, and should be becoming to you. If you choose a plain material, in blue or perhaps burgundy or any other color that you know is becoming to you, you can lighten it by your choice of accessories. Choose one hat carefully, as that it will not only be becoming but will also include toward the side of formality, to wear matching accessories. (If you choose a print, don't have it a conspicuous print.)

Hankie Says Mary Is Name

Handkerchief with name

By Central Press

EVERY GARMENT a woman or man, for that matter, owns is likely to be monogrammed these days. But now milady's name is boldly spelled out on her handkerchief, and this young woman's name appears to be Mary.

This interesting idea is carried out in petitpoint embroidery sheer linen by Burnett, handkerchief designer. Pastel shades of blue and pink, dotted with red roses, orate the corner of the hankie. The dress is a rayon weave and the hat is silk rolled model trimmed with a long veil.

Don't Treat Child as a Grown-up

Unfair to Ask Youth to Share All Adult Burdens, Anxieties

By LISA GRENELLE

Mrs. Holt, a mother I know, always hated baby talk; treating children like infants, like fools. The peek-a-boo school has always made me slightly sick, too; so much so that I was inclined to err as Mrs. Holt has erred, until my own daughter said one day: "But, Mother, please tell me. I don't know. How can I know?"

Mrs. Holt and I have such a respect for children as individuals that we never treat them like infants. We never patronize or talk down to them. Mercy, no! We treat children as equals, and by them as if they were grown-ups—and so demand far too much of them. We confuse and crush them, depriving them of their inherited right to childhood, probably more than a burden of responsibility as yet too heavy and cumbersome for their half-grown shoulders.

Faces Disaster

Mrs. Holt's daughter, as Maybelle, 'd can speak freely, as Mrs. Holt is not her real mamma because she has always been treated like a grown-up although almost the experience of a grown-up, now is facing a real disaster. For her it is the boy-age, and Maybelle, taught from babyhood that her guess is as good as Mother's, is doing her own guessing, ignorant of the indomitable force of nature when left with a free hand, and of the value of a good reputation, even in this free and easy age.

It is too late now to control Maybelle, too late to treat her like a child or to convince her that experience and age have not yet equipped her to make certain decisions; too late now to teach her to respect her mother's advice, as it is always very unfair, I think, to dominate a child, to patronize him, to interfere too much. But it is equally unfair and equally dangerous to make him feel that he needs no guidance, no advice; that he is already entirely equipped to "paddle his own canoe" and meet all his own decisions.

Then there is the matter of responsibility. Nothing is better for a child than responsibility appropriate to his age, but not grown-up responsibility.

A child is not ready for adult anxiety; he has his own anxiety. He is not a fool or an infant, nor should he be treated as such. He is an individual and should be respected as one. But he is not a grown-up individual and should not be so regarded, or be led to so regard himself.

Proper Shampooing Keeps Hair Healthy and Sleek

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

Does your hair glisten? Does it glitter like the raven's wing? Let us hope so. If the strands are dull, there is no beauty in the coiffure; it does not "make the grade".

Careless shampoos take the shine from tresses. Then it must be three soapings, as many rinsings. The suds should get high and crackle. A half-hearted lathering does nothing at all. To battle dust and accretions oil requires energy, the right kind of soap and gallons of rinsing water.

Dry hair seldom has the sheen that oily hair shows. It needs lubricating, and so does the scalp. If you are cultivating glorious tresses of the best brand, you must begin at the root of things which is the flesh from which the hirsute foliage grows. Work on the scalp. Keep it clean. Massage it every night. When brushing the hair, let the bristles touch the scalp. The ting of the brush on the hair roots will stimulate the tiny blood streams that supply them with food.

Too heavy a setting lotion will give locks a dull finish. Be fussy about the one you use. Have it just heavy enough to make your wave and curl ends strong. When hair looks as if it were glued to the scalp, it won't win beauty laurels.

Don't tamper with corns. Don't cut them. Because of the wearing of shoes which interfere with ventilation, the feet are particularly susceptible to infection.

When a corn appears it is because of pressure. Get shoes that provide freedom. Soak the foot in warm soap suds. Then rub away the softened flesh with a toilet pumice stone, apply ointment.

When powdering your celestial face, bite, skip the eyelids. The dull finish there has a dimming effect upon the eyes. Use a little of mineral oil, vaseline or eye cream. It will give a mirror-like look to your soul windows.

FRANCES CARLON

Has lovely hair that gets proper care.

Pimples are small boils, should now be treated roughly. Apply hot applications until a yellow poma appears, open it with a sterilized needle, press out the contents gently with the fingers covered with gauze. If no pain appears, don't try to lance the pustule. You will be likely to cause a scar.

Specialists who treat acne often find that the trouble is caused by a diet which contains too much sweet and fats. If you are troubled with speckles, eat plenty of vegetables and green salads, drink fruit juices, take lots of water.

When applying make-up, don't forget to rouge the lobes of your ears. When there is a natural flush the ears redden. If cheeks are given a touch of carmine, the tiffice will be apparent unless the ears are prettily pinked and brightened.

REDNERSVILLE W. I.

The Rednersville W. I. held their meeting on May 26th, at the home of Mrs. Ed. Osterhout with an attendance of twenty-two.

The president, Mrs. Earl Ostercomb opened the meeting by singing "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer in dialogue. The Roll Call was answered by "Gifts and Deeds for Growers of Flowers". Minutes were read and correspondence. The social committee reported a social held. The Institute was asked to help in some way towards the garden party which is being held at Picton on June 16th in aid of the Hospital. Mrs. Harry Dempsey kindly donated a piece of pottery. It was auctioned off and donated to the piece with Mrs. K. Green in charge.

The delegates to the convention which is held at Mountain View are Mrs. R. Ostercomb, Mrs. H. Peck, Mrs. K. Green. Mrs. A. Gilmore, Mrs. Roy Giles. The alternates, Mrs. Earl Osterhout, Mrs. Peck. Home Economics the preference being in dishes, Crochet: 2nd. Kitchen Ensemble: 3rd, Meat Cookery; 4th, Buttonholes.

A discussion on "Standard or Daylight Saving Time," which you prefer and why everyone for preferring Standard Time as there was too much confusion with the different time. The Girls' super club then gave a demonstration on the making of spring salads which was very interesting.

As it was impossible for Mrs. Harold Young to be present to give her address on "Canning," each member expressed their opinion. The Current Events was well given by Miss Helen Hubbs. A reading on the Memorial of Robert Holmes by Mrs. Earl Osterhout. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Earl and Allan Wess for their kind hospitality. This brought the meeting to a close by the Mizpah Benediction.

A lovely lunch was served under the convenorship of Mrs. H. Dempsey with Mrs. Earl Wess and Mrs. Earl Bonier pouring tea.

MELROSE W. I.

The regular May meeting of Melrose Women's Institute was held on the afternoon of May 25th at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren with an attendance of thirty-five including two visitors. The new president, Miss Lily Weese, was in charge and opened the program in the usual way. Current Events in this program was "Agriculture" and the Roll call "Gardens and Deeds in Agriculture" brought out some splendid hints and suggestions. The minutes of the convener for Agriculture, Mrs. Jno. Macfarlane gave a paper on "Beautifying the Home Surroundings", and Mrs. E. M. Badgley gave a paper on a similar topic Mrs. C. Hall also pleased the gathering with an instrumental number, Mrs. C. Haight gave a number of current events. During the business part of the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Mrs. Jno. Leslie, for her faithful services during her term of office. Delegates were appointed to attend the annual meeting of the district to be held. The following were named: Mrs. T. Leslie, Mrs. Jno. Blatherwick and Mrs. O. Stratton. The May display was made to the marks regarding cemetery work and a decoration date was set when each one interested in Melrose Cemetery will bring a plant to be set on the flower beds. Mrs. C. Haight was appointed to write those in charge thanking them for work being done and ask for donations. It will be carry on this work of beautifying Melrose Cemetery.

After the meeting the sum of $3.11, the National Anthem was sung and lunch served. Ten paid their membership fees.

CANNIFTON Y. P. U.

The weekly Y. P. U. meeting was held in the vestry of the Canniffton United Church with the President, Miss Myrtle Johns in charge. After the opening hymn and very impressive devotional period conducted by Miss Johns, the roll call was answered by a verse was under the leadership of Mrs. Roy Hinchcliffe and consisted of readings and musical numbers. At the close of the business period tea and cake were served.

Mr. Mills on behalf of the Young People's Union presented to the departure of the Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Martin, address and a gift in token of work on their new charge and expressed the appreciation of the people received by the Union from them during the past ten years.

Miss Myrtle Johns then presented Mr. and Mrs. Merrick with a framed motto on "Comradeship" by Edgar A. Guest and to Mary a beautiful silver fern dish filled with fern by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary expressed their very sincere appreciation for their kind gifts and assured them they would be long treasured.

Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce in "The First Hundred Years" at the Belle tonight only

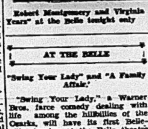
AT THE BELLE

"Swing Your Lady" and "A Family Affair"

"Swing Your Lady", a Warner Bros. farce comedy dealing with life among the hillbillies of the Ozarks, will top the Belle's double showing at the Belle theatre Sunday and Friday matinee daily.

The story has to do with the champion wrestler and his entourage who get stranded in a hillbilly hamlet. The wrestler, to get them out, has to take on a match with a local "ground-sculptor," and this battle is said to be one of the funniest things thrown on the screen this season.

It's more or less on the level, too, because the wrestling champ is none other than Nat Pendleton, the silver screen's one-time hope for Olympic heavyweight title, and the hillbilly is Dan'l Boone Savage, a picturesque, ruggedly strong man well known in the current grunt and groan market.



Humphrey Bogart plays Pendleton's manager, Frank Medigan is his trainer, Penny Singleton is Boone's heavy leading lady, Jessie Ralph is Pazonda is a lady blacksmith, and the famed vaudeville team of the Weaver Brothers and Elviry are hillbillies.

"A Family Affair"

Lionel Barrymore and a capable cast appear in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "A Family Affair," the associate feature attraction.

This is a strong story of life in a small town as it exists in America. An old family, long respected in the community, suffers tragedy when an unwise married daughter indiscreetly gets involved with another man. At the same time the father, a courageous old county judge, renders a decision on a public project which is bitterly opposed by his townspeople.

Barrymore, as the Justice, portrays the character with his usual thorough understanding and the supporting cast is admirable. Many of them appeared in "An Hour's Leave," also produced by M.G.M., the cast includes Cecilia Parker, Eric Linden, Mickey Rooney, Char-

James Stewart and Ann Rutherford in "Of Human Hearts" at the Belle tonight only.

Julie Haydon and Sara Haden.

When the family is caught in the shadow of grief and shame, it is the kind judge who saves his daughter from marital disaster and restores himself in the eyes of his fellows by proving his decision.

"Of Human Hearts"

Gripping drama of the heart throbs and comedy mingle in a story told in terms of down-to-earth human characters in "Of Human Hearts," one of two new features to be presented at the Belle tonight only with Walter Huston, Ann Rutherford, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi and Charley Grapewin in the leading roles of this Clarence Brown special production.

Brown's story, in movement and in the delineation of its characters, "The First Hundred Years," the companion picture attraction featuring Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce and Warren William. The Belle News of the day will be presented on the same program. The last complete show begins tonight at 8.30 p.m.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 1—A strong market for the senior golds and a sharp decline for the western oils featured the list up till early afternoon. The mines and industrials, however, were narrowly higher at noon, failing to measure up fully to the recovery movement in New York.

The junior oils turned weak on the news that the quota of production had been lowered to 30 per cent, immediately from 40 per cent, due to the growing supply of crude for which there is but a limited market. Royalite dropped 1½ points and Anglo, Calgary, Edmonton, Home, Dalhousie and others lost ground.

All the golds were up. Dome touched 59, up more than a point and Hollinger advanced 14. Among the cheaper issues Kerr-Addison stood out on the down side, selling actively at 1.30, 1.35. Utilities, steels and miscellaneous issues were the weakest of the industrials.

WALL STREET

New York, June 1 (AP)—Stock market currents shifted to the bullish side today, leaving the list around for a leisurely rally. Small initial losses in most stocks were changed into gains of fractions to about 3 points with prices around the best of the day near the fourth hour.

Industrials headed the recovery notably. International Harvester, Kennecott Copper, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Auto Electrical Electric, Chrysler, Texas Corp. and Eastman Kodak.

Rails and utilities fell in line at a slower pace led by Santa Fe, Consolidated Edison and American Telephone.

Canadian issues swung irregularly. Lake Shore and McIntyre Porcupine gained 1½ points or more while fractional losses were turned in by Dome, Hiram Walker and Distillers. Canada as were neglected.

MARKET COMMENT

A study of the market action for some years reveals the interesting fact that the month of June has generally been a favorable period for the acquisition of equities in anticipation of a higher price level in the last months of the year. In view of the very depressed levels which securities are now selling at, as far as the risk involved in purchasing stocks at the present time appears to be not very great. In other words a better market is anticipated before the end of 1938.

The Trader in Barron's states that the most ominous development in the business world is recognized by the weakening commodity prices. The commodity index is now at the lowest figure since October 1935. Meantime, Barron's sensitive spot commodity price index has established a new low for the year at 60.3, which compares with 55.7 as of January 1. Under the circumstances, it is impossible, unless an upheaval takes place in June, for industry to avoid heavy inventory losses when the books are closed for semi-annual auditing on June 30.

The Trader concludes with the statement, that excess inventories of finished goods promise to be radically reduced before fall. Consumption of goods, it must not be forgotten has —broadly speaking— exceeded production since the stock market panic of last October, that no matter what takes place in the next few months, the base for natural revival is being laid.

Livestock

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Cattle trade was slow on Toronto Livestock Market today, prices about holding near previous levels. Calves and sheep were steady with lambs firm. No hog price was set by early afternoon, packers feeling quite weak. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 400 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 700; calves 200; hogs 1000; sheep and lambs 250.

A few medium to good butcher steers and heifers sold at $5.50 to $7.35 with plain as low as $4. Good butcher cows sold at $4.25 to $5.50 but most offerings were canners and cutters, bringing $3.50 to $4.50. Bulls ranged from $4 to $5.50 mostly to $5 for good beefers. Best lambs in plain stockers were $4.50 to $5.35. Good to choice fed calves brought $6.50 to $8.25, plain going as low as $6.50.

Hogs for shipment were priced at $7.50 to $8.00, a few tops reaching $8.50. Common vealers ranged down to $5.

Previous close on off-track bacon hogs was $15.75 to $16.85.

Top lambs went at $13. Good light sheep were $4 to $4.50 with thin downward to $2.

Montreal, June 1 (CP)—Prices were off with few tops for the early trading on the Montreal Livestock Exchange today.

Receipts—Cattle, 105; calves, 295; hogs, 264; sheep and lambs, 134.

Cattle—Good steers $7 to $7.50; plain to medium cows hard to sell. Calves: Good veals $6.50 to $7. Bulk of sales $5.75 to $6.

Hogs—Bacons, fed and watered, $11.35; cut trucks $11.40; selects drew $1 per hog premium with top $11.75 paid on cut off grades; sows $7.50 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs

The trophy, won by the plant employees in 1927-1928 and for the last year, was presented by Mr. H. G. Dempster, Montreal, on behalf of the Portland Cement Association. It was officially received by Plant Superintendent J. H. Legate amid cheers of a large group of employees augmented by one hundred and fifty school children and their teachers who were present for the occasion.

Following the presentation of the award, Mr. Dempster, on behalf of the Canada Cement Company, officially raised a blue flag with green and white cross centre-piece to the company flagstaff, inaugurating the Safety First Campaign that starts today throughout the one hundred and fifty mine and plants in the United States and Canada. These flags will flutter at the various staff-heads, until an accident occurs when the flag at that place where the accident took place will be hauled down.

The white ensign of the Point Anne plant, that has been flying for 692 days was hauled down yesterday to make way for the new flag. The wind-tattered emblem of almost two years' accident-free safety operation was placed in a glass case and stored in the plant office.

Since the early days when safety operations were deemed impossible by company executives due to the high accident percentage, the 25 years of safety have been operated by the 150 plants of the company, employing over 20,000 men, according to address on "Safety" to the assembled employees and school children.

"Twenty-eight safety years have been aggregated by the five Canadian plants of the company, a marvellous record indeed.

"This trophy," said the speaker pointing to the handsome cement structure nearby, "is a block of fabricated concrete that will last for thousands of years. It represents more than just a block of stone. Inside it are the hearts, hopes, aims and ambitions of men of this plant. Hitched up with the hearts of these staunch workers is the happiness of little children, the love of wives, and little children there, there is faith in the work that is making Canada one of the outstanding nations of the earth.

"Safety as we know it," continued Mr. Dempster, "means the safety of little children. Safeguarding safety alone can attain the happiness that is rightfully yours."

"In 1931 this plant had 100 accidents in a year of over 526,700. In one case this represented death, dismemberment, or the loss of arms broken constituted the staggering total of injuries. In 1937 that, but what we did not know was the suffering of the wives and children of the thousands of workers we injured. There is nothing that can balance the suffering undergone by the womenfolk."

"Bill," Bill Dempster said to Mr. Legate, "I'm duty authorized by the directors of the Portland Cement Association to present you the award for the trophy to this plant and to express appreciation and pleasure in accepting the trophy. Safety is the special job that is as dangerous as they were years ago, to the men employed in the here that have made them safe. To you smaller fellows," turning to the school children, "there will be no jobs that will be danger-proof, due to the efforts of your fathers and other employees in making them safe for you."

Dominion plants and those in the United States will raise these safety flags, Mr. Dempster told employees, as the folds of the Canadian ensign flutter as a reminder for safety first. "These flags represent the highest ideals of humanity. They are for you yourselves and your families. When you pass the flag, utter a movement's prayer that it may never be lowered because of accident."

The singing of "O Canada" by the assembled school children concluded the ceremonies.

Mayors Press for Easing Of Relief Tax Burdens

Mayor Bone States Gov't. Recognition of Appeals is Expected.

MINISTER ATTENDS

"Governments are at last leading an ear to our appeals. They are sitting up and beginning to take notice since the province has been put on lately" commented Mayor Jamieson Bone this morning. Following his return from Ottawa yesterday where he attended the meeting of the National Executive of the Central Management Committee and Regional Chairmen of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Mayor Bone attended the meeting in his capacity of Regional Chairman for the Central District.

"We had very interesting discussions, and I am sure that much good will come of them," stated Mayor Bone. "One of the most pressing problems tackled was that of housing reform in this country. I was privileged to take an active part in the matter which is now close to the needs of Belleville, and it was unanimously decided by those present that unless the 'present system of taxation is changed, there will be a gradual impairment of housing until the people of the country have nothing at all in which to live.

"That is what we are out for, to change the present system, and strong representations are being made to the Government. Governments which are at last beginning to hear our voice', added Mayor Bone.

Included among those of the executive present were Mayor Mitchell, Halifax; Mayor John Queen, Winnipeg; Chairman Ryan of Three Rivers, Quebec; Mayor Raynault of Montreal; Mayor Morrison, Hamilton; Mayor Lewis of Ottawa; Mayor Servias, Galt, President of the Ontario Mayors' Association; Controller McNab of Toronto; Mayor Hartleman, Kitchener.

In an address before the assembled representatives, Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir, urged action on the part of the government in striking at some solution of the relief question. "Unless this matter is tackled then, you'll be a city left in the Dominion which can remain solvent", warned the Winnipeg Mayor. "The Western cities are on their beam ends right now."

Government relief projects were not held the answer to the unemployment question, it was further pointed out by the speaker, owing to the number of contracts which "ruined the job for the majority".

"There must be some other solution", the representatives were told.

At a luncheon of the Parliamentary Committee held in the private dining room of the Chateau Laurier, Hon. Norman Rogers was guest at which further discussions were held. D. C. McIver of Vancouver; Mr. Perron, M.P., for Three Rivers; Mr. Wahlen, M.P., for Mount Royal; Major MacDonald, Brantford and Mayor Bone.

"We are receiving every sympathetic and has reiterated his appreciation of helping the Association in anyway he can," stated Mayor Bone.

CADET CORPS AND BAND OF B. C. L. ARE INSPECTED

Brig.-Gen. Hertzberg Inspecting Officer Congratulates Corps

PARADE DOWNTOWN

To the inspiring music of the school band and before the admiring eyes of hundreds of spectators and fellow students, and the critical gaze of inspecting officers, officers and members of the Belleville Collegiate Cadet Corps paraded on the school campus today for the annual inspection.

Lieut.-Colonel Jack Deacon and preceded by the colors of the unit, the black-berreted cadets in company formation marched past the saluting base where Brigadier-General H. F. H. Hertzberg, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., officer commanding Military District No. 3, Kingston, took the salute. With Brigadier-General Hertzberg were Lieutenant W. P. Shirreff, Royal Canadian Signals, H.Q., M.D. No. 3, and Major F. Howard, officer commanding the Cadet Corps.

Representing the Board of Education were Chairman Charles Hyde, Belleville; Lieut.-Col. A. A. Geen, Charles Clahlng and the Rev. Major Wm. Perry. Present also were F. C. C. MacLaurin, Col. W. N. Ponton and Lieut.-Col. B. C. Gilmour. Officers and men of the Edward Regiment were also in attendance.

Campus Lined

Spectators and students of the school lined the edges of the campus as the cadets went through the many phases of military foot and rifle drill. The marching and platoon, in section and battalion formations, the khaki-clad youngsters performed their many manoeuvres with an ease and efficiency that was impressive training.

Following the foot manoeuvres, the cadets stood stiffly at attention while the sixty piece band, billed as one of the best-known scholastic musical organizations of Eastern Ontario paraded before the saluting base under the baton of Cadet Bandmaster George Hunter.

Brigadier Hertzberg then took the salute following the general inspection and the battalion marched past Brigadier Hertzberg.

Stressing the importance of cadet training, the speaker pointed out the fact that it developed character, initiative and "esprit de corps" as evidenced by the fine parade of the cadet unit. "It is also evidenced by their very sincerity that cadets of the Belleville Collegiate Cadet Corps have this form of training as a joke as is often experienced in other parts of the province. They are very efficient, and this efficiency is due to the fact that they sometimes to receive the support of the faculty, Board of Education and public in general. Such support is evidenced by their very sincerity that cadets of the Belleville Collegiate Cadet Corps have this form of training as a joke as is often experienced in other parts of the province. They are very efficient, and this efficiency is due to the fact that they sometimes to receive the support of the faculty, Board of Education and public in general. Such support is evidenced by their very sincerity," Brigadier Hertzberg stated.

Much Impressed

"I was very much impressed with the cadets' marching, especially with the colors of the corps were treated," he continued. "Their marching and movements curtseyed as they passed by on parade. It shows that the Belleville residents have not forgotten the honor due to consecrated arms.

"There are many lessons to be learned from cadet training," he continued, "and one of them is self-control. "From it, students learn respect for constituted authority, especially in regard to their bodies and movement. Too much stress cannot be placed upon attention to the mind and forget about the development of the body," he said.

Brigadier Hertzberg congratulated the band, Bandmaster Prichard and Laurin and the Cadet Corps for the fine showing made and state of efficiency evidenced in the fine parade he had just witnessed.

Prizes Presented

He then presented Cadet Arthur Hagerman with the special prize of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, presented annually to the marksmanship in the school. Second class awards were made to Cadet Corporal Leonard Whitlard, Norman Lancaster, and Ronald Hagerman.

Presentation was also made by Brigadier Hertzberg to Cadet Major Schriver, commanding "A" Company of the Strathcona Trophy, presented annually for best attendance while Cadet Major Ben Long, commanding "B" Company received the Mount Royal Trophy for general efficiency.

Chairman Charles Hyde of the Board of Education in a brief address congratulated the cadets on a large attendance. "P'am proud of the Cadet Corps", he said. "I have belief a well-trained corps adequately equipped are best fitted to cope with the problems of a world that is fast changing."

The parade of a half-holiday to students of the school brought a round of cheers from student part the spectators.

Cheers for his Majesty the King; Brigadier Hertzberg, Lieutenant-Col. Hyde, Major Howard, Principal MacLaurin and Lieut.-Col. Deacon closed the inspection ceremonies to a close. The corps, headed by the band moved off, with the cadet officers and men dismissed.

FATHER RESTRAINS A VAST MANHUNT

Holds Belief His Five Year Old Son is Still Alive

Princeton, Fla., June 1—(AP)—Parents of James Bartley Cash, Jr., restrained a vast manhunt today in the conviction that their kidnaped son who snatched the five-year-old boy Saturday and extorted $10,000 ransom might still return him alive.

Indications were, however, that if the searchers failed to take advantage of deserted streets and roads, and the authorities, national guardsmen and war veterans, 1,600 boy scouts and virtually every able bodied man in the community would take to the countryside in an attempt to find the child, known as "Skeegie."

A community meeting was called at the schoolhouse for later today to plan the hunt. A similar meeting was called off last night at the time there's request, relayed through Washington, for a postponement of investigation and local authorities. Merchants closed their stores and everything was done to discourage the congregation of crowds.

Cash moderately well-to-do metchant and filling station operator, secluded himself in his frame apartment house to await word from the kidnappers. His wife was prostrated.

BALEARIC HARBOR VESSELS SUNK BY GOV'T FLIERS

Retaliation Reported by Government Defence Ministry

MALLORCA ATTACKED

Barcelona, June 1—(CP-Havas)—The defence ministry today claimed its airmen had dealt severe blows to the insurgents in attacks on the mainland and against the Balearic Islands.

Retaliating for the devasting air raids against Government-held coastal towns and villages, government airmen sank three insurgent vessels in the harbor of Palma de Mallorca, important insurgent base for the Mediterranean. They also attacked Port D'Ines, Mallorca, and returned unharmed from their mainland bases.

France's Gov't. Protests

(At Salamanca the insurgents declared the attack on Palma was "criminal." Bombs were dropped on Government rather than military objectives, General Franco's government protested.)

The government's defence ministry announced its air forces carried out an "extremely efficacious" attack against 17 insurgent planes on the Catalonia airfield in Catalonia.

In a sky battle over the Teruel front, government aviators were said to have shot down 16 insurgent planes. In land zones, largely women and children, were in a hopeless condition.

Editorial is Blamed By Attorney-General

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Attorney-General Conant today criticized an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail in connection with the third sitting of a special legislative committee investigating alleged Communistic influences in Power Commission.

Mr. Conant, chairman of the committee, drew attention to the editorial and charged it was prejudicial to the inquiry in declaring that "Premier Hepburn made up his mind on the answer question before the commission".

"It is quite improper and irregular for such comment to be made by any journal anywhere," the Attorney-General said. "If they were a court of law the consequences might be serious if the presiding judge saw fit to take the law."

Macaulay's Comment.

Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader, said the Globe and Mail expressed a similar belief last December, two months after the general election.

"I think the Globe and Mail knows more about the matter than any of us," Mr. Macaulay commented.

J. H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor - Sandwich, interrupted: "Should we abolish them? The Prime Minister has made this a political issue and what is the sense of the investigation if there is no need to hear evidence as the Globe and Mail editor can reach a decision before one minute has completed his testimony?"

The committee, which started sitting Monday, was appointed last session after Mr. Macaulay charged in the House that Premier Hepburn "loaded the voters" in the October election campaign by advocating a "municipal ownership" power policy while secretly negotiating with the Quebec Power Companies.

Locals Pry Off Lid With Win; Armstrong Wins Decision Over Ross

Belleville Intermediates Win Opening Game from 'Locos' In Smart, Interesting Contest

Bud Wilkins Hurled Fine Ball Especially in The Pinches

SCORE IS 5-2

Locals Hit Well in Clutches And Play Fine Defensive Baseball

Whatever the 1938 edition of Belleville's intermediate entry in O.B.A. circles do in the standing weeks between now and playoff time, it must be said that the lads under the eagle eye of Coach Alex Weir, pitched up their pants, put an additional gleam in their respective batting and fielding eyes and staged a fine exhibition of the summer pastime at the Exhibition Grounds last night, that had the small crowd of fans faithful well satisfied with the inaugural doings of the first intermediate baseball outfit to be organized here in three years.

The lads wearing the "B" that brought baseball fame to this city in large chunks in years gone by, pried the lid off the new Bay of Quinte loop with a sparkling 5-2 win over Jimmy Arnlet's Kingston "Locos", an aggregation that boasts not a few of the stars of former Limestone City C.O.B.I. teams.

And the good right arm of Bud Wilkins, the mainspringer of many a diamond battle herebouts, scattered nine Kingstonian taps and effectively silenced the bludgeons of the visitors in the few critical times, that he was on the well-known spot. The diminutive burly pitcher consistent ball hurling, the pastime, striking throughout the game, except at out four and issuing passes at an many; the only consistent ball sacks cluttered with Locos, the fi nally" born down most effectively and aided by a circus catch by the perennial Alex Weir, who galloped in the last grass to haul down a potential three bagger from the clouds announcing umpire back the visitor's threat.

Hit in Pinches

Another feature of the pastime was the willingness of the Wreiter lads to connect with the pill at times, when base hits meant something more than a mark in the score book. True they did not smack the ships for any extra base hits, but they had a yen for placing singles in convenient places that enabled base runners to romp home with those things that win ball games. Nine times they connected solidly, with Simpson, right fielder leading the hit parade with a trio of safeties, Johnson and Reid got themselves a brace of hits, with Weir and Hero kicking in with one each. Cuthbertson, Kingston left-hander, whose pants are no farther from the ground than those of Wilkins enjoyed the mound duty for the "Locos". But the homesters did not take kindly to his slants at all especially in the first innings, when they greeted him with three hits that aided by a kindly gesture on the pitcher's part, when he erred conveniently but not gracefully, sent a trio of runs across the plate to assume a lead they never relinquished. Three of them went out via the strikeout route and four of them walked to first base.

Adding another to their total in the sixth after Kingston had drawn within striking distance by scoring two runs on a single hit, an error and two wrist deliveries, Weir's boys knocked on another in the eighth to put the game in the well-known container.

Smart Double Play

Kingston again threatened in the seventh, putting two runners on base with nary an out. And here the locals showed a flash of some sparkling defensive play. Compeau streaked for second on Joyce's single, with Mercer heading for the plate. A quick throw and the latter was called out. Sonny Green, veteran catcher of the locals, suddenly whipped a line throw to Alex Weir, who had sauntered to second from centrefield and Mileu Compeau who had wandered afar from the sack, saw Umpire Woodley wave him to the bench.

Wilkins settled down and disposed of the visitors in the next two chukkers, while his mates were putting over the final run of the game.

On their performance of last night, the locals appear to have the ground work of a good squad. They smacked the apple consistently and although they erred three times, all the bobbles were not costly and their general fielding was of mid-season caliber. Their exhibition considering the fact, that they were pitted against seasoned veterans with a sprinkling of newcomers is all the more noteworthy.

They meet the Locos in their second game of the schedule in the Limestone City on Friday afternoon.

VICTOR IN INDIANAPOLIS CLASSIC

Overing the 500-mile course around the Indianapolis motor speedway track in 4,14.58.60 for an average speed of 117.200 m.p.h. Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Calif., won the annual Memorial Day race at the same time eclipsing the speed record hung up by Wilbur Shaw in winning the event last year. Shaw finished second this year, with Chet Miller, third. The winner, Robert, is shown waving to the crowd as they cheered him at the finish of the grueling grind.

ROBERTS WINS BIG AUTO RACE

Floyd Robert, of Van Nuys, Cal., is getting the checkered flag as he wins the twenty-sixth annual Indianapolis 500-mile speedway classic at Indianapolis, Ind., on Memorial Day. Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis was second and Chet Miller of Detroit was third. Roberts established the remarkable average of 117.200 mile per hour, breaking last years record by almost four miles an hour.

Welterweight Boxing Title Literally Torn from Shoulders Of Barney Ross by Armstrong

Little Black Buzzsaw Outclasses Ross in 15 Round Bout

ONE LOW BLOW

Armstrong's Style of Fighting Reshaped The Champion

By Sam Robertson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, June 1.—(CP)— The World Welterweight boxing crown rests today atop a little black buzzsaw.

Henry Armstrong, who fights as though he were a machine instead of a human, literally tore the championship from the shoulders of Barney Ross here last night, drove him into retirement and became later he returned and said: "Don't fire the guy; if he won't let me in, he won't admit the phoneys."

a double champion and was the more amazing for the fact that the ruler of the 126- pound featherweight class skipped over the lightweight division to topple the king of the 147-pounders.

No sooner had he gained the unanimous decision over Ross in a bloody 15-round affair that was almost the last half of the distance, than the blackman invited lightweight champion Lou Ambers into his homicidal parlor.

Looking for Ambers

"I'm looking for that Ambers address," he said as they led him from gladiator's pit splashed with the blood of the white man. "I'd like to lick him in his own city third title."

And while the 26-year-old victor, flushed with his easy triumph and the shouts of thousands ringing in his ears, pleaded new matches, the bruised and beaten Jewish boy from Chicago, looking old and less than 29, was announcing his retirement.

Now, the one mighty, who wore the lightweight purple and put it aside to conquer the welters, said through him that were raw and puffed to three times their normal size that he never would fight again.

Colored Folk Hold Titles

In achieving the upset before the unbelieving eyes of almost 20,000 half-mad fans in the Madison Square Garden Bowl, Armstrong give the colored folk their third championship. In addition to handling Henry, they have Joe Louis lording it over the heavyweights and John Henry Lewis boxing the light-heavies.

Before the fans donned overcoats and furs against the unseasonable breezes whipped around the shallow sports saucer and controlled forward a gross gate of $160,860, they installed the crafty Ross favorite at 7 to 5 and up.

He was 142 pounds to the negro's 139 1-2, had an inch and a half in height and the same advantage in reach He faced such vaunted punchers as Ernie McCarthy, Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrolle and Cefelino Garcia and excepting his second meeting with jarring Jimmy from Vancouver, had always come away with the spoils.

Fired Low Blow

In the first round again in the fourth and in the fifth, the puzzled Ross seemed at times to have found the answer to Armstrong's dervish attack. Holding the muscular little California off with a straight left or bringing him out of his semi-crouch with sharp repercute, Barney scored with a crisp attack to the head.

But always Armstrong ambled through the barrage that came only in flurries and once inside the long-range guns, belted his own short punches from stomach to head and then kidneys. Out-hit 20 to 1 or more, Ross wilted steadily after the fifth round. He was given the eleventh when the feather-weight fired a low blow in a bullet-like rush. From then on he just absorbed leather that landed with the rat-a-tat monotony of machine gun fire.

Like Known Brook, Lou Gehrig May Go on For Years

(By Drew Middleton)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Thirteen years ago today, June 1, 1925: Jack Dempsey was heavyweight champion, Charlie Paddock was the world's fastest human, people were talking about Rogers Hornsby, Flying Phoxy, the Four Horsemen and the Dolly Sisters—and a freshfaced kid named Henry Louis Gehrig pinch-hit for Pee Wee Wanninger of the Yanks. The next day he replaced Wally Pipp at first base. He is still there. He was there yesterday, playing his 2,000th Consecutive game, helping the Yanks beat Boston. He will be there tomorrow. He is as much a part of the Yanks as the stadium.

Considering the starts and stops, the thrown and slides, the hot days and the cold ones, 2,000 is a lot of ball games. But, Gehrig doesn't think it has done him any harm.

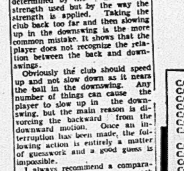
"If I'm out of even an exhibition game, I'm nervous," he says. "Some of the fellows I've known take a couple of days off. I'd burn up more energy doing nothing, fishing or hunting, than I would playing ball."

Lou has seen a couple of generations of ball players come and go. Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Tris Collins and Grover Cleveland Alexander were around when he broke in. He played in the shadow of his idol, Babe Ruth, for ten years, then emerged to be recognized as the greatest first baseman of his time, perhaps of all time.

"Y" JOTTINGS

Demonstrating their aquatic wares before the admiring eyes of their parents and friends, the prep and junior girls of the Y.M.C.A. will present a swimming exhibition in the "Y" pool this evening.

The keynote of this exhibition is to demonstrate what the girls learn after joining the "Y", the proper instruction and also a large variety of water stunts and other aquatic sports will be included on the program, that has been arranged by instructor Fred Hicken.



GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Backswing

It takes a lot of strength to hit a bad shot. Evidence of this is had in the way many players lash at the club back. Some will take it back much more than is necessary for the distance the ball is to be sent, others will tie themselves into knots in their efforts to get a lot of strength and develop a lot of power.

In the first place, it is not the length of back swing but the correctness with which the wind-up is made. In the second place, the distance the ball travels is not determined by the amount of strength used but by the way the strength is applied. Taking the club back too far and then slowing up in the downswing is the most common mistake. It shows that the player does not recognize the relation between the back and downswings.

Obviously the club should speed up and not slow down as it nears the ball in the downswing. Any number of things can cause the player to slow up in the downswing, but the main reason is disjoining the backward from the downward motion. Once an interruption has been made, the following action is entirely a matter of guesswork and a good guess is impossible.

I always recommend a comparatively short backswing for approach shots where the average player is prone to overswing. The shortest backswing places him in a position to speed up in the down-swing without the danger of sending the ball too far.

Two Objects in View Says Prime Minister

Ottawa, June 1 (CP)—Development of the production of war materials in Canada is being attempted with two objects in view, Defence Minister MacKenzie said in a speech prepared for delivery today at a luncheon of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The objects were:

(1) To provide a source of supply in this country which can be rapidly developed in emergency and which, during peacetime, will provide additional labor for Canadian workmen.

(2) To provide facilities in this country through the resourcefulness of Canadian industry for such orders as may be placed in Canada and through their complementary nature make Canadian production more expeditious and less costly.

Mr. MacKenzie outlined the arrangements that have been made by his department with various manufacturers for the materials and shipments needed fi Canada's defence program.

MANY A Big Shot STARTED ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS ON A Bicycle!

TODAY, the bicycle is recognized as the low-cost method of delivering messages and small parcels. Very likely there is a manufacturer, a retailer or a financial house not far from your own home that has a job for a boy with a bicycle. Take the job and get started in business. Many a man who dines at an exclusive club, smokes expensive cigars and sits in the President's office started business life carrying messages or parcels on his bicycle.

Any C.C.M. can be readily turned into a delivery bicycle by the addition of a special C.C.M. parcel carrier, which can be removed quickly when the day's work is done. A C.C.M. is such a strong, well-built machine that it stands up in delivery service, and runs so easily and smoothly that you can do a better job on it.

If you haven't a C.C.M. Bicycle it will not take you long to pay for one, out of your earnings, on the easy-payment plan. When you are through with your C.C.M. you can get a good "used" price for it.

A C.C.M. has the QUALITY that riders want whether new or used.

C.C.M. Bicycles are made by Canada Cycle & Motor Company, Limited, Weston, Ontario. Branches at Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

"Not believe in love? One of the beautiful women in the world, and she doesn't believe in love!"

"Oh, not love," Gloria corrected him, laughing and flushing. "In love at first sight."

"No. That's only passion. That's Madam Nature talking."

"Oh, you're quite right!" she agreed.

"And you say your husband's away?" the man asked.

"Yes, Peter," Gloria explained, "has been having a horrible time. For years now he's been trying to find just what wants to do and can do, and—and these haven't been very good years for any one to be in that fix!"

"These have been terrible years for young men," Karl agreed with "Not you," she couldn't help saying.

"Ah, well, I'm thirty-five, and I have my profession. Your husband at thirty-five will be in quite a different position."

Gloria looked at him thoughtfully; she made no comment on this.

"Peter" she presently said, "was in a banking concern when we were married, but he didn't like it he stuck it, and we bought our home and Jimmy came. Then it failed—and of course it didn't help him much to have been associated with a failure. But he did get a job, in the bookkeeping department of a store—a sort of residence experience you'd call it. But then a man in Portland wanted him to go into the used type-writer business, — no capital, he just wanted Peter's personality."

Peter opened the San Francisco office, and as far as Peter went it really was a success; but he had to carry the Oregon office, and the man was simply impossible. That wire Peter for money—he got into debt—they foreclosed on him. That was about a year ago; he installed them Peter's only done occasional broadcasting—little parts in plays. He likes that; he has a beautiful radio voice and he's been trying to work up announcing. Now—just this last week—the day of Mrs. Haggerty's party this was—he had a chance to go off with a professional baseball team and help broadcast. Of course, it's a wonderful opportunity, and if he can work up well he'll pay wonderfully—

Karl had been listening intently while she talked. Now he nodded understandingly. "It takes many years, for a man to find his place. I've been twenty-five years in my own profession, and I am only beginning."

"Twenty-five years!" They had entered the house now, and Jimmy was running upstairs ahead of her. "You didn't begin to succeed then?" Gloria asked smilingly.

"At ten. Exactly! I was staying in Hamburg with my mother's father—a Jew. He asked me if I would like to begin to study what I must know in order to be a doctor, and I said I would. I've very hard for him. He arranged courses for me, picked out books that he could understand. From that day to this I have studied, one thing or another."

"No wonder Dr. Bruce Jardine could tell you that you were the most distinguished American in your line!" Gloria laughed. She saw the half-pleased, half-angry color rise under his fair skin.

"Ah, well, that was politeness!" Karl said.

They were at the foot of the stairs, and Gloria nodded and smiled a good-by at him without further words, going on up to her own room.

The smile lingered: the little warm sense of pleasure in the meeting lingered. She understood some things about Karl Pitcher now that had vaguely puzzled her before. He was different in his steadfast devotion to his work, his indifference to amusement or distraction, his complete simplicity in tastes—from any man she had ever known.

His diversion was long, swift walks up into the hills, up to the ridges where the foggy winds drive free from the ocean.

For the rest, he had his ward with its six beds and his laboratory. Almost always he had a patient or two in the ward, sometimes he had more. Always he was working among his test tubes, Bunsen burners, and measures for hours every day.

He had come to the Bayview in April; the seven months went by in a busy, happy rush for Gloria. Every day had its duties, and they were all welcome and absorbing. Even the time her alarm sounded at seven until she got into bed, stretching her tired body under fresh linen, reaching for her book at half past nine or ten.

She did not deceive herself. She knew that what lent this summer its special glamour was the proximity of Dr. Karl Pitcher. It would have been impossible for any intelligent person to be near him and not feel the magnetic current of his extraordinary personality. Some things about him she admired immensely; some things she disliked unnecessarily hard and crude, harsh, almost repellant. But always he was a fascinating entity; he vitalized everything he touched.

At the hospital he was almost always present in the operating room without the slightest effort or affectation. His concentration upon what he was doing or attempting to do was so complete that he could not hear or address the children who helper by with exactly the same attention.

"Call the telephone people," he might shout across at her, leaning out of his windows. "Tell them my telephone isn't working! Quick! Now!" And he would be back at his distracted minute among the dawdling people on the farm below.

"This music must stop for at least an hour! I must have my patient awakened again!" But the nurses told her that in the surgery he was always quiet, gentle, with an inhuman stupidity.

Gloria loved the garden was the only spot to which he went in search of quiet. His own study, his own home he had no car. But he did love Kitty's garden, and Gloria saw him there in his gentlest and most relaxed mood. He and Tony were particularly sympathetic; he invited scolded him and jeered at him, and Gloria took it amiably, almost gratefully, and would promise not to work so hard, not to concentrate so much, to take things more easily and get into a habit of resting.

Two hours all spent at Kitty's were for Gloria the happiest hours of the week. Perhaps Peter would be there; perhaps Karl would come over for endless broad-sided humilities or teas. Jimmy was almost always a most welcome guest, sometimes aided in his father's arms, sometimes stretched out beside him on Kitty's great hammock.

Sometimes Peter was not there Karl carried Jimmy home. The way secures the lane and through the garden to the kitchen porch was not long but perhaps he would be a little out of breath. The sun was set and he finally landed safe in his porch chair, Gloria, after a few minutes of fussing about in the shaded nights, pulling off small sandals, stockings, would find him out to the immaculate bathroom, and while he sat on the edge of the table and she knelt before him, her face would have a few minutes talk.

"What do you want, Karl? Ginger ale?"

"Cold water. Nothing else!"

"You must take me only two minutes to run you home."

"Why not stay to lunch?"

That would be about all of it, except her good night on the porch, the car and his handshake: "See you tomorrow!"

She must see him tomorrow; it was inevitable. A dozen times a day she saw him without any effort or seeking on her part. The conscious-ness of it would be a little like the sound of his car, as he sat at his window, or the sound of his footsteps in the hall.

Peter, if anything went wrong we'd have burned our bridges behind us!

"Oh, yeah, we'd bi onto new bridges by that time!"

"Look, darling, Mother's settled here and she's happy, Jimmy's little routine is back in perfect working order and Molly and Carmela and me. We have plenty of money to keep things going until we're sure of your job. Just as soon as you have a job and a permanent contract or that, the Chatterton people want to renew, we'll come on. Meanwhile, you'll have a better chance, you'll really feel free and easier to work well adapted to new complicating things!

Peter was not listening although he was watching her mouth intently. "The question is, do you love me?" he asked.

"I do," Gloria laughed in the face of his gravity. "Peter, why don't you think I'm right, Peter?" she persisted.

"Do you love me as much as when we were first married?" Peter pursued.

"Oh, you idiot! Of course."

"I love you terribly," he said. "I'll do anything you want me to, as long as you love me. That's all I have, Glory; that's the one miracle I've ever known—that a woman could love me. I could live me, a bum who can't get a job—"

"You idiot," she said again.

"No, but I do love you, Glory, and sometimes I'm horribly afraid that—since you're so much, and I've had so much bad luck and have done so many dumb things, I've been afraid that you'd simply get tired of me. Grow away from me—"

"What do you think?" she asked lazily.

"What I want to think is that you'll really come on and join me if I go ahead. And maybe you're right—you're usually right—and I ought to go on alone. Only I want to tell you," Peter rambled, his eyes suddenly watering, "the day I meet you two at the station, see you stepping down from the train, will be the happiest day of my life!"

"No woman," Gloria observed in a thoughtful voice, "ought to be loved like that."

"No other woman is," Peter answered promptly.

"You talk about doing stupid things, Peter. I'm always doing stupid things, and I'm hard—I'm calculating," Gloria said humbly, all softness, sweetness. "Money matters to me; success matters. I know it. I try to relax, the way Kitty does, and let bills pile up and dust gather like plush on the rungs of the chairs, but I can't."

"You suit me," Peter told her, tightening his arm. She dropped her head on his shoulder and the kiss that they exchanged was a lovers' kiss.

Three days later Peter started alone for Chicago and the hazard of new fortunes. The parting was unexpectedly hard. Gloria had not for a long time felt so tender toward him as she felt now, when the actual moment came and when he kissed his little Scout up for a last kiss. Jimmy was bewildered and enchanted with the confusion of big station, but Peter's eyes were wet as he put the child down and with one last, quick kiss for Gloria turned away. They watched his window in the train, and presently he was grimacing and waving, making signs to Jimmy. He had vanished until the last moment to bend the train; with a merciful swiftness it drew away into black-ness and the roaring of rails, and Gloria turned back, feeling flat and strange and heartsick, to take Jimmy home.

Peter had bought her violets; they were pinned to her coat. He had gotten Jimmy a glass locomotive filled with tiny candies. The world seemed black to Gloria; she had taken Peter rather for granted for the last year or two, but he was a part of her life, a habit, and there was a wrench about letting him go. Tonight seemed to end the phase of their married life together.

Gloria found herself shaken and depressed for several days. It was not like her to indulge in retrospection and in fears and she tried to shake them off, but although Peter had sent word from Chicago that he had arrived safely, and short absences without disturbing the machinery somehow now the house seemed lonesome and Gloria was conscious of a ridiculous impulse to rent it, bestow Mummy somewhere temporarily, and follow Peter into the East.

"What do you hear from Peter?" Karl asked her, one afternoon when they were sitting on the veranda to the Baggleys.

She had the letter yesterday. And it was the first real letter. Peter was in love, he was going to read it to Kitty and Tony. He loves Chicago and I gather there's been a good deal of boarding with a French family, he likes the food, is going to learn the French, to pronounce things right on the radio. Imagine the energy, he's just arriving there, and he says they're having Indian summer! It makes me up completely."

"Broke you up! But how could it be winter?"

"Oh, made me homesick. I wished that we'd gone along!"

3rd Thurlow

2nd. Thurlow—About 125 relatives friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vivian gathered at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vivian on Thursday night and tendered them a miscellaneous shower. A large number of lovely and useful gifts were received. The address was read by Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and was as follows:

Belleville R. No. 6, May 26, 1938

Dear Verna and Gordon,—

Once again we come to about to change, and we your friends, neighbors and schoolmates, have assembled here tonight to express our regret at your leaving us, but we have met here also to wish you and to honour to you before you settle in your new home.

You, Gordon, have spent your boyhood days among us and we have followed with pride your advancement through Public and High School. Now, as a graduate of Bonnlon, New Jersey High School.

We could not let this important event in your life pass without showing in some slight way our appreciation of you, as we have always found you a true friend. And we feel you will make friends wherever you go.

We have not known you, Verna, as long as we have Gordon, but we also wish you to accept our best wishes for your future happiness in your new home.

At present the day is very fair to both of you, and as the springtime unfolds in every part of your desire to live, so your love, will not fade. Hide this day in your hearts the hope of finding true happiness. Success in life may not be yours but our homes are the greatest and noblest institutions of our land. Cherish the ideals in your newly founded home will embrace all the virtues that go to make a happy home. Many things in this life are uncertain and fleeting but the home is the foundation of all our social relations and it is the value set on this great venture of home-making, remember success may be an obstacle to others and what could be finer than genuine friendships in your home, under the guidance of other homes.

As you leave down the road you may dame Fortune bring you a large store of the good things of life. Or she may withhold so that you can perhaps best be expressed by thanking God for what you have. Oh bride and groom for you, our prayer is:

That each day of your married life may be filled with health, happiness, joy, prosperity and love for you both.

For love will build his lily walls,

And love his ivory bowers,

Love's gifts are the very best wishes of your many friends. May they in the years to come, ever remind you of these friendships of the second line.

Signed on behalf of your friends of the Second.—Clarence Barlow, Wesley Gerry, Florence Gerry, Shynnaghyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Vivian both made suitable replies. Cake, sandwiches and coffee were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

Miss Kathleen Whalen, Toronto, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Whalen.

All are sorry to hear Mrs. Gold-ard is in the Belleville hospital having had an operation. All hope she will be up soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins visited with Mr. and Mrs. Gray of Massassaga on Monday afternoon and evening.

CENSORS CENSORED

One of the greatest arguments against censorship is the censors. They do strange things, and, at times, act as though they were devoid of reason. Censorship as it concerns the moral and sensibilities of the public depends so much on intelligence, skill and good taste that it is a highly specialized profession. Appointment of censors, however, frequently ignores the fact and the result is that the appointees are often quite unsuited for their jobs.

There is a common tendency for censors to miss the distinction between what is boldly frank and what is attractively suggestive. Hence, rules banning nudity encourage producers and publishers to offer pictures in which artfully arranged clothing (and not necessarily scanty clothing, either) produces an effect much more seductive than nudity could ever be. The plain fact is that organized public protest did more to improve motion pictures by forestalling the box-office than imposed censorship ever accomplished.— Halifax Chronicle.

ARMY EXPERIMENTS WITH AERIAL TRANSPORT

London, June 1 (AP)—Looking ahead to what it may have to do in the next war, the army today made its first experiment in large scale aerial transport of men. Thirty Royal Force planes, each carrying 20 to 24 men, effected the first battalion of the Coldstream Guards the 221 miles from Odiham near Basingstoke to Chatterick camp, Yorkshire. The time-table strength of a battalion is 711 officers and men.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Full of Pep

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons are absorbed into the body, and you feel sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere movement doesn't always get the desired results. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Don't accept a substitute for Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the best you can buy. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Don't be persuaded or coerced to take something else. Refuse substitutes. Insist! Stubbornly refuse anything else. Be

Naturalist Goes Fishing

Although kept busy at his bird sanctuary at Ridgefield, Conn., Dr. Miner finds time to hike-off on the odd fishing trip. Mrs. Miner generally accompanies him on these trips and as evidenced here is quite handy with the rod and line herself. There two lake trout were caught by the couple during a recent visit to northern Ontario.

2,000TH GAME IS PLAYED BY GEHRIG WITHOUT A MISS

Broke Into The Lineup Thirteen Years Ago on June 1st

YANKS NOW SECOND

Indians And Giants Face Stiff Schedules on The Road

By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

A new picture of the Major League situation is on display today as leaders of the two circuits start into foreign territory and old Lou Gehrig starts another streak of no consecutive games.

"Iron Hoss" Lou, playing his 2,000th game without a miss, and those big Memorial Day crowds pushed a few more historical items into the background during the past two days. Now we have to light that the Cleveland Indians and New York Giants aren't out there all alone as they were a short time ago.

The Yankees, as attested by their doings of the last two days, are coming right along in old time form and Chicago Cubs are doing just as well. The Indians and Giants haven't shown many signs of slipping, but they don't have far to fall.

Consolidate Position

Although the durable Gehrig, who broke into the Yankee line-up 13 years ago today, didn't have much to do with it, the Yankees really began to show their mettle in the just-concluded series with the Boston Red Sox. On Monday 53,529 fans came out to see the Yanks move into second pl.:- with a double victory over the Sox. Yesterday they consolidated their position by whipping Boston again, 12-5, in the only game on the big league program. Lou hit a homer Monday, but only a single yesterday.

That's a sample of the things the Indians, minus the valuable Hal Trosky, and Ossie Bollie Hemsley, will have to face in the east. The Tribe opens at Philadelphia today against the Athletics, who are up in sixth place now after winning four of their last five games. Then comes Boston, Washington, where the Senators have been beaten only five times in 21 games, and finally the Yanks.

Giants Shaky

In the National League the leading Giants go west with the memory of a double shut-out administered by the Boston Bees Monday and the knowledge that the Cubs have racked up 10 victories in their last 13 games. Before tackling the Cubs, however, the Giants meet the uncertain Pittsburg Pirates and the fourth-place Cincinnati Reds.

Alex Weir's trusties got off on the right foot, winning their initial Bay of Quinte League game over Napanee, Tuesday night. They bear the long distance slugging of the Picton-Napanee overtime game completed with the potential strength of the Kingston squad, the locals expected to be the under dogs of the league, but today they are perched on the driver's seat, leathering the league by virtue of last night's win earned 5 to 2 win over Kingston, a club that carried several ex-O.H.A. players.

The Belleville nine played headsup ball with the diminutive Red Wilkins pitching himself out of several really tough spots. Snappy double plays, sensational fielding, and good pitching marked the introduction of intermediate ball locally, the only thing marring the picture being the slim crowd at hand, less than 200 paid admission being in the stands. Those present were treated to some fine baseball, the locals kicking in with numerous snappy infield plays, that cut off runners most profitably.

There was an absence of extra base hits seen, however. All told there was plenty of hitting, much to the satisfaction of the fans, 18 hits being registered, nine by each club and not an extra base hit in the lot. Alex Weir supplied the game's sensational catch, racing well back to take Jimmie Amiel's long drive in the centre. The veteran Sonny Green was in his element behind the plate and handled Wilkins' slants superbly. Personally we were glad to see the locals have such reserve strength as Piper Latchford, Johnnie Kerr "Speedy" Mills, Lou on the bench, because the success of any ball club lies in the strength of its bench reserves, of which the locals seem well possessed. They play in Kingston Friday.

Generally speaking the local infield played good ball, especially in the pinches, but it remained to have Wilkins give the fans real baseball thrills, as he twice pitched himself out of serious difficulty, when the "Locos" were in positions to score. Last night's victory did much to revive baseball locally, but the Belleville squad is in dire need of another hurler, as we understand Keith Weeks is under the doctor's care. Others are Johnnie Hayden, Ernie Smith and Ed. Louis available, with Smith standing out.

No doubt one of the paramount reasons competitive team sport is suffering from the lack of patronizing is the fact that the citizens of today are more personally interested in playing out-of-door games than in spectating same. Golf, tennis and lawn bowling officials in Belleville and district have noted with the finest membership in years, increased interest in these games results in plenty of recreation for the individual participating, which from here on seems unfavourably upon team sports, as the fans are signing themselves on the links, bowling greens or tennis courts.

Especially of note is the increased interest being manifested at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club. The club is introducing a series of week end games for two to be played each Friday night during the month of June. The club rinks will select their teams this week, commencing to play on Friday. In the men's doubles player on Monday the winners were Wilkins-Cross; Vrooman-Shaw and McGuire-Stewart pairs. Aside from this there is the women's section, holding away afternoons. The Belleville Bowling Club is indeed ably situated, while nightly large crowds are always enjoying the play. They also have an extensive inter-club and district program of games scheduled for the season.

Always having our welfare in mind (?) the driver's seat, Interboro sports scribe moved one up on us yesterday, when he spotted the senior O.H.A. scoop we might call it even-stephen. At any rate today's mail brought an envelope, postmarked "Peterborough" inside of which was a tag from the Institute for the Blind, the result of a tag day in the Littlest City. We presume. No doubt our Peterboro contemporary has taken the better part of the current baseball season to think that one up, but we must admit it was all owing to the effort Of course this umpiring business sometimes has its disadvantages and no doubt this was one of them "Twig" Woodley also appreciates it last night.—Thanx Pal.

After being rained out on the holiday, Coach "Stub" Barrett's Tigers will make their initial test in the Bay of Quinte League when they meet the Picton kids at the Fair Grounds on Thursday, as a twi-night fixture. The local ace and ballsters will hold their final practice before the big game this evening. Joe Kelleher, the Junior's veteran mentor, will undoubtedly get the pitching assignment with Jim Pepper on the receiving end. Incidentally the latter youth is attracting considerable attention in the local baseball realm. The Kiwanis juniors have several new faces from last year, while the relative strength of the Picton club is an unknown quantity to date, but Prince Edward kids being a new team, also sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club.

Undoubtedly the greatest piece of human pitching machinery in the business today is Henry Armstrong, who wrested Barney Ross' welterweight title last night. How was game, he had to be, as Armstrong hit him with everything, except the ring posts, giving the champ a terrific beating and drawing lines of modern times. If Armstrong can win the lightweight title, he'll be the only champion ever to win the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight titles at one time. Armstrong has fought 36 fights in recent years, winning 34 via the K.O. route and is truly a great fighter. The Mexican Square boxer's first defeat was in 1931, and he never been a champion to successfully defend his title in that ring. Using Ross for a human punching bag Armstrong took eleven of the 15 rounds, losing one of those by virtue of a low blow.

HODGE PODGE: "Farm softball" goes on the skids tonight.... from Herne Low Gehrig commences on his third consecutive today, having complete: 2,000 consecutive games for the Yankees yesterday.... The pat big event on the sports calendar is the Schenley-Lou Gehrig series for which we are having several inquiries concerning "who and "Good"?..... Henry Armstrong now meets Lou Ambers for the lightweight title.... Joe Louis took in last night's fight, while Schmeling remained in training camp.... The Yankees are doing very well, now give the rest of the league time to head Babe Ruth built.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Pods Simkins was standing outside the Kristal Kandy Kitchen looking at the diffrent kinds in the window and wishing we was inside choosing instead of outside wishing, and I said, O boy how about if we was so rich we could walk in there rite now and buy all the diffrent kinds we felt like without even thinking of the expense, O boy how would that be? Swell, Pods said.

Being a good discription and I said, Well hay, about pretending? How do you mean, staying out here and pretending? Pods said, and I said, No, I mean going inside and pretending for real, I bet you haven't got the nerve, I said.

I bet you haven't, Pods said.

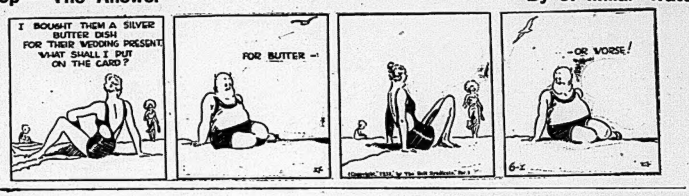
The result being we both walked in together to prove we had, and the candy lady was behind the counter tying gold ribbon around wrapped boxes saying, Well, boys?

How much are chocolate covered cherries? I said, and she said, 80 cents a pound and we dont sell less than 10 cents worth.

How much are they if we buy 5 pounds? Pods said, and she said, Aw, what do we want with a reduction, what's a use talking like a miner? and she candy lady said, What are you boys doing, ordering candy for a Sunday school entertayment?

No mam, just ofr us 2, I said, and Pods said, Me and him, that's all, and the candy lady said, Now listen, you boys,

Maybe we better think it over and come back, I quick said, and Pods said, Maybe we better. And we started to walk out talking to each other, me saying, Do you think 10 pounds will be plenty? and Pods saying, Maybe they wont be good enough, only 80 cents a pound.



Not starting to run till we got all a ways out.

Entomological Laboratory Is Visited by Public Today; New Unit Has Been Completed

This Afternoon And Evening (Wednesday) The Public Sees What Government Is Doing To Protect Crops And to Conserve And Develop National Resources —Modern Miracle is Witnessed in Laboratory Where Insects Are Studied And Biological Control is Made Possible—How Air Conditioning Developments Make Possible Conservation.

There is perhaps nowhere in the world where such a unique story has been made of the most modern developments of architectural design — building construction and air conditioning than is to be found in this city. In the summer of 1929 when it was announced that the Dominion Department of Agriculture had taken over the T. S. Carman property at 238 Bloor Street East as a permanent headquarters for development of a special method of insect control known as "Biological Control", few people realized what it was all about. Numerous changes were made in the old home. Some of the rooms were turned into offices and other parts of the house became veritable laboratories for the preparation and study of armies of parasitic insects being cultured for distribution to all parts of Canada to aid in the control of insect pests.

Building Open Today

Thus, the Dominion Parasite Laboratory had its beginning. The following year two special cold storage chambers were provided in the basement and a three-section greenhouse specially designed for experimental work was constructed at the rear of the house. Each year some changes were made to provide additional space for the demands on this new scientific development. In the spring of 1936 a new and attractive building specially designed for this work was added to the facilities of the institution. The official opening at that time was the occasion for a gathering of scientists from all parts of the United States and Canada, and since that time the steadily register included representatives from such distant lands as India, China, Australia, Africa, Germany and Great Britain.

Further Expansion Needed

The new air conditioned building proved of immense value in the development of the work but it was soon found that further space would be required, particularly in view of the very serious invasion of corn spruce forest by the European spruce Sawfly. Plans for this building were prepared and the construction work carried out during the past winter under the supervision of J. Arnold Thomson, architect of this city, representing the Department of Public Works. Ottawa. The new addition is attached to the laboratory opened in 1936, and was so designed that the original heating and refrigeration systems are utilized in the air conditioning of the new unit.

Latest Developments Used

In the construction of this unit advantage has been taken of the most recent developments in building construction and air conditioning engineering, all of which add to the efficiency and general usefulness of the building. As in the previous one, reinforced concrete was used in foundations and main walls and all the special insect breeding rooms are made insect tight by the use of special doors and by having the windows tightly sealed.

Glass Brick Used

For the first time in this district glass brick has been used to replace the usual type of windows and this assisted very materially in the ease with which the windows could be made air tight. All air for the building is forced into the rooms at the required temperature and humidity through closely covered wire screens so that no undesirable insects can enter the rooms, and to enhance air is likewise drawn out through a similar type of screen so no insects can escape.

To Provide Any Condition

The equipment of the building is such that any conditions required for incubation or storage of the insects handled can be provided at any season of the year. This calls for temperatures varying from 35 to 85 degrees and relative humidity of from 40 to 100 per cent. The wide variety of conditions is necessary on account of the large variety of insects handled at the laboratory, which is the only one of its kind in Canada, and provides parasites for use in all provinces from coast to coast.

Parasites Preserve Balance

The development of the work is based on the knowledge that in nature insects are usually kept under control to a great extent by other insects known as parasites, which feed upon them and tend to maintain a sort of balance between them and their particular kind of food. In a number of cases man has upset this delicate balance and as a number of insect species have become destructive and cause tremendous losses of food and other things necessary for the maintenance of man. One of the chief ways in which this has been brought about is by the accidental introduction of insects from foreign countries and a very large percentage of insects causing destruction in Canada have been introduced from foreign lands.

Special Study of Insects

The purpose of the organization being developed at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory is to make a special study of insects that are causing wide destruction, and if it found that the parasites that would normally be keeping them in control are lacking, an attempt is made to locate these and introduce them to the areas affected with a view to bringing about their ultimate control. A wide variety of insects have already been studied, and, since the establishment of the laboratory, approximately one hundred million parasites have been reared, distributed and sent out throughout the Dominion.

Building Open Today

In order that the people of the district may obtain first hand information on the work that is being carried out and learn something of the methods employed, the entire building and equipment will be open for public inspection this Wednesday afternoon and evening. The staff are on hand to explain details of the work, to answer inquiries, and to demonstrate the equipment of the building. All are cordially invited to take advantage of this opportunity to see what is being done by the Government to assist in the protection of crops and forests and the conservation and further development of our national resources.

GEN. FRANCO APOLOGIZES TO GREAT BRITAIN

Peace Conference on Spain 'Sounded' by Great Britain

SPANIARDS SICK OF 2 YEARS' WAR, WELCOME PEACE

Prime Minister Chamberlain Begins Second Year With New Activities

WITHDRAWALS IN SPAIN

Thirteen Point Program Seen as Basis of Spanish Parley

London, June 3—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, this week starting his second year as Prime Minister, was reported today to have initiated fresh diplomatic activity in Spain, Czechoslovakia, Germany and France to restore and keep European peace.

The cabinet was understood to have approved a two-fold plan:

1 To bring the Spanish government and Spanish insurgents together in a round table peace conference, a course which unconfirmed reports said Premier Mussolini of Italy already has approved.

2 Negotiation of a solution of the difficulties between the Czechoslovak government and its minority of Sudeten Germans who have freely pledged "protection" of Germany.

Factors in Proposals

The general hope is a way of mediating the Spanish civil war, which will have been drawn out for two years July 18, was based on two factors:

1 The belief in influential quarters that many Spaniards on both sides of the lines are sick of the war and would welcome a peace parley.

2. Definite signs of progress toward obtaining withdrawal of foreign volunteers fighting in the war.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Why birds migrate! Do birds migrate because of changing weather conditions, insufficient food, insufficient sunlight, or what? Some believe that originally they lived in the tropics, which finally became overpopulated. Then they went north to breed and feed, but were driven back each year by the cold of approaching fall. Another school believe that they lived originally in the North, were driven south by the ice age, but went home each year in spring to feed and breed until it became a habit. One species, the arctic tern, breeds within 500 miles of the North Pole, and in the fall flies south 11,000 miles, presumably to get more hours of sunlight.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 2—(CP)—Synopsis: Showers have occurred in northern and western districts of Ontario, while in other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair and moderately warm. A moderate depression, centred east of James Bay, has a fresh easterlies eastward across the Lower Lake region and pressure is also relatively low over the Northern Territories and Saskatchewan. High pressure covers the Western States and the Atlantic coast.

Lake Superior: Fresh northwest winds; partly cloudy. Friday, moderate variable winds; fair and moderately warm.

Manitoba: Fair and warm today; probably light scattered showers tonight or early Friday; a little cooler on Friday.

Saskatchewan: Partly cloudy; possibly light scattered showers; a little cooler tonight, Friday; fair and moderately warm.

Alberta: Mostly fair and moderately warm today and Friday.

Lesson in Budget Balancing Told By British Prime Minister

London, June 2 (CP) — Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has little time for story-telling these days, but he scored smartly with this one in driving home a point in a luncheon speech on budget-balancing.

As a youngster, his father became fascinated by chemical experiments. One day he decided to see what would happen if he buried a charge of gunpowder in the rockery of the family garden. The experiment was a complete success and the rockery ruined.

Called into the parental study, Mr. Chamberlain's father explained what had happened and added that the gunpowder had been bought with 2d borrowed from a school chum.

After the cane had been liberally applied, Grandfather Chamberlain remarked: "Remember what I'm about to say to you. I have punished you not because you blew up your mother's rockery, but because you have borrowed money you have no means of repaying."

NO DEVELOPMENT TO BASE A HOPE BOY STILL ALIVE

Ransom Money Paid But Abductors Fail to Return Boy

EXTENSIVE HUNT

Princeton, Pa., June 2—(AP)—Federal agents called upon reinforced posses today to help solve the kidnapping of James Bailey Cash, Jr., although there was no development upon which to base hopes the nine year-old boy was alive.

The federal men centred efforts on tracking down the abductors, who accepted a $10,000 ransom payment without returning the victim.

In their custody were several persons who knew exactly how many—and a number of finds reported as clues. But if the United States government's "kidnap squad" already knew who took young Cash they kept it to themselves last Saturday night it was a closely-guarded secret.

SIMPLER PHRASING OF BELIEFS NEEDED

Dr. Wallace of Queen's Says Essential 'is Way of Life Shown by Christ'

Toronto, June 3—(CP)— Simpler phrasing of religious beliefs and more emphasis on the type of life led by Christ would lead young people to the church, in the opinion of Dr. J. C. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University.

Dr. Wallace told the Toronto Conference of the United Church last night that young people of high purpose are not joining the church as they should because of a dislike for the "dogmatic viewpoint" in religious phraseology. Ancient statements of belief, he said, "seem to our young people to carry a note of sincerity and dishonesty."

Youth distrusts the surface terms in which religious teachings —conveyed and "they think that points of view are held that in reality cannot subscribe to," he continued.

Rephrasing of the church's thinking into more modern terms is needed, Dr. Wallace said, and the church should be simple language.

"If you were to ask me what might be taken as a simple statement of Christian faith, I would suggest that it is a way of life as shown to us by Christ," he continued, because that we should leave to others such domestic assertions as are necessary for our spiritual lives."

The Conference elected Rev. George W. Barker of Kingsway-Lambton Church, Toronto, its moderator in the first ballot over Rev. John Coborn, General Secretary of the Social Service Council.

HYDRO PROPOSED SEAWAY PROJECT OFFERED BY U. S

Arthur W. Roebuck, Former Commissioner, Tells Probe

'THE VERY OFFER'

Toronto, June 2—(CP)— The former Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission under Chairman E. Silvert Lyon contacted the John St. Lawrence seaway and power-development plan proposed to Canada by the United States, according to Arthur W. Roebuck, a former Hydro Commissioner.

Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Bracondale Bellwoods, Mr. Roebuck told a special legislative committee yesterday that, in 1936 the Commission, conferring in New York with the New York State Power Authority, was approached in the very offer made public today by the United States.

DESIRED WITNESS IS NOT DETAINED

Wanted by U.S. in Probe of Foreign Spies' Activities in Germany

Cherbourg, France, June 2 (AP)— French police made no effort to detain Werner Gudenberg, wanted in New York as a witness in the United States government's investigation of activities of foreign agents, when he arrived here today aboard the liner Hamburg.

French police agent accompanied the American Consul aboard the Hamburg to Gudenberg and to publish Gudenberg's presence. The captain declared Gudenberg had handed over to German police as a stowaway when the liner arrived at Hamburg from Vera Cruz.

German Press Increasingly Violent Over Cafe Shooting Incident at Eger

Berlin, June 2—(CP-Havas)—The usual scoundrels of Moscow."

Under the headline "scandal of Europe," Angriff declared again that "Czechoslovakia is the ground of unleashed soldiers' excesses and has become nothing but a state where Foreigners are no longer sure of their lives. The police acts like the Okhrana (Czarist secret police). All who speak German are prey for the Czechoslovak brutes."

The Berliner Boersen Zeitung said "the treatment imposed by Prahu on the Sudeten Germans is more brutal, more shameful than the backward Negro tribe would be obliged to accept."

ITALY'S INTEREST IN THE BALKANS IS 'IMMUTABLE'

Count Ciano Says Italy Faithful to Berlin-Tokyo Axis

TO CREATE FRIENDSHIPS

Praises Courage And Frankness of Mr. Chamberlain

Milan, Italy, June 3 (CP-Havas) — In a speech reaffirming Italian solidarity with Germany and Japan, Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano today paid tribute to the "frankness and courage" of Prime Minister Chamberlain and hailed the growing Italian accord as a great step forward toward European appeasement. Count Ciano addressed the opening of the National Congress for International Justice Studies.

Basis of Italian foreign policy, he said, remained as stated by Premier Mussolini in his Genoa speech of several weeks ago.

"Faithful to the concepts of the Rome-Berlin axis," Count Ciano said, "Fascist Italy will continue to exercise a policy of close collaboration and friendly understanding with National Socialist Germany."

Friendship Put to Test

"This friendship has been put to the test and passed through difficult hours. Today the community of steels and interests has been supplemented by a common frontier which constitutes for both young nations and two old peoples a new motive for reciprocal understanding, esteem and respect."

The solidarity, the Fascist Minister said, was first expressed in the common effort by the two countries to stem the "Bolshevist tide that threatened to engulf Europe by securing a base in Spain."

He extended his greetings to the "noble and strong people of Japan", and said Italy attached great importance to the collaboration of Japan in the fight against Bolshevism.

In the Balkans

As to the Balkans, Italy's interest in that region was unchanged, Count Ciano said "by the immutable factor of its geographic and historical position." Italy, he said, maintain its friendships there and "avoids new ones without political aims or designs as hegemony," but has a "spirit of sincere collaboration and understanding."

Turning to the Anglo-Italian pact, Count Ciano said Prime Minister Chamberlain and himself "desired to regulate Europe by securing a base in Spain."

He extended his greetings to the "noble and strong people of Japan", and said Italy attached great importance to the collaboration of Japan in the fight against Bolshevism.

Move Half Population of London in Case of War Fifty Miles in 72 Hours

London, June 3—(CP)—A picture of the enormous scope of the government's plans to guard civilians from danger of air raids in case of war was before the British public today.

High spot in the plans, as outlined to the House of Commons last night by spokesmen of the Home Office, was one whereby railway coaches, many 10,000 strong, and almost half Greater London's estimated 8,000,000—at least 50 miles from the city in 72 hours.

Other projected plans included tents and dug-out shelters in London's open spaces for 1,000,000 people. The 7,000 dock labourers in the Shipping area could handle many thousands more.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, and Geoffrey Lloyd, Undersecretary, discussed the plans during a debate on air raid precautions, the question being raised by a Labor motion to reduce Home Office estimates. The motion was defeated 179 to 96.

Continuity of Gov't.

Sir Samuel said the government was considering the best type of gas mask, the cost of means designed to ensure the public utilities could carry on under any attack, a question under urgent consideration was the continuity of government, both local and national, in an emergency.

Discussion for the early distribution of gas masks were being built. Some 300,000 masks already had been distributed for training purposes but the government did not feel Sir Samuel said, that the general public should receive them yet.

Mr. Lloyd, in outlining measures to remove millions to the country, said a plan for evacuation of city refugees and their disposal in rural areas had been drawn up.

PRONE BOY'S DEATH

Elmvale, Ont., June 2.—(CP)— Investigation of the death of Frank Middleton, 11, continued today.

The boy, cycling along a road near here last night, was struck and killed by an automobile driven by St. A. Walsworth, Barrie, who told police that as his car passed the boy, he turned inadvertently.

The juvenile is twenty miles northwest of Barrie.

GALES LASHING BRITISH ISLES, FISH SHIPS LOST

"Queen Mary" Unable to Enter Harbor at Cherbourg

90-MILE GALE

Trees Blown Down And Roads And Railway Blocked

London, June 3—(CP-Havas) — The British Isles were swept today by a storm that lashed the coast and caused heavy damages in many parts of the country.

At Brighton, East Bourne, Dover and Folkestone the wind reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

Many fishing vessels in the vicinity of Hastings were feared lost. Several S.O.S. signals were heard during the night.

At the race course at Epsom where only yesterday thousands of people viewed the Derby, bookmakers' stands were blown down.

Aerials around England roads were blocked by fallen trees. The railway between Ellingford and Liverpool was blocked for two hours by trees that fell squarely across the tracks.

At Southend and Plymouth last night there were several repeated rescues of small ships and pleasure vessels caught in the storm.

The Isle of Wight Ferry could not enter the harbor at Cherbourg where 270 passengers waited on board her. They were lodged on tenders for the night.

The German steamship Marie Lombardi of Hamburg, plunging through heavy seas in the English Channel, found the drifting wreckage of the yacht Lutetia, owned by Colonel Barafin of Guernsey. One man was picked up and another was believed lost overboard.

Another yachtsman, Frank Lewis, 56 of the Sussex Yacht Club died of exposure after being rescued from his 15-ton yacht.

Telephone Service Interrupted

The gale was playing havoc with the telephone service. The general post office announced that in the London area, Kent and Southern counties, the whole telephone service was without service. In North Wales 820 subscribers were cut off. Sixty-six trunk and junction lines were down and three rural exchanges were entirely isolated. Fourteen lines between Ireland and England were down.

The storm practically ruined the cricket match at Southend where a match between Essex and Worcester is in progress. Screens, tents and marquees were blown down.

Along the Brighton sea front from Saltdean to Hove 15 ash groves in the area had been raked by naval guns. Windows were blown in and small boats smashed.

Transport Minister Hops in Trucks, Rides 140 Miles to Learn Conditions

London, June 3—(CP)—Dressed in an old coat, muffler and cap, a man hopped aboard a seven-ton transport truck in London's east end the other night.

"Ah, here you are, mate," said Stanley Honeywood, truck driver.

The "mate" was Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport. Sitting in the cab of the truck he drove 70 miles from London to Daventry, then turned around and drove back to London in another truck.

The Transport Minister wanted to get a first-hand insight into conditions. He steered the truck for a quarter of a mile himself and found it light as a car to handle.

Mr. Burgin complimented the truck drivers on their road sense. After the trip he said "I saw half a dozen examples of bad driving, every one on the part of a private car."

NEW PURITANISM NEEDED IN CHURCH SAYS DR. SILCOX

Educational Institutions Neglect Culture Discipline of Emotions, Claim

CHRIST STILL SAVIOUR

Napanee, Ont., June 3—(CP) — "Too long have our educational institutions neglected the culture and discipline of the fundamental emotions," said Rev. Dr. David C. Silcox, Secretary of Social Service Council of Canada, addressing the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada here last night. A significant sign, he said, of today's world is the "growing interest in the occult, was in reality evidence to its proper place in cleansing life from within. Rev. Dr. Silcox said: "It is in return to religion that our social salvation lies.

A new "puritanism" is needed, he declared, "even at the risk of being charged with a negative morality. Christians must act differently from non-Christians. A religion that needs to bring in the Kingdom of God, as Wesley's did, is the antidote for revolutions like that in Russia in 1917."

GIRL'S DETENTION PART OF ROUTINE

Czech Patrol Says British Woman Not Suspected of Espionage

Praha, June 2 (AP)—Czechoslovak authorities explained today the 5-hour detention of Hon. Unity Freeman-Mitford, daughter of Lord Redesdale of England, was but a part of the routine inspection of all travellers passing through military defence zones.

Miss Freeman-Mitford was stopped yesterday when she drove through a military zone on the road to Karlovy Vary.

Her companions were a Sudeten German Deputy in the Czechoslovak parliament named Wollner, and Konrad Henlein, Sudeten fourhrer himself Norn de Rubbion. Czech military drivers said their militiamen captured Cencorsoss Et Coso, just outside Vichona.

Much of the government resistance was attributed to its revised air defence plan which gives greater mastery of the air with Franco's warplanes.

Barcelona pilots prevented largescale bombardments of government positions, and in one combat, government dispatches said, 12 insurgent planes were shot down.

Parachutes Developed in Desert To Land Huge Rocket Safely

Roswell, N.M., June 2—(AP)— A new art in parachuting has been developed in the desert near here whereby rockets settle back to earth safely.

The large parachute with a spread of 28 feet is for the rocket's descent. A pressure valve releases the parachutes at the proper moment. Two small parachutes attached to the rocket ship has developed run up to 700 miles an hour, have made it difficult to operate a light parachute as the rocket slows down.

At first the shroud lines holding the edges of the parachute were silk cords, able to hold 200 pounds. There were 10 of these giving 1,000 pounds strength required to hold the weight of 84 pounds. The lines had to be strengthened until each would hold 400 pounds, or a total strain of two tons.

Thus equipped, the rocket thrusupon broke a one-eighth inch steel cable which was attached to the lines. After this had been remedied, it broke a ring of iron one-half inch thick holding the cable to the rocket. This iron ring was a standard part used for tractors to pull heavy loads.

PLAYING ON STREET VERY DANGEROUS SAYS MAGISTRATE

Refers to Use of Carts, Roller Skates and Equipment of Bicycles

SPEED AT CROSSNGS

"Surely there are sufficient playgrounds in vacant lots upon which baseball can be played in this city without the children endangering not only their own lives, but the lives of motorists by continuing the practice of ball playing on our city streets," sternly warned His Worship Magistrate W. J. Ponton, K.C., at the conclusion of today's police court.

"Practically every street in the city is seeing increased motor traffic which must be respected, children can be seen all over the city playing ball on the streets, riding bicycles recklessly, and even where they are going when roller skating and using carts put into the travelled portion of the street without caution. Of course I realize the children are irresponsible, but the parents should appeal to their children to be more cautious before a serious accident occurs, which might prove

INSURGENT DRIVE BEGINS TO STALL

In Many Sectors Gov't. Counter-Offensives Win Local Ground

Hendaye, June 2—(AP)—The insurgent power drive against the Teruel-Valencia highway appears to be stalling again before increasing Spanish government resistance.

In many sectors of the mountainous front, which guards the highway to the Mediterranean, the government counter-offensive in the Teruel area has regained some territory lost to General Franco's warfare.

Heaviest fighting centred in a 10-mile zone from insurgent-held Puebla de Valverde on the Valencia highway to Rubielos.

Insurgent advices said their artillerymen captured Cencorsoss Et Coso, just outside Vichona.

Much of the government resistance was attributed to its revised air defence plan which gives greater mastery of the air with Franco's warplanes.

Barcelona pilots prevented largescale bombardments of government positions, and in one combat, government dispatches said, 12 insurgent planes were shot down.

BRITISH SHIPPING NOT DELIBERATELY OBJECT OF ATTACK

Reopening of Direct Negotiations With Germany Sought

OBSTACLES IN WAY

Russia Agrees to Plan Withdrawal of Foreign Troops

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 3 (CP Cable)— General Franco today apologized to Great Britain for the sinking of British ships in Spanish waters. He explained British shipping was not deliberately chosen for attack and added that he had ordered an investigation into the circumstances.

And while actively protesting against attacks on British shipping, the British government moved for peace with two objectives in view:

1. A truce in Spain, with settlement of the Spanish war. For until the Spanish question is settled the Anglo-Italian treaty does not become effective.

2. Reopening of direct negotiations with Germany. Yet while Britain has accepted Franco at his policy, British circles frankly recognize that he cannot be subdued until considerable difficulties are overcome.

BANCROFT DISTRICT FOUND GOOD FISHING

Speckled trout are still biting freely in the northern lakes of the county. Among the latest who report good fishing are Mr. and Mrs. C. Ormerod and Al Edwards of Toronto who passed through enroute home carrying an excellent catch of trout from ten to eighteen inches long, caught at Lake St. Peter, north of Bancroft a day or so ago.

TWO LOCAL YOUTHS OFF FOR NEW STRIKE

In the hope of obtaining work, following reports received that a new gold strike had been made near Henderson, sixty miles north of Kingston, two local youths, equipped with sufficient bedding and food to camp on the way as they travelled, started to hike to the new reported gold scene from the city this morning. The new vein is reported being opened by the Hollinger Gold Mine Co. and prospects of ore are attracting the attention of district residents.

MISS CANADA YACHT RUNS PICTON TRIP

Engaged for some days past in providing local residents with pleasure trips on the Bay of Quinte, Captain Heckaran and his trim yacht "Miss Canada" are expected to visit Trenton today and run a day's excursion from there to Picton. The boat will not stop at Belleville en route.

JUNE BUTTER WANTED FOR WINTER FAIR

First competitions for the Royal Winter Fair next November, which have just been announced for district allotment, are for home-made butter for which entries must be received by noon not later than July 10. A total of $150 is offered in prizes for salted creamery butter in 14-pound tubs which must be certified as being made in June. A group system of allotting prize money is followed, butter with a score of 97 being in the first group, 96½ in the second, and 96 in the third.

CUSTOMS COLLECTIONS INCREASE OVER MONTH

Customs returns as collected at the local port of customs for the month of May just ended, show an increase over April of this year, but a decrease for the same month of the previous year. Returns show total collections of $63,145.20 for the month of May, 1938; $43,263.67 for April, 1938, and $107,263.43 for May, 1937.

LUMBER CUT LIGHTER IN HASTINGS COUNTY

According to W. N. Gilroy, prominent lumber operator of Grass Hill, the amount of lumber sawed in his section of the County of Hastings this season will not exceed over one half that cut in the year previous. Most of the mills of the northern part of the county are busy at the present time. Recently Mr. Gilroy purchased a small block of timber in Miller Township, Frontenac County and has a mill operating there for the present time. At present the demand is for maple and basswood. Not as much pine wood is being handled so far, and what has been in stock has been sold. The demand for pulpwood through this section is said to be slow.

HUNGRY COTTONTAILS THREAT TO GARDENS

Rabbits of the small cotton-tail variety which are said to have multiplied beyond bounds in this section during the past winter, have reportedly become a scourge to district gardeners in the vicinity of Belleville, who have begun reporting serious damage to their vegetables now growing after an enticing fare. Traps, alarms and other rabbit-scaring devices have been resorted to, but the killing of the tender rabbits still goes on, it is reported, in one instance west of the city a nightly vigil has been maintained by one gunner and his sons, to save his small crop.

DISTRICT BUILDERS TENDER SCHOOL BIDS

E. F. Rutherford, local building contractor, is reported among those who are expected to tender for the construction of the new Stirling high school addition for which tenders are being received by the secretary of the Stirling Board of Education up to June 10th. The new addition is planned by J. Arnold Thomson, architect of this city at an estimated cost of $30,000. Cost of Trenton, Cox Lindsay and one Campbellford firm are believed submitting bids.

COURSE RECORDS NEARLY EQUALLED

Joka Owned by "Duke" Smith Easily Wins Senior Class

Course records came close to being shattered during the Joka Yacht Club regatta for Belleville Yacht Club yesterday, when a pleasing breeze ushered in the event via before it. The nine-mile course off Victoria Park was dotted with craft as a large flotilla bettied for the day's racing honors. In the "A" class, won by Duke Smith's Joka the skippers were just four and one half minutes over the course record established two years ago.

In the senior "A" class the Joka won in the remarkably fast time of 1 hour 31 minutes and 30 seconds followed closely by Maurice Calnaghan's class Sea Bird" and Harry Secmark's "Alaska" and Roy Hay's "Spray" in last order.

In the "B" class, however, the After You 2nd, with Mr. Nicholson at skipper, pushed her nose across the finishing line ahead of Dr. Locke's Dorothy and Mr. Rushbrook's Scotia.

The Belleville Yacht Club is negotiating for the loan a dinghy group and include this, thrilling type of sailing in their sports programme. If sufficient show interest, the Kingston Yacht Club may be invited down for competition in the dinghy class.

Day's Receipts Taken When House Entered

Robbers entered the home of Alfred MacDonnell, one mile west of Bellevill on Highway No. 2 some time last night and stole a substantial sum of money, Provincial police of Belleville revealed today. Although the amount was not stipulated, the money is believed to have been a large sum and was the day's receipts of the nearby Canada Packers Company at which Miss MacDonnell, daughter of Alfred MacDonnell is employed. Miss MacDonnell was in the habit of taking the company's day's receipts home for safe keeping, it was stated. The robbers gained entrance by breaking a screen door and quietly of forcing a rear door and quietly entering the house while the family slept. It is believed the money was kept downstairs, while the family slept in the upper rooms. No unnecessary disturbance or noise was heard by the family, they informed Provincial Constable W. E. Smith upon his investigation of the robbery early today.

POLICE COURT

Sixteen citizens, all of whom had been delivered in the matter of obtaining 1938 dog licences for their canines, appeared in Special Court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today charged with having obtained their 1938 dog tags. Convictions were registered in every case, except one.

In all incidents the offenders had been unable to immediately purchase a dog licence and pay the necessary fee to the town. In one instance where no conviction was registered was the result of the accused not owning a dog, but that he was not in possession of a dog on the date upon which the charge was laid.

"Have you a dog now?" asked Sergeant Arthur Harman, who acted as clerk of the court in the absence of Chief Kidd. "Yes, I have now," replied the citizen.

"Well, you'd better obtain your dog licence tomorrow-early," warned His Worship as he dismissed the matter. Authorities revealed other charges of a similar nature were pending when it was found that citizens were harbouring a dog, but were not in possession of their 1938 dog licences.

Roy Tripp, 37, of Marchan, was arrested in the vicinity today in charge of the theft of a bicycle, reported stolen in Belleville on Tuesday. According to police statements, Tripp was endeavouring to sell the bicycle when taken into custody by the Napanee authorities.

Tripp appeared before H. B. Wilson, police magistrate of the Peace, today and was remanded in custody until Friday. The bicycle was reported stolen by John Nolan of this city. The charge has been sent down to Belleville under police escort yesterday.

Local police are continuing their drive against the repeated violating of the city on hour parking by-law in the downtown area. Yesterday several motorists received "police tickets," indicating the infractions of this bylaw. Summonses will be subsequently issued and fines levied when convictions are registered, authorities added.

DISCOVERS YOUTH' VERY BRILLIANT
Field Secretary Sparks Sees Bright Future For Lonsdale Boy
Everything humanly possible will be done for the betterment of John Crawford, twenty-two year old Canadian youth, almost blind since he was two years old, A. W. Sparks Field Secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in this district, stated today.
Following the discovery of the facts of Crawford's case by Inspector Frank Gardiner, Ontario Provincial Police, last Saturday night, Mr. Sparks and the Inspector visited Crawford at his home yesterday.
"I found him a brilliant youth," Mr. Sparks stated. "I am now investigating the case and everything that can be done for his future will be done by my organization."
Total loss of the sight of one eye, and almost total loss of vision in the other was the aftermath of an accident that occurred when Crawford was two years old, when he fell from a chair and suffered a head injury, Inspector Gardner said today.
At seven years of age he attended school, and succeeded in passing his entrance examinations some years later. Crawford is delighted with the fact that his case is under investigation and that prospects for a better future look very bright, the Inspector added.

1st And 2nd Year Courses Successfully Completed at Canada Cement Co.

Confidence in the belief that men thoroughly trained in the art of First Aid invariably make safer workmen than those untrained has led officials of the Canada Cement Company to sponsor classes to study this important work among the ranks of its employees.

Held under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association, three year courses in first aid have been under way at the Point Anne plant of the company for some time. Recently seventeen graduates in second year work and twenty-seven students in first year instruction were presented with certificates following the conclusion of the eight weeks course held at the plant.

Following the presentation held this week by Dr. G. S. Cronk, examining official, graduates of both classes were highly commended on the high class of work done during the course and in the subsequent examinations.

Lectures were given to students during the various courses by Drs. J. J. Robertson and R. A. Flynn, of Belleville.

Successful students, all employees of the plant, are—

Treatment to Increase The Life of Fence Posts

Ottawa, Canada. — Preservative treatment to prevent decay and prolong the life of non-durable fence posts is recommended by the Forest Products Laboratories, Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa. The length of life of fence posts depends mainly on the species and the conditions of service. For example, cedar is naturally durable and will last for many years, but most of the common woods are not, durable and in contact with the soil soon decay. Investigations show that many years of service can be added to certain species by simple and inexpensive treatment.

Creosote oil is the best effective preservative and will increase the service life of non-durable posts twenty years or more. Posts may be treated (either full length or only butts) with creosote oil by heating the air seasoned posts in hot oil, and then submerging them in cold oil. This treatment is known as the "hot and cold tank" treatment. A cheaper, less efficient treatment consists of dipping posts in hot oil. Where a tank is not available, two brushings with hot creosote, well heated in will add two or three years to the life of the posts.

Twelve to thirteen years of service life may be given air seasoned non-durable species by treating the posts with a 3-5 per cent. solution of a preservative salt (zinc chloride, sodium fluoride and copper sulphate) by the "hot and cold tank" treatment. This treatment is generally more effective than steeping the posts for several days in a salt solution. Freshly-cut posts may be treated by steeping the butts of the green posts in a salt solution for a week or more.

In the United States, the cotton picking season averages 100 days annually.

Philip Osmond And Family Aboard "Lydia Florence" Start Romantic Journey —Boat 10 Months in Building

If you have a yen to sail the briny blue and to cruise on placid or stormy waters, you don't need a million dollars.

In fact you won't need but a slight percentage of that amount if you are mechanically-minded, and possess the ability to build a thirty-one foot nautical craft out of pieces of scrap, pieces of boards, old tree trunks. In fact building material of all sorts and shapes, and fifty dollars in cash.

For that is how Philip Osmond, unemployed Toronto carpenter and native of Newfoundland, realized a life-long dream. Becalmed off Point Traverse, the other day, Osmond told Willis Metcalfe, local fisherman, a graphic story of attainment of a life-long ambition so sail from Toronto to his home in Catalina, Newfoundland, a journey that he expects will take fifteen days to complete.

With Osmond on the "Lydia Florence, as the two masted vessel is called, are his daughter, Ivy, 22, and three sons, John, 16, Stirling, 13 and Reg. 11. The boat has patience built is named after the late Mrs. Osmond who died a short time ago.

Ten months ago Osmond and his sons started construction on his dream-boat. All sorts of odds and ends of construction material were brought into use. Oftimes construction ceased as material ran short. But optimist that he is, Osmond believed, and truly so as events turned out that "something will turn up".

Often he did not know where the next piece was coming from. Then the news of this intrepid Newfoundlander and his ambition became noised about. In the garage loaned him grain by a kind-hearted doctor where the boat was being built neighbors brought him odds and ends. Anchor and everything was brought into use in the building of the craft. Old paint cans were scraped meticulously clean for the last vestige of pigment until sufficient was procured to cover the boat.

A neighbor offered Osmond fifteen dollars to transport the craft to the water, edge where the official "launching" took place. But there was no cheering multitude present to watch the gallant craft slide from her chocks into the water. No bottle of champagne crashed against her bows. No woman's voice murmured "I christen thee Lydia Florence". Only the heartfelt unspoken thanks of a grateful family surged in the hearts of the brave little band as they watched their pride float on the waters of Lake Ontario for the first time.

A second hand motor was secured for five dollars. The propeller was the result of a $6 investment. Nails and other necessary material cost another twenty dollars. That represented practically all the cash invested in the thirty-one foot two-master.

Osmond is no land-lubber. He knows all the moods of a fickle weather-man when out to sea. Now he is on his way back to his native island, a place he left some ten years ago. He expects the voyage to be a "tough one" but with favorable winds and the successful negotiation of a proposed eighteen hour per day sailing schedule, he expects to sight the rocky coast of his native Catalina within fifteen days of his start. He may, he said pick up craft through the Straits of Belle Isle.

Back among the hardy fisherfolk of his native Newfoundland a job awaits him. There along the rock-bound coast of the oldest colony, he will again reunite with the friends of long ago, people who wept, at times a precarious living from the storm-tossed waters of the Atlantic ocean. The job will not be much, he expects, but it will mean work and a home for his plucky sons, and daughter, true offspring of a hardy Newfoundland sire.

NEW CITY BOOKLETS RECEIVED AT CHAMBER

A quantity of new literature describing the advantages of Belleville as a tourist recreational centre, strikingly finished in blue and black covered booklets, containing every necessary information regarding the city and adjoining districts, is now available for distribution at the local Chamber of Commerce office. The new booklets contain a plan of the city, a complete map of Belleville district as far as Algonquin Park and distances to Ontario points from this centre. They are issued by the Belleville City Council and the Belleville Motor Club.

NEW VEGETABLES AT CITY MARKET

Asparagus and other spring vegetables were offered to a slim clientele at the city market today. Prices showed no appreciable change over those of the preceding week-end with eggs remaining steady at 25 cents per dozen for select stock.

Asparagus sold at 10 cents per bunch with sound lots offered at 15, 20 and 25 cents each. Old potatoes were quoted at 25 cents per bag, with new vegetables such as radishes, lettuce, rhubarb and onions quoted at prevailing prices.

HAILIE'S MEMORIES

Emperor Haile Selassie whose nation recently lost its freedom under the conquest had a few years before entered into the counsels of nations, though Ethiopia according to usual standards was a backward land. The invader came with modern implements of war and in the end the resistance of his people collapsed. The "Lion of Judah, King of Kings" sought asylum far from his own land. He failed at Geneva to rouse the nations in behalf of the freedom of his country and went to an Isle of Wight watering place to rest. There he was photographed and over the picture an editor has written the words, "Nothing left but memories."

That may be the cry of the dark race in Ethiopia for all time, no matter how high a place Ethiopia comes to fill under the development of the conquering Italians, or it may not be.

Ethiopia was perhaps the last important free country to fall into the fate of endless races which have emerged and sunk back into the abysm of nations. No ethnologists know, however great their research and study, what races were conquered to make new races rise on the ashes of the mixture of ancient races. The story of the first civilization is not written for the present age and for the study of students of world history, because the first men for thousands of years left no written record, no record of pottery, no records in stone, perhaps not even the record of the skeleton of a single person of the race known to science as the original man. With change in climate and the slow change of lands fit or unfit for habitation, men moved, but left not a single mark behind, so that no one knows today where the first men dwelt. Races were not so populous as they are today and the social climb and change were probably much more slow. What races came upon the scene, and then were swept away under a change of climate or before the immigration of another kindred race, no one knows in detail.

Finally did come the dawn of civilization, whose vestiges are found in graves in pieces of pottery, but after that what numerous changes made themselves felt, even the modern scientist does not know. Whence came and what happened to the dark white race first in the Mediterranean area? What conquests took place before even the oldest races emerged can only be guessed at. The great movements of races which began pressing forward perhaps four or five thousand years ago left little record of their composition.

One has to delve only into the early history of Europe to guess how many conquests there must have been which eliminated races or absorbed the blood strain of the natives. Rome, once first to history as Gallic in origin, was conquered by the Franks of German origin, who were absorbed in the French, who also absorbed the Northmen who helped to mould northern France, known to England as Normandy. England has a story of conquests so have Scotland and Ireland.

Nature however had set apart the Ethiopians in a strategic position until this very late independence possible until this very decade when it only required modern science to end the independence of Ethiopia.

What will Ethiopia become? It may be that it will grow in importance under Italian cultivation but it probably will remain, many think, a land inhabited largely by descendants of the Ethiopians on account of the rigor of the cold and the intensity of the heat and the isolation of the country. But it has never been possible to estimate the course of events and guessing in this case would likely be idle.

Haile Selassie is but one of many who have mourned empires and races that have fallen. The "Lion of Judah" however has a more bitter pill than most of fallen emperors in the past as he was working to bring civilization to his country. He has a modern education and can ponder with more intense feeling on the destiny of his country.

When he looks around and sees the nations of that civilization into which he sought to bring his empire, he must be more than saddened that the thing which he sought to give his people might itself be gobbled up by the fanatical nationalism of the races of civilization who hold tremendous power for their own destruction. And if that ever should take place, he would not be the only one who has "nothing but memories." Should civilization go to war, memories will be exceedingly bitter when the strife ends for so much will have passed away.

So Britain and the democratic nations are striving in every way to make impossible a resort to arms by the Great Powers. For conflict would multiply the fallen Negus and his Ethiopians many hundredfold should humanity be set back in poverty of mind, energy and wealth for hundreds of years. A Spaniard who has time to muse over the fate of his own great country must feel sympathy with Haile. But the Spaniard has still his battered and bloody country, while Haile has nothing but memories and the thoughts of his people developing under an alien ruler.

THEJOB OF A MAN

It isn't the work we intended to do,
Nor the work we've just begun,
That puts us right on the ledger sheet:
It's the work we've really done.
Our credit is built on the things we do,
Our debit on things we shirk;
The man who totals the biggest score
Is the one who completes his work.
Good intentions do not pay bills,
It's easy enough to plan;
To wish is the play of an office-boy,
To do is the job of a man.

PIRATES ON THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, in fact, not fiction, feature the story of the burning of the Sir Robert Peel one hundred years ago last Sunday now being retold in various newspapers. The pirate chief, or bandit, or rebel, or whatever you choose to call him, was Bad Bill Johnston, or as he called himself "Admiral Bill Johnston, Commander in Chief of the Naval Forces and Flotilla" when he issued a proclamation declaring war on Great Britain and the British Crown. Johnston took part in the so-called rebellion fomented by William Lyons Mackenzie, his rank being "Chief of Naval Staff at Navy Island". The rebel fleet consisted mainly of a craft called the Caroline and when this was set on fire and destroyed the bulk of the entire rebel navy was removed. Johnston made a hideout among the Thousand Islands and gathered together a band of reckless devils like himself who lived on the country and made forays along the Canadian shore in long boats. The Sir Robert Peel with passengers and cargo, en route to Kingston and Toronto, tied up at Wells Island during the night to load wood for fuel and was attacked by a gang of twenty or more men led by Bill Johnston, all armed with muskets and bayonets and dressed like Indians. The passengers were put ashore half clothed just as they rushed from their cabins when the alarm was given. After looting the vessel it was set on fire, cut loose, and allowed to drift with the current. One passenger a Mr. Holditch was robbed of over seven thousand dollars, and Col. R. D. Fraser of Brockville was robbed of fifteen hundred dollars. Baggage and jewelry was included in the loot together with about seventy-five thousand dollars in specie. The ship was valued at $11,000 and was reported to be carrying one hundred thousand dollars in specie to pay the troops stationed in Upper Canada. Johnston was hunted after that unceasingly but managed to escape capture through his intimate knowledge of the many hidden channels and caves and hideouts among the islands and eventually disappeared from the scene, the looting and burning of the Sir Robert Peel being his major crime. There were thirty cabin passengers on board and forty steerage.

LOOKING BACKWARD

SLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 2nd, 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn, of Tweed, spent yesterday in the city the guest of Mrs. William Donahue, Grove Street.

Mr. J. J. Post of Arden, is visiting relatives and friends in the city.

Mr. E. Covell, of Brighton, spent yesterday in the city.

Miss Kathleen Greer of Napanee spent the week end here with Miss Myrtle Ayers.

Mrs. P. Jeffrey Birch, Fort William, Ont., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Sultan, in this city.

June 2nd, 1908.

The Rev. Mr. Fisher, Port Elmsley, formerly at Roslin and Thomasburg, will sail on June 5th, to spend some time in England.

Of all the intensely exciting days that this city has known, forty-two years ago today was one of the most thrilling. Over four hundred of our most patriotic citizens on June 2nd, were all day the uniforms of the 1st, Belleville Rifles or the 155th. Regiment, expecting every moment to be called to arms. The pent-up feelings of the citizens found vent in the evening by vast crowds parading the streets, singing patriotic songs, and cheering for Queen, Empire and Canada. The ammunition came at 5 a.m. on June 3rd., and by 10 o'clock a.m. the members of the 1st. Belleville Rifles were on the way to Cornwall and the members of the 155th. Regiment were entrained to Prescott, with orders to be ready to repel the Fenian invaders before nightfall.

June 2nd, 1898.

In a game of baseball yesterday the Dukes defeated the Station nine; the score was 18 to 10. The W.C.T.U. will conduct a refreshments booth in connection with the brigade camp which will be held here in the near future.

A party of gentlemen enjoyed a sail on the yacht "Kismet" last evening.

The boys must find a new bathing place this summer as the police will not allow them to swim in the bay near the park.

John Downs, better known as "Tacker" Downs, has gone to Boston to join his American navy. His friends expect to hear of him distinguishing himself before Santiago.

Mr. E. Hill wheeled to Tweed yesterday.

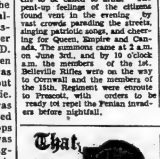
Mr. Dan Gallagher of this city spent yesterday in Tweed on business.

Messrs. Fred Blakey and Arthur Wadsworth wheeled to this city yesterday from Desoronto.

50 YEARS AGO

June 2nd, 1888.

Mr. Thomas H. McKee has been provisionally appointed 2nd. Lieutenant in the Stirling Centre Co. No. 2 of the 49th Battalion.



Mr. W. Mackintosh, Public School Inspector for North Hastings, has been appointed examiner of second class teachers at the Normal School at Ottawa. He will leave shortly to attend to his duties.

The Baltic passed up the bay to Trenton last evening.

The Freeman ice imbedding coal here for Downey & Preston.

Ald. Porter has removed his law office from Bridge Street to the rooms formerly occupied by the Conservative Club.

The river is now thickly dotted with saw logs of this season's cut which began to arrive yesterday.

The Usual Signs of Heart Disease

Now that it is known that a heart murmur may not be a serious condition many nervous individuals are thinking about other heart symptoms— rapid heart beat, getting out of breath easily, pain over the heart or under the breast bone, or perhaps high blood pressure. These are all symptoms of a failing heart, but a failing heart is not the only condition that may cause these symptoms.

Getting short of breath may be caused by eating too much acid food —meat, eggs, bread, or by constriction in the chest or throat which interferes with air passing to and from the lungs.

Rapid heart beat and a rise in blood pressure can be caused by excitement or other emotional disturbance or by simply eating a heavy meal.

The pain in the region of the heart or under the breastbone can be caused by pressure of gas in the stomach or by a cold, chill, or infection of the chest muscles — pleurodynia or false pleurisy— or by pleurisy itself.

It can thus be seen that some of the 'regular' symptoms of heart disease can be caused by simple or harmless conditions.

Of course, if an individual is in doubt about his heart he should go to his physician or to a heart specialist as the latter has not only the electrocardiograph equipment which records the regularity and strength of the heart beat, but it has also the Xray outfit which enables him (by means of the fluoroscope) to actually see the size, position, and beating of the heart.

However if the pain in the chest is like a vise, a squeezing or tightening pain, which comes on during exercise, or after eating a heavy meal, the blood pressure is 'always' high, the heart beat is always irregular and fast, sometimes strong and sometimes weak, perhaps some swelling of the feet, by all of which symptoms there is added breathlessness on slight exertion, it is plainly that true or organic heart disease is present. Even with any or all of these symptoms the patient can live for many years by simply living within his strength. Living within his strength means avoiding heavy exercise, avoiding heavy or large meals, and avoiding free of excitement.

A heavy meal increases the work of the heart by fifty per cent. Emotional disturbance such as anger or fear increase the work of the heart at least 25 per cent.

PAPAL DELEGATE ARRIVES FOR EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Arriving in Budapest for the Eucharistic Congress, Cardinal Pacelli was appointed by the Pontiff, in a special delegate for Pope Pius, is shown being greeted by Zsigmond Ter Szendy Left, and Regent Admiral Horthy, Right. The congress was addressed by the Pontiff, in a radio broadcast from his summer home, Castle Gondolfo. His 12-minute address, calling upon Hungary to remain "the bulwark of defence against the enemies of Christianity and European civilization," was translated into every language except German.

TRANSATLANTIC CLIPPER PREPARES FOR TEST FLIGHT

Pictured aboard her parent barge at Seattle, Wash., is the newest giant of the airways, the 41-ton Boeing Clipper, first of six airplanes being built for Pan-American Airways for transatlantic service. Designed to carry 72 passengers and a crew of eight as well as 5,000 pounds of freight and mail, the huge clipper is expected to be used in regular transatlantic flights, providing she lives up to expectations during her preliminary tests.

UNITED STATES PROPOSES NEW GREAT LAKES SEAWAY PLAN

Tabled in the House of Commons, without comment, by Premier King, the U.S. government's latest plan for the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Seaway offers concessions to Canada. The new plan allows Canada 11 years in which to complete her share of the work, permission to divert water from the Albany River to Lake Superior, and an agreement by the United States to accept surplus hydro power from Ontario. The above map shows the general plan of the proposed seaway. Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, left, who has been cold to similar proposals for a Great Lake seaway, declared that his government would take this latest plan, offered by Cordell Hull, right, Secretary of State for the U.S., under consideration. At the same time Mr. Hepburn warned: "I'm not going to be swept off my feet by any propaganda or ballyhoo, and anything that Ontario may agree to will have to be fully justified on economic grounds."

Painful Sciatica

Here is the case of Mr. A. D. M. If ever an outlook seemed black, his did! If ever relief seemed far away, an idle dream, it did to him! Now read his letter.

"For over 30 years I have suffered from Rheumatic trouble. On February 12th, 1930, I went down with Sciatica, and thought I'd lost the use of my left leg. I took treatments for two months, and felt somewhat better. About a month ago my left leg became very bad again, and almost useless. I started taking Fynnon Salt. After about a week an improvement set in. Now I can keep going twelve and fourteen hours a day."

A ¼ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water every day will help drive rheumatic troubles out of your system. The combination of Nature's Potassium and the elements of Lithium in Fynnon Salt assist in expelling Uric Acid, help stimulate your liver, putting you on your feet again. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists.

Try Smiling For Beauty, Girls Urged

(By [illegible] FOLLETT)

Keep smiling, girls; smiling is a beauty exercise. There's an old saying, and it is a true one, that "one stay so they are but the mouth is what one makes it. It reveals character as does no other feature. We hear about the "smile that lights the face" the one that is as "hard as nails". Put your mind on this subject if you are given to emotional stories. Because what goes on in the inside is reflected in the countenance. The smiling face always keeps young.

The sadder colors in the thought attic and lip ends will droop. After a time they'll stay that way. Fixed and tissues soften and lines appear. The "down-in-the-mouth" look has a deplorable effect upon facial muscles.

Charm, good nature, a sense of fun makes the mouth attractive. They give radiance to the human face, enhance pleasing features, make plain ones more appealing.

The portals of the mouth should be kept in form. Anoint the lips at night with a white lipstick. When the cream is on, place the first finger in the centre of the lip, the thumb at the end, the second finger at the other. Keep the first finger stationary, draw up the thumb and second finger to the lip ends. This treatment tones the lip fibres, keeps up and down lines from forming.

Don't let your wrists lose suppleness or your knuckles tighten. Unless wrists and fingers are flexible, the movements of the hands will be stiff.

At bedtime, during the beautifying half hour, spend toilet lanolines over the hands. Friction it in well. Thumb each knuckle. Circle the wrist bones.

Lift and lower the hands slowly. Hold them palm upward, draw in the fingers and thumbs slowly with a hard muscle tension, then let them relax.

BEULAH W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of Beulah W. M. S. was held at the Parsonage with a good attendance. After the usual Worship Service, singing of a hymn and the Bible reading in connection with the Poster and the Monthly the president gave a reading on Peace entitled "How Women in Organized Work Can Prevent War." Mrs. Donald Fleming then read a hymn. Business followed. Mrs. Frost favored with quiet music.

Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Looney, Mrs. Wickens, Phillis "Twiddy, were heralds for the Welch Tower. Miss Cora Frost read an interesting letter from Mrs. Armstrong, a Missionary stationed in Trinidad. Mrs. Palmer gave the chapter in the Study Book, "World Relations in the Church."

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Sam Twiddy then presented Mrs. Lackie with a Star Quilt made by the Society for her in recognition of her good will toward the W. M. S. while here in Ivanhoe. Mrs. Lackie replied showing her appreciation.

The Group Leader, Mrs. Richard Reid, took charge of the closing hymn, Mrs. Clement offered prayer.

A lunch was served by the ladies and a social half hour spent.

HOLLOWAY W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting and dinner of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Wilson. At twelve o'clock about twenty-two members and visitors sat down to a delicious dinner served by the hostess.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. H. Rose very capably took charge of the proceedings. The meeting opened with hymn 88, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The thank offering envelopes were handed in and the amount was $3.26. It was moved and seconded that the study book be passed around for each member to read.

A vocal duet "In the Garden" was then rendered by Mrs. Don Rose and Mrs. Coleman Townsend. The scripture readings were read by Mrs. Percy Kelly, Mrs. Charles Chaddy, Mrs. Jim McMullen, Mrs. Bessie Spencer, and Mrs. Rachael Townsend. A few minutes of silent prayer were observed after which Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Mrs. Yess Reid offered short prayers.

Responsive reading was read and hymn 264 "I Am Thine O Lord" was sung. A reading entitled, "A Tired Mother" was given by Mrs. Clayton Prest and the meeting closed with the Benediction. The proceeds from the dinner amounted to $6.25. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for the use of her home.

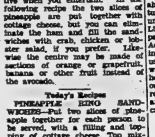
Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, heavy, "all bogged down"? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what modern foods do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible for you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't concentrated in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a big crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.



TEMPTING PLATE FOR YOUR MENU

By MRS. MARY MORTON
Menu Hint
Baked Ham Creamed Potatoes
Pineapple Ring Sandwiches
Hot Rolls
Ice Cream Cake
Coffee

This may be a luncheon or supper menu. Whatever it is, the tempting platter of pineapple ring sandwiches will prove very attractive when you entertain. In the following recipe the two slices of pineapple are put together with cottage cheese, but you can eliminate the ham and fill the sandwiches with crab, chicken or lobster salad, if you prefer. Likewise the centre may be made of sections of orange or grapefruit, bananas or other fruit instead of the avocado.

Today's Recipes

PINEAPPLE RING SANDWICHES—Put two slices of pineapple together for each person to be served, with a filling and topping of cottage cheese. Top mixture with cherry or olive. Garnish the plate with watercress, and in the centre on a bed of lettuce and watercress, place slices of avocado. Mayonnaise or French dressing may be served in a separate dish.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Maple Refrigerator Cake

One and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, two-thirds cup maple syrup, one-half cup whipping cream, 24 vanilla wafers. Thoroughly blend milk and maple syrup in a heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil over low heat and boil stirring constantly about four minutes or until mixture thickens. Cool. Beat cream until stiff and fold into mixture. Line narrow, oblong pan with wax paper. Cover with maple mixture. Add layer of wafers, alternating in this way, until maple mixture is all used; finishing with layer of wafers. Chill in refrigerator one hours or longer. To serve, turn out on small platters and carefully remove wax paper. Cut in slices and serve plain or with whipped cream. Serves eight.

Date Caramels

Two cups sugar, one cup brown sugar, one cup white corn syrup, one cup cream, two cups milk, one-half cup butter, two teaspoons vanilla, one package pasteurized dates, sliced. Put all ingredients except vanilla, in large saucepan and cook, stirring constantly, over heat until candy reaches firm ball stage (248 degrees F). Remove from fire, add vanilla and dates, and turn at once into slightly greased pans. When cold remove from pan; cut into squares with hot knife and wrap.

Date Torte

Sift one-half cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking powder together into mixing bowl. Mix one package sliced dates and one cup chopped nuts through flour with fingertips. Beat two eggs, add one-half teaspoon vanilla and beat in one-half cup sugar, gradually; stir in flour, dates and nut mixture. Bake in a well-oiled shallow pan in slow oven (325 degrs. F.) for 45 to 60 minutes. Remove from pan, cool, cut in squares and serve with whipped cream.

Simple puddings go glamorous when you add sliced dates to the hard sauce; try them in hot sauce too.

Tired Lines In Faces Erased

Claire Trevor
"Looks as fresh as a daisy"

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

DON'T LET the day's work leave its mark on your face. Even the youngest girl can look 10 years older than she really is after a long hard day. Fatigue lines will show in any face, and it is a very good idea to get in the habit of erasing them before they get to be permanent signs of age.

One of the best methods of eradicating lines caused by temporary tiredness is to give yourself an Epsom Salts facial. This type facial is also helpful in correcting an oily skin, and if this is one of your problems you can take an Epsom salts facial every day in addition to your regular skin care. If, however, you have no oily skin problem, the facial is a real rejuvenator for tired faces and can be taken about twice a week.

This is a very inexpensive beauty treatment because it only requires a package of Epsom salts, two bowls and some clean wash cloths. Cleanse your face thoroughly, either with a mild soap and tepid water, or with your favorite cleansing cream. After you have removed the cleanser apply a lubricating cream and leave it on while you prepare your materials for the face treatment.

Fill one of the bowls with very hot water and the other with ice water. Add a tablespoon of Epsom salts to each and let the salt crystals dissolve thoroughly. If you wish to make the solution a little stronger you can put in two tablespoons of the Epsom salts but never use any more than that. Put a wash cloth in the hot bowl and one in the cold bowl.

Treat Neck Too

Now remove all trace of lubricating cream from your face. Put a towel over your shoulders but leave your neck exposed so it can also get the benefits of the applications. Wring out the cloth that has been soaking in the hot solution and hold it on your face and neck for a minute. Then take the cloth from the bowl of cold solution. Apply it to your face and neck in the same way. Before you start using the cool solution put your warm cloth back in the hot bowl so it will be ready for your next hot application. Do this 12 times, alternating hot and cold.

Pat your face dry with a soft hand towel. If you have been giving yourself this treatment to eliminate signs of fatigue, it is often helpful to smooth some lubricating cream over your face and neck. Leave the cream on for at least 20 minutes, and lie down. When you remove your lubricant you will be delighted with the fresh unlined face in your mirror.

A good excuse for dinner out is a dinner suit of black taffeta, the skirt accordion pleated, the jacket with large puffed sleeves and a wide inset belt of the material. The shirtwaist top is of white lace with green studs and cufflinks on the sides accent.

A winner in the Paleu collection is an evening dress of white moire taffeta shirred between bands of black Valenciennes lace that run from the pointed decolletage to the full hem, the lace forming the points at the neckline.

Birds still fly onto the smartest of hats. My dinner hostess' hat is of tiny iridescent blue birds posed as if for flight. The foundation is wine-colored tulle.

Lonely Fellow, Twenty Years Old Wants to Find Perfect Girl Friend

His Ideas Are So High, Miss Lee Tells Him to Improve Self

By VIRGINIA LEE

LONELY FELLOW is 20, is bashful, not well educated, cannot dance, has little money and no car, as he is out of work at present, poor chap, but seems to have hope of getting something.

He doesn't like the girls he knows—says they get drunk and run about with fellows who have money and cars.

He seems to want me to correct his grammar and get him a girl, and this is his description of the girl he wants for a "steady" friend:

She must be from 18 to 20, tall, weight around 115 or 125 pounds, with light or blonde hair, and pretty. One who is affectionate, smokes if she likes but doesn't drink. Must come from a good home, be able to cook and run a home like a good wife. One that will be easy on the pocketbook and invite her boy friend to her home to get acquainted with her parents and who will teach him to dance, and not grudge him anything.

He would prefer a Catholic girl or one willing to become one. One who will "take the shyness out of a fellow and be satisfied with a little education and not brag about herself."

She must be satisfied to go to a show when her boy friend has money and not get mad when he hasn't. He doesn't want a flirt or "show off—just a "common, sensible and good looking girl".

I think that is a pretty large order, my dear chap. Do you think a girl as nearly perfect as that will be interested in you—even if she knew one—which I don't?

Make Yourself Worthy

Why don't you start to prepare yourself to be worthy of such a girl? Improve your mind, you can. You can overcome your bashfulness by going where people are and making yourself agreeable. You can learn to dance. Surely you know some boy or girl who can teach you, if you haven't money enough to take lessons. You can learn to swim, too. This is just the season to learn. If you start now you'll be quite proficient by autumn.

You see I think you should make yourself a match for this paragon of womanhood you want for a girl friend. I don't know of such a one who is in need of a sweetheart. But don't worry, you'll meet her in time if you keep on striving to improve yourself. You can even improve your education and learn to talk and write correctly if you are interested in doing so. Education is a continual process. Lonely Fellow, and you can get as much of it as you want or are capable of assimilating, by reading, studying and learning from those who know it.

And about she girl: When you fall in love—as you will—you will think she is just as perfect, with all the virtues you say you want your sweetheart to possess. Good luck to you!

o o o

C. J. is in love for the first time. He is only 20. His girl went to work in another town, and according to his sister, she has been dating out on him. She maintains, however, that she loves only him. He feels that she is not faithful and yet he loves her. They argue all the time they are together.

He doesn't want to marry until he is 25, and wonders if he will be standing in her way if he keeps on going with her. She is, 19

I think it would be wise to let her go with other boys and for you to go with other girls as you both are too young to marry for some time. You can keep on loving her, and time will tell whether she is really in love with you or not. Could you do that, being so much in love with her? In that way you wouldn't be standing in her way, for she would be free. You cannot very well check on her all the time and it only makes you unhappy when your sister tells you stories about her cousin, Wondering. Your parents probably felt you were growing too fond of him and might want to marry, and that should be discouraged. As a matter of fact, I believe physicians agree that a marriage between third cousins is not likely to have any ill effects on the offspring.

PUZZLED LITTLE GIRL: You and the boy are both so young that no wonder your people don't take your love affair seriously. Wait and hope to be able to see each other later on, is the best advice I can give you. No, I don't think it would be a good idea to write the boy. He might not get it, and his mother and sister would think you were just a silly little girl, and make him ashamed of your friendship.

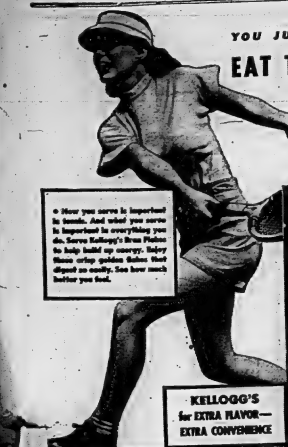
Very kind to every type of face is a beauty of a hat with bent brim and sloping crown. The hat is of white, torn bound with black grosgrain and with a very wide grosgrain crown band. A veil of black Chantilly lace is softly draped to frame the face.

Looking ahead to summer, many women are ordering those boxy jackets of soft white fine flannel with big gold buttons, for wear over cotton or organdie evening dresses.

o o o

D.L.: I think a girl in her teens should be friendly with boys her own age and go with them occasionally if her parents allow her to have dates. I think it is a very dangerous thing for a young girl to be talking to and going out with a man of whom she knows very little and when her parents do not know what she is doing.

So you see my solution to your problem would be for you to refuse to go out with this young man. From what you tell me, you cannot even be sure he is not married. And even if he isn't and you go with him, you think very well you are going to get a bad name by going with him.



o o o

WONDERING has been going out with her third cousin. Her parents did not object. "Now they think I should not go with him," she writes, "and I miss him very much." Do you think I am wrong in wanting his friendship?"

There is no reason why you should not be friendly with your

Mischievous Acts Thrill A Child

Possible to Cure Him by Making Him Feel He is Being Silly

(By LISA CRUMBLEIE)

Patsy and her friend, Alice, waited underneath the stair well in Patsy's home until her mother, all dressed and painted for a party, had taken her departure.

"Ah-h" Patsy whispered. "We'll have to wait now until Maggie goes up to rest."

So Patsy and her pal, Alice, tiptoed after Maggie until she had gone up to rest, giggling with the exciting prospect of real wickedness successfully perpetrated.

"What's the matter with you children? Up to some mischief I'll be bound," Maggie muttered ominously, and the children looked at each other and giggled, forcing pleasantly scared and brave. After all, there was the real danger of being caught by Maggie. Then the stairs to Mother's room, on up-tee.

"Is Maggie asleep yet? Sah! Sah! What's that? What will happen to us if we're caught?"

"Something awful! Mother told me never, never to touch her make-up."

The drawers of Mrs. Holt's dressing table were not locked, but it took a good deal of fumbling and hunting before they found the rouge and lipstick. And all the time, Alice, on guard at the door, was deliciously scared. This was exciting.

Caught in Act

"I think someone's coming. What's that?"

"Just the cat, silly, got everything now. You can make-up first, if you want to; you're the visitor."

"No", Alice said generously, "I'll keep watch this time."

"When we go to your house, you can do it first. How do I look?"

"W-wonderful! Will it come off?"

"Sure, with cold cream," said Patsy, applying more rouge.

"Someone is coming." Alice exclaimed. "Quick!; Here, you on this side and I'll do the other."

Just in time, they had the worst off when Maggie appeared.

"What are you doing in your mother's room?"

"Oh, just talking."

Alice was trembling when she got home. She told her mother.

"But I didn't put any on. I thought you mightn't like it," she added virtuously.

"Oh, I wouldn't have minded in the least," her mother said, with exaggerated calm. "It would be such a nice surprise for Father, too. You'll have to invite Patsy over soon, and I'll help you both make up."

Somehow, Alice was disappointed. But she did ask Patsy over.

It wasn't any fun, though, with Mother helping, and no one having to keep watch, and feeling that it wasn't wicked or shocking—just another game.

Patsy and Alice were cured, as any two little girls would be by such treatment. Making up was no fun. It was silly, not wicked, and it made folks laugh at you.

In Print and Plain

By Central Press

THIS COSTUME is a fitting interpretation of the season's vogue for print and plain fabric combinations.

This summer costume has a wide draped scarf-front of printed rayon crepe in black and white, adding interest to the short-sleeved black sheer crepe which is worn over a one-piece frock of the print.

Banana oil contains neither bananas nor oil. It is composed of equal parts of amyl acetate, acetone and benzine, with a little pyroxyline dissolved in it.

PHYSICIAN TELLS OF BOOK ABOUT "HONEY AND HEALTH"

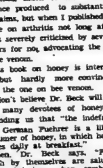
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"HONEY AND HEALTH" is the name of a book by Dr. Bodog Beck, who published a book on "Bee Venom Therapy", which advocated the use of bee venom in arthritis and rheumatism. At the time the book was published I did not think much of the scientific evidence produced to substantiate his claims, but when I published an article on arthritis not long after, I was severely criticized by several doctors for not advocating the use of bee venom.

This book on honey is interesting, but hardly more convincing than the one on bee venom.

I don't believe Dr. Beck will obtain many devotees of honey by reminding us that "the indefatigable German Pushrer is a liberal consumer of honey, in which he indulges daily at breakfast."

Then, Dr. Beck says, "Foods which by themselves are salutary become injurious when combined. Meat, eggs, milk, starches, sweets and acids alone are digestible, but become heavy and indigestible when mixed." Most people would disagree with such things, because they simply are not true and do a great deal of harm with nervous people who starve themselves into a state of malnutrition from fear after hearing nonsense of that kind. Also when he says, "ice cream is not objectionable, but when eaten after a meal it will convert the other-wise digestible food to a state of decomposition," he is absolutely and entirely false. Ice cream is a splendid food, particularly after a meal.



He says honey in hot water is better than alcohol as a pick-me-up.

Prolongs Life

Honey, according to Dr. Beck, prolongs life, being responsible for Anacreon's living to the age of 115, Pythagoras to 80, Thomas Parr to 152. Unfortunately for this argument, in the time when these centenarians lived, honey was the only food used for sweetening. Sugar hadn't been invented. What became of all the other people in those days when everyone ate honey?

Honey is advocated for rheumatism and as an expectorant, a diuretic and for diabetes. It may be all right to give it for rheumatism, but for diabetes I flatly disagree. "The author's personal comprehension is that the abuse of artificial sugar and salt are mainly to be blamed for it (i. e. diabetes)," writes Dr. Beck, which shows that his personal comprehension is incapable of wrestling with scientific data. Diabetics are warned to avoid the doctrine that honey is good for them at their own risk.

The folklore of honey is interesting. If a boy lights on the lips of a new-born baby he is endowed with eloquence. Honey was much used in marriage ceremonies—In Egypt the groom always presented his wife with a pot of honey. Perhaps she word "honeymoon" came from this. It was a belief of the ancients that anyone drowned in honey would revive.

Society Affairs of June Call for New Frocks

Weddings, Porch Parties and Sports Create a Demand for Appropriate Suits and Dresses for Milady to Wear

By LISSETE

FROCKS for summer sports, summer weddings, afternoons on pleasant shady porches and in lovely gardens; for shopping, for resort wear, etc., are occupying milady's interest right now.

A frock for the June wedding is of first importance, and if the wedding is a daytime affair in church or chapel, one of the popular prints is appropriate and, indeed, first choice.

The type worn by Joan Bennett, left, is particularly good. It was chosen by Miss Bennett for her personal wardrobe. The charming dress is in beige crepe with a wide-ly scattered flower print in blue, green, lavender and white.

A square neckline, short puff sleeves and fullness through the bust and above the waistline are interesting style points.

Miss Bennett's hat is a high, draped turban of bright blue silk with a spray of yellow mimosa. Her shoes, bag and gloves are suede in tones that harmonize with the dress.

Sweaters Are Favored

This is the season when sweaters are tops with sportsminded women. In the other picture Miss Bennett is wearing a white pleated skirt and navy blue sweater. The sweater is strikingly belted in red and blue leather.

Perforated white cloeskin shoes in new design, hat in white kid tucked behind the drape in front, cross-stitched in red and blue thread, a pouch bag which matches the hat, and white cotton gloves with cut knots for trimming, complete this practical as well as smart costume.

INSTALMENT 15.

"Peter didn't wish that?" Kari asked. "Didn't want you and Jimmy to go along?"

"Indeed he did!" Gloria said. "But it seemed crazy to me to give up my job and take a chance like that. Peter's job may not last as you know."

"I very probably will not last if he is worrying about you and the child."

Gloria's eyes moved to his in surprise. "Why do you say that?"

"Well, what do you think?"

"I thought you thought a man was infinitely better able to work without having a woman about!"

"Ah, for me, yes! But I don't happen to be in love with a beautiful woman who has borne me a fine son."

"You've been in love?"

"And out again. But didn't you and I decide that that was not love; that it was hunger, like the hunger of the druggedly dazed? It is not love."

They were walking along. She scented him under a sober autumn sky; there was nothing extraordinary in the situation. But Gloria found herself trembling, confused; she held herself steady with an effort and did not dare speak.

"If you decide that you made a mistake," Kari said, returning to the opening of the conversation, "you will go on?"

"I can't see that it was a mistake," Gloria said, troubled.

"No, you could not see that. But a French woman, you know, or a German woman," Kari said, "or any of the Nordic women—Dutch, Norwegian, Danish—would have gone along."

"On the chance it would all come out right?"

"It would be no chance to them. No chance. It would be a matter of what they would do. That would be marriage."

"And this isn't marriage?"

"It would be to them. It is to you. It is to any American woman. Her marriage is one event in many to her. Another may be more important. But to other women—women of the old world—marriage is a chance. Marriage is like being born."

"So that such a woman," Gloria said, in the light tone of casual conversation, "would prefer sorting and cooking and washing dishes to helping out?"

"Oh, very much. Because that way she would have her man. And the man is the thing for her. The companionship, the love, the intimacy of their relationship, that's what she wants. Not the paid bills and the bigger house and the—well, what's the word I like to call it," Kari ended; "frocks, motorcars, servants, jewels? American women buy with their money."

"But it's ridiculous to assume," Gloria said, conscious of disliking him and speaking a little quickly to avoid showing that she was hurt "that European women love their husbands more than we do. Yet, unless she loved him—oh, treasure!—a woman wouldn't get any happiness out of sacrificing her life to him!"

"Oh, but that's the very point. She wouldn't call it sacrificing. She'd say that to go on, and work, to give her right to her man and her children, was no sacrifice. She'd rather live in one room with him, and cook for him and make that room a home, than leave him and earn money somewhere that couldn't buy him—that he wanted half so much!"

"Well, if circumstances arise in which the wife has to help out," Gloria offered somewhat stiffly, "it seems to me only sensible for her to do it. If she's smart she makes money and keeps her home going too."

"But that she can't always manage," Kari said, with the faintest hint of significance in his tone.

Gloria flushed a little, but she was not going to argue with him. She tried to think of just the right thing to say to end the conversation, could not seem to find it, and was left with the uncomfortable feeling that he had the last word.

She was especially gay with Kitty and Tony Baggely when she and Kari joined them later in the garden. They sat lazily in the lawn chair. Tony had found a comment to say upon Shakespeare, that he must read to them; Kari was unwontedly silent; Kitty, as always, sweet and preoccupied and quiet; but Gloria was in great form.

She looked her loveliest, in a remodeled trousseau dress whose taffeta ruffles stood about her in a quaint wide skirt that gave almost an effect of hoops, and whose deep lace collar fell cape-fashion on her shoulders. Her round, firm throat was bare, the ruffled soft, dark gold of her thick hair was unconfined, her small gold sandals had flat heels, like a baby's slippers, and she could step as lightly and surely as a child across the grass. It pleased her to pay special attention to Tony tonight; she was like an admiring little sister, in the low basket chair beside him, watching him, listening, laughing at whatever he said.

Walking back to the sanatorium at ten o'clock with Kari, she suddenly realized that she had been feeling slightly antagonistic to him all the evening; she had still felt deep in her spirit, the smart of his implied criticism of her way of solving her life's problems. Now, in her own soul, had reviewed the steps that had led her to this point; had reminded herself that she had been forced by common sense and by circumstances to take, not the easiest, but the only way. She had never deliberately selected a certain course, abandoned an alternative one. She had never said to herself, "I'd rather support myself and Jimmy than struggle along on what Peter makes." She had never been set or unpleasant about it; it had just happened so, and so and so; and Peter and Mummy had agreed that one step had led to another, and another a third, and that Gloria always had been doing what was right and sensible. But Kari, tonight had talked as if any woman, doing that, deliberately chose between a domestic and a business career; put the office before the home, the home before the heartside love of husband and babies.

But his tone now somewhat softened her. He had apparently forgotten their argument on the way—he was speaking with a sort of affectionate amusement.

"Jimmy is such a dynamo for mischief," he said. "I, myself, was a severe— most serious child. No one played with me. No one ever laughed in my grandfather's house. We children were like little grown-ups. It seems to me now. We swam in the lake, we rode our ponies, we walked out with our tutor, my cousins and I. But there was none of that ingenious mischief! I should like to have known, what you were like when you were a little girl."

"I was a happy little girl," she said thoughtfully. "My father was the sort of man who keeps the feeling of a child. He always understood children. He has one of his life he liked to pick up a baby and make love to it."

Her voice had softened, as it always did when she spoke of her father.

"To such a man, having a child of his own must seem a miracle," Kari said, and she knew he was not thinking of himself. He loved children, too. They fascinated him. He would watch Jimmy and the little Baggley girls with pseudonative, serious attention, ask questions about them. The casual ease with which Kitty and Gloria interpreted their ridiculous questions and solved their unspoken problems was a mystery to him.

Was he thinking, she wondered, with a little tug at her heart, that Peter loved his boy, and was separated from him? If he was he gave no sign of it, but presently put a bracing hand on her chair, upon her shoulder to guide her over the rough bit of road.

"I suppose you get used to compliments," he said unexpectedly when they were nearing the lake of the walk and the lights of the house were shining across the wide drive. He usually left her here.

"Nobody gets used to compliments," Gloria laughed. She could see his face now, as they stood at the foot of the steps.

"Then may I say" he asked, with a little stiff bow, "that that is a particularly beautiful gown you are wearing and that it becomes you?" When they were talking to Tony tonight it seemed to me—well, shall I say it?—it seemed to me that never had seen so lovely a picture."

"You may always say things like that!" Gloria assured him, with another pleased little laugh. But she was more deeply touched than she would show; she lingered on for a moment, a little confused, conscious of odd happiness deep somewhere within her, and a little fright, too, and a heart-shaking thrill.

"Wouldn't it be too bad—?" the man began, his smile climbing up and down the semilight. He stopped.

"What?" —what?" she asked, standing a step above him, her hand in his.

"Nothing!" he said abruptly. "Good night!"

He walked away into the darkness toward his own doorway, without a backward look. Gloria stood still for a full minute. Then she turned and went slowly up the steps and into the house.

The months went by, and Gloria was busy and happy. It was winter; the sunny days were brief, the long evenings had not got out into the air until eleven o'clock, straggled back like returning cattle at four.

The wet cold and foggy days seemed endless; Tony grew tired of Bridge and the eternal crackle of logs and drip of leaves; Jimmy and the little girls tired of crayons and blocks. Kitty would sometimes walk with Jimmy and the girls to the Bayview; Gloria would welcome them, and gave them rough brown biscuits and milky tea.

Just before Christmas she made a change. She rented her little house, sent Molly away, and took Jimmy and Jimmy over to the sanatorium to live with her. Her patient had been longing to get away to the warmth of San Diego; she had friends there; she promised to be back in April. But Gloria offered a good rent for a year, closed a lease, and trusted to fate to solve her mother's problem when the time for her return came. It lessened her own responsibilities not to have the house to manage as well as the sanatorium; she and Jimmy and his nurse moved into the empty suite in the research wing, and Gloria's old room was instantly filled by one more patient.

"Swing Your Lady"
"Family Affair"

Lionel Barrymore, always master of the character analysis in a screen portrayal, again touches the heart in his latest role as a fearless old county judge in "A Family Affair". This is the picture now on the Belle screen with a supporting cast that is strongly reminiscent of the "Hardy Family" and "Andy Hardy" series of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Cecilia Parker and Eric Linden provide the young romance, as they did in the earlier story. Others in the cast are Mickey Rooney, Julie Haydon, Spring Byington, Charley Grapewin and Sara Haden.

"A Family Affair" is the graphic story of any small town with its love and its hatreds, its bitter animosities and strong friendships. All the characters and circumstances are there.

This is a strong story of an old family long respected in the community, comes to grief when an older daughter indiscreetly gets involved with a young man of the same time the father, a courageous old county judge, returns a decision on a public project which is bitterly opposed by his townspeople. How the family is caught in the shadow of grief and shame, it is the old judge who saves his family from scandal, and wonder and redeems himself in the eyes of his fellows by proving his decision right.

"Swing Your Lady" Funny

Hillbilly hilarity is the dominant note in "Swing Your Lady", a gay speedy comedy from the Warner Bros. studios which is the latest feature.

It's novel, tuneful, picturesque and altogether a great lot of fun! You'd better see it.

There's a smart New York wrestling manager (Humphrey Bogart who's conducting one of his boys (Nat Pendleton) on a tour of the country to pick up loose change. "I You Hear Me . . . . dumb but powerful.

They hit a hamlet in the Ozarks and encounter an Amazonian wrestling blacksmith (Louise Fazenda) who's willing to wrestle any of the dances staged by Bobby Connolly,

BLASTER CLOSES EYE IN PREMATURE BLAST

Peterborough, June 2. —Reginald Hague, an assistant dynamite blaster, is faced with possibly blindness, following an explosion yesterday. The accident occurred at the Johnston Construction Camp on the Ontario Hydro 45 miles north of this city. According to Dr. A. Moir, Hague had about 200 cuts of varying sizes where metal from a premature blast had penetrated his body.

His left eye was completely destroyed and there is grave danger that sight in the other one may be lost. Following the accident the man was brought to hospital here for treatment.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSE—In sad and loving memory of our dear son and brother, Roy Rose, who lost his life June 2nd., 1929.
A June day of remembrance and to recall
The day of our dear Roy — best friend of all,
One of the best God could send,
A loving son and a faithful brother,
His little world isn't hard to write,
But we'll remember them all our life—Our Roy.

Painful Piles
Can be Quickly Relieved
If you think there is no way to relieve your misery of piles, it's because you don't know of HEMROID, an internal medicine, from a prescription used privately by Dr. Leonhardt, a western physician. The real cause of piles is on the inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel, with the superficial veins full of stagnant, impure blood.
Dr. Leonhardt decided the way to relieve piles was internally, with a medicine which would ease the congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and help to heal and restore the sore, tender spots. After many tests he found the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from piles. Hence, it is now offered to you with our promise that you may have your money back if you are not completely satisfied after using one bottle.
No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them HEMROID must show you the quick, clean way to get rid of your pile misery of your money will be given back to you. J. S. McKeown or any other druggist can supply you with HEMROID and will back up this promise.

HAS your free sample of Kellogg's Rice Krispies been delivered to you yet?

If it has been, you know how delicious tasty bubbles of toasted rice can be . . . how crisp and crunchy! Why, they actually crackled when you poured on milk or cream!

Your grocer sells the regular-size package of Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Many people buy several packages at a time—then they never "run short" of this wholesome, delicious cereal. And the WAXTITE inner bag keeps Rice Krispies oven-fresh . . . they're always crisp and crunchy, ready to serve without fuss or bother.

Children especially love the crispness and flavor of Rice Krispies. For after-school and before-bedtime snacks, Rice Krispies are ideal —never interfere with sound sleep.

There's a Singing Lady Mother Goose story printed on the back of every package. Rice Krispies are sold by all grocers, served by hotels and restaurants. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Bethel, May 30th. 1938

Dear Blanche and Clifford:

We your Bethel friends and neighbours have assembled in your home this evening to show our esteem, to express our best wishes, and to spend a social evening, with you before you begin your new life in a new community.

As a valued member of our church Blanche, we would like you to know that your willing help in league, choir and Sunday school activities has been greatly appreciated. Our crown rest in expressing gratitude to a person who so generously gives of their service but we feel that our church interests have been enlivened by your co-operation.

Those of us who know you, will realize that your glowing personality and your loyalty to other interests will win you a warm place in the heart of the community where you are to make your new home. Our regret that you are leaving us finds compensation in the knowledge that you will have no difficulty in making friends where ever you go.

We congratulate you on your choice of life partner and trust that you may find the joy you deserve as you start out on this new venture.

We are not well acquainted with you yet Clifford, but we hope to have that pleasure when you bring your bride to Bethel to renew her old friendships we welcome you to our midst and applaud you for winning so fine and so capable a wife.

As music memories are memories of happy days at Bethel we ask you to accept these trivial gifts and with them our felicitations and best wishes for a most happy wedded life.

Signed on behalf of your Bethel friends — Nellie Morrison, Annie Warren, Ray Sine, Gordon Green.

Blanche and Clifford both suitably replied thanking their friends for the beautiful array of gifts which included, china, silver, glassware, kitchen accessories and lovely pieces of linen. They also invited their many friends to visit them in their new home east of Belleville.

The young people of Bethel served an appetizing lunch and all enjoyed a social hour with Blanche and the groom-to-be, Mr. Clifford Reid of Belleville.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Ada was in her room reading and eating candy out of a bag, and I went in, saying, What kind is it, now, can I have a piece?

Yes, on condition that you'll be satisfied with one piece, ma said, and I did. Sure, ma, sure, can I pick it out myself?

I suppose so, ma said.

Meaning yes, and I picked one out, taking me about 2 minutes on account of being harder to pick a piece of candy out of a bag than what it is out of a box, and I'm sure you're getting the rite one, and I ate it slow to make it last, having mint inside and being one of my favorite kinds, and I said, Hay, ma, there's a kind in there with a half of a walnut on top.

O my lands you ought to be a lawyer, ma said.

And she gave me another piece without leaving me pick it out myself, being the kind with a half of a walnut on top anyways and making me feel lucky, and I took about 3 bites to it, saying, Say, ma, dont be afraid I'm going to mention any more kinds of candy, but in case I did, do you know the kind I'd mention?

If I was you a good slap I wont stop to mention it first, and if you're not out of this room before I count 5 you're going to get it unmentioned, ma said, Meaning the slap, and she looked at me with a expression as if she was counting to herself, and I went out to see if any of the fellows was out, wich they was.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 3.—(CP)—All indices were a little slumpy at noon on decidedly light trading on Toronto exchange today. Interest was concentrated in a few of the golds, in Waite-Amulet of the base metals section and a few of the western oils. Only 178,000 shares changed hands in the first three hours.

Ken-Addison rose 50 to 1.50 and was holding around that price this afternoon for a gain of 30 cents. Buffalo-Ankerite and Pickle Crow and other cheaper golds were steady. A loss of a fraction put Hmellers below the 50 mark.

Action in the western oils bulked in Okalta, Calgary-Edmonton, Davies and Brown and these were all narrowly higher.

WALL STREET

New York, May 3 (AP).—A further recovery push got under way in today's early stock market dealings, but it lacked sufficient impetus or interest to attract buyers in force and initial gains running to two points or so were subsequently chipped down.

Among favored stocks the greater part of the day were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, and International Harvester. Some of these slipped their morning's gains.

Investment sentiment seemed to have taken a turn for the better on the announcement today of U. S. Steel offering of $100,000,000 of 3¼ per cent debentures had gone over satisfactorily, with the issue commanding a premium over the underwriters' selling price of 100.

Canadian issues showed small changes either way. A little higher were Canadian Pacific, Hiram Walker, Distillers and Lake Shore while fractional declines were turned in for Dome and Dominion Stores. Canada 4½ per registered Montreal funds were unchanged at 98.53½.

MARKET COMMENT

With reference to the market, it is not so much a matter of urgent selling as a dearth of buyers. Although the investor who analyzes the situation realizes that many stocks appear cheap at prevailing prices, he is satisfied to wait until a general pick-up takes place and hoping that he might be able to acquire his favorites at even more advantageous levels.

With so much talk of poor business, it is little wonder that everyone is retrenching. Business people are not stocking up on inventories, new undertakings are being postponed and spending generally is reduced. No change from the present state is expected until confidence is restored and it will require a real effort on the part of the government as well as business leaders to bring this about.

Higher prices are being predicted for Canada Steamships preferred in view of the very favorable prospects lasting for the company in the current year. The buying in this security for some little time has been of the best character.

A Certain Amount of Investment Demand for Stocks is Noted

Commission houses report that a certain amount of business for stocks has appeared this week from investors who are anxious to keep their funds working.

Their reports say:

In 1935, there were only 801,000 agricultural workers in England, as compared to 906,000 in 1923.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 2.—Butter prices had a stronger undertone and sales were generally at a small fraction above the previous day's levels. Cheese showed little change and was again traded at the Commodity Exchange. The egg market remained at the same levels, with receipts fair and moving out readily. Receipts were 1,777 cases of eggs, 144 boxes of butter and 617 boxes of cheese, excluding local sales.

Eight hundred boxes of Quebec fresh 92 score butter sold at the Canadian Commodity Exchange at 25¼c, while in futures one June sold at 25½c, one September at 25¾c and one November brought 26¼c. At the close spot Quebec fresh 92 score butter was quoted 25½c bid, 25¾c asked, June 25½c bid, 25¾c asked, July 25¾c bid, 26c asked, September 26¼c bid, 26½c asked, October 26¼c bid, 26½c asked, November 26¼c bid, 26½c asked.

On the egg market graded shipments in used fine cases were offered on spot at 26c for A-large, 24½c for A-medium, 23c for B and 22c for C. Offerings at the Commodity Exchange were at 26c, 24½c, 23½c and 21½c respectively.

The poultry market was quoted to the retail trade by wholesale jobbing houses as follows on A-grade dressed stock, B-grade being 1c to 3c per pound less: turkeys, 27-28c; milkfed chickens, 29-33c; selected chickens, 26-26-30c; selected fowl, 20-25c-25c; selected ducks 18-21c.

Livestock

Toronto, June 2—(CP)—Cattle trade was slow at about steady prices on Toronto livestock market today. Hogs dropped 25 to 40 cents. Calves and lambs held near former levels with no sheep offered. Cattle holdover from Wednesday was 100 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 70, calves 15, hogs 360, lambs 50.

A few common to plain butcher steers and heifers traded at $5.25 to $6.25. Some common to medium butcher cows sold at $3.50 to $4.25 with canners and cutters from $2.50 to $3.25.

The few veal calves offered went at $5 to $7 for common to medium grades and choice vealers at $8.

Off-truck bacon hogs closed at $10.25.

Good spring lambs brought $13. culls $9 to $10.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, June 3.—(CP)—Chatham, the only bacon-hog market open for business since earlier this week, today reported declines of 50 and 65 cents. Only other prices that show a drop of ten cents in Branford liveweight.

Liveweight fruitions: Toronto $10.40; Chatham $9.50; Hull $10.35; Peterborough $10.40; Stratford $10.25.

Dressed quotations: Chatham $13; Hull $14; Peterborough $13.75; Stratford $13.70.

TWO MEN SOUGHT

Windsor, Ont., June 2 —(CP)—Police today sought two men who fled from Leamington, Ont., in a motor taxi driver, behind the Windsor police station, after they robbed him of $3.50. King said one man threatened him as though he had a gun while the other ransacked his pockets.

Cotton picking is the most costly operation in cotton production.

Rarotongan natives of the South Sea Islands put their graves everywhere, including the kitchen of their homes, where the tombstone may serve as tables.

DR. D. MACODRUM NOW MODERATOR

Brockville Minister Elected on Second Ballot Over Dr. Parker

Toronto, June 2 (CP)—Commissioners, to the 64th annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada opened business sessions in Calvin Church here today under the chairmanship of their newly elected moderator, Dr. Donald MacOdrum, the Brockville minister who was elected on the second ballot in a contest with Dr. Stuart C. Parker of Toronto last night.

Traditional wit and oratory marked proceedings in the crowded church as five names were put before the assembly for the church's highest office. Dr. MacOdrum's election followed a stirring tribute to the Cape Breton born ex-farmer churchman by Rev. Samuel Farley of Regina. Mr. Farley had been one of those nominated but he withdrew in favor of the man under whom he first served in Canada.

Only 5 Miles Away Yet 6 Times Round Earth

Mitchell, Ont., June 3—(CP)—William Cook, 75, has carried the rural mail out of Mitchell for close on 36 years and has travelled exactly six times the distance around the earth, yet he's never been more than five miles away. Cook figures he's covered 135,000 miles. His contract has just been extended for another four years.

ITALY'S INTEREST

'Profound Echo'

"The words of the eminent statesman," he said, "found a profound echo in the Italian people's hearts, interpreted them as the testimony of the spirit in which Mr. Chamberlain and his collaborator, Lord Halifax, directed themselves to their task of clarification and reconciliation.

"The Anglo-Italian accords have the merit of having saved the ground of the residue of the past and placed the relations between the two empires on a basis of clarity and loyalty which alone can be the foundation for stable and solid understanding among nations."

WOULD CONDEMN UNFAIRNESS TO JEWS

Geneva, June 2.—(AP)—A resolution demanding condemnation of discrimination against Jewish workers in Germany and other countries was introduced today at the opening of the 24th session of the International Labor Conference.

Leon Jouhaux, French Labor leader, presented the resolution asking action by Canada, the United Kingdom, the United States and 46 other countries represented at the conference.

TAC DAY FOR V.O.N. TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Arrangements have been completed for the annual V.O.N. tag day which takes place on Saturday. Citizens are to be put on the subscribed list generously to the tag day appeal, showing by this way their interest in the worthy work of the order. The committee hopes that the people of Belleville will contribute well on Saturday as on previous tag days.

AN 'OLD MEDIAEVAL CUSTOM'

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Because of "an old mediaeval custom", High School boys here wearing French won't be permitted to write letters to girls in France studying English. However, United States girls can write to French boys under an arrangement for exchange of correspondence between 5,000 high school pupils here and French pupils of the same age.

Rev. S. S. Davis of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who is delivering the morning devotional messages during the conference sessions, said the Wesley bicentenary celebration had caught the imagination of all Christendom. "New psychology sees the old principles in new dress, but Jesus Christ is still the Saviour of the world, and our personal salvation comes with dedication of our souls to him."

Rev. James E. Beckel of Stirling was re-elected secretary of the Conference and Rev. John Glover of Claremont re-elected treasurer.

Principal Kent of Queen's Theological College was named chairman of the committee on reception of Ministers; Rev. L. S. Wight of the Committee on Records, Rev. A. T. Blanchard of the Committee on Resolutions.

Of the 326,000 contributors to the Dupuex envelopes, 116,000 do not make any donation to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, Rev. George Williams of Toronto Field Secretary, told conference today.

Conference decided the grant for religious educational purposes be increased from $35.00 to $40.00.

Following commissioners to the General Council were named:

From Presbyteries:

Belleville, Rev. W. R. Merrick, H. W. Ackerman.

Cobourg—Rev. J. R. Cooper, Percy Carroll.

Kingston—Rev. Robert Laird, W. T. Rogers.

Lindsay—Rev. Harry Wilkinson, J. Henderson.

Oshawa—Rev. W. C. Smith, Dr. C. W. Gilmour.

Warning to Cycles

"Regarding the riding of bicycles on the sidewalks, I would say that, especially for night riding, police officials believe they have power to confine cyclists to bicycle paths, because of reckless driving can be preferred charges against the bicycles, who swerve their machines to all sides of the road," stated His Worship. He also warned motorists that the Highway Traffic Act clearly defined speed limit at all intersections is not to exceed ten miles per hour, where the vision is obscured. His Worship expressed his opinion as to more rigidly enforcing the various traffic laws if a serious accident really occurs on the streets of Belleville.

Soundings on Conference

Soundings on the peace conference were understood already to have been made both in London and in general, Franco's insurgent government, and at Barcelona, Spanish government capital.

Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, was reported to have reviewed the question with the Spanish Ambassador, Pablo de Azcarate Y Flores, last night.

The French Foreign Minister, Georges Bonnet, was said to have discussed the same question with the Spanish Ambassador in Paris.

Both Britain and Great Britain favored as a possible bases for a peace parley the 27 non-intervention powers of the days of the fighting, of May 7 and the Count Grandi Negrin of the Spanish government.

This program included a guarantee of safety of foreign lives and liberty, assurance of the absolute independence of Spain from foreign powers, riddance of military forces, agrarian reforms to eliminate feudal relationships between peasants and landowners, a guarantee of workers' rights through social legislation, full amnesty and reports Sir Herbert Holl, Montreal financier, sought Beauharnois bonds in 1930, while the Ontario government was negotiating with Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company for a contract to replace one cancelled two years earlier.

The former chairman said: "The statement came to me that Sir Herbert said he had wrecked two governments on account of power situation and that if necessary he would wreck another."

— Lyon's Recommendation ....

Describing the former commission's visit to New York, Mr. Roebuck said New York officials "were prepared to recommend to us for further 5,000 cubic feet a second also. It was that easy.

"It was I who made the suggestion to them that they go ahead with the further development of the international section of the St. Lawrence themselves or supply us with the money to build the dam on our side of the river ....

followed charges by Leopold Macaulay, Conservative leader in the legislature, that while Premier Hepburn publicly advocated a "back to Niagara" movement, he privately was negotiating with Quebec power companies for renewal of contracts cancelled in 1925.

Mr. Roebuck and Mr. Lyon, immediate chairman from 1934 to 1937 when he was succeeded by Dr. T. H. Hogg, chief engineer, declared yesterday that further development of Niagara Falls was preferable in conjunction with power from outside sources, though international agreement on water diversion was involved.

Stewart Lyons' Testimony

Concluding more than two days of testimony, Mr. Lyon told the commission that he had received reports that Sir Herbert Holt, Montreal financier, sought Beauharnois bonds in 1930, while the Ontario government was negotiating with Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company for a contract to replace one cancelled two years earlier.

The former chairman said: "The statement came to me that Sir Herbert said he had wrecked two governments on account of power situation and that if necessary he would wreck another."

Final Instructions

An indication of what the Federal Bureau of Investigation may think the searchers might find was contained in final instructions of E. J. Connelly, head of the police department forces, to the posse.

"We must face the strong possibility that this little boy will be found dead," Connelly told the posse leaders. "If you see signs of freshly disturbed dirt—dig. Take your time and dig deeply. Look well in every place you search and in every thump of bushes. Overlook nothing."

One of those questioned in P.B.I. headquarters at Miami yesterday was M. F. Braxton, unemployed carpenter and next door neighbor of the Cash family. He was taken into custody for questioning after the agents conferred with the sorrowing father and mother.

There was no confirmation or denial of reports that others taken to Miami were a relative of Braxton, a truck driver, a soft drink stand operator, a fisherman and a man wanted at Homestead for automobile robbery. The Miami Herald said the operator of a Miami soft drink stand was questioned also.

Minister Says Czechs Kicked Aged Sudeten For Wearing Emblem

Prahs, Czechoslovakia, June 3—(AP)—Ernst Eisenlohr, German Minister to Czechoslovakia, protested sharply today to the Czech Foreign Office against fresh incidents in which members of Czechoslovakia's German minority were alleged victims.

The German Ministers' representation were directed at the seizure of a swastika, Nazi emblem, from a Sudeten German couple named Ekner by Heydenkrabber Sunday by Czechoslovak soldiers, and at the alleged ill-treatment of another German named Joseph Schmegt.

Germans said Schmegt was kicked by Czechoslovak soldiers at Mashriech-Schoenberg because he was wearing Sudeten German party insignia.

Charge May Be Ignored

The German protest came as authoritative sources declared the Czechoslovak government had no intention of making a martyr of Konrad Henlein and that charges of high treason against the Sudeten German party leader probably would be ignored.

The government desired to avoid increased friction with the Ger-

Music Will Solve Problem of Race As One of the Forms of Culture

Montreal, June 3—(CP)—Music, Sir Hugh Robertson told the Association of Canadian Clubs yesterday, is the best "unifier" Canada could have.

The distinguished music adjudicator and director of the famous Orpheus choir suggested members of Canadian Clubs throughout the Dominion might aid in the propagation of culture, a difficult problem in a new country.

It was not sufficient, suggested Sir Hugh, to teach children to read and write. They must be taught culture also. The greatest problem of race assimilation could be met by music more successfully than in any other way. For, he said, healthy could not exist where there was music.

Sir Hugh, who came from Glasgow to adjudicate at Canadian music festivals, said he had heard 40,000 children singing throughout the Dominion. These children had been taught they "could not shout or force their way to victory."

FIRES RAVAGE FOREST LANDS IN 2 PROVINCES

Incendiarism is Suspected in Case of Several Fires

LARGE AREAS BURNED

By The Canadian Press

Fires arrayed Cumberland today in forest areas of Quebec and Northern New Brunswick, and incendiarism was suspected in three of the outbreaks.

In Quebec

As Royal Canadian Mounted Police joined the Canadian New Brunswick blazes, many French-Canadian residents in Quebec's Gaspe central District were preparing to evacuate homes in the face of steadily-approaching flames that raged out of control.

Already, several dwellings had been wiped out in a two-day conflagration in Chicoutimi County. Livestock had been trapped and destroyed, too, though no human were known to be in danger.

SEE MEN FIGHTING

Six hundred men were fighting the fires in the district, and reinforcements were being rushed in. Efforts were concentrated around the village of St. Gabriel de Portland, where the flames veered away yesterday after approaching to within 300 feet of the church as parishioners and their cure prayed in the village street.

New Brunswick

New Brunswick's major outbreaks were owned in Restigouche, Madawaska and Gloucester County, stretching across the top of the province. Several hundred men were at work, and more were on the way with additional equipment.

Incendiarism Suspected

Officials of the New Brunswick forest service said they believed two fires in Restigouche, one a major outbreak near Redgwick Village, had been touched off deliberately.

A hundred men were struggling with the big Restigouche blaze, the crown land, and forestry officers expected it would be under control today.

Early today, firefighters reported they believed they had gained control of a fire five miles from Moncton (his) had destroyed more than 1,000 young maple trees valued at about $1,000.

Montreal Gazette 160 Years Old

Montreal, June 3—(CP)—The Gazette, Montreal's first newspaper and one of the oldest on the continent, celebrated its 160th birthday with a special edition reviewed its long history from the time of its founding June 3, 1778, by Fleury Mesplitet. With a tiny wooden press, Mesplitet started the paper 12 days ahead of "Gazette Du Commerce Et Litterate Pour La Ville Et District De Montreal." It became a semi-weekly in 1829 and a full-fledged daily in 1853.

BIG HARVEST FORESEEN

Winnipeg, June 3—(CP)—Manitoba farmers, who harvested last year their biggest money crop since 1926, were well advanced today on the trail to another bumper crop. Estimated wheat acreage was the highest in 15 years.

"Present crop conditions are very satisfactory" said J. R. Evans, Manitoba's Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

Youth Receives H. S. Diploma At First Commencement in Prison

The prison orchestra supplied music. Niccolls was 12 when he killed Sister Illy, 2 (AP)—Big first statement on public affairs since he returned home from a recent eastern trip that has him in Washington as a While House visitor, Henry Ford said in an interview today that nothing had happened in recent weeks to change his conviction that the time has come to have the greatest era of prosperity and happiness we have ever known".

Ford sat astride a bench in the shade, half of a boys' farm camp, not far from his home in Dearborn, and pointing toward the nearly three hundred acres under cultivation by the young farmers, said: "And it will all come through a back-to-the-land movement."

Criticizes Financial Interests

Ford reiterated his criticism of "certain financial interests" in the United States which, he said, would not be long absorbed in war.

"Somebody once said that sixty families have directed the destinies of the nation," Ford said. "It might well be said that if somebody would focus the spotlight on twenty-five persons who handle the nation's finances, the world's real war makers would be brought into bold relief."

NO SCARE OF WAR IN GREAT BRITAIN STATES ED. WORTH

Former Resident of Belleville, Now of London, Eng. Says Business Good

"EMPIRE CHEESE"

Business in England at the present time is going well, much better than experienced by manufacturers in either Canada or the United States, Everywhere is evidence of optimism, he felt, there is no "war scare" and any war menace, which may exist, is on the Asiatic continent, portions on this side of the water is viewed with distinct unconcern on the part of residents of the British Isles.

These are just a few observations voiced by Mr. Ed. Worth, general manager of the Canadian Optical Company of England, former president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and who established the Canadian Branch of the American Optical Company in Belleville several years ago, in his remarks as honored guest at the luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Welcomed by Chamber

Mr. Worth, visiting Belleville on business in Eastern Canada and the United States, was warmly welcomed by Chamber members yesterday, the luncheon at the estimated for Montreal from where he will sail on Saturday next to return to the land where "it is almost impossible to get a decent Belleville cheese, but where nearly all cheese bought is sold under label of "Empire Cheese, and only one store was found selling real Canadian bacon," he told former fellow members of the Chamber.

Refuse to Think or Talk of War

"Not so on this side of the water war talk is about as common as it can be, residents of the British Isles refuse to talk or think of it at all," he told the Worth local members. "But, on the other hand, they are not neglecting to take precautions, for they know it is for the preservation of their country. They are not preparing for war, because of preference, if it ever comes to that, but they simply don't want to get excited about it."

The warmth of greeting extended by Belleville friends to him was greatly appreciated, Mr. Worth declared. "It is fine to feel at home at once, and perhaps gave me just a little touch of homesickness," he said.

Mrs. Worth who accompanied him to Belleville will remain here for a month's visit before returning to England.

COURTROOM BECOMES ART GALLERY FOR TRIAL

Seeking to collect $3,500 from Actress Connie Bennett for a portrait he painted on her instructions, but which she declines to accept, Artist Willie Pogany brought the disputed painting to court to prove that he couldn't paint the ruby-red fingernails that Miss Bennett wanted because "one spot of red would unbalance the entire color harmony and make the painting fantastic." There were other complaints Miss Bennett make, however—that her waist was too large, that the hair was the wrong color, that the eyes weren't just right, and lastly that she promised only $500 for the painting. So here is Willie trying to convince the jury.

AGED FARMER IS HELD FOR MURDER OF AGED RECLUSE

Lafayette Dales, 70, Remanded Until June 9th in Custody

CHARGE OF THEFT

Police Hold Theory Aged Man Could Not Shoot Himself

Owen Sound, Ont., June 3—(CP)—Lafayette Dales, 70, was formally charged in court today with the murder of William Waterton, Balaclava recluse who died May 12 of gunshot wounds.

Dales, aged farm worker in the Balaclava district 12 miles northeast of here on the shore of Georgian Bay, was arrested several days after Waterton's body was found in his shack. He was held on a vagrancy charge pending investigation of the shooting.

Several days ago a charge that Dales "did steal" was laid against Dales.

The grey-haired little man appeared before Magistrate E. C. Spearman today and heard the Crown's murder charge read. He was remanded until June 9 when it is expected a further remand will be requested by crown authorities.

Police hold the theory Waterton could not have killed himself with the shotgun found beside his body because he had only one arm. Waterton was 82 years old.

VON SCHUSCHNIGG IS REPORTED WED BY PROXY TODAY

Unusually Reliable Informant Says Ex-Chancellor Married to Countess

BROTHER IS PROXY

Church Authorities Give No Information of Marriage

Vienna, June 3 (AP)—Marriage of Kurt von Schuschnigg, former Chancellor of Austria, and Countess Vera Purger von Rabenhausen, with the absent bridegroom represented by his brother as proxy, was reported today by a usually reliable informant.

The marriage, this source said, took place at 1 p.m. today in the private chapel of the Dominican Church in Vienna's downtown section.

Dr. Arthur von Schuschnigg took the place of his brother, detained by the Nazi authorities since Germany's occupation of Austria on March 13.

Bride Most Beautiful Woman.

The informant said the witness for the 34-year-old Countess was Adored one of the most beautiful women in Vienna, was the ex-Chancellor's father, Major-General Arthur von Schuschnigg. The bridegroom's witness was the sacristan of the church.

Church authorities would give no information concerning the marriage. (The forty-year-old von Schuschnigg was a widower, his first wife having been killed in an automobile accident in 1935. The Countess, mother of four children, was separated from her husband, and informed sources understood an annulment of her marriage had been obtained.)

50 Persons in Canton Factory Killed, Air Raids Claim 1,000 Civilians

Hong Kong, June 3—(AP)—Japanese bombing planes killed 50 persons in a Canton textile factory today and caused a great loss of life among houseboat dwellers along the Canton river.

The factory was crowded with workers when two bombs struck the building.

The attackers also bombed the vicinity of Tsaihsiu railway station where many refugees were encamped. The station was not hit.

(The raid was another of the series that began Saturday in which a total of 1,000 civilians are estimated to have been killed and 1,500 wounded.)

ECUADOR'S ARMY DECLARED READY TO DEFEND AREA

107-Year-Old Territorial Dispute With Peru Revived

CONSIDERABLE TENSION

Quito, Ecuador, June 3 (AP) — Ecuador's frontier army garrisons numbering defenses today in the wake of a new incident of violence in the disputed Zarumilla region along the line with Peru.

The Ecuadorean soldiers were reported killed and lieutenant wounded yesterday in a clash with three Peruvian gunboats along the River Aguarico in the northwestern portion of the vast jungle claimed by both countries.

The ministry of defense at once ordered troops to refrain from retaliatory aggression, but to "defend themselves with all their characteristic valor."

It was ascertained reliably that Peruvian troops were concentrating at Tumbes, near the frontier and close to the Ecuadorean Pacific coast.

The defense ministry order charged that Peru was the center of Spanish power in South America, was "trampling on Ecuador in an unjustifiable manner." Ecuadorean Major Adelardo Aguirre, chief of the military mission at Rocafuerte: "In no case permit any aggression by our troops, but if they are attacked they must defend themselves with all their characteristic valor."

There was considerable tension here, and the cabinet met three times yesterday. There were unofficial reports the Ecuadorean Minister to Peru had been instructed to demand an explanation. There was not at once any intimation of Peru's attitude.

Ecuador and Peru have been at odds over sovereignty over a vast area of jungle, approximately the size of New York State, since Ecuador established her independence in 1831.

The territory, sweeping eastward from the Andes, is locked into the continent, is inhabited chiefly by Indians. There are few roads and few white men have penetrated the forests.

Ecuador advanced a basis of settlement in 1936, but Peru rejected this on the ground Peru never received loss to Peru of large areas.

Recently, efforts have been made efforts by arbitration conference in Washington to reach some workable agreement, but so far none has materialized.

Woman Released By Chinese

Hong Kong, China, June 3—(AP)—Miss Kathleen Weston, a British subject, told today how she was rescued from Canton of her imprisonment with Carl Rein, a German, on a charge of espionage.

The couple travelled from Japan to China and were arrested upon arrival in route to Canton from Hankow.

Miss Weston complained of failing clothes and inadequate food.

Rein still was being held by the Japanese, who said they were unable to produce evidence against Miss Weston.

8 TO BE ORDAINED AT CONFERENCE SUNDAY JUNE 5

Rev. L. S. Wight Appointed to General Board of Missions

DR. BROWN ELECTED

Napanee, Ont., June 3—(CP)—Colleges and students committee this morning recommended the following candidates be ordained during the Bay of Quinte Conference here June 5:

Reverend Wellesley, B.A., Newfoundland Conference, presented by Rev. W. F. Belcher.

Rev. Geo. A. Brown, D.D., was elected as the General Board of Christian Education.

"Exposed" to Christians

Miss Winifred Holland of Toronto, Dominion leader of children's work, United Church of Canada, told the delegates the responsibility of the church is to expose children to the Christ and not to themselves Christians. The church could assist greatly in educating and qualities the child possess by bringing them in contact with the proper people.

Creditable Inspection Passed by Schools

Calmness in the face of an impending fire emergency was displayed in leaving the various buildings in the city yesterday, during the inspecting of fire drills held in the public schools of the city yesterday by officials of the local Belleville Fire Department.

Recommendation that the O.S.D. procure a siren, that is more suitable for the ringing of fire alarms was made by the inspecting officials. Elapsed time of the pupils and staff of the various schools in vacating the buildings follow:—

Queen Alexandra—480 pupils, 90 seconds; Queen Victoria, 525 pupils, 50 seconds; King George, 350 pupils, 45 seconds; Queen Mary, 450 pupils, 50 seconds; St. Michaels Academy, 500 pupils, 50 seconds; O. S. D. 90 staff, 285 pupils, 1 minute 30 seconds.

ESCAPES ON WAY TO CELLS

Galt, Ont., June 3 (CP)—Wilfred Dippel, 22, Kitchener, escaped from police here today as he was being taken from police court to the cells by Constable Ed. Hall after a short search.

Dippel was not handcuffed and when the policeman started to unlock the cell door, his prisoner broke the officer's grip and bolted. Running down a hallway he escaped through a window to the police station, leaping on to Dickson Street.

Windsors Plan No Celebration On First Wedding Anniversary

Antibes, France, June 3—(AP)— The Duke and Duchess of Windsor celebrated their first wedding anniversary today with a quiet dinner party at their first real home. They were so engrossed in getting the Chateau Le La Croe ready to live in that they planned no formal celebration. It was just another day of superintending alterations, inside and outside the Chateau, which they have leased for two years.

CANON HEDLEY, 72, VICTIM OF SMOKE AND BADLY BURNED

Found by His Nephew, Who is Headmaster of Lakefield School

CLAD IN PYJAMAS

Had Been Invited to Meet Lord Tweedsmuir on Tuesday

Peterbourgh, Ont., June 3—(CP)—Believed victim of smoke from a bush fire several days ago, the body of Rev. Canon G. W. Hedley, 72, dean of the Anglican College of the University of British Columbia, was found last night near his vacation cottage at Stoney Lake.

The clergyman, formerly of Toronto, was found by his nephew, Kennedy A. MacKenzie, headmaster of the Grove School at Lakefield. "The Canon's wrist watch was stopped by fire, when he apparently tried to fill a pail of water at the lake to extinguish the fire, which broke out last Sunday. The fire burned over an acre or more of bush between the group of summer cottages at Stoney Lake.

The Canon was clad in pyjamas and slippers, over which the clergyman had drawn a pair of trousers and a sweater coat in a hurried attempt to extinguish the blaze. He had retired, apparently to rest, when he first noticed the blaze. Just how it had happened was not known.

Mr. MacKenzie had invited his uncle to the Grove School for the visit of Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General, on Tuesday and noted, that he did not attend but was not worried at the time. On Wednesday Mr. MacKenzie accompanied the Governor-General on his tour through the Trent Canal, and it was not until last night that he was able to get away from his duties to go to the cottage and find out what had happened to Canon Hedley.

Cause Upon Body.

Mr. Mackenzie immediately noticed the burned condition and said came on the body of Canon Hedley where he had fallen against a huge rock which may have barred his retreat from the flames. One arm was bent protectively over the face.

Dr. J. C. Smith, Coroner at Lakefield, ordered a postmortem examination and said an inquest will probably be held next week. He expressed the belief he was due to asphyxiation from the wood smoke and shock.

Canon Hedley retired from the active ministry in Toronto two years ago, after 40 years' service as chaplain with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in the Great War.

Mrs. George Cassidy of Cobalt is a daughter.

Why the Weather?

By MAJOR A. H. THIESEN

Science Service Meteorologist

Water in the air! In times of drought, when the land is parched and cattle are dying of thirst, we naturally think that there is little or no moisture in air. If every pound of moisture were rained down it would amount to about one inch on the level. But, it never rain themselves dry; there is some moisture in the air, even over deserts. It amounts to over a million million tons, or about one-quarter of one per cent of the total air mass. Near the earth's face the air is wetter than it is aloft, and may amount to as much as five per cent. of the surface air. The warmer the air the more moisture it can contain. Therefore there is more over the tropical regions and less and less to north and south.

AN EXPLANATION

On May 17, a notice appeared in this paper announcing that a tea and sale of home cooking would be held Friday June 3 under the auspices of Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E. at 114 Bridge Street West. Unforeseen circumstances made necessary the postponement of this event as noticed in the issue of May 30. Owing to misunderstanding the original notice announcing the holding of the tea on Friday, June 3, appeared again Thursday, June 2. Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E. officers, desire to announce that the tea and sale of home cooking has been postponed indefinitely and that due notice will be given in the Ontario Intelligencer when the function is to be held.

REV. DR. J. SEMPLE IS TODAY ELECTED A COMMISSIONER

Industrial Relations Report is Presented to Conference

RELIGION AS 'SKYLINE'

Napanee, Ont., June 3 (CP)—Dr. James Semple of Belleville was elected chairman of the settlement committee at the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church today.

Members of the committee are Rev. R. W. Rowland and A. Stewart of Peterborough, Dr. J. Hall Thompson and Rev. H. W. Cliff of Kingston; Rev. H. Annsellow and Rev. J. T. Lane of Cobourg, W. T. Gordon of Belleville, Dr. A. E. Runnelle and T. C. Smith of Renfrew, Rev. W. G. Smith and J. C. Young of Oshawa.

Rev. Dr. Semple is one of Commissioners elected to the General Council of the United Church by Bay of Quinte Conference meeting at Napanee He was also elected chairman of the Settlement Committee of the Conference.

Napanee, Ont., June 3 (CP)—Report of the Industrial and International Relations to the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church today reaffirmed the pronouncements of the general council that wage earners and employers should be free to bargain on equal terms through persons freely chosen from each group.

The report suggested the principle of collective bargaining thus reaffirmed, always subject to the ultimate interests of the community as a whole.

Industrial Relations.

It was recommended the conference ask all its members to study industrial relations for the study of industries with which they are connected, for the dissemination of knowledge of labor laws, and for the making of friendly contacts between employer and employee organizations with a view to better understanding.

The report suggested the Presbyteries, either through the social service and evangelism committee or a special committee, be charged with implementing these recommendations.

Elected To General Council.

Commissioners to the General Council of the United Church were elected by ballot as follows: Rev. W. P. Woodger, Rev. J. Maxwell Allan, Rev. James Semple, Rev. Dr. J. C. Wilson, and Laymen, Donald Baxter, Dr. Beckett, Elmer Davis and H. W. Kitchen.

Rev. Dr. S. S. Davies of Niagara Falls, Ont., presented the conference declared the greatest philosophy of life was for a man to know control, reverence and deny himself. He said "religion is the skyline of our philosophy of living, without which there can be no intelligent and effective life. People in their lure for gold and their desire to get things are dabbling largely in terms of materialism and although science has been able to do marvelous things it will never succeed in removing the spirit of brotherhood from the world."

Youth Fails to Observe Moving Car

Failing to observe a moving automobile, 13-year-old Jack Hough, 22 St. Paul Street, sustained a deep gash in his right arm when he ran into the side of an automobile near home and was knocked down early last evening by the driver of the motor car, Burton A. Phillips, 25 Turnbull Street, immediately stopped his automobile and rendered assistance, taking the injured lad to a physician who later reported the accident to the police.

Mr. Phillips informed authorities he had stopped his motor car at the Church Street crossing of the C.P.R. to permit a freight train to pass. After the train had completely cleared the crossing Mr. Phillips said he slowly approached the tracks, when the little Dunlop lad ran into the side of the motor car. The boy sustained a bad cut on his arm, which was given medical attention however. No charges were deemed necessary, police stated.

Obituary

LATE JOHN F. HOUSTON

The funeral of John Finley Houston took place from the family residence, 175 Charles Street, Belleville, on Thursday afternoon, June 2nd, and was largely attended. The staff and employees of the Hamilton Limited, of Lambert Company, of which the late Mr. Houston was the president, attended in a body. The funeral was under Masonic auspices and the lodges in Belleville, Stirling, Tweed and Madoc were largely represented.

A brief service in the home was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. F. N. Baker and the Rev. R. S. Wight. At the close of the service the funeral cortege proceeded to the United Church in Tweed where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Semple, assisted by the Rev. R. R. Nicholson, the pastor, and the Rev. R. S. Wight. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Semple, who based his remarks upon the words of Samuel, "And thou shalt be missed, because thy seat shall be empty." In the function of the church," said Dr. Semple, "is manifold; its duty is to rebuke, to exhort, and to speak a message of comfort to those who mourn." He referred to the intimate relations which he had had with the deceased during the past five years, relations which he valued highly. "The late John Houston will be missed in his business witness where his chief thought was of service to those in his employ, in the community where the influence which emanated from his life not in the life of this generation; and in Bridge Street United Church, which is the poorer for his passing."

During the service Mrs. S. H. Connor sang beautifully "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

Interment was made in Tweed cemetery.

The honorary bearers were Mr. William Craig, Tweed; Mr. J. Porritt, Tweed; Mr. William Ingersoll, Belleville; Mr. George Mathieson, Tweed; Mr. Samuel Hollins, Madoc; Mr. S. R. Rollins, Tweed; Mr. A. C. Martin, Stirling, and Dr. F. T. Bowlby.

The active bearers were Mr. T. S. Rath, Mr. W. E. Tummon, Mr. J. Brown, Mr. S. McGee, Mr. A. Logan and Mr. George H. Stokes.

The late Mr. Houston was a member of the Tweed School board for twenty years and served as chairman and later as secretary-treasurer of the Board. As a token of appreciation to the deceased the flag was raised half staff on the Public Continuation School and the pupils were dismissed at 2.30 o'clock.

MURNEY T. HAGERMAN
Stirling

Stirling (Special)—After an illness of six months' duration Murney Theodore Hagerman died suddenly as the result of a heart attack at his late residence here on Stirling, about noon on Thursday, June 2nd.

The late Mr. Hagerman, who was in his 71st. year, was born in Rawdon Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald Merchison Hagerman. He resided in this township where he was born until he retired from farming some years ago. In religion he was a member of the United Church and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Fraternally he was a member of the Orange Order.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Artella Brown; two sons, Mr. Frank B. Hagerman, Halloway, and Mr. Arthur Hagerman, Stirling; one daughter, Mrs. Cecil Sine, Foxboro. The funeral will take place on Stirling on Saturday afternoon, June 4th.

CHARLES TUMELTY
Madoc

Madoc (Special)—The death occurred in Madoc on Friday, June 3rd, of Charles Tumelty, aged 67 years. An invalid for some years, Mr. Tumelty became seriously ill about seven weeks ago.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Tumelty, he was born in Madoc Township on the old homestead about one mile east of Madoc. He resided there until about three years ago when he retired. He was a member of Trinity United Church, and of Madoc Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 48. He was Past District Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Order. Throughout the district he was held in high esteem and respect.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, formerly Miss Annie May Gilles; two sisters (Annie) Mrs. J. Mooncey and Miss Agnes Tumelty both of Madoc. Two brothers and one sister predecessed him. The funeral will take place on Sunday from the home of Mrs. Mooncey and will be held under Masonic direction. Interment will be made in Lake View Cemetery, Madoc.

PATRICIA PEARL GAYTON

Christian Street — It was with deep regret the relatives and friends learned of the passing of Patricia Gayton, Sunday morning, May 22nd. She had not enjoyed very good health all winter and was taken worse on Tuesday. She was immediately ordered to Prince Edward County hospital, where everything was done to help her and it was thought she was improving, but the end came suddenly when she passed away in an old sleep. Her death at the age of twenty years was a great shock to her family and friends.

She was born at Schoharie and shortly afterwards the family moved to their present home on the Highway south of Croiton. She received her public school and she was always popular with her schoolmates and later with the young people.

She is survived by her sorrowing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gayton two brothers, Sidney Jr., of Mount Pleasant and Arthur at home; two sisters, Mrs. Norman Allison of Wellington and Jean at home and an aged grandmother in England. A sister, Lily, predeceased her about eleven years ago.

The funeral service was held at Crofton Hall on Monday afternoon, when Rev. Lord read and delivered the sermon. The hall was filled with friends and neighbours who came to show their respect and sympathy for the family.

Rev. Lord and Mrs. Lorne Burr sang very feelingly "Bared By Grace". The casket was covered with flowers and was borne by six young men of the community who were Messrs. Lloyd Hamond, and Albert Broadbridge, Carman Scott, Charley Smith and Willet Cross.

She was laid to rest beside her sister in the Hickaite Cemetery, in Brighton.

LATE TURPIN ASSELSTINE

The funeral of Turpin Asselstine took place from his late residence, 67 North Front, Street, Thursday, afternoon, June 2nd. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. G. Sinclair, pastor of the Bridge Avenue Baptist Church.

The bearers were Messrs. William Richardson, J. Connors, H. Armstrong, W. Shier, F. Mattis and A. Brant.

MRS. THOMAS SNARR

Rawdon, (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Snarr, who died last week at her late residence, Sixth concession of Rawdon, on Thursday afternoon, was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends.

Rev. Somerville, Rev. F. G. Jobin of Scugog Island, brought a comforting message and Mrs. Percy Biddle sang "Will the Circle Be Unbroken".

The interment was made in Wellman's Cemetery beside her husband who passed to the Great Beyond two years ago.

Messrs. Hugh Morton, Frank Johnson, Leonard Shaw, Jack Brown, Ray Armstrong, and Floyd Armstrong, all sons-in-law, were bearers.

Mrs. Snarr was formerly Miss Minnie Webster and has been at Thornton's Corners and was in her 82nd year. She was a daughter of the late George Webster and Ellen Boddy of Holl, Yorkshire, England.

In 1892, she was married Thomas Snarr and came to Rawdon township.

She leaves to mourn one son, William on the homestead at Wellman's and one daughter, Mrs. Hugh Morton, Stirling; Mrs. Frank Johnson, Frankford; Mrs. Leonard Sharp, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. Jack Brown, Hoard's; Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, Stirling and Mrs. Ray Armstrong, Toronto, also four grandchildren.

POLICE COURT

"If I was full how could I have ridden my bicycle?" asked a 66-year-old Marmora man in answering in today's local police court held before Magistrate K. J. Butler, K.C., after being convicted of intoxication.

"That's just the trouble, you could not ride it very successfully, I am reliably informed", replied Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C.

The ex-warrior appeared in court quite the worse of wear, sporting a large quantity of adhesive tape across the bridge of his nose, secluding an injury the man was reported to have more recently received after falling. The accused was arrested by Sergeant Arthur Harman, who was the only Crown witness to testify. His Worship registered a conviction and levied the conventional "ten and costs" as the assessed fine. "It's fifteen days in jail unless you pay your fine," warned the Bench.

John Murphy, transient who police say they rescued from a water filled ditch near the C.P.R. station last night, pleaded guilty to charge of intoxication today and stated he would have to serve ten 15-day jail term in default of payment of the fine. "It's a good thing we were notified about this man as he might have drowned in that ditch, which was filling fast from yesterday's rains.

Charges of theft of a motor car and also of a quantity of gram received against Clifford Hall of this city and Floyd Wood, Thurlow, were further remanded for one week owing to the more recent discovery of details who is confined to his home through illness. Alan Sprague, appearing for Merritt Wood, consented to Mr. Donnan's suggestion of a further adjournment.

Eleven motorists enriched the city's coffers slightly after pleading guilty to charges of the use of the one hour parking by-law. The majority tendered their pies of fines prior to the court and did not appear, the fine of $1.00 and costs being imposed in each incident, amounting to $1.75 in all. Police have been instructed to continue their efforts in enforcing the local one hour parking by-law.

A Change is a Rest

By ALICE MORRIS LEWIS

Irma Wallace had no doubt that morning that God was in his heaven but she had some misgivings about all being well with the world —her part of it at any rate. They seemed to her that she had this most glutinous family to deal with of the impossible children to manage. Every wife and mother feels this way at times.

At that moment the telephone rang. A moment or two later, when she hung up the receiver, it was as pleasant, Mrs. Meredith had said her on a week-end trip in their new car. Wally, Sr., could look after the children, since he would be home Saturday and Sunday. She could cook—and clean the house for, she went. It was kind of the Merediths to invite her for, after all, she didn't know them very well. . .

The next days were full of sweeping, baking and planning. On Saturday morning Irma departed, leaving a spotless house, food enough for a regiment and three sulky mortals behind her.

Mrs. Meredith launched forth on the history of a little altercation which she had with a friend. The first 16 miles of the journey were given over to it. The scenery, which was growing more beautiful every minute, was only accorded a cursory glance, and a passing "very nice" when called to her attention.

"We are not going to stop for dinner," explained Mrs. Meredith, about an hour later. "Henry wants to make time, we have so far to go."

About twilight, Mr. Mederith drew up before a picturesque hotel. Irma almost cried out in dismay. She had not expected such sumptuousness. Mrs. Meredith, on the other hand, was prepared. She bustled into Irma's room in a very handsome dinner gown just before o'clock with a brevge "Let me help you dress. I'm all ready myself."

"I've got a wretched headache," said Irma. "I can't go down. I'll have toast and tea sent up here. Then I'll go to bed or I shall be too sick to travel tomorrow."

The next day they started out again Mrs. Meredith was talking as usual. Mr. Meredith in the subject. He had evidently offended her and she felt obliged to talk about him and his failings to Irma. She finally settled on his ability as a driver.

"Oh, Mrs. Meredith," Irma murmured once, "I think Mr. Meredith is a splendid, careful driver, I'd go through—"

Mr. Meredith flashed her a grateful look and a moment later called attention to the long line of cars ascending and descending the hill they were climbing.

"Look like so many ants, racing for the ant hill," he said.

At that moment, Mrs. Meredith gave a shriek of terror. A big touring car had shot out from the line descending and was flying towards them.

It all happened in a minute. Mrs. Meredith shrieked, the car s[kid]ding, Mr. Meredith firm at the wheel, slowing gradually, coming nearly and gliding safely into the gutter between the curbing and the telegraph pole just as the big touring car passed them by a hair and crashed over the embankment beyond the gutter in which Mr. Meredith had been able to stop.

Trembling with terror, Irma scobbed softly, but Mrs. Meredith, now that he had stopped shrieking found breath to herself Mr. Meredith's careless driving again. He had not seen the car until she cried out! If he had, he could have saved her a fright. She would never ever ride with him again, never!

Irma's nerves were pushed to the limit. It was not her real self that suddenly rose to flay Mrs. Meredith as she would have cried to little Wally or Irma, had it been they who had upset her and put her to the limit of endurance.

"I'm going home," announced Mrs. Meredith, a moment later.

The Wallace house was dark but the door was unlatched. Irma crept in and switched on the lights.

Wally, Junior, was asleep with little Irma and Wally beside him. She bent and kissed him softly.

"Why, Irma, is that you?" she asked sitting up and blinking. "I didn't expect you today. You've haven't been gone long enough to rest—"

"A change is as good as a rest, they say," she whispered. "Anyway, I'm thankful you are glad to be alive and back again, Wally. A few hours gave the place a dirty minute, I thought: I never would see you and the babies again. Oh, Wally, I'm never going away again unless we can all go together!"

No Foolishness

By ANNETTE C. SYMMES

Jo-Ann was on her way to The Nook. She was walking so fast that she was almost running, and as she went she talked to herself, a mere mutter at first, but later, when she left the road and was crossing the pasture which contained The Nook, and therefore could not be overheard, she talked in her natural tones.

"I won't stand it!" she proclaimed wrathfully. "I'm all right as I am. I don't want a beau—and if I did, I would pick him out myself, and not be manoeuvred into having somebody the folks happen to think is 'suitable.' I've got new work and my play, and my own interests, and I wouldn't want to upset it by getting married anyway, even if I were in love with somebody."

She was taking the last steep scramble as she said these words. Just over the top of the hill was the big pine, with two big rocks, forming the snug little Nook and commanding a wide view of country. This was the private refuge which Jo-Ann had made particularly her own.

Absorbed in her grievance, she made a tumultuous descent between the rocks and almost into the lap of a young man who was sitting a little to one side of her own favorite place!

"Andy!" said the young man fervently.

Jo-Ann sank upon the pine-needles and gasped at him.

"Amen!" she echoed weakly.

"I couldn't help overhearing," pleaded the intruder, "that 'Give me Derry or death' declaration, and it expressed my sentiments so well that the 'Amen!' sort of slipped out, I guess."

"You must be the youngest Curtis son," said Jo-Ann. "I've seen you once or twice, I think. Of course you know that I'm the middle Marston girl—nobody else round here goes flying over the country, hammering to herself. But why the 'emphas,' as my brother Ed used to say, on the response?"

"Well," replied "the youngest Curtis son," "I inferred that your family was trying diplomatically to shake you off from the 'parent stem.' That's what mine's doing to all my uncles and my cousins and my aunts; preaching how much I need a wife, and what a beautiful wife this one and that one would make, and making a fuss, favorable or otherwise, if I dance three dances an evening with one girl, or take another to the movies. I'm fed up with it! I came up here expressly to sulk but I think two can sulk more thoroughly than one. I think we have lots in common, Miss Marston."

They canvassed the subject extensively the next hour, and got along famously. It seemed as if they had always known each other.

"I say," cried Clarke Curtis suddenly, "we understand each other. Why can't we go places together, and dance together, and so on, this summer? It will keep our families quiet, and we can have a lot of fun without involving anybody that hasn't misunderstand us, and think we mean more than we do! What do you say?"

After a slight hesitation, Jo-Ann agreed.

The summer sped light-footed, with rides and hikes and picnics and long serious chats in The Nook—sped till vacation was over, and the Marston trunks were packed for the city, and the big guard Clarke, lingering after his family had gone home, said to Jo-Ann the last time at The Nook:

"It's been wonderful this summer," he said, "and I can count carefree times—no foolishness."

"No foolishness" echoed Jo-Ann. "I shall miss you, though."

"Miss me? Miss Jo?" cried Clarke. Don't you suppose I'm coming to see you any more?"

"But Clarke," she stammered—

"Suppose what? I tell you, Jo, I'm very thought of not see you for a week gives me a cold, clammy feeling in my heart and a lump in my throat. You are the primal necessity of life to me—I don't know how I ever got out into the world and I can't do without you."

"For some time!" replied Jo-Ann.

"What for? If we stop going together, our folks will begin to fuss again. The only way to stop it is to get married ourselves! I thought that up all myself! Don't you think it'll be a good bet?"

Then Jo-Ann laughed, but the laugh got mixed up with a sob, and the next she knew the eminently sensible Mr. Curtis was kissing her, and she found herself accepting the performance thoroughly!

"I thought there was to be no foolishness?" she gasped.

"There isn't," promptly responded Clarke. "This is the only sensible thing to do. I've known it for a long time."

sfanic minority and with Berlin, it was explained.

The charge of treason was brought before the States Attorney yesterday by Frank Klima, a Czech National Union Party member of parliament, who cited an interview with Heinlein by Ward Price, London Daily Mail correspondent.

'Ruinous War' Reference Quoted

Price's account quoted Henlein as forecasting a "ruinous war" unless Czechoslovak-Sudeten German differences were settled in a few months.

Dechets explained that Deputy Klima belongs to a radical wing of the Czechs National Union Party which suffered a severe setback in recent communal elections.

Czechoslovak party officials also laughed off the action as a belated April fool joke."

They, as well as government officials, regarded Klima's action as an effort to bolster his party.

Circles close to the government said it would be absurd to start proceeding against Henlein, since the strength of his party must be considered.

In Berlin, Deutsches Nachrichten Buero (German official news agency), reported from Saznoy a new incident of border violation by a Czechoslovak gendarmerie airplane.

DNB said the plane flew over Gottesgrun, five miles from the Czechoslovak border, Baerenstein, and Hammerodermeisenthal.

Plan for New Public School In Trenton Proceeding

Will Cost $120-000 And Work Will Start on August 1st

NEWS OF INTEREST

Trenton, June 3 (Special)—Swinging the Murray Canal bridge on Highway 33 to permit passage of a small boat on Wednesday of last week, canal bridge tenders were more than a little surprised to find that in spite of their best efforts it could not be returned to its proper position to allow the passage of traffic; and before the trouble was rectified a crew of men from the Central Bridge Co. plant in Trenton were kept busy for two days, while cars and trucks were rerouted over the railroad bridge some two hundred yards further west along the waterway.

Speaking with the official builders of the new steel bridge, which has been in operation a scant two years, the Ontario Intelligencer learned that the trouble, apparently, has been in the gears which allow for the swinging of the structure, and he expressed the opinion that once the bridge was jacked up and the central pivot was thoroughly greased the trouble would disappear. Heavy building jacks were used for this purpose and on Friday the bridge was once again in use. It is of interest to note that the wood and asphalt flooring of the bridge outweighs by far the steel itself; and Mr. Hill, commenting on the operation of the structure, pointed out that when, in time, electricity is used to swing it, bridge tenders will have few worries and little labour.

Making Real Bid

Under the direction of Ted Bell of Belleville, two newspapermen to the area, Twelve o'Clock Point is again making a real bid for the summer trade. Both the pavilion and the hotel have been given a thorough renovation inside and out and cottages are in better repair than for some time. The two young proprietors are sparing no expense in their venture, and all is ready now, brought in several sensational hit orchestras to entice dancers to the always-pleasant point. The official opening was on the night of May 23rd., but the weekly and weekly dances have become quite popular.

Improvement Noted

Tremendous improvement in the appearance of Bayshore Park has been noted by many an admiring citizen this year, and much of the credit for the change goes to Councillors Owen Burtt and Henry Allen Fleur, who have been very much on the job. This year the softball league set to work to do what they could to renovate their diamond and make the place more attractive with a matter of some eighty dollars to hand. Screening along the fields was replaced, a new type of stand was removed and built in behind the plate, benches were laid for fans to use along the sidelines, the entire diamond was moved a few feet and swung further toward the bay, and a great improvement was noted all round.

Through the courtesy of Youres Billiard Parlor a new scoreboard was procured and erected, and not to be outdone the council went to work to see what could be done to improve the appearance of a bottle-strewn outfield. Tin cans and other scrap were at once removed from where has they been, unfortunately, the town dump; and trucks were procured, some hired, some donated for the cause, to haul gravel for playing purposes. Much of this work has now been done, and probably never before has the outlet park of Bayshore Park looked any more like the beginning of a park of which citizens may be proud. A local paper takes the stand that all these renovations have been made with the purpose of providing a suitable picnic site for th. C.P.R. employees and families when they congregate here this summer for their annual outing, but although citizens and fans like to think that at least a part of the labour has been done as a direct aid to the town's only summer resort.

676 Bicycle Licenses

Licensing bicycles for the first time this year, local police have come to the conclusion that there are plenty more of the two-wheeled conveyances in town than they ever before imagined. Some 676 tags have already been issued, and a number of more markers will be gone in. Bicycle thefts in years past proved numerous, and the new plates, sold at a nominal fee of 25 cents, are of great assistance in the efforts in locating missing bikes.

Renovate Homes

Apparently deciding to capitalize on the shortage of housing accommodations that has existed ever since the Canadian Air Force arrived at the local station to any extent a number of local people are either building or renovating to provide apartments and small homes. The W. R. Ireland residence on Marmora Street was recently remodeled to accommodate four families, while the owner has taken up residence west of the river. A new home is being built on Queen Street by J. H. Reilick and it is reported that J. H. Armstrong is retaining an architect to draw up plans for a $30,000 apartment building to be erected soon on the site of the Wee Blue Inn on Dundas Street E. All this should be good news for R.C.A.F. families and others who have been forced to move to Frankford and Smithfield and Brighton owing to the present shortage. Whether or not it will mean reduced rents is a question indeed.

Takes New Position

Mr. Vernon Coutts, a valued and trusted employee of the Trenton Public Utilities for a number of years, leaves Trenton this week for Brantford where he will be in charge of the newly-established Hydro office.

Wednesday, June first, saw the first of the half holidays for the summer but as usual there are a few merchants who do not see eye to eye with the Board of Commerce and who remain open as usual.

Purchases New Site

The purchase in Stirling last week of a business site by Marc Tripp, local tobacconist and wholesaler of tobacco, soft drinks and ice-cream supplies, marks the further extension of one of the most prominent businesses of the area. Already the trucks of Tripp trucks and men on the road dispensing supplies over an area extending from Belleville and beyond to Picton, and with a further branch of the business in Stirling this is little doubt that the activities of the local merchant will continue to extend. The new store is to be fitted up at once and will be a replica on a smaller scale of the local store.

Plan for New School

Plans for the erection of a new school at Glen College Street, to take the place of the present antiquated and dilapidated structure are going to hand, and a special session of council was called by Mayor H. D. Graham on Friday evening last to further plans. Present at the meeting were A. B. Coon, Toronto architect, who is to draw up plans immediately, and if calculations do not go astray building will begin about August 1st. At the regular session of council on Monday evening previous ex-Mayor H. D. Graham appeared and protested against the closing of College Street for the new school. Mayor Coon seemed to recall that legislation was enacted some years ago by the council to close the street but as he could not recall exactly the matter was left for further investigation.

Going Home

Going home on leave, two young officers, Lord Ardee, son of the Earl of Meath and Lord E. Jonnson are motoring via Afghanistan, Iraq, Yugoslavia, Germany, France, to England, 7,000 miles.

GRADUATION LOOMS

Thousands are nearing graduation day which will send them out into the world, while many times as many thousands are marking milestones at this time and will next year or next be in the vast army of school graduates. To the undergraduate who has closed or is closing another year's work the prospect of the year or years ahead is a happy one for the problem of getting started on the life path is partly hidden in the sunny prospects of the graduation a year or two or three or more ahead. To the graduating student life is a little more serious.

A New York Times editor says that graduation commencement orators are not to be envied because they cannot promise the graduate much at the moment. "They can exhort him to have high ideals and behave himself but he must be unhappily aware that his own generation and especially that portion of it which was young during the speculation-mad period following the world war made only a middling record in this respect." Others may not agree with that for many have been found not wanting in the testing years.

The same editor says that the graduate will be all right, for he has already had some hard knocks and knows something of what he has to expect. He is young and can "take it on the chin" and come up smiling. He is hopeful because it is biologically impossible for healthy youth not to be.

He adds that while the world may not be clamoring for the graduate, the world is surely going to need the graduate. In the end there will be plenty for him to do.

The graduate today in a few more decades, the Times writer continues, may be trying to find words to address to the graduates of the future, the still newer generation. Generation after generation of graduates will come and do their work. "It's a tough human race and a persistent one and over the hill, just the other side of the rainbow lies Utopia." he declares.

Youth has to have its trials and many of those will face the graduate but he is full of zeal and idealism which will carry him a long distance on his way to the ideal of individual and society for consciously or unconsciously every one helps to mould society.

Meanwhile the happiest thoughts should gather around these June festivals when parents and relatives and son and daughter graduates meet on the occasions in the old institutional halls of learning. But youth is merry and hopeful, particularly the graduate who has been educated or has educated himself against the day of hard work. Some will be able to carry the same happy rapturous note into after years these fortunate ones, who are so blessed by nature and training, while to others that rapture of the vision of the future may be somewhat lost. But one thing is certain, institutions leave their indelible mark on the young man or young woman, boy or girl. That sign or mark is for good, it infers that noble ideals and full-rounded life have been the inspiration of the college or university.

While the future may not be able to delineate so surely success in life as do the marks made at examinations or the medals and other college and university awards, graduates like people in general will have quite an exact idea of what is success in life.

JUNE

This spring with its drawbacks of chilly days and nights at times has yet proven worthy of the study of nature's way of unfolding her progress and beauty and meaning as the season has advanced. May is the month that brings the leaves to fulness, fills the trees with nests and the nests with nestlings and at its close the little new arrivals are beginning to take their place in this lovely world where they spend what we call summer. What the birds call life in this climate man unfortunately can never know. But those who listen to the robin, the catbird, the song sparrow, the warbler and the wild canary realize that they know it is beauty and life, else why those lovely notes, which make the morning and evening so rich and even the warmer portions of the day. All the activities of these birds are the purest expression of gratitude to the Giver of all that is beautiful. Surely man has in this made no mistake as to the origin of the inspiration by which the happy birds sing.

Over the earth is spread greenness in grass and leaf. Above the earth is the atmosphere at this time of year which is laden with the rich scents of flowers. Trees and shrubs are giving out odors from their blossoms. The air is mild and exquisite.

Summer in its adult fulness is still some distance away. Many glorious June days are ahead. If they are not enjoyed it is not the fault of nature. It is no wonder that in this month many couples venture out on the married state.

Who does not remember Lowell when he says:

"And what is rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays."

THE BELLS OF THE ANGELS

There comes to my mind a legend, a thing
I had half forgot,
And whether I read it or dreamed it—ah, well, it matters not;
It is said that in heaven at twilight a great bell softly swings,
And man may listen and hearken to the wondrous music that rings.
If he put from his heart's inner chamber all the passion, pain and strife,
Heartache and weary longing, that throb in the pulses of life,
If he thrust from his soul all hatred, all thoughts of wicked things,
He can hear in the holy twilight how the bell of the angels rings;
And I think there lies in this legend. if we open our eyes to see,
Somewhat of inner meaning, my friend, to you and me.
Let us look in our hearts and question: Can pure thoughts enter in
To a soul if it be already the dwelling of thoughts of sin?
So, then, let us ponder a little—let us look in our hearts and see
If the twilight bell of the angels could ring for us—you and me.

IN A PEASOUP FOG IN NEW YORK HARBOR one ship poked her nose three-quarters of the way through another. The crew of both ships kept their heads and the captain kept his. Each ship's craft's nose through the gap in the other to keep it from sinking while all the passengers of the stricken ship walked safely aboard the other ship—all in the best traditions of the sea. It was only a matter of minutes before every passenger was aboard the other ship, then the crew of the sinking ship left, and last of all the captain left his ship as it was sinking under his feet.

UNCLE SAM IS HAVING A WHALE OF A TIME HUNTING DOWN SPIES. A whole nest was recently uncovered in which foreign spies were collecting information about armaments and other matters which might be useful in case of war. Several of the leading espionage agents escaped on German steamships, indicating that care had been taken to ensure a quick getaway in case of trouble. Canada is also showing symptoms of espionage pains and it is even alleged that steps have been taken by an ambitious power in Europe to secure the island of Anticosti in the Gulf of St. Lawrence as a possible air and submarine base in case of war—planting an enemy within our gates as it were. Methods of foreign spies and espionage agents in general with the machinery set up even in a friendly country to promote murder and arson, destruction of property and lives, is well set forth in a book by Captain Henry Landau called "The Enemy Within" which describes the facts uncovered by the International War Claims Commission in regard to the Black Tom explosion near New York City which caused a loss of seventeen million dollars when a plant producing munitions for the Allies was blown up and destroyed by fire; also the Kingsland case. a similar one involving millions, in which a Canadian company was interested and suffered a severe monetary loss. Some of the claims were settled right off the bat by Germany but the largest ones were contested and are still being fought over. German diplomatic agents in the United States at the time included Von Bernstorff, Boy-Ed. Von Papen and others well known in high diplomatic circles in all countries. "The Enemy Within" is an illuminating record of duplicity in high places of disregard of property rights and human lives, of chicanry, deception and high and lofty lying, and above all a belief, rigid as a religion, that the state is above all and the end justifies the means, with no crime against humanity too black if the state profits, in fact no crime at all. Plots against Canada's railways during the World War are described in this remarkable book. happily frustrated by the close watch kept, in most instances. "The Enemy Within" can be secured at the Corby Public Library.

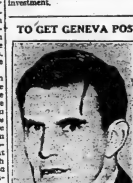
That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Body Like a Machine, Needs To be Checked Often

During the war one of the most experienced and careful fliers began to make poor landings. An examination showed that he had defected tonsils, the poison from which circulating in the blood interfered with his eyesight. Within a few days after the removal of the tonsils his landings were faultless.

Drs. Perce and Rand in The Archives of Opthalmology state:



"It seems strange that so much care is taken to see that the plane is in perfect condition before a flight is undertaken and so little attention given to the condition of the aviator. While is is true that a human being cannot be treated as a machine, it is known that he is subject to many disturbances from day to day that render him unfit for services which require supernormal fitness and proficiency and involve responsibility for human life and safety. It seems only reasonable, therefore, that the fitness of the aviator as well as the fitness of the plane be operated upon and tested before each flight is undertaken."

I believe that most of us will agree that when the safety of an aviator himself and of the passengers who are entrusted their lives to him can, humanly speaking, be to a great extent assured, by a physical examination of the aviator, the times and cost are not worth any consideration. However you and I are not aviators but we drive motor cars, and have home, social, and business decisions to make every day. These decisions require clearness of thought and fairness of judgment. You can thus see that our physical condition means much to us and others every day of our lives.

Therefore, just as an aviator should have a physical check-up, so should every one of us be checked over once or twice a year. An examination of our teeth, including X-ray every two or three years (oftener as we grow older), and a check-up of nose, throat, hearing, heart, bloodvessels lungs kidneys and weight with correction of any defects again humanly speaking, can give us health insurance for our daily responsibilities.

While the body is more wonderful than a machine, and Nature is very generous to us despite our carelessness and neglect, nevertheless the annual or semi-annual physical examination is a great investment.

3,500 SEARCHERS HUNT KIDNAPPERS OF FLORIDA BOY

With hope that the child would be found alive all but abandoned, more than 3,500 searchers were combing the area surrounding Princeton, Fla., in a grim hunt for the kidnapper of five-year-old James Bailey Cash, who have already collected $60,000 in ransom money from the lad's parents without returning the child. Federal and local police remained aloof from the case for many hours at the parents' request, but when it became evident that the abductors were not going to return their victim, posses were formed and the hunt began in earnest. Fears for his life have been heightened by recent finding of the body of Peter Levine, of New York, kidnapped many weeks ago. At LEFT, groups are shown gathering at the Cash home in preparation for the hunt; at RIGHT is the little victim.

SEEK BODY OF PILOT KILLED IN RACING 'PLANE CRASH

From the submerged cockpit of the trim red monoplane which carried Lieut. Pilot Cyr Gotch to his death in San Francisco Bay, coast-guardsmen are shown in attempting to untangle the body of the flier who crashed during a 500-mile feature race at the Pacific Coast International Air Carnival, Calif. In the background is the coastguard seaplane which was dispatched to the scene as soon as word of Gotch's crash was received. He was dead when the rescue airplane arrived. Incidentally the coastguard ship was on route to Alaska, where it will be stationed to prevent any trouble arising from alleged Japanese encroachment on American fishing grounds there.

PIN IS HIS REWARD FOR 20 YEARS OF SAFE DRIVING.

For driving 20 years without an accident, J. Beckwith, LEFT, was presented with a lapin by the Duke of Kent at a Safety First congress held in London, England. Back in 1918 the National Safety Association which was dispatched to the scene as soon as word of Gotch's crash was received. He was dead when the rescue airplane arrived. Incidentally the coastguard ship was on route to Alaska, where it will be stationed to prevent any trouble arising from alleged Japanese encroachment on American fishing grounds there.

First Association started a competition in driving, the best at the end of two decades to receive an award. Beckwith, a bus driver, and 20 of completed the 20 years with perfect slates and received their awards at the congress.

H. W. ACKERMAN PRAISED FOR WORK

Belleville Layman Re-Elected Chairman of Missionary Committee

Napanee, Ont., June 3 (CP)—Rev. Bruce Gray, recently appointed assistant secretary of home missions today made his first official visit and outlined conditions in the home missionary fields of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada. H. W. Ackerman of Belleville was commended on his service to the missionary and maintenance committee and unanimously reappointed its chairman.

The committee report showed $80,000 was subscribed in the appeal for the west and the $17 cars of foodstuffs and clothing sent forward.

Returns of the Presbyteries of the Bay of Quinte Conference to the missionary and maintenance fund: Belleville $19,972.82, Cobourg $12,-072.89, Kingston $21,805.77, Lindsay $11,412.54, Oshawa $20,042.98, Peterborough $18,597.71, Renfrew $17,501, totalling $120,033.80, a decrease of nearly $2,000 from the previous year.

Charges contributing to the M. and M. Fund $1,000 and over in 1936 made a total of $69,256 in 1937. In the same year 120 charges in the Bay of Quinte Conference paid as much or more than in 1936.

Gore

(Hedgerville)

Gore, June 3—The recent rains have greatly aided in the growth of everything which surely looks its best at present. The gardens and also the hay, grain, peas, etc., look very promising so far this coming year.

Sunday School and church were held at Centre Sunday morning with a fair attendance. There were 34 present at Sunday School. Collection amounting to $1.05. Mr. Frank Townsend read a very interesting story for Temperance on the effect of alcoholic beverages on animals as well as the human race. Mr. Gratton of Belleville was the special speaker for the morning service. His talk was very interesting and inspiring to those present. His talk being based on the Ontario Conference on Temperance Protest Act.

Foxboro

Foxboro—The activities of the Y. P. U. were brought to a close on Friday evening. The meeting opened by singing a hmn and Mrs. Hedley Alfred prayer. Mr. Leo Wilson then called the Misses Freida and Doris Horton to the front and the following address was read.—

Dear Mrs., Horton, Doris and Freida,—

We, the members of Foxboro Young People's Union have gathered here tonight for a social evening as we close our year's activities. Our enjoyment of mingling together is tinged with a certain sadness as we are called upon to bid farewell to you, and to the pleasant hours we have spent together. You, Mrs. Horton have been revered in our society, not only because you are the wife of our esteemed pastor, but for the high standard of living and of service you have maintained as our President. Very often we realized that the many tasks, you so conscientiously performed were for you a test physically. We were glad to have you and your family at our League meetings. The presence of our pastor was always an inspiration, and we trust girls, that you will continue to visit our Union whenever you are afforded the opportunity.

We know you, Doris have given the many inquisitive topics as well as impressive readings. We shall long remember your, faithfulness Freida as a willing worker amongst us. In the new field of labor, Mrs. Horton in which you and Mr. Horton have been called, we trust that you will enjoy your work with the young people. We know that another community will gain the benefit and pleasure of your assistance and companionship which we have enjoyed during the past three years. We can best show our appreciation of the family's work in these lines.—

"Your friendship we have highly prized,
Throughout the months and years;
You've been a part of all our joys,
And shared our trials and tears.
In every phase of Christian work,
Your best was freely given,
You've done your part to win
our hearts,
And point the way to Heaven."

It will be our prayer that you may long be spared to shed your influence for good upon those around you.

As a slight token of our love for you, and of our appreciation of your earnest efforts to do us good, we ask you to accept these gifts, trusting they may ever remind you of your friends at Foxboro.

Signed on behalf of Foxboro Union.

Mr. Reginald Scott and Misses Doris Dafoe and Verna Sherry then presented Mrs. Horton with a beautiful silver sandwich toaster and tray and each of the girls with a very pretty rose boudoir lamp. Both Mrs. Horton and the girls replied very feelingly, voicing their love for the Young People and appreciation of the gifts. Miss Marie Bartlette then asked Miss Freida Horton to again take a chair of honor and the following address was read.—

Dear Freida—We the teacher and members of the Gleaner's S.S. class have met to honor you, one of our members. It is with regret we learned of the circumstances which have made it impossible for you to be present in our class each Sunday.

As class president, you have been most efficient in discharging your duties—and at all times you have so willingly responded to any request we have made and we have thoroughly enjoyed the worship service which you conducted each Sunday.

Your presence has been an inspiration to us, and, we trust that with the use of your talents in your new profession, you may receive Heaven's blessing and success. May the S. S. lesson, discussions with which you have helped be a help and guide in your future life. We are pleased you are not leaving Belleville and trust you may often visit us in our homes and also in our class where you will always receive a cordial welcome. As a slight token of our love esteem and admiration for you, we ask you to accept this note paper, and may your mind ever revert to the pleasant associations you have had with the Gleaner's S. S. class.

Miss Maries Bartlette—Secretary.

Mrs. W. Hodgen—Teacher

Freida again replied, thanking the teacher and class for their kind remembrance. Miss Laura Cooke made the presentation of a large box of note paper. "For they are jolly good fellows" was heartily sung.

The respect and esteem in which Rev. Horton and family are held was evidenced by the large crown in attendance. The family in general will be greatly missed and their places hard to fill. A huge bon-fire, great then built in the school yard and a sing song enjoyed, followed by a weiner roast and cake. Games were played, and a very pleasant evening brought to a close.

Rev. F. Horton left on Wednesday morning to attend conference in Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Waller Prentice and daughters of Arnprior spent over Sunday at Mr. Frank Prentice's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson have moved in the home formerly occupied by the late Meiner Wickett.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sills were Sunday evening guests at Mr. Eric Denyer's, Plainfield.

Misses Verna and Marzer Iver of Plainfield spent the past week end with their grandmother, Mrs. A. Shaw.

Mr. Jim Stewart was removed by ambulance to the hospital on Sunday last.

Rev. L. S. Wight of Belleville occupied the pulpit in the United Church on Sunday.

COUNTY MEETING ORANGE LODGES

"Twelfth" Will be Celebrated at Shannonville This Year

Shannonville. — The various Orange lodges in the county were well-represented at a county meeting held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday night. During the evening business matters of a routine nature were adopted. The Twelfth of July celebration to be held in this village was discussed and apparently all lodges in the county will attend with the possibility that Prince Edward County will also be represented. Brother Fred Mitchell, master of the County presided at the meeting. A county church service will be held in Point Anne on July the tenth in the afternoon.

A feature of the evening's proceedings was the Degree team which initialed one of the Brethren into the lodge by the new ritual. Older Brethren were "Struck" by the splendid manner in which the young members of the degree team went through the various steps in the initiation. It was noted that nearly all members of the degree team were all young and apparently new members of the lodge. Miller Carl who supervised the Degree team was congratulated on splendid manner in which the team carried out the various steps.

Following the business period a delicious lunch was served which was thoroughly enjoyed by the members.

Personals

The United Church Mission Band held its monthly meeting in the United Church Hall on Monday night.

Mrs. Albert Mark, principal of the Anglican Church Sunday School was hostess to the teachers and pupils of that Sunday School on Tuesday evening. Approximately sixty teachers and pupils attended. During the evening various games were played and at the close a delicious lunch was served.

A number of the friends of Miss Freda Smith gathered at her home on Tuesday evening to extend their congratulations and best wishes on the occasion of her twenty-first birthday. During the evening dancing was enjoyed and at the close a delicious lunch was served. Miss Smith was the recipient of many beautiful presents.

Miss Martha Reid of Belleville, was a Tuesday evening caller in the village.

Miss Marcella Lewis, nurse-in-training at the Belleville General hospital is spending a three weeks vacation at the home of her father Mr. Marshall Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Bell and family, Mr. P. Badgley, Mrs. W. D. Elliott and sons Borden and Mackay of Belleville and Miss Grace Hume of Napanee, attended the impressive graduation exercises held in the Gananoque general hospital on Tuesday evening. Among those graduating were Miss Margaret Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell of the village.

Master Donald Marcon of Herchimer Avenue, Belleville, was the week-end guest of the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Pepper.

Driving too Slowly!

THIS MUST STOP!

When you drive too slowly your attention wanders—so does your car. When you're on a main highway—keep moving at a steady pace. If for any reason you must drive exceptionally slowly—keep well over to the right so that normal traffic can pass you easily and without danger or use the side roads leaving main highways unobstructed. A slow, inattentive driver is often just as dangerous as a recklessly speeding driver.

makes everyone attractive and you have the word of Chanel, well known clothes designer, that even homeliness, if properly dressed and groomed, has a rare attraction. And can't you name a few plain women that have something—chic, style, distinction, appeal—that mere pretty women lack?

Some years ago—and not so long ago—if a girl powdered her nose she had to go into the cellar to do it; makeup was considered shocking. Today it's highly becoming when it isn't applied with a trowel. A little goes a long way, and much is worse than none at all.

And grooming, of all gifts is that of putting people around you at their ease and making them comfortable. Certain people can walk in a room and throw everyone out of gear. You feel uncomfortable and on the defensive, your fur is rubbed the wrong way—you don't like her. Well, the gods overlooked such discomforting folks in the gift of magnetism, charm, or whatever you'd like to call it.

There Are Two Kinds of Vacations

Some people plan their vacation to have fun and excitement. Some plan it just to rest. If you are one of the latter, whose work takes every bit of available energy, maybe your vision is defective. COMPANY ONE AWARDS

At the closing activities of the First Belleville Company of Girl Guides it was announced that the winning patrol was the Bluebell, Leader Jean Thompson. Five girls earned tenderfoot badges—Joyce Coleman, Norma Vanner, Bernice Bunton, Eva Juby and Orlene Juby. Two girls won the child nurse badge—Dorothy Lasenby and Mary Thompson. Three finished their second class—Eva Juby, Orlene Juby and Joyce Coleman. Twenty-two girls received service stars. It was decided to change the color of ties from orange to blue.

SECOND COMPANY CLOSING

On Thursday afternoon, June 2nd, Second Belleville Company Girl Guides closed the year's work with a most enjoyable entertainment put on for friends and parents by the girls in St. Andrew's Sunday School rooms. Tea was served followed by a short play entitled "Surprise". Roll Call was taken after which the Guides formed a circle about a very realistic camp fire and gave several well rendered songs and the following program: piano solo composed and played by Joan Bennett, A recitation "Nothing to Laugh At" by Dora Bunton; a piano duet by Marion Lashbrook and Elinor Finkle; a talk on the origin and aims of Guiding by Mrs. M. E. Simms of Guiding in the Branscombe. In the presentation of prizes, service stars for seventy-five per cent. attendance throughout the year were presented to seventy-five Guides; to Rose patrol scoring the most number of points, Olive Gregory. Second Class badges were presented by Captain Mary Roberts to Phyllis Barlow, Jean Dafoe, Phyllis Dickens, Margaret Miller, Norma Morell, Fern Gregory, Dorcas Bird, Mary Desbury, Helen Douglas, Betty Cloke, Elinor Finkle, Marion Lashbrook. Proficiency badges were presented by Mrs. W. R. Bunton, Divisional Commissioner, as follows: —Laundress badge—Isabel Sharpe, Jean Sharpe, Barbara Baird, Helen Douglas and Dorothy Douglas. Cook's badge—Jean Sharpe, Barbara Baird; Knitter's badge—Isabel Sharpe. Minstrel's badge—Jean Sharpe. First Class badges were presented by Mrs. Branscombe to Jean Sharpe and Isabel Sharpe. The five year star was won by Norma Gregory. Evensong and Taps closed the meeting.

COMPANY THREE CLOSING

The closing meeting of the Third Belleville Company Girl Guides took the form of a supper meeting at the Tweed Camp on Dundas Street on Wednesday, June 1st. Company Leader Beverley Lee under the leadership of Mrs. Branscombe and her Tawny Owls was present and enjoyed games with the Guides. Following these scouts and stories were told, about a blue campfire. Mrs. Branscombe gave a most interesting story on a little Bakimo boy, who had come under the care of Dr. Grenfell of Labrador. Prizes were presented by Captain Dickie to Second Lieut. Audrey Licence. A pennant to the leader of the winning patrol to be held for a year, was won by the Honesty Patrol under the leadership of Mae Thomson. Prizes to the winning patrol and to the patrol with the second most number of points, the Silver Patrol under Noreen Sheridan. Second class badges—Helen Huffman, Norma Maher, June Donnelley. Service stars were won by Amy Campbell and five year stars were won by Dorothy Kean, Mary Aman, Peggy Webster, Betty Moult and Mae Thomson. A Reuenaun's pin was presented to Miss Betty Holland. As the fire died down, Taps was sung and the Guides departed to meet again at Camp in a month's time.

Jump Rope To Combat Excess Fat

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

For the price of a jumping rope a girl can lose her excess fat and make her dressmaker throw fits of joy. It's the easiest of exercises and it is home fun. It's not like doing calisthenics which all too often become a bore.

Jumping rope gives strict orders to blood streams to hop to and at ten. It pits respiration blooms in the cheeks and polishes the eyes. It does everything that the plump lady wants attended to: it reduces the "acreage" at the hips, thighs and waistline. The upswing of the arms will "snake" off fat cells that have collected on arms and shoulders. It will reduce an oversized bust and do well by it and it will have never developed. Does that sound inconsistent? It isn't. The exercise that reduces flesh will increase measurements because it brings conditions to normal. It slenderizes the plump darlings, fills out the slender ones.

If the heart thumps take a rest. Women who have passed the 40th birthday celebration must be on guard against heart strain.

Skipping rope is the best means of reducing large ankles. This beauty scourge is sometimes the result of wearing "spike" heels. Get lower ones and there will be a change for the better.

Without Blue, your cottons or linens (so white when new) take on a yellow tinge. To restore their lovely WHITENESS—just add a swish or two of Reckitt's Blue to the last rinse. No effort. Cost? A cent or two a month!

WALL STREET

New York, June 3 (AP)—Aircraft stocks again came into favor today and helped push the market leaders out of a severe spell of the doldrums. Near the fourth hour quotations were no worse than mildly mixed.

Canadian issues stuck to a narrow course. Practically lower were Dome and Doulbey Mc-Intyre Porcupine and Lake Shore edged forward. Canada 46 were in mild demand.

Among stocks accorded support were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing United Aircraft, U.S. Steel, Chrysler, U.S. Rubber, General Motors, Great Northern Preferred, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Edison, North American, Electric Power and Light and American Water Works were a shade in arrears:

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 3—Gold stocks were in demand from the opening and they registered a substantial index advance for soon on Toronto Stock Exchange on much improved volume. Industrials were a bit lower and the base metals and western oils were unchanged in the average.

Kerr-Addison helped to around 1.63 and gained a new all up for O'Brien. Hard Rock, Perron, East Malartic and MacLeod Cockshutt.

Waite Amulet again featured the base metals, rising 3.30 on the active trading. Only part of the gain was held as the market slowed down in the early afternoon.

In the western oils, Okalta, Calgary-Edmonton, Anglo-Canadian and Davies firmed a little as the session advanced.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford By Financial Service

MARKET COMMENT

The fact that the majority of opinions are so bearish on the market outlook is encouraging for the reason that stocks very seldom follow the trend generally expected of them. It will be recalled that last summer everyone was looking for a better market after Labor Day and what happened? The big break set in immediately after Labor Day. The downward trend lasted for several months and then talk was heard of a better market after the turn of the year. We are still awaiting the "better market.

So one cannot be blamed for becoming encouraged when all the people similar talk around. It is never quite as bad as many picture the situation to be. Canada boasts a number of factors that preclude a prolonged depression as "when and how crop be a good one and satisfactory export markets prevail. Dominion could enjoy a very rapid comeback and the pessimists would turn to ardent optimists overnight.

While the level of business activity in the U.S. continues its downward trend the Canadian index in general business turned up in April states the June Investment Letter of McLeod Young, Weir & Co. Ltd. Those who are regarded as experts in charting the future, now are of the opinion that U.S. business will show only modest improvement this Fall, which improvement may gather momentum throughout 1939.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 3.—Trading continued active on the Canadian Commodity Exchange. The egg market was easier, with fresh receipts in city daily bringing lower levels on top grades, and with small lots of the current week also were reduced by jobbing houses. The butter market also had an easier tone. British buyers were continued to buy Canadian eggs for prompt shipment, with export inquiry for autumn shipment a little quieter. Receipts of live fowl and broilers are increasing with general playing prices unchanged. Receipts were 1,618 cases of eggs, 2 boxes of butter and 3,933 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Butter sales at the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 200 boxes of finest creamery scores at 29 2-8c and 100 at 25 1-4c, with cooking prices posted at 25 1-4c trades about the creamery 92 score, 24 1-4c to 24 5-8c for Quebec seconds 38 score, 24 1-2c to 24 5-8c for Quebec last week's make.

Offerings were more plentiful on the egg market and graded shipments in used-free cases were selling on spot, fi 25 1-2c for A-large, 24c for A-medium, 22-23 1-2c for B and 21 1-2c for C. Offerings at the Commodity Exchange were as 25 1-2c, 24c, 22 1-2c and 21 1-2c respectively.

Yanks Draw Closer to Indians By Winning Twin Bill From Detroit Tigers at the Stadium

Schoolboy Rowe Optioned to Beaumont to Heal Arm

CUBS LOSE GROUND

Boston Bees Gain by Downing Cubs by 6-2 Count

By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer)

They said so long to the Schoolboy today—one of the grander guys in this baseball business.

They'll remember Schoolboy Rowe for his "Now'm I doin' mine?" They'll remember him pitching Detroit Tigers to pennants in 1934 and 1935.

And remember him, too, working his heart out this spring trying to come back, trying to overcome an arm ailment that specialists had been laboring over for more than a year.

But it was just no go for the Schoolboy. For four or five innings the arm held up, although little of the snap was left. Then it went out. Three times this spring he took the long walk to the showers. His head was there, but that right wing couldn't finish what it started.

So yesterday, the Tigers sent him back to Beaumont, from where he skyrocketed to the top in 1933. They hope the warm, sunny climate of the southwest may restore the life and zip to the salary whip.

And in Schoolboy Rowe, you have, largely, the picture of the disappointments in the Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit Dynamiters in this year's American League wars.

The Tigers had shown their first considered running effort of the season when they headed east. With their stop Yankee stadium, where pitches is the No. 1 need of every visiting outfit. With Schoolboy, they flopped cold in the series opener Wednesday.

Yankees Win Two

But yesterday, Mickey sent Popi Poffenberger and submarine baller Elden Auker to the post and neither had it. The Yanks won both ends of a doubleheader, 5-3 and 8-2and Chandler turning in a six-hit effort and Red Rolfe whacking a homer, and 5-2, with Monte Pearson hurling his best game of the season, a five hitter. Tommy Henrich and Billy Knickerbocker supplied the home-run production.

That left the Tigers with a less-than-.500 average for the season again, and boosted the Yanks up to within 2 1-2 games of the American League leading Cleveland Indians. The Tribe outlasted the Athletics in a battle of home runs in Philadelphia and posted a 10-5 victory.

The piece-meeting Giants in the National League were rained out in Pittsburgh, but played a split in a game anyway as the second-place Chicago Cubs lost a 6-2 affair to Boston, Johnny Lanning relieving Bill Shoffner in the second inning, hurling shutout ball the rest of the way.

Homers by Ernie Koy and Cookie Lavagetto featured an 11-5 win for Brooklyn over Cincinnati Reds, Lucky Modwick collected four hits, three of them doubles, to pace the Cardinals to a 12-5 victory over the Phillies.

Dutch Leonard pitched a six-hitter as the Senators swamped the Chicago White Sox 7-1, and young Jim Bagby displayed his old style in hurling the Red Sox to a 6-1 win over St. Louis Browns.

STILL CAN BE HIT WITH RIGHT HAND

Joe Louis Down to Serious Work For Bout With Schmeling

New York, June 3—(AP)— Joe Louis, the cool champion who doesn't appear to be in any active danger from Henry Armstrong's welterweight title, is well along in his training for his combat with Max Schmeling on June 22.

Joe moved into the Pompton Lakes camp the night Armstrong entered, and he already has boxed 18 rounds, not to mention some 50 miles of road work. The big Negro is down to 205 pounds, and he intends to lop off only about three more before he meets the man who knocked him silly two summers ago.

He's in fine mood, and the "baby" look has disappeared entirely from his round face.

The principal thing a visit to the camp reveals is that Joe still can hit with a right hand. Sandwich Dean, a big, willing Black, cracked the champion's jaw resounding swats in the course of two outdoor rounds yesterday, and the Basher scarcely has as good a right as Schmeling's.

TROUBLE FOLLOWS BALTIMORE CLUB

Many Players Injured And a Few on Suspended List

By the Associated Press

Rocky Crouse, the Baltimore blower of the International League, must be longing for the comparative peace and quiet of a glass factory as trouble continues to follow his harassed ball club.

Rocky's woe began early in the season when Lefty Carl Flacher broke an arm, and the injury jinx has been flinging slice, touching among others, outfielders Frank Demaree, Ab Wright, Charleston Nolan Richardson, and pitcher Harry Matuszak.

Now Crouse watches the suspensions handed to a few of the remaining players, and the current seven-game losing streak which has sent the Birds from second to seventh place in the league, a week, and you get a picture of what Crouse has had to contend with.

Rollie Stiles, veteran right-hander of the Baltimore staff, pitched record No. 7 on the Orioles yesterday as he held them to five hits to win 4-1.

The triumph moved the Jerseys into fifth place and sent Syracuse to sixth as the champion Newark Bears eged out the Chiefs 7-6 for their sixth straight victory. Jersey while Buffalo Bisons strengthened their grip on second place by whipping Rochester 4-1 and the Montreal Royals defeated Toronto 7-6 to end a six-game losing streak.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Opening Clubface

From expert to duffer and back again the closing of the clubface brings no end of trouble. I have struggled with pupils who dropped the left shoulder while taking the club back and allowed the back of the left hand to face the ground, and I have fussed with experts who slighted the left hand in starting the club away from the ball so that the clubface would close even before the downswing had started.

I say this; I have struggled and fussed at those players because, in some cases, they feel that it is impossible to overcome the fault, in others they argue that a slight closing of the face in the backswing does no harm because it can be corrected or compensated for before the clubhead strikes the ball.

Your best swing can be made only when the clubface has the appearance of opening up as it moves back from the ball. I don't mean by this that you should turn the blade back in the first move you make, but I do mean that your left arm and hand should push the club away with the back of the left hand turning more and more toward the right as the wind-up progresses.

This same thing should be done with all shots, from the longest to the shortest.

TWELVE RINKS IN MEN'S TOURNEY

Monthly Competition For Men at Bowling Green

With twelve rinks in common competition, Inter-club lawn bowling will be inaugurated at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club this evening in a monthly round robin tournament of men's rinks. Club officials met yesterday and decided on the various skips, vice-skips and other members of the twelve teams selected, retaining a few players as reserve players, who will be eligible to play whenever a vacancy is unduly necessary upon the scheduled nights of play.

This evening and each succeeding Friday night throughout the month club games of the men's rinks tourney will be featured at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club with the club awarding prizes to the ultimate winner of the tournament. Forty-eight players were selected, with 17 other players being placed on the reserve list as "extra players" to be used in case of emergency. The players are all members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

The four rinks of the team players selected were announced by Mr. E. Zeran, chairman of the games committee of the local Lawn Bowling Club. With the first rink named in each quartette listed as the skip the teams will be composed of the following:—G. H. Holman, A. E. Gle, J. A. Richards, Wm. Anderson; H. Holland, M. J. Vasseur, C. Walshe, D. Campbell; B. J. Slack, L. E. McLean, Geo. Hudson; Wm. C. Woodley, J. Shaw, H. Cross, H. Lennox; R. Mitchell, R. Middleton, G. McGee, W. Chappiani; H. Thompson, E. W. Vannest, Herl. Wilbur, W. Sands; W. Belair, R. J. Dewar, H. Runnes, C. R. Clapp; E. Calcher, Russ Woodley, C. Davis, G. H. Waters-house; Fred Harper, E. Zeran, G. Hales, Tmos. Hales, Harry Bennett, Rev. R. S. Wight; Harry Sloan, A. Backus, N. E. Edwards, F. Correl, A. Woonacott, Alf Symons, Harvey Stewart, Andy Williamson.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Spud Chandler, Red Rolfe and Monte Pearson, Yankees—Chandler pitched six hitter and Rolfe hit homer with two others on base as Gayer, no doubt as shifty around the centre ice lane as ever, would be a great help to a team that is willing, fast skating forwards and if all it looks as though we might have something after all.

Percy John Shaw's lawn bowlers will inaugurate a new series tonight. The local lawn bowlers have introduced a men's club tournament of rinks, to be played on Friday evening throughout June. Twelve rinks of local players have been chosen and will commence their competition this evening. Such tourneys keep interest aroused within the club proper.

Umpire Cal Hubbard, one of the greatest linemen in the history of football, obviously has gained a lot of insight into the problems of umpiring since he joined the American League, as indicated by the philosophy he expressed about his job to Daniel M. Daniel of the New York World-Telegram.

"The secret of umpiring lies in your ability to make yourself a part of the background," Hubbard said. 'I do not believe a fan ever has paid a dime to see an umpire work. The idea that an umpire must have voice, that he must do things to attract attention, sounds nutty to me. I believe it is wise to concentrate on the play and not on the players.

"Another feature of the trade in knowing how much to hear. I have been in athletics all my life and I know the reaction of the man who plays hard and thinks he has got the worst of a decision. You've got to take a little ass. But when a player curses you out, there is no option. He has to go.

"Thousands of men could go out on a field and call strikes and decisions on the bases. But the true marvel of umpiring lies in combining good judgment with the ability to handle men. Don't get the idea that your umpire's misfortune gives you the right to throw things. Stiles is that and the player won't abuse you."

Plans are practically completed to stage a memorial baseball game for the late Bob Greer at Picton next month. The Bright's A.C. team, composed of former members of the late Pat Downing's section in Toronto have consented to go to Picton and meet Picton interests-ists in this memorial game, as Roy Downing, son of the late Pat Downing, is a close friend of the late Bob Greer's and several other friends of Greer's are lined up with Bright's squad. It has been proposed that a plaque be erected in Wellington in memory of the memory of Bob Greer, one of the finest Christian gentlemen and sportsmen and will no doubt meet with the popular favour of all sport-loving persons who knew Bob Greer. Perhaps the local interludies could persuade the Toronto team to stop off in Belleville and play an exhibition game here en-route home.

Joe Legault informs us the annual Quinte Cup golf competition will be held on the Belleville Golf Club on June 29th this year. Picton, Napanee, Trenton and Belleville clubs will be competing. The Belleville course has been strengthened in yardage until today it is of standard length for a nine hole course.

Yesterday was 'moving day' in the big leagues with some sensational news breaking. GRAHAMS GARAGE TEAM WALLOPED

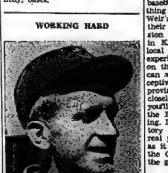
Yourex Billiards Easily Win Trenton Loop Fixture 21-2

Trenton, June 3 (Special)—Pulling entirely to one side in an earlier defeat at the hands of Yourex Billiards, their only town rivals in the Trenton Softball Association, Grahams Garage nine, last year's T.S.A. champs, absorbed a terrific 21-2 lacing in seven innings at Bayshore Park here on Wednesday evening. Earlier in the season when the two teams first met Grahams were on the small end of a 12-1 score, and at the time they vowed to reverse the count when they met their rivals again; but errors afield and heavy and timely hitting by the Yourex aggregation resulted in an overwhelming score for the artists of the cue. Yourex led from the second half of the first inning when Grahams took, last year with one of Belleville's smoothest clubs and this year employed in town and playing in Trenton again after a lapse of a number of years, and Vic Hurst crossed the plate to half a pair as against a lone Graham counter in their half.

The big blow-up came in the fifth, however, when with Yourex already leading 7-2 their batters pounced on the offerings of Leo Coughlin for twelve runs, nine of the 8 scored before a man was retired. Donald Acker relieved Coughlin and in his first effort on the mound performed steadily if not brilliantly. Hits, hurling for the winners, was on top of the heap at six hits, and also received excellent support at all times. The same two teams meet four more times during the season and fans will be watching the outcome of the feud with great interest.

Friday's bill of fare for the softball enthusiasts consists of a meeting between Corporal "Casey" Regan's battering Airmen and a game at Wooler, the first game of the season there between Grahams and the plucky Wooler nine.

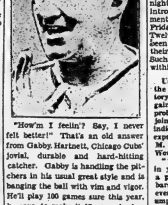
Score by innings:



Grahams: ..... 101 000 0— 2
Yourex ..... 203 412 0 —21

Grahams: Miller c; Gray 2b; Anderson ss; Hyde 1b; Maffey lf; Forster cf; LaMorre 3b; Coughlin p; Drake rf.

Yourex: Emerson rf; Cain 1b; Cook ss; Burtt cf; Bill 2b; Bell lf; Bowden 3b; Morin 2b; Steinburg c.



Umpires: Carswell, plate; Kennedy, bases.

WORKING HARD

When Rollicking Rollie Hemsley, regular catcher for the speeding Cleveland Indians, split his fingers, the work of handling the very excellent mound corps of Oscar Vitt fell to the lot of Frank Pytlak. Pytlak, no stranger to the job, was the regular mask and mit man until the Indians secured Hemsley from the Browns.

HARYNETT HAPPY

"How'm I feelin'? Say, I never felt better!" That's an old answer from Gabby Hartnett, Chicago Cubs' jovial, durable and hard-hitting catcher. Gabby is handling the pitchers in his usual great style and is banging the ball with vim and vigor. He'll play 100 games sure this year, he says, to make it 13 years he has done so, and break the mark set by Ray Schalk of the White Sox.

Old Jupiter Pluvius dampened the aspirations of the Kiwanis Jubilees last evening, as their opening game of softball fiction was rained out. The rainmaker seems to have somewhat of a jinx over the local baseball set-up, having choked both current ball openers. When postponing the game yesterday Coach "Shab" Barrett suggested it be played next Monday evening here and the suggestion was given every consideration by Manager Lockyer of the Jubilees. Skipping over baseball bug-dirtly about the only thing unpublished is the fact Alex Weir's hopefuls are slated to play their return game with the Kingston "Lons" at the Cricket Field in Kingston this evening. To the baseball diamonders, who have never experienced the tariff of playing on the Kingston Cricket Field, we can warn them it is the most despised ground in this part of the province. Add the fans crowding closely around the case lines and you'll have the complete setting the Belleville kids face this evening. If the locals haul home a victory we'll admit they have some real pumpkins as a baseball team, as it is hard to beat Kingston on the Cricket Field at any stage of the game.

Although it may be slightly out of season, we're going in for a little bit of hockey. We can laid "Larry" Gayer, native of this city and former leading scorer in the American hockey league, recently and crack out of the bag Larry pops up with—"How about getting me my amateur card back I want to be reinstated and play some hockey here next winter," quoth Larry, which happened to be food for thought. Gayer has been out of professional hockey for two full seasons and is naturally eligible for possible reinstatement as an amateur. Then there's "Toots" Holway, former Montreal Maroon and ex-miner who has also did not play any professional hockey last winter but very little time in competing. The Belleville course has been strengthened in yardage until today it is of standard length for a nine hole course.

Expenses were so much lessened by this that Gloria could begin to contemplate with satisfaction a growing bank account. She and Jimmy need pay no bills at the sanatorium; she changed herself with Carmela's board, as she charged against every nurse in the institution, but it was trifling, and, for the rest, laundry, food, lodgings, telephone, light, water, rent were all included in her prerogatives as superintendent. Two hundred dollars monthly rent for the little Spanish farmhouse was just so much more clear gain, for taxes were absurdly low and the mortgage had long been wiped out.

With Jimmy and Carmela always close to her, Gloria's occasional illnesses were infinitely lessened and her joy in the child doubled. She could have her boy in her own room in the cold mornings while the radiator clanked reluctantly and gas-winter dark—lifted from the gardens, the roofs of the village. And the slatternly cold left her. Fifteen minutes of romping with Jimmy left both in high spirits, breathless.

"My mother hears you two shouting in the mornings," Kari told her, "and says to me, 'There are those children again!'"

"We wake her up? We'll have to be quieter," Gloria said, but looked grave and concerned.

"No, no, no; she is already having coffee as, server."

"If we do ever bother her, Kari, you'll tell me?"

"Certainly I'll tell you! But you'll never bother her."

Gloria was always dressed early and upon her rounds, questioning, inspecting, making suggestions and giving directions. She joined Jimmy and Carmela in breakfast at eight; afterwards she had a hundred duties, and Jimmy went down with Max and the truck and was dropped at the Sunshine Nursery School at nine. When he came in, breathless from great adventure, after the walk up the hill with "Carmela at two" o'clock, he and his mother shared their lunch; then Carmela took charge of Jimmy to walk with him to the Baggley's, and Gloria took a luxurious nap if she was tired and a walk if she was not. Karl had fallen into the habit of joining her for tea, now that the first mile of the walk. When Gloria turned he went on with it, a square rapidly moving figure in his old belted raincoat and cap, among the yellows and red greens and browns of the hills and fields. Every few weeks there was cause for her a peculiar glory. It touched everything in life; the step of Max while buckskin shoes on the iridescent tiles of the sanatorium and the shine of the sun on the galvanized winter window, the brushing sound of Martin's broom, the wet leaves on the terrace, the fleeting odor of bacon and coffee that drifted into the big, bright dining room in the morning.

She had admitted, somewhat earlier, that Karl Pitcher's dynamic personality had made a great difference in her life, as every other person's presence here, as it would be anywhere. She had watched, with that intense reverence which the conscious use of power always awakened in her, the movements of his fine, trained hands, the impressions that changed so rapidly on his absorbed face. She had known his angry moods, his impatiences; moods, his unreasonable moods; she had known, when a lonely child's heart his still was, hungry for affection, starved for the intimacies of home and love.

For months Gloria had known this man at close range; it was inevitable that propinquity should do its work. She knew now that it was her feeling for Karl which was leveling enchantment to earth that had blotted out every other feeling. That he loved her she had every reason to suspect. He had never spoken of it, nor had she. But it glowed between them like some wonderful jewel which they might hide in their hands, but which each knew was there, ready to sparkle out in full glory the moment they turned to it.

Gloria, even in her own thoughts, would go no further than that; that into her heart had come an

STOMACH PAIN

If you have gnawing stomach pains between meals, your case is something like that of Mr. A. B., of Ontario. For ten years he suffered from these nagging stomach pains between meals. During all this time he had tried dozens of remedies without relief. Finally he took Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. "From the first dose I felt like a new man," he writes. "Every time these pains come on I take a dose or two of Maclean Brand and in a minute or two they have vanished."

When you get these pains in your stomach, or gas, dyspepsia or heartburn get you in great discomfort, your trouble is an acid condition. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is used in leading British hospitals, counteracts this condition. It relieves the pain almost instantly. Get a bottle of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder today. Use it for the next few days. If you are not entirely satisfied with the results you receive Maclean Brand Stomach Powder

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

We was sailing supper and ma said to pop, You seem to be in a high good humor this evening, Willyum.

I am, I've been in a high good humor all day, and I shouldn't be a bit surprised if it carried over till tomorrow, pop said. The traffic cop is no doubt feeling just the opposite, he said, and me said, Why, what happened, what traffic cop, Willyum?

The big red faced overbearing Cossack who has humbled me in the dust a half a dozen times for alleged violations of traffic regulations, pop said. I was sailing along at peace with the world and in perfect control of the wheel, when this Cossack holds his hand up for me to stop, he said, and ma said, O Willyum you must of gone and passed a red signal, why cant you be more observant?

Suffer me to tell my story in my own way, pop said. There I sat cringing in my seat and waiting to be called an ignorant criminal and a potential murderer and a blot on the fair surface of the highway, and this Cossack leaned his towering bulk against the door and fixed me with his horrible steely eyes, and I managed to falter, Well, officer, I'm afraid I must of failed to hear your whistle or something, and with that he opened his awful gash of a mouth and said, O no, nothing like that, you was driving perfect, I just wanted to ask you to buy me of these tickets off of me for the policemens and firemens games.

Well, that was a pleasant surprise, me said, and pop said, It was the chance of a lifetime. Look here, you, I said to the Cossack, look here, I said to him what do you mean by deserting your post of duty to stop a busy man on such a flimsy pretext? It's hunk heads like you that cause the very accidents you're supposed to prevent, you lunkhead, I told him pop said. Now Willyum I'm sure you're exagerating did you buy a ticket from him? ma said and pop said, I cant remember.

Properly meaning yes.

TAXATION ONLY BARRIER TO REAL ESTATE

Windsor, Ont., June 3 (CP) — Advocating a definite limitation of taxes on real estate as a means of restoring confidence and employment, John R. Laidlaw, Toronto, Executive Secretary of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, told a meeting of Windsor Real Estate Board here last night a definite point of optimism exists in Windsor and throughout Ontario.

No better opportunities for worthwhile investments in real estate ever existed than at present, despite the alleged unfair taxation, he added.

MAY STUDY MACKINDAY FOR PEAT BOG DIGGING

Ottawa, June 3 (CP)—The government will consider Polly say defrals request for application of its facilities to conduct research into development of suitable types of machinery for production of low cost fuel from Canadian peat bogs, Gordon Grayden (Ont. Peel) was informed yesterday.

A reply to his query on the matter, cabled by Rosaverea Minister Cirerne, disclosed several investigations in the question had been undertaken since 1910 but none was underway at present.

NUNS HUNT ANCIENT TREASURE

Nuns of the Home of the Compassion of Jesus at Thanet, England, are shown in the basement of the thousand-year-old convent, digging for treasure by the light of bicycle lamps. Three "divi-ners" sensed the location of buried treasure, and, as the convent needs funds, the sisters set to uncover it themselves. The House of Compassion is one of the oldest in England. It was mentioned in the famous Doomsday Book of William the Conqueror.

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWO SPECTATORS AT GOLF TOURNEY

Oil Tank Explodes When Hit by Bolt, Killing Two

KILLED BY RADIO WIRE

Many Business Buildings And Homes Wrecked by Winds

Wichita Falls, Tex., June 4—(AP)—Tornadic winds, lightning and hail killed five persons and wreaked heavy crop and property damage in widely separated portions of Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri yesterday and last night.

Explosion of an oil tank ignited by lightning killed Joe Battle, 36, and John Spell, 38, employees of the Mackanna Oil Company, at Sheiding, Tex. A. H. Marx, another lineman, was injured seriously.

In Kansas City lightning killed two spectators at the $5,000 Kansas City open golf tournament, William D. Boyle, contractor, and E. M. Critchfield, a credit manager. Several others were injured.

Aerial Blown on Electric Wire

Hubert Arlen Thomas Jr. sir, was electrocuted at Lawton, Okla., when he walked into a radio aerial which had blown across a high tension line.

Tornadoes centred their fury in the Wichita Falls area and northward into Oklahoma.

At Wichita Falls, at least 10 persons were injured, one seriously, and many derricks were toppled by a tornado which swept over the oil field section. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Many Homes Wrecked

At Grandfield, Okla., near the Texas line a tornado levelled five brick business buildings and from 20 to 30 homes. Two homes were cut by flying glass. Power lines in the vicinity were blown down and the town of 1,000 population was plunged into darkness.

At Claremore, in northeast Oklahoma, wind and hail stones disrupted electric service and smashed windows.

Photograph Loch Ness Monster Plan of Navy Officer's Expedition

London, June 4—(CP)— The Loch Ness monster, as uniformally fled as British Columbia's cadecosaurus, has flashed into the news again with an announcement by Captain D. J. Munro of the Royal Navy that he is organizing an expedition to photograph it.

Captain Munro, a noted big game hunter, will take a battery of cameras to Loch Ness, set them up in conjunction with flash lights and numerous other devices designed to render it impossible for the monster to escape unphotographed.

The monster, or something in Loch Ness, was photographed in 1933. The picture, given wide publication, showed a projection above the water that looked like the dorsal fin of a whale.

Captain Munro's project led a columnist in Liverpool Post to dig through his paper's morgue and find that since 1933 "eyewitnesses" have reported the monster.

Has a small head, a big hairy head, a head like a cow's with horns, a head like a goat's with the horns sawed off, fishs mouth, two humps, no humps, one fin, no fins, two fins, the head of the shape of a whale, not the shape of a whale, is eight, 12, 20, 30, 40, 45 feet long.

Leases of Mineral Rights on Indian Reserves Considered

Ottawa, June 4—(CP)— Charges of public money being used for benefit supporters of the government, brought up in previous occasions by opposition leader Bennett, again are before the House of Commons.

Climaxing a day of much debate but little progress with discussions over Indian Reserves, transportation and national defence, Mr. Bennett last night charged the deputy Minister of "defence, Col. L. R. LaFleche, with having injected a conservative's tender for coal supplies at Kingston, although it was the lowest.

Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie immediately took full responsibility and declared his deputy minister was the most self-sacrificing and able deputy of his experience. His promotion was due.

The Only Thee

Admitting the tender of James Richardson & Company had been rejected, although lowest, the minister said it was the only time it had happened since he had been in office and it was because of reports unfavorable to the firm.

Mr. Bennett demanded full information and has inhibited prom-

Republic Prepared to Reduce And Limit Arms With Others

Washington, June 4 (AP)— The United States, condemning bombing of civilians, offered co-operation with other nations today in "humanizing" rules of warfare.

Willingness and desire of the United States to join in such an effort was expressed by State Secretary Cordell Hull in a significant address on foreign affairs in Nashville, Tenn., last night. He also announced the readiness of the United States, just beginning a huge naval armament program, to reduce and limit armaments instead if other nations will do the same.

Welles' Statement

A few hours before Hull's address, Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, had denounced in Washington here the bombings in Spain and China which have killed thousands of women and children. Welles voiced such warfare "barbarous" and added:

"Any general bombing of an extensive area wherein there reside a large population unengaged in peaceful pursuits is contrary to every principle of law and humanity."

manville.

The commission appointed to administer proceeds of the John Street United Church, Belleville, which was destroyed by fire, reported this morning, that more than $8,000 was now in a fund in the bank but some difficulty was being experienced in getting a clear title to the property owing to the scattered place of residence of a number of the small bondholders. It is proposed to put the entire proceeds in a trust fund, the interest to be used in support of some local activity. The committee expects to realize about $10,000.

2,000 KILLED OR INJURED IN TWO RAIDS ON CANTON

Cut Short by Rain, Which Caused Poor Visibility

TERROR AND PANIC

Thousands in City Fled Madly to Shelter

Canton, China, June 4—(CP-Havas)—More than 2,000 persons were killed or injured in devastating Japanese air raids today, a casualty list higher than any recorded for a single day since the Japanese started their attacks last Saturday, initial estimates indicated.

The Japanese air force carried out two raids on the south China metropolis. The first centred on the naval yards, the Canton-Kowloon railway terminal and government buildings.

Eight Bombers in Raid

This raid, made by eight bombers, was cut short by rain which caused temporary poor visibility. About 30 bombs were dropped.

The second raid was carried out by an armada of 36 machines. They swept over the city in three terrific punishment on many quarters, particularly the Saichuen sector.

The crash of bombs and the high explosive were followed by terror and panic among the native population. Thousands fled madly for shelter.

Death List Higher

The number of victims, according to initial reports, is considerably less than was higher than the death list last weekend when 750 persons were killed and 1,300 injured.

Finally anti-aircraft batteries got into the range of the raiders shooting up an effective curtain of fire which eventually dispersed the three squadrons of bombers.

Today, Tilliman, a far eastern correspondent for the London Daily Express, only just escaped death with injury. Several bombs dropped less than 100 yards from Governor Wu Tieh-Chenis dispute, before Mr. Tilliman, who is a well-known author, had taken refuge during the raids.

FAMED ACADEMY IN PICTOU N. S. A GUTTED RUIN

Loss is Estimated at $75,000 And Covered by Insurance

RELICS REMOVED

Pictou, N.S., June 4—(CP)—Pictou's famed academy was a gutted ruin today after a fire yesterday, thought starting in a restaurant and wrecked damage estimated at $75,000. Greater part of the loss was covered by insurance.

The fire broke out while classes were in session. The 300-odd students in the building evacuated it without disorder, and were assisted the local fire department in removing valuable instruments, books and relics from the laboratories, classrooms and museum.

The building was erected in 1880. It was struck by lightning and burned six years later, and was rebuilt in 1886. The original building used as the academy from its founding in 1816 until 1880, became celebrated school after that date and was razed in 1930.

Opened in 1816

Pictou academy was opened in 1816 under Dr. William McCulloch, later first president of Dalhousie University. Despite opposition from the provincial government at the time, it flourished and attained an enviable reputation as one of the first non-sectarian university on the continent.

So many famed educationists passed through its halls it became known as "the mother of university presidents."

Among university presidents who were proud to mention it as their alma mater were Sir William Dawson, one-time president of McGill University, and George Gordon, a president of Queen's University.

SPECIAL REPORT CRITICIZES WORK OF DEPARTMENT

Auditor Says Report Received Lists of Commission

HEPBURN TO TESTIFY

Toronto, June 4—(CP)—Legislative investigation of Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission affairs stood adjourned today with attention centred on testimony concerning a report on the commission's accounting-department methods. The special report criticized the department.

W. M. Holland Pettit, head of the accounting firm of Cecar Hodson and Company, Toronto auditors, told a special committee of the Ontario legislature yesterday that the report, which he had signed, was the first ever commissioned while the spring. "I was told Mr. Hepburn wanted that report gone over," he said.

Premier Hepburn last night denied any connection with preparation of the report. "I issued no instructions or intimations of any kind to anyone concerning it," he said. "I know nothing about them; they were never brought to my attention. And I have never concerned myself with the accounting branch of Hydro."

Premier to Testify

Mr. Hepburn added: "I'm just waiting until I can get in the witness box and clear the air on a lot of matters. I'll have considerable to say, too."

Sitting since last Monday, the committee was formed after Leo-Gerald Macaulay, Conservative house leader, charged the Premier "misled the House in last fall's election campaign. Mr. Hepburn, while publicly advocating a "back-to-Hydro" campaign, at the time was negotiating for renewal of cancelled power contracts, Mr. Macaulay said.

For more than four days the committee heard testimony relating to the contracts, cancelled by the legislature in the fall of 1937, when provision of certain clauses and prices, last December, T. Stewart Lyon, Toronto barrister chairman, and Clarence W. Rosbuck, former attorney-general, were members of the Commission, and others gave evidence.

Cost Reflections Is Claim

Reference to the auditor's report was also made by some witnesses during the week-end. Mr. Pettit said reports of the auditor "contained reflections on the accounting department". It was prepared in 1937 at the request of A. Murray Mackinnon, then secretary and comptroller of the commission.

One paragraph withdrawn had said the accounting staff in a large measure should be changed because they had neither the theoretical nor the practical knowledge and experience necessary to cope with their work.

TERRIFYING DAYS' SPENT BY COUPLE IN NAZI PRISON

Mr. And Mrs. Stewart Bennett of Toronto Glad to be in "Free Country"

INVESTIGATION BEGUN

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Germany, June 4 (Sunday)— After spending three "terrifying days" in jail in Salzburg, Austria, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bennett of Toronto have returned to England, happy, they said, to "be once again in a "free country."

On his arrival in London Mr. Bennett reported his experiences to the Canadian High Commissioner's office which is investigating all the circumstances.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett who are residing at the Surrey estate of relatives, declined to discuss their experiences with the Austrian authorities, dismissing inquiries with "we prefer not to talk about the present."

Det. of Bread And Black Coffee

Mr. Stewart' cousin, R. Bennett, added in London that the couple had merely the incident and the family were satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the High Commissioner's office.

It was learned, however, that Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were sightseeing at Salzburg when suddenly they were arrested by policemen who marched them off to jail. There they were interrogated and later locked in separate cells.

During the three days they were held incommunicado they were given a diet of bread and black coffee. They were never released without any reason for their detention being given.

The High Commissioners office refused to go into details of the case and admitted Mr. Bennett had "called."

SCOTLAND YARD BUSY CHECKING 200,000 ALIENS

Officers Question 50 a Day Find Some Who Have Stayed Since Coronation

PORTS ARE WATCHED

London, June 4—(CP)—The special branch of Scotland Yard, co-operating with the Home Office, has now checked a thorough check of aliens residing in the United Kingdom who are estimated to number around 200,000.

Officers are questioning an average of 50 a day and have found many for whom they are searching, gone to the country last year for the coronation, renewed their visas last November and have neglected to renew them again.

Immigration officials also are keeping a closer watch for aliens entering at British ports, particularly because of the influx of foreign refugees are seeking entry after leaving European countries.

Scotland Yard

At the end of last year British police records showed registration of 193,653 aliens compared with 186,988 in 1936. Last year 535,874 aliens entered British compared with 1,000,000 and a difference of 11,459

Immigration figures by major nationalities for 1937 with departure figures bracketed: United States 128,153 (128,000), French 81,730 (82,732), German 30,236 (78,261), Austrian 18,722 (11,810).

Officials are keeping a close watch for aliens seeking to enter the country without legitimate reason. More than 50 a week are rejected.

Bishop Couturier said "the soul is the principal thing in life." Doctors had great opportunities of living the young their first steps in the fundamentals of health, "but the fundamentals of health do not only the health of the body but the strength of the soul."

Dr. Pearl Summerfeldt who is nursing at Kingston, Ont., and is married, was presented with a silver tray.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Wettes, and driest months! In this country June is one of the wettest months of the year, except on the Pacific coast. The Mississippi Valley, except along the Gulf, is in the wettest, or second, frequency of thunderstorms. The driest months are usually in the spring or fall, but are more scattered throughout the year than the wettest months, except in the extreme Southwest and the West Coast, where the summer season is the driest. Excepting the West Coast, the driest months for rainfall are fairly uniform. The variation of rainfall throughout the year is not explained by any single factor but by several.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 4—Very light scattered showers occurred over Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba but the weather in the Prairie provinces has been fair and moderately warm. It has been moderately warm from the Great Lakes eastward to the Maritimes with showers occurring in scattered areas. A moderate disturbance is centred in the northward of Lake Superior and pressure is low off the Labrador coast and over the Northwest Territories but high over New England States and the western portion of the eastern.

Lake Superior — Fresh winds, shifting to northwest with thundershowers over east portion, today; moderate to fresh westerly winds, fair and moderately warm.

FIRES EAT WAY FORWARD OVER 2 MILES AN HOUR MANY HOMES DESTROYED

By The Canadian Press

Hungry flames, that ate their way eastward at more than two miles an hour in New Brunswick's shipbuilding district, destroyed 16 day forest fire and destroyed 16 settlers' homes and destroyed 18 that number of settlers' homes, shaled somewhat today, while blazes in Charlottetown, Halifax, Cape Breton and on Northern Quebec, were said to have been brought under control.

No casualties were reported from the New Brunswick area but many lost their homes as the fire swept eastward at more than two miles an hour. Reports last night said the eastern fire was fairly quiet, giving the men' a much needed rest.

"The only thing feared was an increase in the velocity of the wind such as fanned Thursday's conflagration which raced through South Paquetville, Little Bridge St. George and into North Paquetville. Several hundred persons fled inside from one stand of timber to anoth. Dr. Dan, a skeleton crew of firefighters remained on the western front.

About 20 miles from Charlottetown a fire of unknown origin swept over 100 acres of swamp land and destroyed a barn and threaten. ed other buildings yesterday but men fighting the blaze said the danger was past.

INSURGENT DRIVE VIRTUALLY HALTED

France's War Machine Held to Slight Gains on Three Sectors

Hendaye, June 4—(AP) — The Spanish insurgent drive toward Valencia, which has been encountering stiffening resistance for four days, was virtually halted today by government simultaneously.

The full force of General Franco's war machine has been pounding ceaselessly since Thursday on three sectors of the eastern front, with only slight gain, and border observices indicated a heavy cost of lives.

Most of Israel on the Morro Mountains, which dominated the western front of the battlefront, the insurgents not only were stymied, but General Jose Miaja's mountain fighters assumed the offensive. The insurgents reported government militiamen had stormed their positions near Rubielos de Mora and again.

Unable to Dislodge Troops

Near the Teruel-Mediterranean road the insurgents pushed forward a half-mile on the Alcanid Penagolosa peak and Torre Embesora, but were unable to dislodge government troops from their main positions.

"Political reasons were apparent for the insurgent setback."

1. The government, which already has been pressed hard by the insurgents in man-power, moved up its reserves from the eastern front.

2. A new government air fleet has gone into action and new artillery has been brought up to the eastern front, offsetting the former advantage of the insurgents.

3. The slowly retreating militiamen have reached the strong second defence line rushed to completion by special labor details.

London Conference Hears Reports of Weakened Circuits

Chatham, Ont., June 4 (CP) Missionary and maintenance funds have been weakened by uncertain financial conditions, Rev. Gordon Rayner reported to the London Conference of the United Church. The report was read last night by Rev. D. D. Gaynor of Florence and was adopted.

"The continued sense of uncertainty in the minds of our people concerning current financial conditions due to war rumors, crop failures and other disturbing factors, made people more than usually cautious in their expenditures" the report said.

Causes' of Condition.

"The increasing burden of taxation, the continuance of unemployment in this district, the general cost of living in this modern age and the added need to augment from the margin of income left for church and benevolent purposes.

"Generous is the response of the church to the various appeals in the circumstances that the amount segregated more than was received a year ago." the report continued. Financial returns from the church as a whole to the missionary and maintenance fund, however, showed a decline of nearly $50,000 and about $23,000 was added to the deficit.

The foreign missionary committee in a report to the conference urged liberal support for the china emergency fund 'in view of the great calamity and suffering' caused by the war in China."

Declaration of Martial Law Eases Tension Between France, Turkey

Paris, June 4—(AP)—The French declaration of martial law in the Turkish province of Antioch in Syria was reported today to have eased the tension between France and Turkey, traditional friends during among Arabs and Turks.

The Turkish frontier guard quarter had received reports 30,000 Turkish troops were gathered near the southern Turkish border adjacent to the district.

The Turkish Ambassador in Paris, Suad Davaz, however, was understood to have told Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet his government would be satisfied if strict military control over the district ended the outbreaks and ensured Turks of their rights in elections. The Turks demanded an autonomous status for Alexandretta, protested the slaying of Turks, who are seeking to gain control of the district, in the July elections and who hope eventually to make it a part of Turkey. It was estimated 100 persons, including Turkish officials, have been killed since Jan. 1. About 40 per cent of the 40,000 population are Turks.

Alexandretta, once part of the Turkish empire, has been administered by France as part of her League of Nations mandate over Syria.

A France-Syrian treaty signed Sept. 9 1936, providing for an independence of Syria in three years and a 25-year alliance between Syria and France met with Turkish objections. The Turks demanded an autonomous status for Alexandretta.

DIGS NEW POTATOES

New spuds have arrived! Six brand new tubers, village size, measuring two inches in diameter, and dug from the garden of Mr. Percy Cooke, Donald Street, were brought to the office of the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday afternoon.

Planted on March 17th, the potatoes showed a fine display of foliage throughout their growth. There was a large number of smaller potatoes attached to the roots of the plants I dug up," Mr. Conley stated, "giving evidence of a fine crop if present weather conditions continue." The potatoes are of the Irish Cobbler variety.

GIRL IS RESCUED BY LIFE GUARD

Jumping from the floating raft at Victoria Park, a twelve year old girl was rescued by Life Guard George Bennett yesterday afternoon. The little girl could not swim. Joining a number of companions, the little girl, whose name was withheld, was thought by the floating raft when she deliberately jumped into the water. She only went down once and had the presence of mind to splash about and struggle until I swam to her. "I never want to be rescued than hurt, I believe, added the lifeguard. Bathers using the diving raft are receiving a cost of six blue paint in conjunction with the city's clean-up and paint-up program.

HEAVY HATCHINGS TURKEYS REPORTED

The coming season will be marked by a large poultry population in this section, it is already evident by the heavy hatchings at this time of the year. Reports from several farms, according to statements of city hatcheries. This season many of the birds will be raised, to fill expected holiday demands, and the number of birds raised by K. Wensley of the local Wensley Hatcheries. Better prices for young birds later in the year have also been an inducement it is stated, but prices are expected to be better this season due to the higher prices which may follow as the result of cross-bag shipments direct to the British Isles being tried recently and experimental, and if successful, it is further observed.

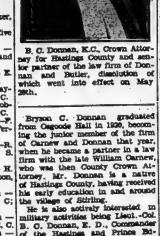
Mr. B. C. Donman, K.C. And Ormonde Butler in Announce Change

Announcement was made today of the dissolution of the partnership of Mr. Bryson C. Donman, K.C. and Mr. R. Ormonde Butler, city legal firm, which went into effect on May 28th.

B. C. Donman was appointed acting Crown Attorney in 1931, complete confirmation of the appointment of Crown Attorney being effective in September of the same year. Upon the more recent death of the late Judge J. C. Wills, Mr. Donman was made Deputy Judge for the County of Hastings. He will continue his law practice along with his Crown duties.



B. C. Donman, K.C., Crown Attorney for Hastings County and senior partner of the law firm of Donman and Butler, dissolution of which went into effect on May 28th.

Bryson C. Donman graduated from Cayuga High in 1926, became the junior member of the firm of Carnew and Donman that year, which he became a partner in the firm with the late William Carnew, who was then Crown attorney. Mr. Donman is a native of Hastings County, having received his early education in and around the village of Stirling.

He is also actively interested in military activities being Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donman, E. D., Commanding Officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Lieut.-Col. Donman was then Great War with the famous Second Battalion of the C.E.F., 1914 to 1918.

Mr. Donman is actively interested in the Belleville Club and the Quinte Country Club, has been holding the golf distinction of being a member of the Canadian "Hole-In-One" Club, a golfing feat completed while he was playing on the Belleville Golf course some years ago.

R. Ormonde Butler former member of the legal firm of Donman and Butler which announced dissolution today. Mr. Butler is a son of Magistrate E. and Mrs. Butler, 279 William Street.

Mr. Butler, son of Magistrate E. E. and Mrs. Butler, 279 William Street, one of Belleville's promising younger barristers, was born in this city and received his early education here.

A graduate of B.C.I. he became articled with his father and entering Osgoode Hall in 1928 and graduating from that institution in 1931. While in Toronto he was associated with the legal firm of Gooderham, Langman and Shaffner, solicitors for the Union Trust Co. He was also connected with the activities of the Newman Club, undergrad organization of the University of Toronto.

Returning to Belleville, Mr. Butler became associated with the late Mr. Justice Jones, when the latter was appointed Senior Magistrate of District No. 8, and has since practised alone for a period of three months when he entered partnership with Mr. Donman.

Prominent in Liberal circles, Mr. Butler was elected president of the Belleville-West Hastings Liberal Association in 1933, and was the first president of the Twentieth Century club in this city. He was also instrumental in organizing similar clubs in many parts of this district. He is a member of the Quinte Country Club and a past-president of the Holy Name Society of St. Michael's Parish.

In 1937, he married Cara E. Moffatt, daughter of T. F. Moffatt, B.A. of Tweed. Joining the Argyll Light Infantry (Militia) seven years ago, Mr. Butler served two years in the ranks before obtaining his commission. Now a lieutenant in his regiment, he has acted as assistant adjutant and in other capacities with the regiment.

Mr. Butler has opened a private office at 36 Bridge Street East.

TWO CHOIRS SING AT CHRIST CHURCH

St. Simons' of Toronto Join in Fine Service of Church Music

Choristers from St. Simon's Anglican Church joined with the choristers of Christ Church, Belleville, at Christ Church on Friday evening in presenting Church music. Rev. Neil Smith, rector of Christ Church, conducted the short office of evensong. For the first part of the service the visiting choristers occupied the gallery, Christ Church choir being the chancel choir. Christ Church boys sang the opening hymn in the first hymn sung by congregation and others.

The choirs sang Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis by Dr. Healey Willan, a beautiful rendition of these portions of the service by the well known Toronto composer. The gallery choir, back at the rear, choir from St. Simons of Toronto, directed by Mr. Eric R. Lewis sang the next portion of the music service, "Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei (1937) by Healey Willan, and "Hail Sacred Banquet" by William Byrd, "O Gloria Patri" by Sir Hubert Parry, "Hallelujah, Thine The Tabiateh", by the Dutch carol "Lord Jesus Hath a Garden" and the Russian Carol "The Crown of Roses" by Tschaikowsky. The latter piece was directed by the St. Simon choristers on this occasion by their own accompanist, Miss Hamilton, in which the beauty of the individual voice, perfect blending and harmony were delightfully impressed upon their hearers.

The last hymn sung by Christ Church choir, sang with much impressiveness the St. Saens' Offertory "We Keep Him In Perfect Peace," in which the many solos were taken by the choir men blended in perfection of tone.

The psalms were then taken by their places in the chancel with the Christ Church choristers and under the direction of Mr. Lewis with Mr. George N. Maybee, organist, sang the remainder of the office. The response, opening with the Bach chorale "Thou Heavenly Bread" number which was sung with fine interpretation of the spirit of the composition. Rev. Montgomery, Rector of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Lieut.-Col. Donman and Mrs. Donman were also present.

The second Sestation of the O.E.F., 1914 to 1918.

Mr. Donman is actively interested in the Belleville Club and the Quinte Country Club, has been holding the golf distinction of being a member of the Canadian "Hole-In-One" Club, a golfing feat completed while he was playing on the Belleville Golf course some years ago.

Police Blotter

Causing her parents anxiety when she left home after school nine-year-old, Clara Page, 75 St. Paul Street, was found by police on Coleman Street at 7.30 p.m. and returned to her alarmed parents by Chief Constable Ellis. The little girl stated she was merely taking in the sights and was unaware of the worry her experiences.

Belleville motorists continue to violate the city one hour parking by-law in the downtown section of the city and with the result, that several motorists returned to the parking lot find police officers have fined the windshield. Summonses will later be issued to the alleged violators.

Two residents of Madoc were apprehended in an alleged intoxicated condition on Coleman Street, last evening. One was released and the police station until this morning, when they appeared before P. H. Wright, police magistrate of the Peace, facing charges of breaches of the O. T. A. Their cases were enlarged until next week.

Police today issued their final warnings to owners of canines, who have not as yet procured their 1938 dog tags, that "No dog tags, no dog." warnings will be issued publicity, but summonses to subsequent delinquents will be issued forthwith," added police officials.

VARIED DISPLAY SPRING PRODUCE ON CITY MARKET

New Gooseberries Head a Fine Offering of Seasonal Produce

PRICES FIRM

Constituting another record for early production, new gooseberries grown on a farm near the Carrying Place made their 1938 debut on the city market today where a varied display of farm, dairy and garden produce greeted a large clientele of Saturday morning shoppers.

Selling at 25 cents a berry box, the new fruit sold well to a brisk market during the early hours. Other produce however showed but little change in the price from quotations of last week-end. Eggs and dairy produce prices remained steady with garden truck showing a firm tone throughout.

Spring vegetables again featured a display of produce that was as variable as the weather. Bunch radishes sold at three bunches for 10 cents. Locally grown leaf lettuce made its first appearance selling well at five cents a bunch. Imported lettuce was also offered at a slightly higher quotation. New onions were plentiful in varying sizes selling at 10 cents per bunch. New spinach appeared to be more abundant than usual, with choice leaves being offered at 20 and 25 cents per pound. Cabbage was 5 cents a head.

Asparagus, nearing the end of a very productive season was available in a fair supply at a somewhat any appreciable change in price. Pound packages sold at 15, 20 and 25 cents each with smaller weights offered at 10 cents.

Market Gleited

Old potatoes practically glutted the market today as farmers threw their remaining stocks open for sale at prices ranging at 90 cents per bag. Ninety-pound bag lots were quoted in some quarters at 60 cents while others sold at 75 and 15 cents each.

Imported fruits such as pineapples at 15 cents apiece and Florida oranges added a further touch of color to the display, selling at 25 cents a dozen at two large bunches for 5 cents. with stocks marking a slight decline in price.

Eggs, in fairly large quantities, were available in the city market with prices remaining firm at last week's quotations. Fresh select eggs offered locally at 22 cents per dozen with mediums and pullets offered at 20 and 18 cents. Fresh undergraded stocks were offered at 24 cents per dozen. Creamery butter prices remained unchanged at 25 cents for two-pound rolls. Home made butter was available in quite a attraction for fair marketers with brisk sales reported by those with the market throughout the morning.

Young broilers again headed the chicken offering with prices generally selling at from 75 cents to $1.00 per pair. Fowl and roasting chickens were offered at from 80 cents to $1.25 each.

Whitefish and lake trout formed the offering of fish vendors with both varieties selling at 30 cents per pound.

DRAMA

Four One Act Plays Presented by Students of Albert College

Dramatic Club Presents

An evening of one act plays by pupils of the Dramatic Department of Albert College, in Memorial Chapel last night, was a delightful and entertaining event which marked the season's closing. Before a large audience of parents and friends the students presented four one-act plays with convincing and finished manner that reflected the careful training under Miss Ruth Ferguson, head of the department, which for many years has contributed a vital and interesting part to the life of Albert College Conservatory outstanding.

Rev. Dr. Ferguson, president of the college, welcomed the visitors last evening, extending a cordial invitation to all to attend the various programs of Convocation week.

The plays last evening were especially well chosen, for drama, for comedy, and for perfect contrast. They showed the natural ability of the child actor, the talent gained with study under experienced player and provided one of those evenings which can recall with pleasure long after the curtains have swept the scene from the stage.

"The Age of Romance"

"The Age of Romance" introduced a number of clever junior actors and actresses in a charming little play that held plenty of scope for the ability of those taking parts. The children possessed fine voices, well trained, were perfectly at ease on the stage and their delivery of the poetic lines was especially well done. They showed a keen sense of children sighing for the "old" days of romance. Suddenly they were transported by the magic visitors garbed in odd attire who announced that it was "Romance Week" the year 2000, bridging time with their coming. The cast: Narrator, Donald Daring .. Roderick Cameron; Jean Benson .... Phyllis Dickens; Helen Benson .... Helen Walsh Neal Brown .... Howard Trumpour; Phillips Gray .... Mary Li Lester Billy Gray ..... Eileen Cameron Polly, the Maid .... Alleen Cameron The Policeman , Barclay Anderson Scene—Daring's Living Room 1935.

"The Quarrel"

The famous quarrel between Betsy Prig and Sairey Gamp was the theme of the second play, and it was given with a real Dickens flavor by Isabel Pearce as Betsy and Kathleen Morrison as Sairey. As character sketches the girls demonstrated fine ability, sustaining their parts splendidly and their interpretations were remarkable and amusing.

Musical Program

A musical program last evening added to the enjoyment of the audience as pupils of Mr. S. M. Anglin were heard in vocal numbers between acts. The fine program included a song by Harold Williams, "Lullaby" (Cadman); song by Norma Snider "Si tu m'aimi" (Forgeroll); duet, "Because You're You" (Herbert) Jean Crozier and Harold Williams; and singing by Ronald Mercer, "At Dawning" (Cadman) and "I'll Walk Beside Thee" (Finden). He acted as accompanist for the program, with Mr. F. Styles presiding at the piano for the national anthem.

That Choir Support

An amusing bit of comedy was the sketch "The Choir Supper" with Isabel Pearce, Kathleen Ogbodby family when all tried to get ready for this affair. There was not only the usual hazards of last minute preparation, but the anxiety that Eric might miss her swain, and the real handicap of false friends who changed the hour of the invitation just to dispose of Eric. Helen Sulman was the resourceful Mrs. Ogbodby whom lost collar buttons, ruined collars, an ill husband and other worries could not daunt. She gave a convincing performance. Betty Anderson was the maid who had a tendency to goodly whose hair, face, love affairs needed constant tending and how dissolved in tears at the slightest provocation. Mr. Ogbodby was splendidly portrayed by Gerson grave a fine characterization of her part. Eric Marion Fisher as Mr. Ever-who distracted the Ogbodby household by his lack of attention until she had her letter, well played by Theda Ockenden, captured the attractive character part. Harry Atkinson as his fair foe comedy was harassed Mr. Ogbodby and gave a splendid in this role. The scene took place in Ogbodby's kitchen.

"A Room in the Tower"

For the most serious offering of the evening, Miss Tullie chose "A Room in the Tower" a tragic play from the life of Lady Jane Grey. The part of this pathetic figure in English history was splendidly played by Mildred Loyst who gave a moving and sincere characterization. Helen Sulman demonstrated her versatility in the character part by turning from the role of the quaint Mrs. Ogbodby to that of the pitiful part of the imperious Queen Mary who showed the cruelty of her character as well as determined. Anne La Rue was Tynsley, and Kathleen Ogbodby as Ellen, Lady in Waiting to the Lady Jane, and their very finished performances completed a talented cast. The scene was in the Tower of London, 1554.

$5000 INSURANCE and $25 a Month Pension at Age 60 for $11.60 a Month

The Mutual Life of Canada has a special plan for the young man who wants to provide adequate protection for his family during the years when the children are growing up, and under the same policy create a fund that will guarantee him a monthly income at age 60.

This is the "Security at 60" policy, and the protection provided for the annual premium required is particularly attractive. For instance, if you are age 30, a monthly premium of $11.60 gives you $5,000 insurance to age 60, when you will receive an income FOR LIFE of $25 per month. (Should you not live to receive the payments for at least ten years, the income of $25 per month would be continued to your beneficiary for the balance of the ten year period.) Annual Dividends are paid on this policy.

Any of our representatives or Head Office will be pleased to give you complete details regarding the Security at 60 Policy, which can be obtained in amounts of $2,000 and over.

Madoc

Madoc—Once again the official opening of Frank Dafoe's Boys' Tourist Camp which was held last evening, attracted a very large crowd. It is estimated that over 500 were in attendance. The program consisted of a musical concert by the Belleville Band under the direction of Mr. Jobson, moving pictures by the Shell Gas Company and short addresses by the local clergy, Mr. C. Coffin and Mr. Dafoe the chairman for the evening. Refreshments were served by the ladies of St. John's Church.

Congratulations are due Mr. Dafoe on the fine program offered. That this evening each year is being appreciated by the public is emphasized by the large number in attendance last night.

Thirteen members of the Madoc Discussion Club sat down to a banquet in Rue's Hotel on Monday night, it being the last fortnightly meeting of the fiscal year.

Rev. T. E. Kennedy delivered the lecture, which dealt with "Physic Research" while attending "Spiritualism" and "Telepathy" showing proofs and disproofs.

Rev. Kennedy took a course in "Physic Research" while attending Victoria College.

After the discussion period the president Pat Hunter, thanked the speakers and members for their co-operation during the year.

On Tuesday night the members of the Campbellford A. Y. P. A. presented their play, "Aunt Cindy Cleans Up". It was under the auspices of St. John's Anglican Church. There was a good crowd. The play, a comedy in three acts, was well presented by the cast. Miss Vera Wood as "Aunt Cindy" and Mr. Dr. Russel as "Biff Budkins" were real good. The cast was as follows:

Hester Hot — Elsie Southern.
Biff Budkins—Don Russel.
Clara Harlow—Alice Tripp.
Lotus Clayton—Mamie Winetan-by.
Aunt Cindy Timpkins — Vera Wood.
Colby Magnet—Bill Richardson.
Mrs. Dawson—Mrs. Sydney Hopper.
Marcella Dawson—Marion Higginson.
Parker Tubbs—Peter Winstanley.
Sabine Clayton—Glenes Shaw.
Ripley Harlow—Mr. Thomas.
Between the acts, Misses Barbara Nicol and Jeanie Crawford gave song and dance numbers in costume. Mr. Will Hawthorne gave an interesting vocal number accompanied by Stanley Hawthorne.

At the end of the program, Mr. Bill Richardson who played the part of Colby Magnet was presented with a gift. With only 24 hours notice, Mr. Richardson learned over 100 speeches to fill a part vacated by the original character who took sick. The National Anthem closed the program.

Obituary

Mrs. Geo. V. Christie, a life-long and respected resident of Oxlands, died at a local hospital Friday morning. She was 81 years of age. Formerly Gertrude Marie Baker, she was born in Ottawa on July 16, 1906, a daughter of Mrs. Baker and the late Curtis Baker. She was a member of St. Matthew's Anglican Church where she was a member of the choir and dramatic club.

Surviving are her husband, Mr. Geo. Christie, whom she married on June 19, 1907; her mother, Mrs. Agnes Baker and a brother, Clare Baker, all of Ottawa.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon in St. Matthew's Church, where the service was conducted by Rev. Canon Robert Jefferson. Interment in Beechwood Cemetery. She was a niece of Miss Richard Christie of Madoc.

BAND CONCERT AT PARK IS ENJOYED

Attendance Kept Down Due to The Chilly Atmosphere

With the reflection of the newly installed electric lights playing upon the waters of the bay of Quinte, the season's inaugural civic band concert was held on Victoria Park last evening with the Belleville Municipal Band, under the direction of Lieut. Fred Jobson, delighting the scattered attendance. The entire musical program was of a varied nature, which added much to the colorful evening's picture. The coolness of the evening, however, doubtlessly diminished the attendance, although the park was dotted with motor cars, while several downtown citizens took advantage of the entertainment and enjoyed the cool breeze from the bay.

Lieut. Fred Jobson most capably rendered the lone solo of the night, a cornet selection, "Siebat Mater" that required perfect technique. A medley of popular airs was also arranged by Roy Hinchey, and also the leading of the National Anthem, as arranged by the same bandsman, were also features.

Following the concert Band Leader Jobson announced that the Belleville Municipal Band would appear as a guest band at Cobourg, where an interesting program will be presented from the famous Cobourg band shell on June 23rd. The band leaving Belleville will be accompanied by the Belleville Male chorus to Cobourg, where certainly to the all-Belleville program to be presented in the "summer town" of Cobourg.

Last Night's Program

March—Marche Militaire—Gabriel-Marie.
Selection—Musical Switch.
Medley—Fox trots— arranged by Reg. Hinchey.
Comic Tattoo—By Legg.
Songs from England—Langy.
Cornet solo—Siebat Mater by Rossini (Lieut. Fred Jobson).
Overture—Golden Dragon—King.
March—Gloria.
By Request — Selections from "Snow White."
God Save the King.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenord Rushlow of Belleville were Sunday afternoon guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holmes.

Mrs. George Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wade of Belleville were Friday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. George Gray, Wee Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Tompkins, Bowerman's.

"GIMMEE" HABIT

Terming them 'ludicrous', the Bowmanville Statesman says that the Conservative Government of the Dominion Government to build harbories are but attempts to get a nice big building where badminton may be played, community dances, banquets with the usual speeches held, and that the expense of such buildings "must be by the already overburdened taxpayer of the country as a whole." That there is a serious side to their request is also pointed out by The Statesman when it says: "Only after the citizens and town councils act like indigent children with their give-mes and continue to petition governments for armouries and other public buildings which are really not needed just so long will taxation in Canada continue at its present record high level. — Stirling News-Argus.

Regina, Sask., June 4—Saskatchewan voters go to the polls in a province-wide election on June 8 with an amazing, uncertain feeling, for exactly as sure as fate is going to win—Liberal, Conservative, C.C.F. or Social Credit.

Entrance of the Social Credit party into the campaign on a wholesale scale, having 40 candidates in the field at writing, has precipitated strange fears on all sides. Social credit in Saskatchewan obviously is not the social credit that Alberta knows. It appears to be, more than anything else, the "anti-anything" party to which disgruntled persons of all parties are expected to flock.

True, Premier Aberhart of Alberta picked and financed the candidates under Social Credit's banner, but there were several who branched out and announced they would have no domination from the neighboring province. Few, if any of the 40, can enumerate much of what social credit means. On the platform they generally just assail the government and let it go at that.

The social credit cause was strange enough earlier in the campaign when Saskatchewan people enjoyed the battle for the title of organizer being carried on between T. A. McInnis, Regina coal merchant, and J. B. McLeod, another Reginan. Mr. McLeod, another Reginan identified with social credit for some years. The latter tried to amalgamate his party with Labor and the Independents. McInnis and his group declined. Both went to Edmonton and both returned with the statements they were the organizer for the province. However, McInnis was the one recognized eventually, being chosen as one of the Regina constituency candidates.

The Conservative party, semi ignominiously into defeat under Premier J. T. M. Anderson in 1934 is back again under the leadership of J. G. Diefenbaker, K.C., young Prince Albert lawyer. Mr. Diefenbaker has stumped the province steadily for two years but the Conservative organization has been slow in getting under way and the voting strength is an unknown quantity. They have 27 candidates in the field.

Dr. Anderson, always in the background in recent years, is out in the forefront again as a candidate, with political commentators predicting that there may yet be a battle for leadership between him and his younger successor.

Always organizing, always active, the C. C. F. movement— the term generally used instead of the unwieldy Co-operative Commonwealth Federation — was a potent threat, and probably still is, until the entrance of social credit on a large scale. The belief is that this Socialist movement was badly hit by desertions to the Aberhartian ranks.

Leader of the C.C.F. is dynamic George Williams, one of the five C.C.F. members in the last legislature who provided the only opposition for the great Liberal majority.

Use Radio Freely

As usual, the Liberal organization is an excellent one but in the several days prior to nomination day there was admittedly much fear from the inroads of social credit. The attacks by Premier W. J. Patterson and his cabinet ministers on the stump have been particularly aimed at social credit. The Liberals, however, may be expected to poll a heavy vote.

One of the unique features of the Saskatchewan campaign has been the use of radio. Saskatchewan stations have been blanketed with the networks of the five first main stations have become so common people who do not want to listen to politics have been forced to shut off their radios, unable to get anything else.

It is estimated by the stations two to three hours daily have been purchased by the party representatives and organizations. Heariest time buyers, of course, were the Liberals. One anomaly is the fact that social credit, which swept to victory in Alberta, mostly through Premier Aberhart's radio campaign, is using little or no radio in Saskatchewan.

On Saturday, June 4, no less than four solid hours of broadcasting will be done at one stretch by various parties. However, rulings of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation halt all broadcasting for 48 hours before election day and Saskatchewan people will not again enjoy the situation that existed at the last election when representatives of the party bought up all the radio time on the day before election, shutting all others out.

Picton

JAMES F. GILLESPIE

Picton, Ont., June 2, 1938—Following a long illness, James F. Gillespie passed away at his home King St., on Wednesday evening, June 1st. The deceased was born in Picton, a son of Sheriff James Gillespie, and was treasurer of the town of Picton for fifty years. For thirty only two years ago. He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Julia Ann Van de Water, and two daughters, Helen and Kathleen Gillespie. An only son, Garfield, passed away a few years ago. Mr. Gillespie was a life member of the Masonic Lodge and the funeral service was held on Friday afternoon under Masonic auspices with interment in Glenwood Cemetery.

The Street Fair under the auspices of the Eir Thomas Picton Chapter I. O. D. E. held in Picton Armouries on Thursday afternoon and evening was a most enjoyable affair. A color scheme of red, white and blue was carried out in the decoration of the building most effectively. Lovely baskets of flowers were also used in profusion. In the afternoon, bridge, tea and a fashion show attracted many ladies. In addition home cooking, flowers and fancy work was displayed for sale, in attractive booths. In the evening fancy dancing, bingo, and other games, a white elephant table ers at Belleville.

DAVE RUBINOFF ILL

MAGNA CHARTA AND LIBERTY

Once upon a time there was a great testing-of English liberty. King John who had with all the selfishness of which he was capable interfered in the upset streams of affairs in England while his famous brother King Richard was on the throne crusading in the Holy Land against Saladin, followed up this oppression when he became king. It is seven hundred and twenty-three years ago on June 15 since John was forced to grant The Great Charter of English liberty at Runnymede. In those days the defenders of liberty were the Barons, who were forced by his tyranny to take a stand and force the king to agree to keep the law. There were later occasions when the monarchs overrode the law but the Magna Charta has been the foundation of the liberty which has spread from England thru' British Isles and thence to every Dominion or colony or former dominion such as the United States of America.

One of its articles deals with something of which we hear much in foreign lands today where men are thrown into prison or imprisonment comes and held there. British law as stated at Magna Charter will not permit that for one of the articles signed by King John is that which provides that no freeman shall be taken or imprisoned or proceeded against except by the lawful judgment of his peers or by the laws of the land.

Today we hear much of the budget and complain of it but we ought to think of the oppressions of monarchs like John and the proper place by the Great Charter of Liberty, which ruled that no scutage or aid shall be imposed in the Kingdom except by the common council of the realm. That common council of the realm is still the body which voted supplies which monarchs cannot themselves demand. These and many other of the liberties we have inherited today were stated by Magna Charta and restated in later affirmations of British liberty.

There are other nations which know not liberty as England, Scotland and Ireland have known it. It is becomes one to speak lightly of English liberty of the subject. This liberty has meant liberty for other democracies of today and Magna Charta still stands as the great affirmation of the people against oppression.

Magna Charta Day, June 15th., its seven hundred and twenty-third anniversary, should not be forgotten. It ought to be a day of rededication to British principles. Those who encroach upon the precious liberties or would undermine what Simon de Montfort and the other heroic barons of 1215 did must not be tolerated.

Not only England, Ireland and Scotland, but the Dominions and Colonies exist by this charter to this day. If the Barons had not resisted the oppression of John as we know what might have been the course of history, there would probably have been a revolution and the whole course of the development of free institutions changed for all time. Even the aggressive, King John knew with whom he had to deal and he yielded because he knew there would be no yielding by the defenders of liberty.

Today there are some persons who use the liberty of British institutions to undermine British freedom. Why their knowledge of freedom would not inspire them to reverence liberty and as the British people believe the finest political creation of all the ages is difficult to understand.

Lt. Col. Alley, president of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion, which is promoting Magna Charta Week, says of the forms of government on which so much is heard today:

"When you get down to facts, Communism and Fascism both depend on the suppression of the individual citizen and the complete control of the state over the movements, business, speech and even thought of every person. We believe that the British system is better—the system whereby every man and woman is free to learn what he can from a free press, free to form and state his own opinions, free to elect his own government, free to choose his own occupation, free to come and go as he thinks best—provided, of course, that he does not make a nuisance of himself in his neighborhood.

"With all its faults, which are really just the faults of the people, our British system preserves freedom. When the best about them has been said, other systems are still based on tyranny.

"The first great statement of the rights of a free British subject was contained in the Great Charter, signed on the 15th of June, 1215. The Legion has chosen that date to reaffirm publicly our belief in the British principle of individual freedom, and to try to impress on the public that that freedom can only be kept by our people if we are willing and ready to guard it from danger from without, and from within."

A soul occupied with great ideas best performs small duties.—Martineau.

LIFE'S JOURNEY

Each man is Captain of his Soul,
And each man his own Crew,
But the Pilot knows the Unknown Seas,
And He will bring us through.

We break new seas to-day—
Our eager keel quests unaccustomed waters,
And from the vast uncharted waste in front
The mystic circles leap
To greet our prows with mightiest possibilities;
Bringing us—what?

Dread shoals and shifting banks?
And calms and storms?
And clouds and biting gales?
And wreck and loss?
And valiant fighting times?
And maybe death—and so, the Larger Life!

For should the Pilot deem it best
To cut the voyage short,
He sees beyond the skyline, and
He'll bring us into Port.
And maybe Life—Life on a bounding tide,
And chance of glorious deed;
And help swift-borne to drowning mariners;
Of cheer in ships dismantled by the gales!
Of succours given unasked and joyfully;
Of mighty service to all needy souls.

So—Ho for the Pilot's orders,
Whatever course He makes!
For He sees beyond the skyline,
And He never makes mistakes.
For each man captains his own Soul
And chooses his own Crew,
But the Pilot knows the Unknown Seas,
And He will bring you through.

WITH MILLIONS TO BE SPENT ON WORK

producing jobs, possible millions more on the proposed international seaway, and prospects for bumper crops in Canada, Ontario, looks like a wave of prosperity should glodden the hearts of Canadians East and West this fall and winter. And can we take it?

WHERE DO THEY GO?

THE PEOPLE COME FROM? The jump from the horse and buggy days to the age of automobiles and radios created work for millions, and yet there are millions unemployed. How come? Of course there was somewhere the large importing of cheap labor from Europe many of whom were ripe fruit for communist and anarchist organizations—and there was a rush of young men from the farms to grab the well-paying factory jobs—and shortly after the war surplus labor bulging the relief rolls whenever the wheels of industry slack up a bit?

SOME NEWSPAPERS BOAST OF THEIR AGE, OTHERS OF NEW BUILDINGS, new presses, or new ideas, but the Montreal Gazette has something real to boast about in that it attained its 160th birthday on Friday. Continuous publication for 160 years is a record to be proud of, another instance of the survival-of-the fittest, for in that time many incipient journalistic ventures must have challenged the elder brother in the field. The journalistic graveyard is full of ambitious publications and enthusiasm which cooled in a morass of unpaid bills, and with the rising costs of publishing the field grows even smaller and more difficult. A newspaper grows old gracefully—either it grows younger with the years, like new wine it improves with age. The first newspaper published in the city of Montreal, the Gazette has weathered every storm and become more or less of a Canadian institution. Beginning as a weekly it expanded into a tri-weekly, and then daily, and steadily kept pace with the times in modern methods and equipment, while steadily holding to its early traditions of dignity, truth and the highest possible standard of newspaper making. Congratulations to the Montreal Gazette upon its 160th birthday, may it continue to grow younger and stronger with the passing years until another 160th birthday has rolled around.

"A DEVIL IN PETTICOATS", Frau Marck, was sentenced to death in Vienna, for murder of her husband, her three-year-old daughter and an aunt. The judge called her a "devil in petticoats" when it was revealed that she amputated her husband's leg to cash in on an insurance of $42,835; adding more insurance she then killed her husband, and continuing her crime career murdered the child and the aunt.

Be-Kind-To-Books Week

A formal appeal was the other day made by the Brooklyn Public Library to those who use the books that must have surprised a majority of the users. It was meant for the small minority—if such minorities were not small they would tend to wreck the public library system in a good many places—who are not book users but merely absent-minded spoilers of the common property in books for their individual purposes.

Any public library of size knows these termites. During a recent prize contest for the aggrandizement of a cigarette the conference of librarians with prize seekers was overwhelmed in the mass of entries they engaged upon puzzle pictures which led to research in public library books; and when they found something that seemed helpful as a first aid toward solving a puzzle picture, instead of making a note of it they deleted the page from the book.

Saintly regarded such behavior as incidental to the enthusiasm of a prize contest; when this contest was over, such references books as survived would be safe until the next Belleville Bay Treasure Hunt books, of the non-fiction classification that imparts useful factual ledge, are never safe. Spring, for example, makes an interval in gardening and garden books suffer by users who find something that interests them in the table of contents and carry the page with them when they leave the library. There is an all-the-year interest in cookery, but most users of books of a pleasing recipe bodily from a public library cook book.

Librarians are against mutilating public library books; but the spoiler, more occasionally, cannot be caught. Appeal to users in general has been made by many libraries to "be merciful" to the books may do something by reaching those who "don't think" but would be more considerate if they did. Protection of public library books from the inconsiderate is a serious problem; perhaps the National Memory-Pulp-Ite-Library-Books Week would help.—Christian Science Monitor.

"OCEAN GIANTS"

So rapid is the pace in the development of aircraft that the layman constantly finds himself at liberty to enjoy new speeds, new comforts and new distances in air travel which, it seemed only yesterday, were but the stuff of dreams. The first of the new Super-Clippers which is now undergoing flight tests, is a good example of this engineering progress bordering magic.

The great Boeing flying boat with a span of 152 feet, will have three-quarters of a Fifth Avenue block, is twice the size of the Sikorsky Clippers which are operating steadily and smoothly to the Bermudas and the east coast of South America. Its gross weight of 82,000 pounds is fifteen tons greater than that of the Martin Clippers now in service on the 9,000-mile airway between San Francisco and China. But it is in range and pay-load capacity that this new airliner is first of six which Pan American Airways will put into service in the Atlantic and the Pacific, seems most remarkable.

Were it equipped for a two-way flight, this ocean-going giant could fly non-stop 6,500 miles from Marseilles to its four Wright Cyclones, rated at 1,500 horsepower each but which can develop close to 2,000 horsepower for take-off. Translated into payload, this means that it can carry fifty passengers over the Atlantic and its sister ships can carry fifty passengers over the Pacific. Thanks to the brilliance of American aircraft genius, which will soon enable a passenger to travel from California in sixteen hours, and London or Lisbon from New York in thirty, in these mighty ships of the air.—New York Times.

Building construction in Greece broke all records last year.

Coal has taken a drop in Toronto from $3.50 per ton to $5.00 per ton for stove, but that it will stop lower is Belleville.

There was a fairly large market this morning. Eggs sold at 10 cents per dozen; butter 15 cents to 16 cents per pound and potatoes 50 cents to 60 cents.

On May 24th., Messrs. W. Boulter and Son of the Bay of Quinte Canning Factory, Picton, shipped 2000 cases of canned corn to Dawson City, Klondike, via San Francisco.

Getting Started With Injections For Hay Fever

Although hay fever symptoms—sneezing, running nose, itchy eyes, sometimes obstructed nose,— may occur at any time in the year, with trees in the spring, grasses in the Summer and weeds in the Autumn, what is commonly called hay fever is the Autumn type, caused in most cases by certain weeds ragweed. It is estimated that almost 2 per cent—in every fifty persons—is subject to hay fever to some degree.

The Fall weed hay fever season begins toward the end of July in southern districts and from the middle to the end of August in the Northern, and ends with the first frost.

In addition to the above mentioned symptoms, there may be headaches, weakness and tiredness, and slight bronchial symptoms.

To detect the particular pollen causing the trouble, skin tests are also tests by scaling suspected foods or inhaling threatening the other substances are tried, as this, in most cases, locates the pollen or other substance to which the individual is sensitive or allergic.

What about treatment?

The first method now generally used is to try to make the patient immune to the pollen. This is a substance—ragweed, pollen in most cases—which makes him sensitive. This is done by injecting small quantities of pollen extract under the skin each morning. Eggs sold at 10 cents per dozen; butter 15 cents to 16 cents per pound and potatoes 50 cents to 60 cents. Each week for about seven weeks before the hay fever symptoms appear. Many physicians declare prefer to start the injections not less than three to four months before the hay fever season as it allows much more pollen extract to be given and gives the patient time to get the system desensitized to the ragweed pollen.

With the arrival of the hay fever season, the injections are continued but the dose increased each week.

In treating the hay fever symptoms, Dr. Harry Lee Alvin C. Johnston, in the Cleveland number of the Medical Clinics of North America states: "In addition to the symptoms eye washes of boracic solution, nose-sprays of ephedrine, throat gargles and swabbing of the throat with one-half strength iodine solution are helpful. Hot baths, hot drinks, inhalations of steam from a kettle of water—give considerable relief. The nose symptoms may be relieved by the use of ephedrine sulphate."

If you are subject to hay fever you should consult your physician at once about the use of the pollen extract. Many physicians now give these injections regularly.

ANOPHELES

An inquiry comes from a young lady in Saskatchewan about mosquitoes. She wants to know if it is true that the product of one pair of any kind regarding these pests says the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The only figures the Bureau has seen is an estimate of the loss in daily production occasioned by mosquitoes which showed that it was sufficient to stir up energy enough to combat typhoid fever. There is really a plague in some seasons and in some places.

According to the Dominion Entomologist, the slender, delicately built insects, which are mosquitoes are among the worst blood-sucking flies which torment man and animals in many parts of Canada. Frequently harmless in appearance, the general similar insects are confused with mosquitoes, but the latter can always be distinguished by the long, slender beak, or proboscis, which they carry in front, and the scales on the veins and margins of the wings. Their only annoyance is a source of great annoyance to humans, but they also occasion much loss to animals. In the case of cattle the worst affected districts a marked drop in milk production is noted in dairy cows at the commencement of the mosquito season. Practical dairymen have stated that this may be as much as 50 per cent. Loss of blood of animals lose flesh through loss of blood and suffer worry, and, occasions death may result, especially among young animals. Even poultry and wild birds are affected by these insects.

The females of most of the sixty or more species of mosquitoes that are found in Canada are bloodsuckers, and while they normally live solely in their life-histories and habits on the blood of mammals, a useless stagnant water for the immature stages (larvae and pupae) to develop. It is quite impossible for them to develop in damp grass or on the vegetation of dry ground, this is a commonly-held belief. The larvae and pupae of mosquitoes develop only in water, and that although they are aquatic, they must frequently come to the water surface for air, many species actively destroy their eggs if they be forced by heavy rains or floods. Hence the importance of draining flooded areas with petroleum oil, such as fuel oil, in spring and early summer.

HOSPITAL TO GET RESIDUE

Kingston, Ont., June 4—(CP)—Kingston General Hospital is named to receive the residue of the estate of Minnie D. Johnston, whose will was filed for probate in New York yesterday, Mrs. Johnston was formerly Minnie Wallace of Kingston. She graduated as a nurse from the Kingston General Hospital in 1892. The amount of the bequest to the hospital was not given. Bequests of Mrs. Johnston to relatives totals $17,500.

Standardizing the News

A writer in Shining Lines, small booklet issued by the Morgenthaler Linotype Company makes the following suggestions in order to assist an editor in writing his articles: All music must be special. All men when they die must leave a host of friends. All wives must be attractive. All the public must be general. All invitations must be cordial. All parties must be enjoyed by one and all. All welcomes must be warm. All authors must be brilliant. All movies must be beauties. All stamps must be issued. All decorations must be lovely. All brides must be beautiful. All parents must be proud. All fathers must be young. All hopes must be high. All visitors must be prominent. All currency must be gold. All collations must be delicious. All speeches must be stirring. All talks must be inspiring. All remarks must be brief. All comedies must be sparkling. All heavy rains must be deluges. All girls must be vivacious. All performances must be brilliant. All approvals by crowds must be roared. All efforts must be painstaking. All patients must be rushed to hospitals. All teas must be delightful. All large fish must be mounted. All deep. All lectures battlers. All times of peace must be pining. All solos must be rendered. All sorrows must be colorful. All successes must be bowlings. All boy scouts must be bold. All boy Scouts must be alert. All balls buried by pallbearers must be sizzling. All wrestlers must be pachyderms. All goodnats must be rattling. All lists must be helpful. All socials must be successful. All kisses must be cloying. All thuds must be dull and sickening.—(Leamington Post and News).

When Students Graduate

Hundreds of students throughout the eastern townships stand on the threshold of graduation.

Within a few weeks graduation exercises will be held in the schools and colleges, when the youthful graduates will be given advice and guidance about the business world which they are soon to enter.

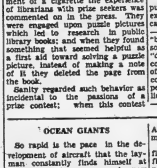
What advice can be given to those youthful graduates? It is only right that they should be told that world conditions are anything but encouraging. They must realize the fact that hard work, perseverance and disappointment are before them.

But while they should be told facts, they should also be made to understand that in the world of business there are always opportunities for those who have eyes to see these opportunities and the wisdom and courage to grasp them.

Despite the unsettled conditions Canada remains a land of opportunity.

Within its borders every youth will find ample opportunity for their talents and the degree of success which they achieve will be largely the result of their own personal endeavour.

Possessing a college degree or a high school diploma is not sufficient. That is just a credential admitting its holder to the business or professional life of the country. It is only by hard and persistent work that success can be achieved.



Many of the leaders in the affairs of many Canadians that, once they graduated from school or college, they must seek a living outside Canada. Many of them do not forsake their native land only to realize later that they would have fared much better had they chosen to remain at home.

Every youthful graduate will start out in life with faith in himself and his fellow-men, determination to earn an honest living; patience, perseverance and courage he will have basically essential in facing the problems of the modern world and overcoming the problems which he must surmount if he is to achieve success.

Country Fences Go Modern

Progress in the rural areas has kept pace with progress in the largest cities despite the fact that it is attended with much less publicity and blowing of trumpets by the promoters of each new time-saving device and improvement. Not only do we look about and many of the great changes are the modern superhighways have replaced the horse and buggy trails of a few years ago, tractors cultivate many fields where once old dobbin held full sway, more attention is given to farm buildings with the coming of hydro and the many modern conveniences it brings the farmer. The appearance of the countryside has undergone a major transformation in the past twenty years.

Another recent improvement that promises to still further change the physical appearance of the rural areas is electric fencing. Back in the days when the land was being cleared, stumps pulled or blasted out boldly, were used to provide foundations for farm rail fences and bounds. Later came the rail fences that only be replaced in large measure in more recent years by wire fences. Now comes the electric fence that is destined to not only make the countryside more beautiful by virtue of the fact that a single strand mounted on light—Lindsay Post.

GUARD FOR STORE AFTER THIRD ROBBERY

When a lone bulldog man walked into the store of Oliver Magill, at Altons, near Stouffville, Ont., and escaped with the contents of the cash register, it was the third time in recent weeks that the store had been robbed. Mrs. Madill and her daughter, Olive, TOP, were in charge when the armed intruder entered and they watched him take $40 from the till before leaving. Now a neighbor, armed and ready, BELOW, sits outside Mr. Madill's store just in case robbery number four is attempted.

They'll Do It Every Time :-: By Jimmy Hatlo

Hello, Neighbor!

From Your Hollywood Correspondent

FARLEY FAULKNER

This week we motored to R. K. O's ranch where Richard Dix, Chester Morris and Jean Parker are doing their stuff in "Ground Crew" a new aviation production which "Rick" Ermoluff assures us "Will be a thriller".

Lunching with Mr. Dix we enjoyed roast beef with the star's philosophy on the side. "Don't hurry, and stop being afraid," is the Dix formula for a happy life.

"Everyone in Hollywood, more or less, is fear-ridden," said Dix. "They are afraid their financial set-up will crack. They are afraid they will not get to the top of the social ladder. They are afraid they will not stay at the top of their profession. They are afraid to be natural for fear of losing caste. They are afraid they will lose their good looks."

"In addition, they never take time to enjoy living. No sooner do a group of guests arrive at one's home, than they want to leave for another. They rush through their meals in order to rush away to some night spot or theatre, saying to hell with living. There is no repose. No complacency.

"One does not realize this until they visit Europe. In my trips to England, that is one thing I bring back — a determination not to hurry, but to take time to enjoy the things of the day."

"On the wall of my dim I have a motto which reads: 'If you know what you want—life's a cinch.' I have found what I want. I have found a life (away from the screen), without hurry and without fear. My wife and I have a group of eight young couples who form our social set. We play cards and tennis and badminton. We have picnics and outings and house parties. They never worry because their incomes are smaller than mine. I have received in a long time. He called me up and inquired if I had a pair of hip boots, and when I said I had, he instructed me to put them right on and come over to his house and help shovel the mud off his lawn. I'm not a screen star or a rich man to him, but just his friend. I'm very proud of that."

Each of Frank Capra's films of the past five years has received critical recognition as a masterpiece of humor, romance, drama, or fantasy. Yet these films fill in the definite pattern, new to the motion picture world but comparable to written literature to the human comedy of Balzac and to Dickens' comedy on the branching of a family tree.

Capra insists that his selection of "You Can't Take It With You" for current screen treatment, like that of previous material, was made because it represented believable characters in arresting dramatic situations, and so afforded scope for the exercise of his own vivid dramatic imagination.

Certainly the producer-director has drawn his stories from no narrow literary avenues. His material has come from such writers as Damon Runyon, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Mark Hellinger, Clarence Budington Kelland, and James Hilton. His present picture, and adaptation of the comedy stage success by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, was written by Robert Riskin.

Diverse in style and subjects as are those authors, under Capra's guidance each of their stories has been forged into a link in a Human Comedy of Today. The note sounded in each is that happiness can be encountered in every stratum of social life.

How a girl fugitive from riches found romance with a vagabond youth was the situation in "It Happened One Night". Conversely, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" showed a youth suddenly burdened with riches and bearing up with rare common sense.

In "Lost Horizon" a group of humans found happiness by isolating themselves from the world in the Himalayas. Now Capra is shaping a complement to this in "You Can't Take It With You," which shows another group of humans who have found the secret of happy living in the midst of moneygrubbing New York City.

Nothing more varied than the locales, the characters, and the stories used by Capra could be desired. What has happened is that a motion picture director has struck golden vein and a rich flavor to entertain the public.

To interpret the friendly laughter of the delightful Vanderhof family, Capra has assembled a stellar cast of players headed by Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Ann Miller, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, Halliwell Hobbes, Donald Meek and numerous others.

We salute Capra as the outstanding man of the industry. His touch is the touch of a genius—and we are only sorry that his genius is somewhat restricted by an industry that turns art out in cans.

This is to be a "see America first" summer for vacationing stars. Reservations for foreign travel will be lighter than for many years.

It isn't the "recession," although that undoubtedly has its effect too. It's the troubled internal conditions in Europe, the threatened rift between the Chinese and the Japanese in the West and fluctuating money exchanges in other parts of the world that will keep Hollywood celebrities close to the home grounds this year.

James Cagney is already at work on his vacation with Mrs. Cagney on Martha's Vineyard where he has a summer place. While they are away, their new Colchester Avenue home is taking shape. Pat O'Brien and his wife expect to visit the Cagneys before Jimmy is called back for another picture.

Errol Flynn plans on going no further away than Carmel during the summer and loves the scenery tuning Errol Flynn is staying in American waters near Florida to shoot his Robin Hood arrows forward, and occasionally into, the unsuspecting sharks.

Paul Muni returned from Europe full of determination to stay at home for a long time and his next picture, "Juarez," now being prevised, will give him enough to do to keep him home for several months to come.

Margaret has plans made to go to Honolulu for a short stay, and the Lane sisters, Priscilla and Rosemary, expect to spend two weeks on a dude ranch far away from the sights and sounds of Hollywood.

Olivia de Haviland returning from her first long trip, a sojourn in England, will do no more traveling until next year. Wayne Morris plans to go camping in the high Sierras for at least a week after he returns from location with "Valley of the Giants."

The Dick Powells, the Edward G. Robinsons, the Dick Purcells and the Patrick Knowles expect to stay in their own bailiwicks all summer. Donald Crisp will take his yacht to British Columbia and Alexander (Sugar) Davis will take his wife back to Indiana for a visit and to fish for pickerel.

Ann Sheridan will go incognito to Northern Minnesota to spend a few weeks at a resort there. Gloria Dickson, who is to be married during the summer to Pete Westmore, has hopes for a trip to Honolulu as a wedding present.

The travelers to far places can be counted on the fingers of one foot. Hollywood will be rather generally "at home" all summer.

The fire brigade responded in a very short time, but it was impossible to save the machinery which is a complete loss. No insurance was carried. It is thought a spark from the engine had ignited the sawdust.

"Son, You Listen to Me—"

IT WAS a big day in Essex Centre. Pete Picobac had come home after all these years—come home to be married to his childhood sweetheart! A wedding in the Picobac family at last!

Some boy, that Pete.

"Son," said Mr. Picobac, when it was all over and the bride had gone up to change her dress, "you listen to me."

With a beaming smile, the fond father—relaxed from further ceremony, with his rented silk hat pushed back on his head—filled his pipe with Picobac and confronted his only boy.

"From now on," said he, "you'll have a new boss. You'll find that women are women, the world over. They insist on the last word. Let 'em have it, boy; let 'em have it. When you have to grin and bear it, Picobac will help you smile. Smoke Picobac and you'll weather every storm. Last words! Huh! What do last words count when you can fill your pipe with Picobac burley and take a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke."

"O.K., Dad," said Pete. "I get you."

Weddings

REID—McMULLEN

A very charming June wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMullen, Bethel, on Wednesday, June 1st, at noon p.m. when their second daughter, Rosalie Blanche became the bride of Clifford Burton Reid, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reid, Bellleville, Rev. J. F. Rezaid, pastor of Hawdon circuit officiating.

The bride looked charming in a princess gown of Ivory sheer chiffon, fashioned on long lines with white accessories and she carried a bouquet of Premier roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Elda McMullen, was bridesmaid and wore an ankle length frock of blush pink sheer chiffon and carried a bouquet of carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Irene Tasker played the wedding music and was gowned in a frock of baby blue sharkskin.

After receiving many best wishes, a dainty buffet lunch was served. Mrs. Reid is employed in twenty-five. Misses Laura Snicer and Betty Reid assisted in serving.

Later in the evening the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and other points. The bride travelled in a blue ensemble of crepe, blush pink Tahiti cloth and taffeta, with white accessories.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm, near Belleville.

The bride received a lovely array of gifts including a substantial cheque, and silverware.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque. The bridesmaid received a pendant, purses, and to the groomsman, a tie-pin.

The bride is a popular Rawdon girl and her many friends join in wishing her every happiness.

The author of "My Country and My People" outlines a Chinese philosophy of life for Western readers in "The Importance of Living." Dr. Lin has distilled the wisdom of generations of Chinese sages and presented it against a modern background. The author contends that he does not read philosophy but only life at first hand. Some of his sources are: a Szechow boatwoman; a Shanghai street car conductor; his cook's wife; a squirrel in Central Park, New York; a deck steward who made our good remarks and "any writer who has not killed a sense of curiosity in life or who has not killed it in himself." "The Importance of Living" is a revealing book for not only does it portray a civilization but a personality that is both wise and witty.

Beverley Nichols' story at his fellow-countrymen in his latest book "Powers of England." Bearing the startling sub-title, "A country without a hero," the book is a study in national decadence. "It is this adherence to the language of the past, at the very moment when we are thinking in the language of the future, this continual preaching of pouring new wine in old bottles, which makes England the despair of foreign observers." In spite of its serious theme, the book contains much of the sparkle for which the author is noted. Mr. Nichols sees an England that no longer cares about England but which is slowly sinking into a spiritual apathy, that he maintains in the true explanation of the chaos of the British foreign policy. The author discusses all phases of this degeneracy and suggests remedies. He is attracted to some aspects of Fascism but repelled by its anti-Semitism. He sees Sir Oswald Mosley as England's one hero.

A distinguished journalist writes of the precarious situation of Central Europe and the Balkan states in his book "South of Hitler." M. W. Fodor since 1919 Manchester Guardian correspondent for Vienna and the Balkans has contributed also to American dailies. Hungarian by birth, the author is a safer guide to the maze of Central European politics than many who have recently written. He writes not merely of passing political events but of the fundamentals and enduring forces that lie at the nature of the people. Written before the recent German invasion of Austria, the book anticipates those events with darkest forebodings. "South of Hitler" is a guide to the present—and therefore to the future of Middle Europe.

With the premiere in Toronto last season of Gerald Savory's play "Spring Meeting" many amateur theatregoers saw an English version of that eccentric but well-meaning family the Sycamores. The first book of "You Can't Take It With You" is introduced to more subdued form but the Garth-Bandler family manages to present a leisurely but convincing picture of a delightful madhouse. "George and Margaret" has a refreshing theme that will yield the reader many pleasant moments.

Diplomacy Is Needed In The Home

Best For Parents to Shun Open Conflict With Their Children

(By LISA GRENELLE)

When she was about two years old Caroline apparently decided that her mother and father were having things altogether too easy. She had been a model baby.

One morning, as Mother was carrying her to breakfast, Caroline staged a little resistance. Why must she always have breakfast just when Mother was ready and always in the far corner of the dining room? It was too much! And to prove how very much it was much it was Caroline started to howl.

To this Mother made no retaliation no comment. Setting Caroline gently down on the floor, she departed closing the door behind her.

It is no fun to howl alone in an empty room. The floor is an irresponsive object to kick and besides it hurts the heels. Caroline felt outraged cheated. What, no reaction? Mother had let her down. When Mother returned some time later Caroline was ready to eat. She had learned her lesson.

Indifference Wort.

The most sobering medicine in the world for child as well as adult, is no reaction when a reaction is expected. Even a good, hard spanking is less disconcerting. Most of us can stand pain hardship, conflict and injustice pretty well. In fact, I guess we thrive on it. But when it comes to indifference being flatly ignored—then we are crushed. Nothing else but ridicule is quite so squelching.

Of course there is an emotional crisis when you must show an interest in physical love, but that's what you say goes. But if you are smart patient and tactful, such incidents should not occur often. It is better always, when possible, to steer any direct conflict even to ignore its existence, as Caroline's mother did.

Healthy Sign

It is natural perhaps even an almost invariably healthy sign for when the young one first starts defying you. Your ways and orders do not seem very reasonable to him, or always convenient or in accordance with his plans. Naturally, then, if he has spirit and intelligence he will want to try out strange things more to his own preference.

Your job. While not letting him get the best of you is to prevent the issue from coming to a showdown directly between you two. But, get your way, either by diverting the child or demonstrating, as did the mother in this incident, that your way is more handy or if necessary by compromising a little.

Every mother must really be diplomat always holding the reins yet never being reduced to pulling match.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

On Thursday afternoon the regular meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the Church parlours of Holloway Street United Church. The President, Mrs. James Corcon, opened the meeting. Very gratifying reports were brought by the different secretaries.

On account of sickness, Mrs. Sherry, the group leader, was absent. The Worship Service was conducted by Mrs. Wallace, members of Group Six, the theme being "The Church and Temperance."

After the opening exercises a beautiful solo was given by Mrs. Hinchcliffe. Mrs. Morden, Mrs. Chas. Walters, Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. J. Livesay, presented in a humorous manner and with a very loose-like resting of a living-room with flowers in baskets and on table the "Temperance program" in the form of a dialogue.

The meeting was closed with prayer and Group Six served refreshments.

Wages lost through sickness in England last year totalled $500,000,000.

London's shipping increased 497,684 tons last year, breaking all records of the port.

FATIGUE RUINS YOUTH, BEAUTY

PRISCW LA LANE

Finds time every day for a period of relaxation.

(By HELEN POLLETT)

Tearing through life at a gallop never catching a tranquil moment, is the height of folly if you are wasting a good look. It is the woman who has a well-organized life and realizes she is not made of wire and fickle strings who stays young looking.

Glimpse the passing throngs in shopping districts. Faces show tension even the faces of those who have plenty of this world's goods. It's bad business

So the subject of today's beauty preachment is relaxation. The jittery, hurried woman needs it if she is to retain the evidences of youth. Every day she should snatch half an hour of quiet. If her muscles are tense and her nerves on edge—"I'm a bundle of nerves" she screaming, her mind is not at ease. She's "all of a quiver". And the wrinkle goblins get her.

Having a regular time each day for a complete rest she will be able to keep herself into a state of dreamland let muscles relax. This habit is a marvelous pick-up treatment. It will do more than cosmetics to keep wrinkles away.

Fatigue is the greatest of all beauty destroyers, next to worry.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Reply to "At Home"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please let me know the correct way to answer an announcement of a marriage with an "At Home" card enclosed? The groom is a man of my husband's for many many years but in the past few years he has only seen him once in a while during business hours. Formerly they were quite close friends. The friend has married into a family of wealth and social prominence. We shall probably never see each other socially. Please let me know the correct procedure to take.

Since your husband and the bridegroom have been such good friends, even though this friendship is not as close as it was formerly, it would be a natural and gracious thing for him to write this friend a note of congratulations and best wishes. In the note he would include your name as also offering your congratulations. and would say too that both you and he send best wishes to the happily greeting to the bride.

While it isn't strictly necessary to reply to a marriage announcement, it is considered the polite thing to do, and naturally people like to receive the felicitations of their friends on this important occasion.

The enclosed "At Home",will indicate the time after which the bride and bridegroom will welcome their friends to their new home . . .

"At Home after the first of September", for instance . . . and you would be polite for you and your husband to call on them rather soon after this date. Since they have made this gracious gesture to you and your husband, why not make this call? You never can tell about the meetings of pathways in life . . . it may turn out that you and your husband and this couple may become close friends! In these trying times such friends are social prominence" are, delightfully often, not as important as greatness of heart and pleasantness of manner and manners. And your charming letter shows that you are such a pleasant person to know that I suggest that you give these people the opportunity of knowing you. Will you?

Informal Marriage Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married very soon, and as yet the only people in whom I am interested are my own family, parents and my own parents.

I would like to let my relatives know of the marriage, but I do not wish to send invitations, neither do I wish to send anything so impersonal as announcements. Would I be doing the proper thing to write letters to them? If so, should they be sent before or after the marriage, and what should they contain?

Perhaps if I tell you that I have not seen these relatives, aunts and cousins, for a number of years, and that they do not know my husband-to-be, even by name, it will be of help to you in deciding this question.

Dorothy

It would be entirely correct, and a gracious gesture to make, for you to write notes to these relatives either before your marriage telling them of your intended marriage, or after the marriage, as an informative announcement.

If notes are written after your marriage, they might read something like this:

Dear Aunt Mary,

I want you and Uncle John to know of my marriage last Tuesday, June fourteenth, to Mr. Brown and Father and Tom's mother and father were present. The ceremony, performed by Thomas Robinson, we've know each other for several years. He's an architect and a grand person! I have told him how much pleasure it has given me you both that he is eager to meet you and I hope that this will be possible soon. Dates are so free in Ottawa, and when we decide on an address I'll write you about it.

Love to you both,

Affectionately,

KILLED HER PARTNER

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Lament of a Neu-Fucked Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

As one of your constant readers, please let me say that a lady who wrote you a little whole ago doesn't know what she's well off. She complained because she was tired of having things her own way. Her husband was not drinkie, gave her his pay envelope, and was always satisfied.

Here am I, a bride who can never have things her own way, who almost has to get down on my knees to obtain money for food to run the house. And when one grudging allowance is handed over, I have to report to my husband how I spent every penny. I never seem to be able to arrange anything in the house to suit him—the carpet board, the pantry, shelves, the way the towels in the bathroom are hung.

Whenever I make a cake and have to skimp on the eggs because it's not suits him.

He seems to think I'm lucky to have a roof and board.

A Woman Without Rights

As you have no children, why don't you start earning a little money of your own? In the city from which you write out there is a magnificent training school supported by private endowment. In that school you can learn stenography, typing, general office work, nursing, tap dancing, gardening, forestry, bookbinding and dozens of other subjects.

The only way a wife can be happy with one of these old-maids is men who fuss over the way towels are hung in the bathroom and squeeze every penny until the Indian shrieks, is to earn a little money of her own.

Persistence Will Win Her Back

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Four years ago a charming girl moved into our neighborhood, and there was a general rush to see who could get acquainted with her first. She seemed to like me, and I would go over to her house evenings and help her with her lessons and walk home with her after school.

Then we got onto a foolish argument over nothing at all and I quit going to see her. In the next few weeks I've talked to her a lot, and she seems friendly. But whenever I've suggested a date, she always seems to have something else planned, I realize what she might think of me for that silly quarrel, but I'm four years older and wiser now.

New Found Love

Just keep on persisting, and remember that comforting adage that the constant dropping of water will wear a stone. Nothing makes such a boy more unpopular than laying down the law and being argumentative with girls.

Invitation to House Better Than Stolen Moments

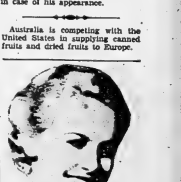
Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have plenty of good clothes, but what use are they to me, since my dad won't allow me to go out or have boy friends come to the house. That is why all the boys here in the older me cancelled me stuck up, because whenever they want to take me out I have to say no. This is very hard, as I am particularly interested in a young man and I know he cares for me.

He always says when he sees me: "I am still waiting for an invitation from you to come to your house." But I have to refuse because my parents won't even listen to the suggestion. I'm so disgusted with life that sometimes I wish I were dead.

I expect to meet him at a school function soon. Would it be wrong if I asked him to take me riding in his car?

Disgusted.



Here's hoping that this girl's mother and father and other mothers and fathers, who decline to let their daughters receive friends at home, may read this letter. Much better for this girl to have her friends under the parental roof than to sneak off for a stolen ride in a car. To know your daughters' friends is taking the safe and sane course.

MILL FIRE ENQUIRY FURTHER DELAYED

Ingersoll, Ont., June 4—(CP)—Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott today opened the formality today of re-opening the inquiry into the Ingersoll flour mill fire of Jan. 5, and immediately adjourning it again because of the continued absence of Russell A. Stuart, president and manager of the flour mill.

Officers have been endeavoring to serve Stewart with a subpoena to appear as a witness before the probe, since Thursday, but reported themselves unable to find him. Police were on guard at his residence in case of his appearance.

SANG SWING FOR KING

"It was the biggest thrill of my life," was the way Evelyn Dall, ABOVE, 20-year-old New York singer, expressed herself after "swinging for the King". Miss Dall, vocalist with a famous English orchestra, sang in the modern manner at a ball held by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace.

Metro gave "Test Pilot" three stars, Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, and we give it three stars . . . plus 130 minutes of rip-roaring action that will have your patrons gripping their seats with excitement, and bursting out in spontaneous applause when it's all over. The public we hear, has been clamoring for action pictures, and we can just picture the Metro executives saying "So they want action, eh! Let 'em have it" . . . and here it is.

Clark Gable has his best role in a long time, far eclipsing his parts in "Parnell," "San Francisco" or "Saratoga". As for Myrna Loy, she does a swell job as the small-town Gable falls in love with and marries. Her fears for his safety, and her attempts to keep him off the alcoholic path are convincing, and the love scenes swell.

Spencer Tracy, last year's Academy Award winner, repeats his fine performances of "San Francisco" and "Captains Courageous". Victor Fleming's direction is fine from beginning to end "Jay!" Canadian Moving Picture Digest.

Repairing Damage To Liver

Dr. Clendening Tells Latest Method of Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AFTER I discussed the newer methods of assessing liver damage last week, I was asked what could be done to put a damaged liver back into condition.

We are able now by physiological tests to recognize quite minute amounts of liver damage. And by proper management much can be done to restore a liver to full function.

The liver is, of all internal organs in the body, the one which is able best to regenerate its own cells. When the heart or the brain or the kidneys lose a cell or a group of cells, the defect is filled in with scar tissue and the destroyed cells are forever out. This is not serious in the case of the kidneys because we can get along with about one-third the kidney substance we normally own.

The liver, however, regenerates its own functioning cells, and even if a lobule is destroyed, it is possible to replace it. As with the kidney, only a part of the liver need function at any one time.

But with widespread liver damage, it is worth while trying to replace the damaged cells. Feeding sugar and glucose is probably the way to do this. The liver responds to glucose and thrives on it.

Salt Valuable

Salt is also a valuable food to assist liver in its regeneration. Several years ago Dr. Rowntree advocated salt and sugar for diarrhoea, and believed that even in that serious condition considerable regeneration occurred.

The elimination of poisons which are absorbed and carried to the liver is naturally fundamental. These poisons are derived from the large intestine, because practically all the contents of the intestines which are absorbed by the blood stream go first to the liver. Among the common poisons, alcohol ranks first for mow, of the blame. Although some doubts have been thrown on this fact, most physicians will subscribe believe that alcohol does a great deal of liver damage, and certainly anyone who has evidence that his liver function is impaired should give up its use indefinitely.

Besides this, it may be possible to reduce the amount of intestinal poisons by the use of acidophilus milk or ordinary brewer's yeast, in substantial amounts.

Concentrated liver extract and Vitamins B and C also seem to have a stimulating effect on the liver. They can be taken twice a week. This regimen should continue for at least three months.

Poems That Live

FAST

The clocks are chiming in my head;
Their cobweb chimes;
Old memories, old days, that die,
The sob of things a-drifting by.
The clocks are chiming in my heart!

The stars have twinkled, and gone out—
Pair stars above!
The hot desire burns low, and was
Those salty fires, that flamed anon.
The stars have twinkled, and gone out.

CALIBAN IN THE COAL MINES

God, we don't like to complain.
We know that the mines are built to lark—
But—there's the pools from the rain;
But—there's the cold and the dark.

God, You don't know what it is—
You, in Your well-lighted sky,
Watching the meteors whizz;
Warm, with the sun always by.

God, if You had but the moon
Stuck in Your eye for a lamp,
Even You'd tire of it soon.
Down in the dark and the damp,

Nothing but blackness, above,
And nothing that moves but the rats—
God, if You wish for our love,
Fling us a handful of stars.

Shower Bath Is Aid To Reducer

Eadie Adams

Can be proud of her figure
By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

EMBARRASSING bulges just can't be tolerated if you want to make any sort of an appearance in summer clothes. Of course diet and exercise are the two most accepted methods of eliminating those unneeded bunches of fat, but since keeping trim is such a necessity we are passing along another aid to obtaining that end—either be used by itself or in conjunction with diet and exercise.

It's particularly important to have a stylish-like form during the warm months because you can't cover a lumpy figure with a mink coat as you can in cold weather. So if we are going to give you several routines as sort of a last call to slimness.

Today's suggestion is shower baths and reducing lotions. Shower's can really be taken to help ward off fat as well as to invigorate and cleanse. Of course you don't need any of those forceful ones that will massage your fat into submission, but rather those that are simply a warm bath. The whole shower is all you need to reduce.

Here's the way to go about it. Turn on the water as hot as you can stand it. Concentrate the hot streams on your hips and stomach, if that's where you have bulges. Let it run for some time. Your skin will take on a pinkish glow.

Next turn the water gradually from hot to warm and then to tepid, cool and cold. While you are under the chilly-to-cold water massage your body briskly with your bath brush. The whole shower or will only take about ten minutes and you will have given yourself a delightful bone water and brush massage.

Rub Dry

Put a large absorbent bath towel around your shoulders and take another one to rub your body dry. After you are thoroughly dry you can apply your reducing lotion. You will find a marvelous reduction in your measurements after two or three weeks of this treatment.

Here is an excellent reducing lotion that you can make at home. The ingredients are camphor for rubbing alcohol. Shave two ounces cubes of camphor and add the shavings to one pint of alcohol. Allow the mixture to stand for twenty-four hours so that the camphor can melt thoroughly.

Another reducing lotion can be made with epsom salts crystals. Add one glassful of the salts to a quart of water. If the water is hot the salts will dissolve quicker, but the solution stand until the crystals are completely dissolved.

Pat whichever reducing you prefer over your fatty areas with a cotton pad, or a piece of flannel. You can use the reducing lotions on every part of your body except your underchin and breasts. If you are energetic enough to exercise as well as use the lotion, you will find that the bulges will melt away faster.

The year 1924 was the most peaceful in Great Britain, so far as industrial disputes were concerned. Only 960,000 working days were lost that year, as compared with 162,220,000 working days lost in 1921.

Girl Tells Of Coming Marriage

Psychologist Helped Her With Advice, She States

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

I ONCE HEARD Professor Russ of the University of Wisconsin say that the common element to all great religions is the ideal of giving up something now for something better later on. To be able to do so is a good test of character. To the point is the following letter:

"Dear Doctor Myers: Perhaps you have forgotten that I ever wrote you and asked you to help me. In a little over a week's time after I wrote to you, I received your answer. I could have written to you then, but I could not have known how really right what you told me was, if I know it now.

"We are happy, Jim and I. Every time we are together we are happier than the time before, and each time seems that it couldn't be better. . . .

"You remember I wrote to you last spring telling you how Jim and I loved each other and couldn't be married, and how we really didn't know what was best for us, but wanted help from some one who did know. . . . You have done more than depended a great deal upon the answer you would give me. You wrote to me from a hotel in Milwaukee, where you said you were conducting public forums for the United States office of education, and I know you understood how I felt.

"Both of us realize now that no matter how much we may love each other, we'd be taking something from the future if we were to act as if married. You see we have each other for life, and to make our marriage a happy one, even if it means a lot of self-discipline now.

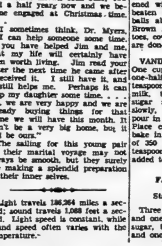
"We are going to be married in June and we will live in a town where he is and has had a job since September; and I live in this city. . . .

Owes Happiness to Dr. Myers

"There is so much I want to tell you, how happy we are and how, I believe, we owe most of it to you. Had you told us differently we might have done otherwise and have spoiled something that makes us happy now and will contribute toward a truer happiness later on when we are married.

"We spend many hours together on holidays and week-ends. . . .

"We have known each other two and a half years now and we became engaged at Christmas time. . . .



"I sometimes think, Dr. Myers, that you someone some time as you have helped Jim and me, that my life will certainly have been worth living. I read your letter the next time he came after I received it. I still have it, and it still helps me. Perhaps it can help my daughter some time. . . . As we are very happy and we are already buying things for that home we will have this month. It won't be a very big home, but it will be ours."

The sailing for this young pair on their marital voyage may not always be smooth, but they surely are making a splendid preparation in their inner selves.

House Has English Basement With Living And Bedrooms on Second Floor

Five-room house has English basement with garage, in which garage, living room and kitchen are on one level; living rooms and bedrooms on floor above.

Drawings by J. C. Cowtrey, National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

By Central Press

THIS FIVE-ROOM frame house is unique in that it has an English basement. The garage is on the same floor level as the dining room and kitchen, and is connected with them by a hall. The living room and bedrooms are on the floor above.

This type of house is often built on a hillside, so the plan is worth considering if you have a lot of that character.

Besides the garage, dining room, kitchen, laundry, furnace room and coal bin on this level is a breakfast nook with table and bench. There also is a toilet on this floor.

On the living room occupies the entire front of the second floor, with half between it and the bedrooms. The bathroom is off this hall. The living room has a fireplace and an alcove over the garage with windows overlooking the front of the house. This alcove contains a built-in seat and place for telephone.

The size of the main building is 24 feet 6 inches by 40 feet 8 inches; the over all, 31 feet by 41 feet 6 inches. It contains 33,780 cubic feet.

Italian Meat Balls And Spaghetti Are "Different"

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Italian Meat Balls Spaghetti
Fresh Vegetable Salad
Greens
Vanilla Cup Custards
Tea

When you want something different, why not try Italian meat balls with spaghetti? This recipe which you will find very good, is by Imes S. Wilson, home economist. The custard recipe I took from "The Modern Cook Book" by K. Camille Den Dooven.

Today's Recipes

MEAT BALLS — 1½ pounds ground meat, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 tablespoon green pepper, 1 egg, beaten, salt and pepper, 3 tablespoons bacon fat, 2 cups tomatoes. Combine ground meat with chopped onion, green pepper, salt, pepper, and bread which has been moistened with water. Add slightly beaten egg and shape into round balls about an inch in diameter. Brown in bacon fat.

Add tomatoes, cover and let cook until balls are done. Serve on spaghetti.

VANILLA CUP CUSTARDS—One cup milk, two eggs, one and one-half tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, pinch salt. Scald milk, then beat together eggs, sugar and vanilla. Add hot milk slowly, mix well and strain, then pour in baking cups or custard cups. Place cups in pan of water and bake in an oven at a temperature of 350 degrees. Serve cold. One teaspoon of cornstarch may be added to the sugar if you wish.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Strawberry Apricot Jam

Three quarts strawberries, two and one-quarter pounds fine granulated sugar, three pounds apricots, two and one-half pounds fine sugar, apricot kernels. Put berries, not too ripe, and first amount of sugar into preserving kettle. Crush half an hour, stirring gently just enough to get sugar off bottom and not break fruit. Set aside to cool and offer flavor. Stir occasionally. Then half fill table jelly bowls. Halve apricots, which should be ripe enough to separate with fingers. Place in deep kettle and stew over one pound of sugar. Let stand overnight. Add a few kernels, blanched and sliced, and remainder of sugar. Boil very gently and when edges begin to be clear set to cool. When cold, with flat spoon slide some halves into centre of strawberry jam in bowls. Jam will have a thick shine to surface and apricots will look slightly. Then fill bowl. A circle of paper dipped in brandy and laid over jam before sparkling preserves "weeping" and preserves fresh fruit flavor. Cover and put thence make this daintiest jams.—Mrs. K. Harrell.

Restoring Table Finish

A touch of alcohol will remove the white spot that a too-hot dish left on your table top. Simply rub a few drops of alcohol in the palm of your hand, then moisten finger tips of the other hand and lightly rub the white area.

Remember, however, that alcohol itself is a paint remover, so don't apply more than a fraction of a drop at a time—then rub briskly before adding more.

Cuts for Broiling

The meats chosen for broiling are the tender ones. Porterhouse or T-bone, club or Delmonico and sirloin steaks are the usual choice for cooking by this method. Sometimes also the rib is cut into steaks, yielding ones which are known as rib steaks and if these are suitable for broiling. Ground meat, even that made from less tender cuts, may be shaped into cakes and broiled satisfactorily, because the long fibres of the tender meat are cut in the grinding and thus made tenderer.

All meats for broiling are better if the steak should be cut at least one inch thick; for then the outside may be nicely broiled while the centre is rare, if desired.

Accompaniments for Steak

The foods served with steak vary with individual preferences and with the time of year. Fried onions and French fried potatoes have become almost the standard ones. Therefore, you may want to vary these and serve the steak nicely garnished with onion rings and a bit of fresh parsley. A crisp vegetable salad with a tart dressing, also is a favorite accompaniment for steak in the summer meal.

CLEVER MOTHER PLANS BOY'S PARTY DESSERT

By Central Press

REFRESHMENTS for a boy's party are a problem, since few of the sterner sex, even as the tender age of eight or ten, are as impressed with frilly "nothings," artistically decorated, as girls are. They, like their fathers, want the "eats" to be something that they can sink their teeth into.

A dessert along just this line was recently developed by a clever mother who trys to combine the feminine ideas of party refreshment with the masculine desire for something substantial. She called her dessert Treasure Island Stockade for the building which features a thrilling in that boyhood classic —"Treasure Island."

The island with the stockade dessert rested was made of gingerbread. A very large pan was used for baking this, and the batter poured in only half an inch thick so that the finished product would not be too thick. When the gingerbread was done and cool, it was cut into saucer-sized circles. These were then were the individual Treasure Islands.

The stockades were apples baked in a special way. The apples were cored as usual, then pared completely. Five cinnamon sticks were poked into the apples, half way down the centre and so spaced that they bristled at right angles from the apples like so many fierce cannon. A good inch of the cinnamon sticks was left protruding for this effect. The centres were filled with a mixture of honey, chopped nuts and raisins, and then the apples were baked slowly in a little water until they were tender but still retained their shape. The cinnamon stick cannons, besides being decorative, gave just the right flavor.

When the apples had cooled, one was placed on each gingerbread island, and the island was surrounded with a sea of slightly whipped cream tinted a delicate green with vegetable coloring. A flag, surmounted the stockade, and a pipe-cleaner pirate stood with sword in hand on the plain.

The boys were so enthusiastic about Treasure Island Stockade that it has been voted to be the last of this family's regular desserts.

Woman's Laryngitis Aids Mate

Couldn't Interfere With His Driving In Traffic

By VIRGINIA LEE

I HEARD a very good story the other day. It concerned a man and his back seat driver wife.

He hated to drive in traffic in a large city, but one day he had to. His wife had laryngitis, which you know, if you have ever known any one who had it or had it yourself, makes one incapable of any sound except a hoarse whisper. And that is such an effort that it is much pleasanter to keep still.

So, with wife on the back seat, but speechless, the husband wended of his way through crowded streets. He did very well indeed so well, in fact, that when at last they reached their destination a hoarse whisper from the back seat said hoarsely, "You did very well, John, very well, indeed!"

Said John, "Thank you, my dear, but I wouldn't have done nearly so well if you hadn't had laryngitis."

Wonder if that was a lesson in that wife or if when she recovered her voice she drove as relentlessly as ever from that back seat?

I know another wife who has been married for years. She revealed suddenly that she was a "backseat driver," and from then she found a great deal of fault with her mate. She resolved to "break" him also found herself criticizing him, she decided that would fix that. Well it didn't broke herself of the habit. Fault-finding is undesirable likewise please take notice.

D. C.: If the boy was so interested in you as you are in him he would have found a way to make you wouldn't he? That would have been a conclusive test of how interested. Then why not decide that you have wasted five months effort on him and that is enough, and concentrate on boys who are attracted to you? The young man this one boy without effort after awhile. It often happens.

C. P. W.: a young girl who unfortunately fell in love with a boy who did not love her, and told her. She had been warned not to tell him, but she loved him because he is one who loves lightly and passes on to other fields to conquer. So she was careful to "conceal her love," as Shakespeare says. Then a very fine young man wants to play around awhile. Cheer up. Hide your love from the other boy and see whether you don't have fun, and finally forget your lost love.

Youngest Showgirl Is Nine And a Regular Trooper

By MARY FISHER

Central Press Correspondent

SHE'S THE youngest showgirl in New York—which means that she's a regular trooper. She gets up early, long before most showgirls are, where Meet Carol Wanderman, a youngster, airen aged nine.

Carol goes through the adult showgirl routine, copying the older girls in the New York hit, "Stars for What". The show closed recently but when it is taken on tour later, Carol plans to join the cast. The producers thought it would be a cute stunt to have Carol, the her older colleagues, stroll about the stage and look beautiful, wear dazzling costumes, sing a little and generally add background to the show. She does all this, and more-over, she lives up to many showgirl traditions. She even has stage door Johnnies—boys about her own age who come backstage to meet mothers.

Little Miss Wanderman's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Wanderman, is trying to keep her daughter unspoiled, but it's a tough job. The girl gets the fan mail and presents from "admirers"—even a bracelet from an indulgent playgoer with a granddaughter.

Carol also is a professional model, and has posed for such illustrations as Arthur William Brown.

Kingston Locos Wins Slugfest; Giants' Margin Cut in National

Hits Galore Rattle off Bats Of Both Squads as Kingston Wins Over Belleville 13-10

St. Louis Enjoying Seven Run Lead Forced to Retire

WRENCHES ARM

Wilkins And Weeks Unable to Hold Hard Hitting Locos

Little did the large crowd of mostly non-paying customers at the Cricket Grounds in Kingston last night dream that when Spencer of St. Louis, Belleville starting hurler, who had shut their pride, out for over three innings and was breezing along very nicely with a seven-run lead, walked out of the box with a muscle wrenched in his arm. It would be the factor in that turned what appeared from a Belleville point of view, a very nice exhibition of baseball, into one of the screwiest melanges of apple-clouting and ball-chasing that has been seen on those venerable grounds in many a moon.

For not only did the "Locos of Arvial" overturn a later eight-run deficit but they pounded the offerings of three Belleville hurlers for a total of twenty in the course of the top of the heap by a 13-10 score. Even the nine batsmen disgusted and dropped behind a convenient horizon in the eighth inning to put an end to the misery.

Just about everything in the baseball calendar was dished up by both squads in the regular Bay of Quinte loop fixture last night, although a flock of doubters thirty-eight hits all told, twenty three runs, a four sacker that left the park four times, arguments that were'nt arguments but were the pitching parades of both squads, caused an epidemic of head-scratching in the Limestone City that will likely continue for some time.

Five Hurlers Used.

Five hurlers toed the slab and contributed to an orgy of walloping slugging that hasn't been equalled on the Kingston open-air stadium for some time. To start off, the Belleville heavy artillery swung recklessly into action, pounding the plants of one Campbell, repudiately from Sydenham, all over the Kingston landscape for five hits and four runs in the second; before Mr. Cuthbertson, a brisk-baller was rushed into the breach. The Weirmen showed early offerings for three hits and six runs in the 3rd and 5th before the diminutive one settled down and blanked them with four scattered slugs for the remainder of the eight inning battle-time.

Speedy St. Louis had the locals waiting out of his hand for three and one third innings. So scintilating was his ball for nary a run. Suddenly he walked from the box complaining of a wrenched arm. Bud Wilkins was rushed to the hilltop with a seven run lead—and the fire works started. The Kingston bludgeoners had no difficulty solving the slants of the lad who defeated them last week. Fourteen assorted hits including a three-bagger, a trio of doubles and a flock of singles littered the pasture between the Belleville gardeners while nine runners did a tap dance on the plate before the fateful seventh when Letty Weeks was inserted into the breach with the bases loaded, two out and the tying and winning runs cluttering up the bases.

Bowling For Rib.

The fans were bowling for the bill as Gerry Arniel strode to the plate, but Weeks was generous and forced the first baseman across the plate. And to cap the hitherto slightsmacking Ted Arniel, whose weather eye to the rows of automobiles parked outside the confines into a crap-shooters huddle, and pasted the pill high, wide and handsome over the left field wall, a Ford, and three milk trucks to bear the cards, while Chuck Darrigo was looking at the chassis of more automobiles in the ordinary mechanic ass in a month.

However, in his anxiety to receive the plaudits of the cheering customers, Udell omitted to touch second base, which in nice baseball circles is a breach of the rules, so he accordingly was called out.

The shadows were becoming deeper and darker and so were the moods of the Weirites, so without more ado, a mutual agreement between the scrubs was reached whereby hostilities were called off and everyone went home to supper.

There is one bright spot in the gloom that followed the loss of a game that was seen up tighter at one time than a marriage contract and that was the consistent slugging of the Belleville squad. They got eighteen hits all told with Harold Reid leading the parade with two two-baseers and two singles out of four, and Johnson got himself three singles, Collins a double and single, Alex Weir two more and Chuck Barrigar likewise. Empson, Benny Green and St. Louis got one each.

Now were the "Locos" shrinking violets with the hickory. Led by the potent wrist-job of Mickey Empson who got two doubles and as many singles for a perfect average, the Arnelians gathered twenty safeties, all told. Gerry Arniel and Reid contributed three each to the scene with Cuthbertson, Arniel and Reid kicking in with a brace apiece.

Accidental Success

I've had enough experience with pictures to learn how little I really known about them.

In 1914 I made some movies of a golf game with Robert Bosworth in Hollywood. My close association with such producers as Charlie Chaplin and Mack Sennett and the Christie brothers has enabled me to get expert advice from camera men. I had the privilege of studying the slow motion mogles of golf with Annette Kellerman. When 16-mill-metre film first became available I used it to make instruction reels for the pictures. All times I have had the advantage of help from the best experts in that field. The pictures they have made for me, as well as those they have made for myself, are invaluable.

But, as I think about going out tomorrow to make pictures that I hope will be of value, the introduction in magazines and newspapers, I am in much the same position as a golfer who is faced with the need to make a good score. Like the golfer, I am tempted in my confusion over stops and shutter speeds to give up trying to remember all the rules and do the job in my own way.

This temptation occurs from time to time because through sheer accident I have made good pictures (my own way) just as you have by playing your way. You can't learn anything from accidental performances.

CORBY'S DEFEAT NAPANEE BY 14-5 NOW IN 1st PLACE

Game Called in Seventh When Visiting Team Late

EASILY OUTPLAYED

Con Harris Hurler For Winners Had Visitors Handcuffed

"Chuck" Barnett's Corby's A. C. softballers moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Belleville District Softball League after handing the Napanee Mic-Mac Crew a shellacking at the Coleman Plate diamond last evening. Owing to a difference in time between Belleville and Napanee, the Mic Macs were late reaching the field and consequently were terminated in the seventh inning owing to darkness, but all concerned were quite happy about the whole thing as the visitors were outplayed in every field and all departments. It was the third consecutive win for the "Say Corby's" outfit.

The homesters cuffed the delivery of the two Napanee moundsmen to most every conceivable corner of the ball field, while Con Harris pitching for the Corbys nine, not only turned in a masterful effort on the mound, but was game alright support, exs sidering the ultimate score was one-sided.

Took Early Lead

The Corbys got off to an early game lead bagging three in the second and four in the third off the offerings of Hall, first in the fifth and sixth. Cole and Gray poled out two-baggers in the latter canto, while the latter connecting for a single for good measure. Barnett, with a single and double, was the other local potent batsman. G. Corby Wilson's circuit clout was effective for a homer and also hit a double in the fifth, contributing to the singles for the Napanee outfit.

Harris struck out seven batters while five, three in the final seventh when Napanee scored one-each. Corbys scored eight of their offerings of Rombow hard and often to the left from the slab in the sixth. Hawley, a grey-haired veteran, finished the game, but was severely handicapped by deliveries, in the sixth inning score indicates.

Second Game Next Week

The next league game sees Napanee journey to Corby's Monday night, when the National Grocers entertain the hard-hitting Corbys. Another exhibition games are slated in softball next week, the first being a game between the R. C. A. F. at the airport, while a fast Belleville team will entertain National Grocers at Coleman Plate on Thursday.

Box score:

Napanee ——Miller ib, Curry cf, Murphy 2b, Stinson ss, Hall p, Cole rf, Gray c, Thompson c, G. Curry lf, Rombow and Hawley rf, Corby's A. C.—Barnett 2b, Lapenskie ss, Kiser rf, Cole lb, McMartin cf, McGuire ss, Gray c, Palmer 3b and Harris p.

By adding a strand of thread to outer seams and making the cover 1/32 of an inch thicker, the big league moguls believed they were going to cause quite a furore and perhaps put down on the alleged rabbit ball of previous years. Strange as it may seem the new "dead" ball has proven to be much livelier than the spheroid it replaced. Using the same pitchers, the same batters, who might have been better blubgeoners, the big league batsters have blasted more extra base hits for the first month of play this year, than they did for a similar period in 1937. More remarkable is the fact made with the result that all of this was done not in the fostering conservative National League statistics:

Games	98	98
Runs	965	891
Hits	1653	1739
Doubles	322	305
Triples	93	71
Homers	107	100
Runs batted in	922	799
Putouts	3344	3322
Assists	2309	2304
Errors	269	269
Double plays	181	178

Although the month of June is usually connected with roses and bridal, it is the month in the early month of 23 big league baseball diamonds. Such stars as Lou Gehrig, Carl Hubbell, Joe DiMaggio, Wally Moses, Wally Berger, Rudy Hemsley, rollicking Indian baseball star, Jimmy Foxx, Paul Derringer, Mel Ott, Dizzy Dean, Joe Rabbit, Whitey Kerr, and Bill Werle, coach of the Cincinnati team, were born on June 25th. Others are Camilla Williams, Ethel Whitehead, of the Giants, the Boston Braves' Lefty Frankhouse, born the same day as Gehrig, but 14 years later, in 1914. Lefty Grove he reached his 35th birthday Gehrig played in 1,000 consecutive games.

It may or again may not be news to the fans in Picton, but we hear Maxie Rosenbloom, former world's light heavyweight champion, who was in the Prince Edward County seat of business last week. We failed to ascertain the nature of his business trip, however. While speaking of Picton, a reminder of an incident that occurred during the National Grocers at Napanee softball game the other evening. It seems in the afternoon Napanee beat out a 6-5 win over Ron Church's Picton ballsters, the veteran Brock Hudgins being coach or trainer of the Doylelts this season. Brock and Church attended the softball game in the evening with Hudgins apparently speaking out of turn when he asked the boys would like to place a bet on the Belleville city. Hal Kemp's charges took up a collection and in victory relieved Brock of seven bucks.

Jack McVeigh, secretary of the Quinte junior golf loop, announced today the Picton at Belleville junior game that was rained out on May 24th will be played at the Fair Grounds on Monday evening, the Picton kids agreeing to fill in that date. The local kids have another scheduled game on their list also having been rained out at Napanee on the night Coach Hubbell Merrett had the Kiwanis kids out to practice last night and is advising with their parents' lineup. Either Kelleher or Noakes will get the local hurling assignment on Monday evening.

When 23 runs and 38 hits are registered during a ball game most anything might have resulted—but that's just what took place in Kingston yesterday when Alex Weir's hopefuls lost by a 13 to 10 score. The Belleville nine was out to avenge a 7 to 5 defeat that their relief hurlers foisted up like the well-known sacrifice. Belleville used three hurlers, while Jimmy Arniel invited out to the mound three and was proud to be a really heroic game, most everything happening that could be crowded into a ball game. There were a lot of thefts and quite few of the initial game here last Tuesday, but last night's tussle had the pairway gaps and diesel from watching the base runners circle the bases. St. Louis started for the Weirites but was all through early in the fourth. Wilkins followed him to the relief wagon, but yesterday his deliveries with the apple were his downfall as batters, as they clubbed him for an even dozen safeties in 2 1-3 innings. Letty Weeks finished the parade. The defeat dropped the Locos into a tie for second place in the loop, one-half game behind Napanee, who meet the locals here on Thursday. The locals showed they can at least swing a mean bludgeon.

The natilly dressed Corby's A.C. nine are perched on the lofty driver's seat on the local softball lead wagon with the exception of the Napanee entry, the clubs in the Belleville Softball loop seem to be fairly evenly matched, which should result in a better brand of softball being played throughout the league during the coming summer.

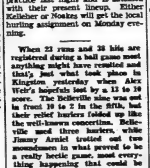
HODGE PODGE — It looks as though Alex Weir will have to bolster his hurling staff. How about signing Larry Goyer, Alex? Goyer would quality under the professional of one sport being permitted to play amateur in another line, his pro diversion being hockey.

Toronto wrestling fans have no jonah cord, they're still sore because the Masked Marvel was not publicly unmasked when he took to Vic Christie on Thursday. . . .

Tut, tut, young fans and gals, what's the report, Jam on both sides of your morning toast? . . . The Cincinnati Reds may put a curfew to be the busters-up of National League hopefuls and aspirants. . . . Dizzy Dean Carver says last night's game at Kingston was a scorer's nightmare.

Yesterday's Stars

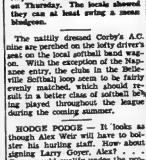
Red Ruffing, Yankees — Pitched seven-hitter, fanning five, to trounce Tigers 5-1.



Bill Lee, Cubs—Hurled three hitter for third shutout in row, defeating Bees 4-0.

Mickey Owen and Don Padgett, Cardinals—Owen's "clutch" single with two out in the eleventh drove in winning run to beat Phillies 8-7 after Padgett hit homer with bases loaded.

Wes Ferrell, Senators—Handcuffed White Sox 3-2 with rib hits.



Earl Averill, Indians—Hit triple and single, driving in four runs in 10-5 win over Athletics.

TOILS FOR A'S

He who toils for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in the American League these days, has a tough row to hoe. Here's Melvin Harder, one of Connie's scoundrumen, is doing a pretty fair hoeing job and has registered four wins in the Quaker City cause.

DOWN GRADE

After three years of averaging 20 wins a year for Detroit Tigers, Lyn-wood (Schoolboy) Rowe, above, has been shipped back to Beaumont in the Texas League, the same team from which he skyrocketed to fame in the majors five years ago. Something went wrong with Rowe's arm last year, when he was of practically no use to the team, and the arm did not respond to treatment this year.

JERSEY GIANTS STEALING BASES TO GET COUNTERS

Stolen Base Paves Way For Winning Run Against Orioles

IN FOURTH PLACE

Newark Bears Win Seventh in Row by Beating Syracuse

Jersey City Giants, who take after the parent New York Giants in more respects than one, are turning out to be a bunch of speed merchants on the base-paths, one fine art in which Bill Terry's men never showed much interest.

With a home run powerful batting lineup, and distant fences in the home park which preclude "cheap" homers, the Jerseys are going in for larceny on the diamond in order to get runs.

Even with a couple of ex-Dodgers in the lineup, the Giants are leading the International League in stolen bases with 38. Three of them were made yesterday, one by Babe Herman who is showing the way for the winning run, as the Giants defeated Baltimore Orioles 2-1, and moved past Buffalo Toronto Maple Leafs into fourth place.

Third in Row.

It was the third straight triumph for the Giants over their Orioles, who lost their eighth in a row.

Newark Bears won their seventh consecutive game by trimming the Syracuse Chiefs 5-4 in an 11-inning battle, and Buffalo Bisons made it their sixth triumph in their last seven starts by defeating Rochester, 5-2.

Reggie Grabowski walked Bob Seeds with the bases loaded in the eleventh to force home Newark's winning run and give Alex Donald the victory in the decision.

Home runs by Ollie Carnegie and Joey Mullaney enabled the Bisons to trip the Red Wings and stretch their present close lead over the Wings to two games.

Only one game was played in the local K-I-T Softball circles last evening when the St. Mikes bantams beat the Athletics 28-10.

Ross-Armstrong Fight Pictures at Capitol Theatre Next Week

The machine-like precision of the flailing fists of Henry Armstrong that pounded Barney Ross, welterweight champion out of the ring last title, in one of the most lovely bouts in the ring in years, will be shown on the screen of the Capitol Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

The dusky fighter whose meteoric rise to fame and fortune is now proclaimed as one of the outstanding figures in the realm of sports. The now famous battle in which he hit Ross with everything but the kitchen sink is one of the classics of the ring. Ross, whose superb game was also shown when he stood the withering fire of the lethal left and right of the dusky fighter for 15 rounds will be seen carrying the fight to his opponent for six rounds, then a thoroughly beaten man, holding off Armstrong's bid for a knockout for the remainder of the fight.

The pictures, which it is claimed are the best taken of a prize fight, shows both fighters at their best, with the many highlights of the struggle brought out in startling clarity.

Ducky Medwick, Slaughter Leading St. Louis Cardinals Back into Loop Contention

One More Good Hurler And They Would Be The Team to Beat

GIANTS SLUMPING

Bill Lee of Cubs Hurls Third Shutout in a Row

DUCKY MEDWICK . . . . .

By SID FEDER

Grey hair has stopped sprouting in Uncle Frankie Frisch's head and is peppering up now on Terrible Bill Terry's scalp.

What with Dizzy Dean gone, his mound collection of so-called pitchers doing some passable work, and Ducky Medwick and Enos Slaughter leading a return of the Gashouse gang at the plate, Uncle Frankie is discovering it a pretty fair world after all.

Terrible Bill, on the other hand, can't quite make out what's coming over this once proud and mighty Giants. Only a few weeks ago they were setting the National League afire as though they were going to finish the pennant race in time to go fishing on the 4th. But now they're limping along with a porous infield, bats with holes in them, and pitchers, who, when asked for Carl Hubbell, can't win for loosing.

Only Needs One.

As a result, Terrible Terry's Terrific Terrors are heading onto the National League cellar at the slim margin of 1½ games over the Cubs. Which is funny, for Terry being to trade everything from his spare outfielder to a mortgage on Wrigley Field to get a second-baseman who can second base.

Frankie Frisch's Fighting Pirates came through with a 6-5 victory behind some nice relief pitching by Rookie Bob Klinger. It was the fourth defeat in a row for Terry's troupe.

Meantime, Brooklyn, featuring a revamped batting order, clouted Cincinnati hurlers all over the lot to four straight with an 8-7, 11-inning decision over the futile Phillies.

The Cubs, getting over the jitters from Boston's pitching, clicked for a 4-3 win. Lee Handed Ronnie Bee with three hits for his third straight shut-out and his fifth straight win.

Ruffing Wins Another.

Red Ruffing, Yankee ace, got with a classy flinging effort in the American League scrap, and helped better to give the Yankees 5-1 edge over Detroit Tigers and stretching his personal winning streak to four straight.

The Yanks remained 3½ games off Cleveland Indians' pace, however, since the tribe trimmed the Athletics 10-5. Wes Ferrell won his third straight, pitching a six-hitter as the Senators downed the Chicago White Sox, 5-1. Brooklyn Dodgers got a double win on the night and nipped Cincinnati's Reds, 5-4. The Red Sox-St. Louis Browns game in Boston was rained out.

New York, June 4 (AP)—Just a few random thoughts after watching fought his shadow in the famous Garden fight for the world's crown Bowl. . . . "Schoolboy" Rowe may return to the Tigers as an outfielder if the Houston team fails to take out his sore arm. . . . Tony Galento is training overweight in order to come to the Louis-Schmeling fight without broken ribs. . . . Pittsburgh and Dorothy will part with $400,000 to get Buck Newsom of the Browns on the Pittsburgh baseball club. . . .

The Broadway boys are laying for a Canadian horse named Tackman, due in the finale at Belmont today at the mile and a sixteenth.

. . . You could tell the difference yesterday's race was baffled day and half the customers were wonkers. . . . Even the jockeys all along and the box score shows a homer and a single.

If Tony Galento gets past John Henry Lewis he will undoubtedly be in line for a late summer shot with Tommy Farr. Tony is getting so fat that when he is introduced from the ring the announcer says, "Tonight, Galento". . . . Jake Powell of the Yanks who is batting around .400 a place earlier in the week, has been reinstated and is out of the doghouse.

Crossroads

by Kathleen Norris

INSTALMENT 17

Gloria made the trip pleasantly enough. It was not until she had nearly reached the Baggley's that she spoke about, in angry chagrin, action:

"Mind that I am! I didn't have to go to Kitty's tonight. There's no sense in my being out here alone with Tony and Kitty! I wonder if His Lordship let them know he wasn't coming. I wonder if on earth took him away in such a hurry—"

She had reached the Baggley's, that was black dark now and the spring night was cool, before she forgotten her car lights, stopped out of the sunshine, put her head on the door.

It opened without any help from her. Karl was standing there grinning up at her. His arm steadied her as she got out. He seemed was rocking under her feet and the lights wheeling with stars, and then answered him in the cossing. Charles went into the kitchen. The happy usual routine began, only tonight, Gloria felt, it was disturbed in one sentiment.

Karl had not wanted to have supper at Kitty's that night. He had come to town, and had then changed had his plan and come home. Why had come back? Why? Gloria knew. He had been drawn by her. He needs as strong as those that drew Gloria. Deep in her mind was a forbidden chair gold - brown eyes watching hotly from Tony to Karl, from Karl to Tony. Gloria had pronounced an hour of perfect felicity. Karl and she had been alone, and they were together again; and all else ignored.

He drove the car home at eleven o'clock. Gloria sliced beside him on the front seat, her head resting medically and at random. They had reached the unmitigated joy were smiling and blinking good nights in the upstairs hall outside their door when Karl said, "Oh, but what I took you so suddenly, I haven't forgot to ask you—"

"Miss Deane gave you my message?"

"I got it. He use letting him know that she had arrived safely and aware.

"There was a Dr. Porter in town on a visit. I remembered that he came away tomorrow, it wasn't that he had time in his life to be very important, but he and his London years ago. And—"

"Did you see him?"

"Oh, yes."

"I thought perhaps, since you were—over so late, you might stay and have supper."

"He and his wife had an engagement."

Gloria was tired; she felt and knew that she looked little jaded after the long evening and the long trip home. She smiled a good night to him, went into her room and shut her door. But for a long time could not sleep. Something had changed tonight; something was disturbed. There would be a bitterness now.

On the following Sunday Karl went to the hospital for the day, but not go to Kitty's; Monday was his brother's birthday, he was taking Jerry down to dine in one of the friends on Sunday night. Gloria was not invited. She remained at the Baggley's in the twilight in Kitty's cosy home party, feeling oddly fat and dispirited.

But again the imaginary conversation—the one that Gloria had begun to fill her thoughts, and comforted her. It was augmented now, it was made even more urgent by this new development.

She felt sure that they must have this talk made her happy. Her mind moved on when she was not so second of it in which she was not conscious that most hours in the laboratory or sitting in the wards staring thoughtfully at some half-conscious patient, was Karl.

On the Friday after his mother's birthday dinner party in Los Angeles on business, Gloria made him good-by cheerfully enough; afterward she was sorry she regret; she and Jimmy might have made his going easier for the company him, might have gone on to the station to see him off to his mother! She tortured herself for a few hours with vain self-reproach, that a fool she had been not to think of it—so easy and obviously natural, and such an opportunity for wonderful hours with him! But that passed, and she began to think of his return, of that first whole of meeting, of Sunday suppers and a drive afterward and of the walk home after supper.

He was expected home in exactly a week, on the following Friday. On Thursday night Gloria was sitting under the shore lamp in the little sitting room that, with the bedroom she and Jimmy shared, completed her suite, when Karl looked in at the half-opened door.

Her heart rose .n a great spring of joy. "Karl, we didn't expect you! You're back!"

"Back dirty, tired, cross," he said, smiling.

"And hungry too?" she said in a woman's panther.

"No, I had coffee and eggs on the boat. I finished my business down south this morning sooner than I'd died; there were some formalities. And then I suddenly wanted to come home."

"Your room died! Did that break Dr. Gardner's heart?"

"No, for the transplanting was perfect—there was perfect response. But he had a bad heart. Blessing—or a mercy, I suppose, will write the article. It was the first time we knew ever had this result."

"It was a real triumph, then?"

Karl shrugged wearily, not looking at her. "I suppose so. But I'm tired. I've been in the car since eleven o'clock."

"Eleven hours! Any one with you?"

"No one. Ah, well, I'll get to bed and sleep late in the morning." He straightened his hair; "What did I want to say to you?" he said. "Oh, yes. I think they want me to go to New York for work with Ingersoll."

"Who does?" Her throat, shut on the words.

"Ingersoll himself, I believe." A shrug. "My but it's restful here, Gail'aid.

"Did you hear from Ingersoll?" Gloria persisted. She had a letter filled with Ingersoll's ideas of what would have a few years ago. Saturday Gessinger showed me the letter. At the end Ingersoll said, "I am going to try to get your Miss Fitcher to come on to work with me for a year or two. I am fond of her."

Out of the blankness of fear that fell upon her spirit Gloria said, "I suppose you will, then?"

"Yes; Ingersoll works there."

"Karl, would you go?"

His eyes looked surprise at her. "It means being picked out of the ranks, Gloria. It means hundreds of other men."

"Would you heard from Ingersoll direct?"

"No. He wants me to go on and see him."

Gloria could no speak. She sat silent, with eyes narrowed in pain.

"It's more than I ever could have prophesied. I must follow it up," said Karl. "Fox, Gessinger's man, knows Ingersoll. If all goes well, I'll be back in town for a week-end first. If anything goes wrong, then I can come back in this time for a few days."

"Two or three days!" Her voice was thin.

"Your mother?" Gloria managed to say. "She doesn't like New York, Karl."

"No, but she does like Southern California. It agrees with her better than this coldest climate. She has friends in Pasadena—a niece and her children. I'm sure she'd be glad to have me there. I'm sure she would all work out I don't know," Karl mused aloud. "But I'll have to be straightened out, somehow. In a week, I'll know. I'll write you immediately to finish with everything here."

Now, perhaps, was Gloria's opportunity in which to tell him what she wanted to wrench to say, to know. But somehow the rehearsed words would not come; her voice would not obey her command. She sat silent.

"I wish you'd come with me, Gloria," Karl said, wistfully.

"Of course she did. She said immediately that she would be coming. And she said that I must go away—"

"Gloria said so?" A stab of pure jealousy went through Gloria; she could not take it back now. She thinkable that he had missed Gloria's point, that there was any.

Ending it, after what seemed like hours, Karl stood up, rubbing his eyes. Karl was looking thoughtfully down, his brow faintly knitted, his mouth grave. He looked tired.

"You know what I'm trying to say, don't you?" she said, in a note of proud humility.

He gave her a swift glance. "No, dear, I think I do," he answered quietly.

The blood came back to Gloria's heart in a flood and she was tremulously happy.

"I have thought of this, of course," Karl went on. "I'm a fool to have gone a year so long be-fore—"

"No, not a fool!" she breathed.

"And so I planned to go away next year if my luck held," he said," he went on, finishing unspoken thought.

Gloria was in complete possession of herself now; they were talking together and of their love for each other at last!

"We have made it now," he began, but stopped, for Gloria eagerly added briefly.

"We have, and I'm sorry, too," she murmured. And immediately, with the eager impulsiveness of the woman who loves, she added, "Oh, Karl—if you know what it means today to hear you say that!"

He was looking at her thoughtfully; her face smiled with joy when he smiled. "Gloria, doesn't it seem as always know?"

"I think I hoped I knew."

"From the beginning," Karl said. "From those first days when I came here and my knew you as the very busy manager of Bayview, you seemed to me the most beautiful, the most desirable girl I had ever met. But it was on the day when we walked together to your home, and Jimmy came to meet you, that I told myself that you were smiled again, watching his eyes to her. "I told myself that it must stop!" he said, suddenly frowning.

"But why stop?" she asked in a whisper.

"Because you can never belong to me, dear," the man said, always with that quiet self-control. "Think a moment. Whatever we felt—how ever much the—the part of me, soul and mind and body, that is Karl Ingersoll, that is lonely and —lonely and lovely, wants you, we have not the right even to say just that. That we wanted each other; and that we had to say good-by."

Gloria suddenly felt that more air at her heart; the dramatizing was forgotten for all. Gloria was pale; she spoke in a whisper: "You are stronger than I, Karl."

"No," he answered, locking his hands together; "I am not strong at all. I have wanted many times to say just this, Gloria. Whenever I come home, the years that have built all that are part of you, Gloria. They are part of Kitty, of Tony, of Jimmy, goons and fine and—and adequate, and good people."

"I might say to myself, 'Yes, we would have a few years of delight together, dear and I,' I would possess her, she would give herself to me, we would be happy—and then ashes together. For a while. And then she would be restless—she would be unhappy. She would wonder why she had changed from her father, her husband, her child, to live with this crank of a Karl, moving always at the hospital—always working—

"But, even as he spoke, her steadily watching eyes had worked their spell and the man had come across the her chair and knelt beside her, and had his arms about her. Gloria's drooped against him, and for a long while they were still.

"Karl, you love me!" she whispered.

"Ah, if I didn't!" the man said, with a desperate laugh.

"I've been very unhappy," Gloria murmured said, on a long, contented sigh.

"And I've wanted to tell you, that I've been thinking—oh, for weeks now—that I must tell you. Since you didn't take me at Kitty's that night and then came there, after all, Gloria, I thought that you would—you would go to your mother to town for dinner."

"Yes. I've known it all these days," Gloria said.

"Known what?" she murmured, her head against his arm.

"That I was thinking too much of you, that I'd—that I must have talked to Kitty about it."

"To Kitty!" Gloria felt a hot wave of color in her cheeks. "You told Kitty? Told Kitty what?"

"That I was in love," the man said.

Gloria's senses were in confusion of confusion. "Karl—Kitty," she stammered. "You shouldn't have—I'm sure you shouldn't have—"

"You don't think Kitty didn't know?" Karl asked, smiling, tenderly.

"Of course she did. She said immediately that you would be coming. And she said that I must go away—"

"Gloria said so?" A stab of pure jealousy went through Gloria; she could not take it back now. She thinkable that he had missed Gloria's point, that there was any.

The Open Door

By MARY M. BUDD

A rare spring morning, the lilac scented air a-blow with drifting fruit blossoms. Linda Fleming, standing in the doorway of her home, thoughtfully watching the children trudging up the street, was conscious of a more than usual feeling of unrest. Nature was calling her to commune with the exhilarating beautiful new gain-outs. But the scheme without him. His Chicago business was still an unevenful life with a mockery of appointment, made her turn from the enticement of the awakening garden.

Linda was the last member of her family left in the old homestead. A limited income compelled her into a monotonous daily routine against which she rebelled.

She had always lived in a small town girt by a high wall of mountains, which she longed to be able to push aside. Beyond it, she was sure, was the fairyland of her dreams. She wanted a realization of life, not as it was, but as she imagined it.

Her dissatisfaction and hunger for something different something that life in a narrow environment could never satisfy made her close her heart against Roger Chipman, who loved her and whom she knew Linda his wife. When Dr. Fleming died, young Dr. Chipman had been his partner. For years Linda's sincere friend and confidant. But Roger? she asked herself. Had she lived in her thoughts was clothed with romance? She did not fit faithful, plodding Roger.

As she had no friends in the outside world, she had been content when the postman, turning in at her gate, handed her a letter. After reading it she hurried to the 'phone and called Roger's office. "Roger, come quick! A relative of father's has left me a legacy."

The received important enough to open the door to Linda's fateful summons. Roger, with his usual unselfishness, helped her pore over tourist circulars and time tables.

She decided on a year or two of travel. Roger would accompany her as far as the city, where Roger must come back to his work. But Linda knew herself would look up a reliable dealer in the city who would dispose of the old furniture that had been in the Fleming family for generations.

In an incredibly short time Linda found herself adrift in a city hotel. Roger's last words—"Don't let me if you ever need me," still sounded in her ears.

The days that followed were filled with a strange disappointment. It was not altogether pleasurable Linda had anticipated this, as she lay in her prim hotel bedroom on Monday morning, and reviewed the events of the past week. She was astonished to find that her thoughts were turning to Roger, and had been those of bewilderment. Between her pocketbook were the passport and check that would enable her to start the journey that was the wonderful trip around the world.

Linda had been unable to see a dealer in antiques about the old furniture, but had instantly remited the eagerness with which she grasped over her unbridled list. But, with the feeling of protectiveness for the dear old things, she knew that she had never valued. There was the low-boy, the highboy, the settee, rescued from the spacious beds with their pineapple posts that had been the pride of generations of her family. The old rocker by the fireplace in which her mother's arms and found comfort for her childish griefs. There were the spacious beds with their pineapple posts that had been the pride of generations of her family. The old rocker by the fireplace in which her mother's arms and found comfort for her childish griefs. There were the precious beds with their pineapple posts that had been the pride of generations of her family.

The old home itself, dignified, flanked on each side by tall red chimneys, seemed to call her back to its threshold, worn by the beloved feet of her father and mother to their eterna. home, was a treasury of sentimental memories.

And for a while she was going to subject it to the auctioneer's hammer! Linda's pillow was wet with

New Conveniences, Fewer Rooms Is Modern House Ideal

One of the most striking differences between the type of house built today and that of twenty or more years ago is the ratio of rooms to conveniences. The chief object in earlier days was to have as many rooms as possible while conveniences were not considered essential and were often sidetracked into places where they were not ever, particularly convenient. Today says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, the most popular household design is for the utmost in conveniences with merely a sufficient number of rooms for the size of the family.

With the aid of an experienced plumbing contractor, a skilful architect can alter any floadings were given by Misses Stella Bradshaw, Nora Martin, Bessie Walker, Reta Clarke, Edith Walker, Edith Easton and Beatrice Walker. Instrumental solos were given by Masters Lyle Walker and Duane Martin which were much enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Reta Clarke and Mrs. Geo. Sills. The Class motto was a reading of "The Rainbow" and we closed with hymn 240, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and the Mizpah Benediction.

MELROSE W. M. S.

The W. M. S. of Melrose United Church held the June meeting on the first Wednesday of the month at the home of Mrs. Wm. Turner.

The president had charge of the meeting. Hymns, responsive readings and prayers were taken from the Programme Helps in Missionary Monthly after which hymn was sung.

The topic for July is "Racial Brotherhood", so the roll call will be "Quotations concerning the Negro" and Mrs. Merrick with a fragment on "Commonplaces" by Ralph Gouet and Mary an sero-pack. Mr. and Mrs. Merrick then took the few words thanked the young people for their kindness. Miss Mary Mather took charge of the recreation period, games and contests and cookie. Number present 23. Little Benny's Note Book

Saltiday afternoon me and pop was coming down from a walk and we started to go passed a news stand full of magazines with all color covers pop saying, By gollies that reminds me, I have a story to read, let's see, that's intristing among the magazines.

So I got them all, the news stand man said.

MAGAZINES

DAILY NEWS WEEKLY MONTHLY

JUST OUT

Being a little thin man with bik chick glasses, saying, Have you Hot Fiction Fanfare, it's bran new, it's got practically all the fiction slorths from all the fiction magazines boiled down to a couple of pages each, it's a bran new, he said.

So are my dress shoes, but they are too pinch, pop said, and the man said, The Commercial Commercial is out today, and I'm intersted in having the cream of all the reports from fifty financial and trade journals reduced in one pocket size magazine.

I stand still a am, pop said, and the man said, How about the Capper Weekly? I like you everything that's going on around town, and it dont take a thinge because I'll like a rehash of all the local art and amusement guides, he said.

I stand still a am, he said, habit of amusing myself, pop said, and the man said, I'll be sure to copy of Saltiday Sumary, it's a complete miniature review of all the leading non fiction articles in all the leading non fiction magazines. See, it's a 2nd the too, it says Non Fiction in a Nutshel, he said.

I think I'll let it stay there, pop said, and the man said, Why dont you try Synopsis of Literature, that's a dandy, you get scientific articles from all over the world in a short readable form.

I guess I'll just stop in at the Capper Weekly, take an aperitin tablet, that'll take the least time of all, pop said.

And after supper he read the paper as usual.

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week... But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by CAREFUL SPENDING.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd all like to do:

BUY WHAT YOU WANT — AND HAVE MONEY LEFT OVER!

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers in 1935 — a law of business. This loss must be replaced or his business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the danger point, can find them again and increase his turnover by good merchandising linked with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

BAN AGAINST FLYING BY NIGHT OVER LONDON

London, June 3 (CP)—Civil aircraft operators have been warned against hydropping over London at night, or in fact flying within 10 miles of Westminster Bridge, between sunset and five a.m. at altitudes between 2,000 and 11,000 feet.

A ban against night flying over London between those altitudes has been issued by the Air Ministry after it received reports of near collisions between civil machines and unlighted Royal Air Force planes engaged in manoeuvres.

ENTICES HIS HORSE INTO BEVERAGE ROOM

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Led by Industrials, the stock market today rallied fractions to more than two points. Transfers approximated 300,000 shares.

Brokers ascribed the turn-about to a variety of factors, the principal one being a mild revival of confidentiary psychology resulting from passage of the huge pump-priming bill by the United States Senate in which the President was given a free hand in the spending program.

Gold Mining issues, watched by many as an inflation barometer, were again active on the rise. Steels, Motors, Coppers, Electrical equipments, Oils, Mail Orders and farm implements were well out in front. Rails and Utilities were moderately higher.

With the exception of International Nickel, which advanced more than a point, individual issues were neglected. Montreal funds remained at 98.87 1-2.

Helping to break the gloom fog was another recovery push by major commodities.

TORONTO STOCKS

(Close)

Toronto, June 4 (CP)—The mining share market lagged off the week with a stronger tone all round. Volume was around the 500,000 share mark, the best Saturday turnover in several weeks.

McIntyre at 43 was up a point and fractional gains were boarded for Beattie, Hollinger, Noranda, Dome and Lake Shore. Dome sold at 30, its high for the year. Wright-Hargreaves was a narrow rise to 1.80.

Kerr-Addison continued in heavy action, much of it profit-taking, with the price holding fairly firm. Gains of about a point appeared for Little Long Lac, Macassa, Premier, Teck Hughes, Sherritt Gordon, Hughes, Central Patricia, Macdonald-Cockshutt, Preston and Moneta.

International Nickel and Canadian advanced a point each.

Trade in the base group centred in Wallace Amulet and that issue pushed into a new high at 3.60, up 40 cents for the day. The gain was shaded lightly before the close.

Industrials held their price position generally on slow action. Imperial and International Petroleum showed substantial volume and gain firm to strong prices and British American added a minor fraction. Okalta was the only active western oil and it held steady around 1.18.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, June 4.—(CP)—Bacon hog prices were steady to 10 cents at London today. Prices were down 25 cents at Peterborough in the period of consecutive decline there. Other reporting markets held steady.

Liveweights: Hi:ii 810; London $9.60; Chatham $9.50; Peterborough $9.50.

Dressedweights: Hull $13.70; London 14.00; Chatham $13; Peterborough $13.05.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS GRANT PRIZE MONEY

At a meeting of the Hastings County Holstein Breeders' Association a resolution was passed that Maclee, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling fall fairs be granted the sum of $5 each for a special prize to be placed in two classes, $3 for first and $2 for second for the best Holstein heifer and cow shown in these fairs. Entries are limited to Hastings County exhibitors.

Market Comment

The stock market has reached a stage where good news has entirely no effect. Apparently investors are elated to hear this out. Recently, Sullivan Consolidated made an increase in the mill of 100 tons and the stock reacted on the news. A year or so ago, such an announcement would have brought in heavy demand and stock would have scored a very sharp advance.

Brazilian Traction is another example. The company's earnings for 1937 at $1.54 1-2 a share were much better than generally expected. In addition the directors have declared a 50-cent dividend for the half year, thus returning share holders a very handsome yield. The 1937 annual report revealed Brazilian reaction in second financial position with new highs recorded in a number of departments. Despite all these favorable factors, the stock has so far failed to show any recuperative power.

Other examples can be cited, but the average man in the Street is fully cognizant of the situation. Sooner or later, however, all these constructive factors will find reflection in the market. A condence is primarily needed.

The lethargic state of the market is due to a lack of funds on the part of investors. The success of recess bond offerings attests to the boldness of money. Everyone, however, is talking "blue ruin" and capital is frightened. The technical position of the market is excellent, the low volume of brokers' loans bearing this out. All in all, we are passing through a period where the public will buy stocks irrespective of merit and until such time as an improvement in conditions as well as a rise in commodity prices are noted the current dullness will prevail.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 4.—Produce trading continued yesterday to expand at the Canadian Commodity Exchange, with the volume receiving still greater attention. An easier tone was generally evidenced on butter, cheese and eggs. Potatoes and poultry showed no change. Receipts were 942 cases of eggs, 7 boxes of butter and 2,105 boxes of cheese, excluding those in transit.

Spot butter sales at the Commodity Exchange totalled 900 tons of Quebec parch fcd 92, sold at 25¾c, and 100 boxes of butter to arrive, sold at 25½c. Trade in the latter was up a cent November butter futures sold at 25¼c to 25½c, and closed at the close at 25¼c to 25¾c for December 92 score, while Quebec 34 sold at 25½c.

On the egg market demand was a little slower, and prices inclined lower. While odd sales were reported under these limits, the bulk of trade in graded shipments in used free cases on spot was 25-25½c for extras, 23½c to 24c for A-medium, 22-23½c for B, and 21½c for C. Offerings of A-pullets were moderate at 25c, 23c nil and 21½c respectively. Storing operations were reported light.

The poultry market was quoted in the trade at unchanged prices, selling houses as follows on A-grade basis per pound: Ex-large, 21-22c; selected chickens, 29-33c; selected fowl, 24-25c; selected turkeys, 27-29c; milkfed chickens, 29-33c; selected roasters, 24-25c; selected fowl, 20½-21c; selected ducks, 18-21c.

FATE OF CHILD STILL MYSTERY

Army of Volunteers Abandon Search For His Kidnapper

Princeton, Fla., June 4 (AP) Wearied, grief-ridden James Bailey Cash, Jr., said today he was resigned to the death of his only child but continued his search until searchers would be caught.

Cash, his shoulders bent by fatigues and his eyes bloodshot from sleepless nights, appeared briefly on the grounds of his estate to speak to reporters but thanks to the 3,000 persons who had gratuitously given the blond five-year-old boy snatched from his crib last Saturday.

Asked if he thought the case would be solved, he said: "Yes, I think so, as far as catching the fellows who did it is concerned. When we catch them we will be able to find out what they did with the boy.

Hope

He indicated he had given up all hope of finding James, Jr., alive.

"I expect it would be within a week or ten days," he said but declined to amplify the statement. The stricken father said Mrs. Cash still was under a physician's care and was "resting."

With the baffling case investigation resulting in virtually nothing, most of the 2,000 persons who assisted in the search formed a line miles of territory bordering the Everglades returned to their homes. Packer Pays for Hogs According to the Grade

The packer pays for all his hogs according to the grade—some hogs are worth more to him than others and he buys them accordingly. Supposing the packer has 30 hogs including 5 butchers or "C" grade, and supposing he is able to make a profit of $5.00 per hog after he has paid for killing, cooking, shipping, dressing the hogs and paid the overhead, the packer, so we are told, will get $150.00 profit. Obviously the shipper cannot stand the loss, which leaves only one other source of revenue—the unsuspecting producer. Deductions not passed along to the farmers are made up in two ways—by premiums from hogs sold flat, and by discounting the grades cwt. to all farmers, making a wider spread between what the packer pays and what the farmer receives.

Deductions escaped by the producers of poor hog, comes out of the pockets of the producers of good hogs. It is about time the better producer demanded and received the full returns to which they are entitled. The sooner the production of poor hogs becomes unprofitable, the sooner it will be discontinued.

If farmers experience any difficulty obtaining their premiums kind write to W. M. Gordon, Federal Department of Agriculture, Canada Packers Limited, Peterborough, Ontario.

Some good lots of hogs for week ending June 2nd, are as follows:

THREE SURPRISES FOR N. Y. GUEST

Saw Skunk, a Fox Chasing a Rabbit and Hooked Nine Pound Trout

Fishing at Dickie Lake, yesterday afternoon with a New York State friend, Halward Bidenton local sales manager, created his guest some back to nature studies which probably will be remembered.

He took the guest to lake via the old Bancroft Road, Mr. Bidenton and guest, just north of Madoc, Ont., passed a full grown skunk which gave indication of disputing the right of way. Having no gun, both men walked until the skunk with its tail held aloft, waddled slowly into the roadside brush.

Rending a boat at the lake, the two men, rowing along the shore became aware of a disturbance in the water. Investigation revealed a fox which looped rapidly just behind a frightened rabbit. Within the blond five-year-old boy snatched from its crib last Saturday.

Asked if he thought the case would be solved, he said: "Yes, I think so, as far as catching the fellows who did it is concerned. When we catch them we will be able to find out what they did with the boy.

Hope

He indicated he had given up all hope of finding James, Jr., alive.

"I expect it would be within a week or ten days," he said but declined to amplify the statement. The stricken father said Mrs. Cash still was under a physician's care and was "resting."

CHARLEY YATES DEFEATS BRUEN

In Five Single Matches in Walker Cup Standing is Four-All

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 4 (AP)—Charley Yates, Ward of the United States today routed Frank Pennink of England, 3 and 1, in their Walker Cup singles match, to make the standing 2 to 2.

Yates had to sink up after shooting a six-under-par 67 for his morning round.

Hector Thomson, British champion in 1936, put the Yanks back in front with two matches to two, by whipping the United States ace Ellsworth Vines, golf team member, six and four.

Charles Yates, winner of the British amateur title last week, squared matters again at three-all by defeating big Jim Bruen, sensational Irish youngster, two and one.

Gordon Peters, starting the afternoon round three up on Reynolds Smith of Dallas, went on to a nine and eight triumph to put British golf ahead, 4 to 3, with one meeting only two more to win the cup for the first time.

Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati gained the other United States point by beat Leonard Crawley, three and two, and bring the standing back to four-all.

UNITED STATES

Address had been dispatched to the world capitals and would be available if Germany so wanted it. However, American embassies and legations, in other European stations, they said, to pass it on to foreign governments.

Any decision to asserting willingness to limit arms and agree to a new conference at an early date, Secretary of State said the United States was prepared to join other nations.

Toward Sound Basis.

1. "In considering every effort toward the restoration and strengthening of sound and constructive international economic relationships.

2. "In exploring all practicable methods in the spirit of international co-operation."

Secretary Hull had no immediate intention of calling an international conference on any of these points, although this was not excluded for some future date.

Saw Mill Burned Near Marmora

Awakened from their beds at five o'clock on Wednesday morning, by the frantic toiling of the fire bell, residents of Marmora district, in the vicinity of the Cronkright saw mill, were horrified to see flames leap out on mass to fight a rapidly spreading fire which razed Monday's blaze.

In spite of the efforts of the volunteer fire brigade and the help of the village chemical engine, the fire spread very rapidly and the mill was completely destroyed. It is believed the fire started by a spark from the mill engine.

Lumber which was stored near the mill was also burned, but considerable quantities of it were removed and piled elsewhere during the night.

The mill has been operated for some time past by John Cronkwright and sons, and the season's cut of logs was nearly completed.

St. England's postal service has 22,000 bicycles.

Fire caused $4,566.00 damage in London last year.

QUINTE LAYMEN HAVE BEST YEAR

Mr. H. B. Fetterly of Holloway Street Church

Elected President

The Bay of Quinte Conference Lay Association in their sessions at Napanee reported the best and most active year in the history. The president, Mr. H. B. Fetterly of Holloway St. Church, presided and conducted the meetings with efficiency and despatch. The Rev. John Woodside, D.D., of Oshawa gave a very interesting and inspirational address on the regular business meeting on Wednesday. At the meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Past President, H. B. Fetterly; President, E. R. Fraser, Trenton; Secretary, H. C. Martin, Stirling; Treasurer, Dr. F. T. Simson, Bowmanville.

On Thursday evening the annual banquet was held in the spacious dining room when all the members of the Conference, together with their friends enjoyed a social hour around the festive board. Some 400 guests were present and greatly enjoyed themselves. After the banquet a program of community songs under the leadership of Rev. R. Rickard was heartily participated in by all, after which Mr. Gerald of St. Andrew's Church, gave two delightful local solos.

The guest speaker was the Rev. Dr. Sylvanus H. Hall, M. H. Ph., Falls, N. Y., and the large gathering was delighted by his very practical address on "Social Issues" in which various philosophies that have held sway down the ages. His remarkable knowledge showed in a very masterful way the superiority of Christianity as a way of life.

The chairman of the evening was the Rev. Dr. Bryan, M. H. Fraternally. After the address a double quartette from Grace Church choir contributed two excellent numbers which were much appreciated.

On Thursday afternoon, Mr. H. B. Fetterly was elected a committee member of the Toronto Conference which sits in Toronto in September.

Callander, Scotland, Sends Brooches to Quints at Callander

Former Provost or mayor of the town of Callander Perthshire, Scotland and later Lord of the Manor for his shire, Mr. W. V. Dow, combined Highland gentleman and musician will present the Dionne quintuplets with five gold brooches in the near future on behalf of his native town in Scotland it was announced in the Prince Edward County town yesterday.

The presentation to be made by Mr. Dow on behalf of the Burgh of Callander, Scotland, to the quintuplets will be given immediately after its Scottish counterpart, and the pipers of the Scottish clan will play the air to spear Lake Ontario's inaugural pleasure play. Officials for the presentation Bower at the pipers' band.

In another school competition held at Woodbine town squad victory over the squad which had run in the last inning of a 7-5 game. The victors were Graham's and Stacey, Wooler pitcher, staged a fine pitching battle for the victors while the locals broke up the game with a brace of hits. Kennedy and Graham were the starbatters in this particular battle.

MONTHLY QUOTA

lied it. The opposition leader said that he was glad to see similar incidents he would bring up later. Mr. Sowards had been given no opportunity of defending himself and had not even been informed with what the charges were.

Transport Minister Howe's bill to set up a Dominion transport board with jurisdiction over land, water and air carriage of freight and passengers came on for debate and made little progress.

Transport Bill

Mr. Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader and Minister of Trade and Commerce, broke the ice with Mr. Bennett in 1934, linked up together against phase of transport bill they agreed in their arguments that the transport bill was designed to increase transportation costs and benefit those who were most amply able to pay their way.

Mr. Stevens declared effect of the section of the measure providing the licensing of vessels would be to increase the cost of shipping on the Great Lakes to the detriment of the grain business.

Loans Indian Reserves

Resources Minister Crerar made little progress with a bill having the dual purpose of enabling the Saskatchewan Power Corporation to lease mineral resources on Indian reserves and granting loans to Indians.

Defence Minister Macdonald found progress with the bill to be one of his estimates. He announced that gas-masks were to be made in Canada and a monthly quota would soon be made available.

Russia has 10 Children's theatres Australia is boosting violations.

Belgium now has 80,000 motorcycles.

YOUREX ANNEX FOURTH VICTORY

Win Over Flyers 16-7, Wo er Boats Grabs 2 to 1

Trenton, Ont., June 4 (Special)—The second game of the Trenton-Toronto Yourex softballers blasted their way to their fourth win of the season last night when they smashed the offerings of Laurie Osborne, R.C.A.F. pitcher for twenty hits to turn back the Flyers' threat by a 16-7 score in a regular T.B.A. schedule game.

Hurtt on the mound for the winners held the visitors to four runs until the seventh when Davis and Palcanade got to his delivery for a series of round-trippers. Palcanade smashed out a triple for the losers during the game that at times threatened to break out into a free-for-all fight. Cain drove out a homer for the winners in the second inning.

Yourex crossed the plate eight times in the second, five in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth and scored another for good measure in the seventh. Flyers got in their runs in the second, the third, one in the fifth and added three in the seventh for the winners in the second inning.

SPECIAL REPORT

The accounting department is headed by W. F. Pierdon.

Mr. Fetterly-Robinson had told the committee the auditor's report for the fiscal year 1935-36 stated $6,000,000 was owing to the province's financial report. One such error was a mistake of $750,000 in the balance sheet.

Reiterates His Belief.

Mr. Fetterly-Robinson told the committee all of Friday and for several hours yesterday morning. His belief he was dismissed from the cabinet in April, 1937, for his expressed opposition to certain of Hyndon contracts with four Quebec power companies. Disagreement with Premier Hepburn on the government's policy on communism and Premier's opposition labor activity in Ontario that spring was given as the reason at the time.

"My dismissal was the result of a conflict between Beauharnois and Ontario," declared the former attorney-general.

FORWARD COMPLAINT TO HIGHWAY DEPT.

W. J. McMillan, resident of Kingston and driver for the Collins-Baker Co., complained to the Eastern Ontario division today registered a complaint with the highway department regarding the conditions prevailing upon Highway No. 2 between Belleville and Shannonville. Mr. McMillan submitted his report to Provincial Police Sergeant Sam Irvine through the local Police Department, considering the condition of Highway No. 2 immediately east of Belleville following the spring thaws had left the highway in a dangerous condition for driving purposes. The complaint will be relayed to the Department of Highways it was revealed.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Led by Industrials, the stock market today rallied fractions to more than two points. Transactions approximated 300,000 shares.

Brokers ascribed the turn-about to a variety of factors, the principal one being a mild revival of inflationary psychology resulting from passage of the huge pump-priming bill by the United States Senate late in which the President was given a free hand in the spending program.

Gold Mining issues, watched by many as an inflation barometer, were again active on the rise. Steels, Motors, Coppers, Electric equipments, Oils, Mail Orders and farm implements were well out in front. Rails and Utilities were moderately higher.

With the exception of International-Nickel, which advanced more than a point, other Metal issues were neglected. Montreal funds remained at 98.87 1-3.

Helping to break the gloom for was another recovery push by raw commodities.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 4 (CP)—The mining share market today kept off the week with a stronger tone all round. Volume was around 500,000 shares, the mark, the best Saturday turnover in several weeks.

McIntyre at 43 was up a point and fractional gains were boasted for Buffalo-Ankerite, Hollinger, Dome and Lake Shore. Dome sold at 60, its high for the year. Wright-Hargreaves was a heavier active to 7.80.

Base Addison continued in heavy action, much of it profit-taking, with the price holding fairly firm. Gains of around a point appeared for Little Long Lac, Macassa, Perron, Pioneer, Sisco, Teck-Hughes, Central Patricia, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Premier and Noranda. International Nickel and Noranda advanced a point each. Interest in the gold centre of Manitoba in Wattle Amulet and that issue pushed ahead to a new high at around 3.60, up 40 cents for the day. The gain was shaded lightly before the close.

Industrials held their price position generally at close action. Imperial and International Petroleum showed substantial volume and were firm to strong prices and British American added a fraction. Canadas were the only active western oil and it held steady around 1.18.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, June 4.—(CP)—Bacon hog prices were steady at 13¾ cents at London today. Prices were down 25 cents at Peterborough in the general country decline there. Other reporting markets held steady.

Liveweights: Hi:li 810; London $9.60; Chatham $9.50; Peterborough $9.40.

Dressedweights: Hull $13.70; London $13.60; Chatham $13; Peterborough $13.05.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS GRANT PRIZE MONEY

At a meeting of the Hastings County Holstein Breeders' Association a resolution was passed that Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling fall fairs be granted the sum of $5 each for a special prize to be placed in two classes, $3 for first and $2 for second for the best Holstein female, any age, shown in these fairs. Entries are limited to Standard Ol of N J 45¼.

Market Comment

The stock market has reached a stage where good news has relatively no effect. Examples can be cited; to bear this out. Recently, Sullivan Consolidated showed an increase in the mill of 100 tons and the stock reacted on the news. A year or so ago, such an announcement would have brought in heavy demand and the stock would have scored a very sharp advance.

Brazilian Traction is another example. The company's earnings for 1937 at $1.54 1-5 a share were much better than generally expected. In addition the directors have declared a 50-cent dividend for the half year, thus returning initial holders a very handsome yield. The 1937 annual report revealed Brazilian reaction in sound financial position with new highs recorded in a number of departments. Despite all these favorable factors, the stock has so far failed to show any responsive power.

Other examples can be cited, but the average man in the Street is fully cognizant of the situation. Sooner or later, however, all these constructive factors will find reflection, and the spirit of confidence is primarily needed.

The lethargic state of the market is due to the lack of funds on the part of investors. The success of recent bond offerings attests to the plethora of money around. Everyone, however, is talking "blue rain" and capital is frightened. The technical position of the market is excellent, the low volume of brokers' loans bearing this out. All in all, we are passing through a period where the public will be buying stocks for reasons of merit and until such time as an improvement in business as well as in commodity prices are noted the current dullness will prevail.

FATE OF CHILD STILL MYSTERY

Army of Volunteers Abandon Search For His Kidnappers

Princeton, Fla., June 4 (AP) Worried, grief-ridden James Bailey Cook, Jr., said today that he was resigned to the death of his only child but continued to hope that rescuers would be caught.

Cook, his features bent by fatigue and his eyes bloodshot from sleepless nights, appeared before the public for the first time in excess of 72 hours to thank thanks to the 3,000 persons who joined voluntarily for the blond five-year-old boy snatched from his bedroom Saturday night.

Asked if he thought the case would be solved, he said: "Yes, I think so, as far as catching the fellows who did it is concerned. Then we catch them we will be able to find out when they did with the boy."

Gives up Hope

He indicated he had given up all hope of finding James, Jr., alive.

"I expect a ransom note will be here weeks or ten days," he said but declined to amplify the statement. The stricken father said Mrs. Cash still was under a physician's care and was "resting."

With the baffling case entering second phase, searchers combed most of the 2,000 persons who participated in the search around a square of 25 miles of territory bordering the Everglades returned to their homes.

But the search for Bailey was headed by J. Edgar Hoover working through Washington and the back almost a week had passed since the child, boy who was known his best pal was Saturday night.

Questioning Number

Agents continued to question a number of persons—Hoover called them "questioning"—including a Federal Bureau of Investigation spokesman in Washington. Hoover said no one had been charged with the crime.

The Miami Herald said among those still remaining at the headquarters were M. F. Rankin, unemployed Princeton carpenter; Ray Rayburn, Braxton's son-in-law, and a Redlands youth who formerly was employed by James B. Cash, Sr., at the filling station and general store here.

SWIMMERS USE ADDITIONAL PLASTER TO FORM INITIALS

The season's annual fad has again made its appearance among the ranks of city bathers, and is favored by the fairer sex. Again strips of adhesive plaster, cut in suitable sizes are being stuck on arms and backs, leaving white spots against the tanned skin, thus outlining the initials of the wearers.

GREAT BRITAIN WINS WALKER CUP FOR FIRST TIME

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 4—(AP)—Great Britain today clinched its first victory in the history of the Walker Cup competition, 6½ to 5½, when Alex Tyrie of England defeated Fred Haas, five and four, for Britain's sixth victory.

Packer Pays for Hogs According to the Grade

The packer pays for all his hogs according to the grade—some hogs are worth more to him than others and he buys them accordingly. Supposing a packer is paying 10 hogs including 5 butchers or "C" grade, and supposing he is able to make a deal with the farmer that he only escapes any deductions. The shipper cannot escape the $5.00 deduction from the packer, so you may ask, where is the $5.00 made up? Obviously the shipper cannot stand the loss, which leaves only one other source of revenue, and that one—the producer. Deductions not passed along to the farmers, are made up in two ways—by premiums from hogs sold flat, and by depressing the base price per cwt. to all farmers, making a wider spread between what the packer pays and what the farmer receives.

Dollar to dollar deductions escaped by the producers of poor hogs comes out of the pockets of the producers of good hogs. It is about time the better principles demanded and received the full returns to which they are entitled. The sooner the production of poor hogs becomes unprofitable, the sooner it will be discontinued.

If farmers experience any difficulty obtaining their premiums kind write to W. M. Gordon, Federal Department of Agriculture, Canada Packers Limited, Peterborough, Ontario.

Some good lots of hogs for week ending June 3rd, are as follows:

THREE SURPRISES FOR N. Y. GUEST

Saw Skunk, a Fox Chasing a Rabbit and Hooked Nine Pound Trout

Fishing at Dickie Lake, yesterday afternoon with a New York State friend, Halvard Edenton local sales man, treated his guest to several nature studies which probably will be remembered.

In order, rowing along the shore they saw a skunk, a disturbance in the bushes, a fox chasing a rabbit, a frightened rabbit leaping into a little clearing, bounded from the shore into the lake water and swimming rapidly along the shore. The fox, aware of the men, skunk beat it back to cover.

To tap the day's events the Rochester friend managed to capture a nine pound trout, to add to the small catch earlier.

Deseronto Fire Chief Honored at Banquet For Efficient Service

Forty-four years of faithful and efficient service to the town of Deseronto as a member of the fire department were recognized when Thomas Bishop, Chief, was tendered a banquet by leading citizens on his retirement from active fire duties.

During the banquet Mr. Wilkins was made honorary fire chief and the town hall presented with a medal for services rendered.

Deseronto's fire fighting unit in the late 90's, Mr. Wilkins was the first member. Since that time his early efforts resulted in the formation of a department of seventy-one members, which organization followed the disastrous fire of 1893, when practically the whole of Deseronto was wiped out.

At that time there was a population of 4,000 or more. Other industries besides lumbering were ship-building, a locomotive works, and various factories.

In a reminiscent mood the honorary fire chief told of the work recalled that it was on May 23, 1893 when the great fire started at one of the docks on the waterfront. The blaze spread rapidly through the lumber piles. Nothing, apparently could be done to halt its progress so quickly did the flames leap. Flames spread to the town and continued to burn with fury for three days, when Belleville and surrounding district for four days.

Mr. Wilkins, Mayor Wilkins and other leading citizens decided to organize a regular fire fighting force in the town. Pay for the firemen at that time was 15 cents per working hour.

Coming to Deseronto at the age of twenty-one, Mr. Wilkins has held his held virtually every position in connection with the fire department of Mayor and Councillor. During the Great War he experienced his busiest period.

"It was everything in the town then. It was school inspector, tax collector, fire chief, policeman and sheriff, there were about 4,000 people, and the two flying corps became part of the town's population. Then, but they were all good fellows and I didn't have much trouble with them," he stated.

On June 6th, Mr. Wilkins will observe his 70th birthday. He has one son and two daughters who will join him on the occasion.

address had been dispatched to the world capitals and would be available to foreign envoys in Berlin. However, American embassies and legations, as well as consular stations, they said, to pass it on to foreign governments.

The message, asserting willingness to limit arms and agree to a system of inspection, was handed to Secretary of State Said the United States was prepared to join other nations.

Toward Sound Basis.

1. Fix armaments by joint effort toward the restoration and strengthening of peaceful conditions by international economic relationships.

2. "In exploring all other methods which may contribute to the relief of international co-operation."

Secretary Hull had no immediate intention of calling an international conference on any of these proposals, however, he has not precluded for some future date.

Saw Mill Burned Near Marmora

Awakened from their beds at five o'clock on Wednesday morning, on the frantic tolling of the fire bell, residents of Marmora gathered in the vicinity of the Cronkright saw mill, where the Crowe River turns, to get out en masse to fight a rapidly spreading fire which raced through the mill.

In spite of the efforts of the volunteer fire fighting unit, aided by the village chemical engine, the blaze gained headway rapidly and the mill was completely destroyed. It, is believed the fire started by a spark from the mill engine.

Lumber which was stored near the mill was not burned, but considerable quantities of it were removed and piled elsewhere during the height of the fire.

The mill has been operated for some time past by John Cronkwright and sons, and the season's cut of logs was nearly completed.

CHARLEY YATES DEFEATS BRUEN

In Five Single Matches in Walker Cup Standing is Four-All

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 4—(AP)—Charley Yates, of the United States today routed Frank Pennink of England, 13 and 11, in the fifth match of the Walker Cup series, to make the standing 2 to 3.

Yates' singles match, to make the standing 2 to 3.

Hector Thomson, British champion in 1936, put the Americans in the lead in the matches to two, by whipping the United States amateur titleholder, Ellsworth Vines, six and four.

Charles Yates, winner of the British amateur title last week, squared matters again with a two and one victory over Jim Bruen, sectional Irish youngster, two and one.

Gordon Peters, starting the afternoon round three up on Reginald Smith of Dallas, went on to a nine and eight triumph to put Britain ahead, two matches to one, needing only two more to win the cup for the first time.

Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati rallied from a four-hole deficit to beat Leonard Crawley, three and two, and bring the standing back to four-all.

Callander, Scotland, Sends Brooches to Quints at Callander

Former Provost or mayor of the town of Callander Perthshire, Scotland and also a friend of the late Dr. Dafoe for his shire, Mr. W. V. Dow, presented Dr. Dafoe's secretary and musician will present the Dionne quintuplets with five gold brooches in the near future, on behalf of his native town in Scotland it was announced in the Prince Edward County town yesterday.

The presentation to be made by Mr. Dow on behalf of the Burgh of Callander, Scotland, to the Dionne quintuplets, will be the second after its Scottish counterpart, when the late Dr. Dafoe received a gift some time ago by the civic officials of the Scottish town.

Mr. Dow, who was born in the "Gateway to the Highlands" as Callander, Scotland, is said to have been in Canada for a number of years. He is now the head of the radio department of a prominent Picton hardware firm.

SPECIAL REPORT

The accounting department is headed by W. P. Pierdon.

Earlier, Mr. McCrimmon had introduced a special report for the fiscal year 1935-36 stated by previous ministers of finance, Hon. Ian's financial report. One such error was a mistake of $70,000,000 in the Mackenzie King era.

Reiterates His Belief.

Mr. Bechard, in his report to committee all of Friday and for several hours yesterday, reiterated his belief he was summoned from the cabinet in April, 1937, for his expressed opposition to the sale of certain contracts with four Quebec power companies. Mr. Bechard said Mr. Ian Mackenzie Hepburn on the government's policy on Committee for Industrial Organization activity in Ontario that spring was given as the reason for his dismissal.

"My dismissal was the result of a coming agreement between the government," he declared the former attorney general.

FORWARD COMPLAINT TO HIGHWAY DEPT.

W. J. McMillan resident of Kingston and driver for the Colonial Coach Lines operating in Eastern Ontario division today registered a complaint with the highway department regarding repairing the conditions prevailing upon Highway No. 2 between Gananoque and Shannonville. Mr. McMillan submitted his report to Motor Cycle Patrolman Sam Eyrine through the local Police Department, contending the condition of Highway No. 2, immediately east of Belleville following the spring thaws had left the highway in a dangerous condition for driving purposes. The complaint will be relayed to the Department of Highways it was revealed.

Win Over Flyers 16-7, Wolves or Beats Grahamites 2 to 1

Trenton, Ont., June 4 (Special)—The ramparts of the league-leading Tourex aothletiers blasted their way to their fourth win of the season by last night when they smashed the offerings of Laurie Osborne, R.C.A.F. hurler twenty times to turn back the Flyers' threat by a 16-7 score in a regular T.S.A. schedule game.

Burst on the second for the winners held them safe to four runs until the seventh when Davis and Fogarasade got to his delivery for a trio of round-trippers. Paisenade smashed out a triple for the lonest during the game time as they threatened to break out into a free-scoring affair. Cain drove out a homer for the winners in the second inning.

Torrez crossed the plate eight times in the second, five in the third and two more in the fifth and they scored another for good measure in the seventh. Flyers countered in the first five frames, got two more in the third, one in the fourth and added three in the seventh to make things spicey.

Highlighting the game that was anything but devoid of sensational was the acrobatical catch by Cain, who raced across the right field and the air to spear Lalonde's screaming drive to inaugurate a smart double play. Officials for the affair were Bowyer at the plate and Baker on the bases.

In another scheduled T.S.A. game last night at Wooler the home town squad eked out a nerve-racking victory over the classy Grahamites by a two-run margin after the latter had run in the last inning to cop a 2 to 1 decision. Both the locals' hurler, Graham's and Stacey, Wooler hard-hitting catcher, staged a fine pitcher's battle for the first seven before the locals broke up the game with a brace of hits. Kennedy and Ramsay led the Grahamiters in this particular battle.

lied it. The opposition leader said that it was typical of similar incidents he would bring up later. Mr. Howards had been unable to get evidence of defending himself and had not even been furnished with a copy of the statement.

Transport Minister Howe's bill to set up a Canadian maritime commission with jurisdiction over land, water and air carriers of freight and passengers, provoked keen debate and made little progress.

Transport Bill

Mr. Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader and Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Bennett cabinet with Mr. Bennett in 1934, linked up together against the government's transport bill. They agreed in their arguments that the commission was designed to increase transportation costs and benefit those who were most associated to set it passed.

Mr. Stevens declared effect of the provisions of the measure providing the licensing of vessels would be to transfer trade from shipping on the Great Lakes to the detriment of the grain handlers.

Loans Indian Reserves

Resources Minister Crerar made little progress with a bill handing the dual purpose of enabling the government to lend money on mineral resources on Indian reserves and to protect the Indians.

Defence Minister MacKenzie said good progress with the bill of his estimates. He announced that gas-masks were to be made Canada and a monthly quota would soon be made available.

3-POINT PLAN TO KEEP TRADE ROUTES CLEAR

Propose 'Dominion' Status for Balkan and Danube Areas

REICH HEGEMONY IN RICH AREAS GERMAN PROJECT

System of Accords Favored by Papers as in British System

'TIED TO REICH'

Colonial Empire Equivalent Sought by Preferential Tariffs

Berlin, June 6 (CP-Havas)—Two German newspapers today urged the campaign for Reich economic hegemony in the rich Balkans and Danubian basin be furthered by according "Dominion" status to those areas in system of accords similar to those evolved for the British Commonwealth of Nations by Imperial Conferences of the past.

The Berliner Boersden Zeitung, criticizing the "incomprehensible" of the declaration of "problems" facing Czechoslovakia's Sudeten Germans and other southeastern European issues, said the Balkans and the Danubian basin must be tied to the Reich just as the several Dominions are linked with Great Britain.

Economic Plan

The newspaper Germania, in suggesting an economic plan in which the equivalent of a Colonial Empire would be achieved by preferential tariffs modelled after the British Empire's economic agreements, contended the Reich and Italy should play the central role. Supplying primary links with them would be Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece, Albania, Spain and the Spanish colonies. On the border of Germany, "Donauwestmittelafrika" would stand Poland, Rumania, Turkey and Japan.

France Accused of Alms

Meanwhile, a certain political and financial moves by the western democracies in the Balkans-Danubian areas is bent in that direction. France is accused of pursuing a

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Weather travels! Or you can travel to get the weather. In a well-developed cyclonic or storm, there are all sorts of weather. In the eastern part, warm and rain; in the western part, cold and fair; while in the lower half there may be a wind shift line with thunder and lightning. Or if you will hire an airplane with a speed of 200 miles an hour, you can cross an average cyclone in six or seven hours and witness in that short time the whole panorama of changing weather. Or if the storm, as it travels, passes over your home, you can witness the same thing from your own doorstep. But you must definitely not try for about two days, since cyclones are slow! I know miles and travel about 30 miles per hour.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 6—(CP)—Synopsis—Showers have occurred in many districts from Ontario eastward to the Maritimes, and light local showers in the eastern provinces. It has been moderately warm from the Great Lakes eastward but has become cooler in western Canada. A moderate disturbance is centred to the northeast of Lake Superior with a trough extending southwestward to Kansas and pressure is relatively low over the Maritime Provinces but high over the western provinces and far west Ontario.

Lake Superior—Fresh winds, shifting to northwest, partly cloudy. Tuesday, fresh northwest winds; partly cloudy and cool.

Western Provinces—Fair and cool tonight and Tuesday.

Electricity to Train Disordered Brain Is Suggested to U. S. Psychiatrists

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

San Francisco, June 6—(AP)—Use of electricity to train a disordered brain so that its impulses return to the normal pathways of sanity was suggested to the American Psychiatric Association here today.

This new use for electricity has shown its possibilities in experiments on 157 epileptic persons conducted by Dr. Wilder Penfield, and Dr. Erwin Boldrey of McGill University. They say similar but the same kind of extremely mild electric current which is given off by the brain itself.

The brain current is a series of electrical waves, representing potentials of the millionths of a volt each. It flows from a normal brain at the rate of about 10 waves a second. From the brains of epileptics the electrical pulse is slower and more irregular.

This abnormal brain pulse in epileptics is most pronounced in one locality in the brain. This locality is easily found by placing small pick-up electrodes on the head and amplifying the brain current with radio tubes.

JAP WARPLANES DROP BOMBS ON FRENCH HOSPITAL

One Side of Hospital Blown Out At Canton

50 PLANES IN RAID

Canton, June 6—(CP-Havas)—Japanese bombers today killed or wounded 1,500 persons in Canton, China city already damaged more than 1,000 buildings.

In two raids, the planes marked the ninth day of almost uninterrupted aerial bombing by zooming over stricken Canton in squadrons of forty and fifty and dropping more than 100 large bombs.

Canton, June 6—(AP)—Japanese warplanes scored a direct hit on the French-owned Dounner Hospital today as they subjected this South China metropolis to terrific bombardments for the eighth successive day.

One side of the building was blown out and a French military surgeon slightly wounded. Two Chinese patients were killed and many injured. Dozens were scattered over the wide macadam road in front of the hospital as buildings nearby were hit.

Barricades Erected

French authorities immediately sent 30 marines to the scene and erected barricades around the hospital.

Forty-five bodies were laid in the street outside a Red Cross unit next door to the hospital. Others were placed outside the nearby Y.M.C.A. building where Edward H. Lockwood of Indiana, Secretary, narrowly escaped injury.

Other bombs fell among the tightly packed sampans on the Japanese Consul General in Hong Kong announced the raiders flying over the foreign quarter on Shameen Island.

No bombs were dropped on the foreign settlement, but planes were said to have released numerous bombs over the island in the direction of his nearby buildings.

(A Hong Kong dispatch said between 40 and 50 planes took part in two raids today, directing their bombs chiefly at government buildings, railway stations and electric power plants.

(More than 1,500 persons have been killed and 2,500 wounded, according to official estimates, since the Japanese started their attacks eight days ago.

(Reports from Hong Kong said Consul General Tsuyoshi Nakamura had informed the British Consul General at Canton that war forwarding his protest to Tokyo.

LABOR MINISTER FOR PROVINCE DIES SUDDENLY

Hon. M. M. MacBride Suffers Heart Attack at Home in Brantford

MEMBER SINCE 1919

Brantford, Ont., June 6 (CP)—Hon. Morrison Mann MacBride, Minister of Labor, Minister of Labor was recognized last fall with his appointment as Labor Minister of Labor is dead. A heart attack ended his life Sunday morning.

Shocked by the suddenness of his death, leaders of Ontario's opposing political parties united in paying high tribute to the late Brantford Minister tribute. He had returned home from Toronto Friday and was ordered to bed Saturday after he complained of feeling ill.

The Premier, Mitchell Hepburn said in a tribute from his St. Thomas home: "Mr. MacBride was a true Ontario Cabinet that may be difficult to fill. Mr. MacBride was with several of his cabinet colleagues on the special Legislative Committee on Unemployment and Relief of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission last week, and was in apparent good health. Resumption of his duties as Minister of Labor will be taken by Premier Hepburn, who appointed him Minister of Labor after the Provincial election in October, 1937.

Native of Wallace Lake

A native of White Lake, Ont., educated in the public and high schools of Arnprior, Ont., Mr. MacBride rose from a printer's job in Ottawa, Quyon, Que., and Brantford to the Cabinet. Pending to set up business for himself on his return here from Winnipeg. He served eight terms as Mayor of Brantford, first in 1917. He was defeated for the re-election last December.

He first entered the Ontario Legislature as labor representative for South Brant in 1919. He broke with Labor over the question of amalgamation with the Canadian Congress of Labor and ran as an independent Liberal.

One of Mr. MacBride's last public appearances was at the annual convention of the Ontario Labor Education Association in May 24, when he promised a personal tour of Ontario Industrial Plants in summer to attempt to bring about a better understanding between workers and their employers.

In his tribute, Premier Hepburn commented that Mr. MacBride was peculiarly fitted to the cabinet position he held.

An ardent sports fan, he took keen interest in boxing, softball, lacrosse and golf. He was a star with the Brantford lacrosse team when it won the Canadian championship in 1901, 1902 and 1903.

Open Conflict Between Insurgent Officers and Italian Allies Reported

Hendaye, June 6 (AP)— General France was reported today to have ordered the arrest of a number of his officers as an indication of his displeasure with Italy's attitude in connection with Italy, which has been one of his heaviest backers in the civil war.

(Travellers reaching Gibraltar quoted insurgent officers as expressing resentment at "the dictatorial attitude" of the Italian officers and expressing fears that the Italians and not Spaniards would maintain a military hold on the country when the war ends).

The order for slight disturbances in the Alhocaser sector, the battle raging for the city from five mountains east of Teruel to the Mediterranean was a week ago.

These sources said France had ordered the arrest of a number of his officers as an indication of his displeasure with Italy's attitude in connection with Italy, which has been one of his heaviest backers in the civil war.

Pope's Envoy Opens Eucharistic Congress

Cardinal Pacelli, CENTRE, DARK SUITS, is shown arriving at the "Palace of Heros", Budapest, to open the Eucharistic congress. The pontiff's special envoy made two sensational speeches, one condemning powerful persecutors of Christian society and the other hopping at Communism.

SCIENTIST WOULD DEBUNK HORRORS OF RAIDS BY AIR AND USE OF POISON GAS

Oakham, Rutland, June 6 (CP)—Science Master H. Anderson of Oakham has a low opinion of those who write of the horrors of air raids and gas warfare and has launched a course of lectures to debunk their claims.

"Since the recent war atmosphere has gone into boiling over years ago we have been deluged with dirted and saddened about the problem by both officialdom and by the writers of cheap and expensive newsprint", Mr. Anderson said.

"Old Ladies In Shelters"

He had been told by Lord Horder as one of the government's ablest specialists and hardest workers, "I know that he had been overworking for some time" and Premier Hepburn, who appointed him Minister of Labor after the Provincial election in October.

Native of White Lake

A native of White Lake, Ont., educated in the public and high schools of Arnprior, Ont., Mr. MacBride rose from a printer's job in Ottawa, Quyon, Que., and Brantford to the Cabinet. TRAFFIC CROWDS CORNWALL CANAL

Tie-up Occurs When Crew of One Vessel Leaves Ship

Cornwall, Ont., June 6 (CP)—Traffic over the Cornwall canal all day as the waterway was worked at 50 per cent. capacity following a 12-hour tie-up yesterday of boats along its eight-mile length.

The freighter Dumbia of Inland Lines, Limited, which caused the tie-up when its crew left it through the canal which takes vessels around the Long Sault Rapids.

The freighter was moved out of dock when officials of the Dominion Department of Transport issued an ultimatum that if a complete crew was not found the department's tugs would move it.

The crew returned to the Dumbia and it was moved, enabling 30 vessels tied up in the canal to start through its several locks. Others which had been held by transport department officials at Cardinal and Soulanges Canals to prevent further tie-ups at the locks of waterways were permitted to continue.

Aged Woman is Burned to Death

Chippawa, Ont., June 6 (CP)—Mrs. Gleiter Wilson, 83, was burned to death in her home here last night when her dress ignited as she was burning waste paper in the furnace. Mrs. Wilson, who lived alone, ran upstairs to the kitchen, her dress aflame, and extinguished the blaze with water but not before she suffered severe burns about the chest, back, arms, leg and face.

Chippawa is in the Niagara Falls district.

ENVELOPMENT OF CHENGCHOW CITY

Aerial Observers Report Withdrawals of Chinese

Shanghai, June 6—(AP)—Japanese attack troops today began the envelopment of Chengchow, key to Hankow after having captured Kaifeng, one-time capital of China.

One column, driving west hard from Kaifeng in pursuit of retreating Chinese forces advanced to Chungmow, 23 miles east of the important junction of the Pelping-Hankow and Lunghai railways, while other columns closed in from the south and northeast.

Some were wiggwagging to the west, it was said, where they were forming a defence line against a Japanese advance into Shensi province which would cut off the flow of munitions from Russia to China. Others were forming a line 20 miles to the south-east of Chengchow to prevent the Japanese from severing the Peiping-Hankow line and striking Chengchow from that direction.

The Japanese aim is to capture Chengchow and then advance down the Peiping-Hankow railway to China's provisional capital.

It was estimated half of Kaifeng's normal population of 250,000 had evacuated before the city was captured in the 24 hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

GIRL DROWNS IN CANAL

Thorold, Ont., June 6 (CP)—Pauline Philibert, 24, was drowned last night when she fell from a railway bridge into the Welland Canal. The body was recovered about half an hour later. The girl lived alone and had no known relations. Coroner W. J. McGillivray decided an inquest unnecessary.

Plan New Measures to Cut Road Toll, May Offer Rewards in Hit-Run Cases

Toronto, June 6—(CP)—Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, conferred here today with Hon. W. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, to determine what additional measures can be taken to reduce the toll of highway traffic accidents.

Mr. Conant, while not disclosing the result of the conference, indicated rewards may be offered in connection with week-end hit-and-run accidents in which arrests have not yet been made.

MOON OFF TRACK 6 SECS. OF TIME EARTH'S TO BLAME

Giant Brake Clamped Mysteriously on Spinning World

GLOBE SLOWS DOWN

London, June 6—(AP)— The moon, astronomer Harold Spencer Jones said yesterday, has jumped its track. "And it's all the earth's fault," the astronomer royal told members of the Royal Observatory of Greenwich.

"It took us years to pin this on the earth," he said. "The apparent irregularities of the moon's motion at any time since records have been kept."

Moon's Course

The moon's course is plotted by the earth's time and the earth's time is reckoned by its rotation, Mr. Jones explained. Somewhere, the well-known gigantic brake has suddenly been clamped on the spinning world, slowing it down, he said.

Dr. Martin Davidson, President of the British Astronomical Association, estimated this slowing down process was going on at the rate of about 1-1000th second every century.

Mr. Jones said the moon is now about six seconds of time off its beaten track.

Million Will Evacuate Hankow

Hankow, China, June 6 — (CP-Havas)—Chinese military authorities today ordered the civilian population of Hankow, estimated at 1,-000,000, to evacuate the city in view of threatened attack by the Japanese forces driving down from Honan province, now about 300 miles to the north.

The population, swelled by thousands of refugees from the war areas, was advised to move to the south and west.

Foreign authorities here began building camps in the foreign areas to house those who refuse to leave the city becomes the scene of hostilities.

DESK DRAPED IN BLACK

Toronto, June 6—(CP)—The desk of the late Hon. M. M. MacBride, in the Labor Office of the Legislative chambsp was draped in black today and flowers, sent by members of the Ontario cabinet, since Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, died in 1935.

Mr. MacBride died Sunday at Brantford from a heart attack.

6 Drivers Reported to Police to Have Left Scene of Accidents

(By The Canadian Press)

Six week-end automobile accidents in which the participating motorists failed to remain at the scene were being investigated by Ontario police today. One such mishap occurred in the death of Adam Haverstock 30-year-old farm-hand, near Harrowsmith, Ont., Saturday.

Haverstock was struck by a car driven by Wesman Sirock, also a Saturday night. His body was found in a ditch early Sunday, the victim of injuries to the head and chest, it was believed. He died in hospital without regaining consciousness.

Sirock's death, Provincial Police Detective Arden, 43, suffered facial and arm injuries when struck by a car near Foothill, five miles north of Welland, early today. He said the driver failed to stop.

At Peterborough, William Langford was arrested and charged with reckless driving and with failing to remain at the scene of accident after a crash Saturday night when one car collided with another on a highway near that city.

Ion was knocked from his bicycle in Niagara Falls by another motorist, the driver of which continued without stopping.

Give Self up to Police

At Oshawa, William Moyer, 15, one of three boys cyclists, was knocked from his bicycle as an automobile swerved to the wrong side of the highway Sunday. The car did not stop but an hour after the accident a car with the same name of Robert Speers, Oshawa, gave himself up to police. He was arrested and charged on failing to return to the scene of an accident. In police court today he was remanded a week on bail of $5,000.

Mrs. Lucy Ander, 42, suffered facial and arm injuries when struck by a car near Pontbill, five miles north of Welland, early today. She said the driver failed to stop.

At Peterborough, William Langford was arrested and charged with reckless driving and with failing to remain at the scene of accident after a crash Saturday night when one car collided with another on a highway near that city.

Letter Sent to Attorney-General Notifying Him of Action

REFUSED PERMIT

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 6 (CP) —As soon as plans are prepared and approved, the work of rebuilding the Falls View Bridge will be started, Henry Yungbluth, President of the International Railway Company, has advised Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, it was learned here today.

Mr. Yungbluth's letter was in reply to a communication from the Conant last week in which the railway company, owner of the bridge which was taken away by the ice jam last Jan. 27, was warned not to proceed with its announced intention of rebuilding the structure.

The Attorney-General notified the R.C. that parliamentary approval had been granted Ontario to proceed with erection of a new bridge, in co-operation with New York State, on a site a short distance below that of the destroyed Falls View span. Recent legislative enactments were referred to by Mr. Conant in warning the company not to attempt to rebuild.

President Yungbluth, concluding his letter, told Mr. Conant:

"It is the opinion of the company's legal advisers that exclusive jurisdiction in the matter, so far as Canada is concerned, is vested in the Dominion authorities, and that the Act of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario, referred to, is not in order. If it relates to the International Bridge such as ours, it is invalid as being ultra vires of the legislature of the province.

Hope Dwindles for Safety of Plane

Zeballos, B.C., June 6—(CP)— Hope dwindled today for the safety of a huge Canadian Airways airplane, missing more than a week on a flight here from Vancouver to Prince Rupert with 10 persons aboard.

No trace of the yellow machine was found by land and air search parties which scoured the rugged coastal region south of here, where experienced pilot Len Wrangle might have been forced to land.

Search was abandoned by Pilot Robert Lasen returned here after a reconnaissance through the Nootka Sound and Dundas mine areas of Vancouver Island, about 100 miles southwest here.

Two small-usually-handled land planes, mostly fitted with pontoons, will arrive today from Vancouver to join the search, Grant McKay, Mrs. George Nicholson of Zeballos, Charles Rumsey of Tropico and H. Boyd of Steveston, B.C.

BRITAIN BUILDING 520,000 TONS OF WAR VESSELS

5 Battleships, 17 Cruisers, 19 Subs, 39 Destroyers Under Construction

SPECIAL CONVOYS

Trade Routes to be Kept Free in Any Emergency

By GUY ROGADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 6—(CP)— Great Britain, strengthening her vast navy in its greatest peace-time expansion, has 120,000 tons of warships under construction at dockyards and private yards, including five battleships, 17 cruisers, 19 submarines, 39 destroyers and numerous smaller craft.

The admiralty has launched a three-point plan which, it believes, would keep principal trade routes to this country open in any emergency. In a speech at Liverpool Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, told an audience the plan called for:

The Plans

Special naval convoys for main trade routes;

Construction of old cruisers into anti-aircraft vessels;

Strengthening the navy's destroyer arm.

The admiralty, he said, believed that with the addition of any facilities it could keep trade routes open and protect shipping bound for the United Kingdom with food and raw materials by a method of routing, convoy and escort.

"All ocy plans are laid for this end," he declared. "The convoying of a large number of old cruisers to anti-aircraft vessels, the organization of a new type of vessel known as an escort vessel and the strengthening of our present destroyer fleet are all being undertaken for this purpose.

"Plans on Basis

"Plans are laid on the basis 'that immediately after the outbreak we should have to go into convoy on certain routes."

Speaking of attacked critics who claimed strength in the air was a more vital factor in safety than strength afloat. He said experience in recent wars had shown that 'air power by itself is not likely to win a war.'

The effect of sudden ruthless attack on modern cities is appalling, but its effect so far has been to screw up the determination of civilians of attacked cities to endure through and give them the morale to take necessary counter measures," he said.

Airplanes Not Self-Contained

Airplanes are not but they are not self-contained, and it may take weeks and months for the necessary replacements. Convoys ships are ground staffs to be taken to the bases where damaged ships are self-contained and, though slower, are not much can go anywhere, and stay anywhere, and they provide their own bases."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

"Y" BOYS ENJOY HIKE IN COUNTRY

On Saturday last two supervised hikes were planned for the younger boy members of the Y.M.C.A.

The Juniors accompanied by Mr. Shelton sped away on bicycles to a selected spot in Prince Edward County where dinner would be cooked in the open.

The group sallied forth in large numbers to join in a treasure hunt directed by Mr. Shorey. Following the hunt the boys returned to the "Y" for a brief ball game, shower and swim.

The following were successful in finding the hidden treasure: Eric Cooper, Jack Hutchinson, Rod Lyle, Jack Phillips, Tom Hutchinson, Herb Baragar, Don Mohr, Tom Leslie, Maurice Rollins, Rod Pritchard, Jim Cowan.

Specials were found by Eric Cooper and Don Mohr while Jack Phillips and Herb Baragar found two each. Next Saturday the prize will be 25 cents or $.15 in cash, take a lunch and have dinner out.

Residents are reminded that the same cutting of weeds must be carried out by citizens on their own properties according to the weed by-law.

R.C.A.F. MEMBERS ESCAPE INJURY

Five members of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, narrowly escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were riding turned over four times along Highway No. 31 at the outskirts of the village of Tweed shortly after midnight last night. The men had been given a week-end furlough at Ottawa and enroute to Trenton Air Base the motor car was driven by a man who gave his name as Stewart Martin, R.C.A.F. The accident was investigated by Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, who said he had to some unknown manner the vehicle struck the soft shoulder, as it was travelling "fresh, but when it could be righted, had turned over four times. The car was badly damaged. The occupants of the vehicle gave their names as Leading Aircraftsmen L. A. Wilkins and T. Calow. All escaped without serious injury.

OCCUPANTS OF CAR ESCAPE INJURY

When the automobile he was driving got beyond control and crashed across an open ditch and through a fence into a farmer's barnyard on the opposite Marysville Catholic Church Corner, Gordon Clark, Tomlinson and his wife, of Carnival, escaped without injury.

"The road is rather rough at that point and suddenly my car lurched to the left and I found myself sitting in the vehicle had hurtled the ditch and came to a full stop right among the livestock," Mr. Tomlinson informed Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ferguson, who investigated. The car was badly damaged throughout the under-carriage needing the attention of a machine garage mechanic before it would again operate properly.

FOUND LYING BY ROADSIDE

Roland Chasse Taken to Hospital And Later Held in Custody

Found lying in an unconscious condition along the side of Highway No. 2, east of Milltown, a man who gave his name as Roland Chasse, Madoc, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by ambulance early today. The man was found lying on the highway by Percy Nell, Collacutt bus driver, who at first believed that the man had been the victim of a hit and run driver, but following examination by Dr. R. A. Flynn, at the hospital, this theory was discounted, as there were no signs of abrasions or lacerations, that might indicate the man had been struck.

All through the night the man remained in a state of coma, refusing to respond to efforts of doctors or police. Late this morning, however, Sergeant Harry Thompson and Provincial Constable W. E. Smith visited the man, who still appeared to be in a semi-conscious condition but soon afterwards the man willingly aroused himself and informed the police his name was Roland Chasse. The man was immediately placed under arrest and held in custody on a nominal charge of drunkenness.

Provincial Constables Ervine and Carruthers investigated the matter and had made it clear during the unconscious Chasse removed to the hospital by ambulance. It was also clear that the man was faking last night, but as he failed to respond to treatment it thought it advisable to have him examined at the hospital," stated Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine.

Dr. Flynn added there was a possibility the man might be subject to epilepsy, which would leave him in a state of semi-consciousness following such an attack. Edward Kent, Shannonville, who was found dead shortly after Mr. Neill found the man lying alongside the highway, was at first of the opinion the man had been struck by a hit and run driver. This theory was subsequently dispelled by police today, however.

Obituary

MRS. ANNE E. WALLBRIDGE
Massanaga

Mrs. Anne Eliza Wallbridge, widow of Thomas Davis Wallbridge, died at the family residence, Massanaga, in Prince Edward County, on Saturday, June 4th. She had been in failing health for about a year.

The late Mrs. Wallbridge, who was in her 85th. year, was born in Hallowell Township, a district, Ireland, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Symons. As a young girl she came to Canada and resided with relatives in Ingersoll for a time before coming to Belleville. For about six years she was a teacher in the Belleville School for the Deaf in the early years of that institution and throughout her life after leaving the school she continued to take a keen interest in the welfare of the school and observed with satisfaction the many changes made from time to time in the buildings and in the system used in teaching.

On November 18th, 1880 she married Thomas Davis Wallbridge and went to residence at Massanaga in the house where she passed away. Three daughters and one faithful member of the Methodist Church, later the United Church and always age and health permitted she took an active part in Church work. She possessed many fine traits of character and won many friends by her kindly disposition. Mrs. Wallbridge was held in high esteem and affectionate regard by the residents in the community where she lived for so many years.

Surviving to mourn her loss are four sons, Mr. George S. Wallbridge, Mr. Harry A. Wallbridge, Massanaga; Mr. Sandham Wallbridge, Toronto; Mr. Thomas D. Wallbridge, Syracuse, N.Y.; one brother, Mr. Sandham Symons, of Strafford, Ontario; Eldora, Ireland; one sister, Mrs. J. O'Reilly of Belleville; seven grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

Her husband passed away a little over a year ago.

The funeral announcement is given elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. FANNY McMULLEN WILSON
Edmonton, Alta.

The death of Mrs. Fanny McMullen Wilson occurred at the University Hospital, Edmonton, Alta., on Monday, her 66th. birthday. Deceased had been in failing health for months. She was born at Halloway, Ont., and daughter of the late Robert McMullen and came to Alberta just twenty years ago. Her husband, David Wilson, passed away some twelve years ago.

Those surviving are one daughter, Gladys Wilson, Vale Gray, and one son, Allen, both in the district. Five brothers survive, Jr. Ernest, of Airways, Alta.; John of Vancouver; Charley of Calgary; Jack James and William of Hastings County, besides, Mrs. J. Wenger of Belleville and Mrs. Ida Richardson of N. Vancouver, B.C.

Service was held at Veteran, where interment was made.

LATE MURNEY T. HAGERMAN
Stirling

Stirling (Special)—The funeral of Murney Theodore Hagerman took place Saturday afternoon, June 4, from his late residence, Front St., Stirling. Service was held at 2 p.m. and at the graveside in Stirling Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Scott of the United Church at Stirling.

The bearers were Messrs. Kenneth Hagerman, Arthur Hagerman, Wesley Lake, Ira Hammond, Clifford Hagerman and Ernest Lake.

R. A. GARBUTT
Port Hope

Port Hope, June 6—George 'A. Garbutt, well known Port Hope merchant, died in General Hospital early Saturday after a brief illness. He was 78.

Mr. Garbutt was born in Thurlow Township, Ontario, and came to Western Canada in 1882 as a member of a party which travelled from Montreal across the prairies to survey the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. When the first horse-car was put in operation in Winnipeg in 1886 Mr. Garbutt was employed as the first driver. Later he entered the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company at Winnipeg, but returned to Eastern Canada to "break in" the Paterson Biscuit Company in Central Ontario. He purchased a pot-fired factory in Fort Hope in 1901, but after a few years later gave it up to join the local pulp department. He resigned in 1913 to purchase a grocery, which he conducted until his death.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. R. E. Beattie, Toronto, and Mrs. C. S. Scott, Fort Hope, and a son, Gordon C. Garbutt, News Editor of the Standard Freeholder, Cornwall. The funeral was held this Monday afternoon.

Several Charges To be Preferred Says Traffic Officer
Joseph Brant, Shannonville, was admitted to the Belleville General hospital on Sunday suffering from multiple head and chest injuries and a sprained knee, alleged by police to have been the result of a motor accident, which happened on Highway No. 2 east of Belleville late Saturday night. Charges will be preferred against Brant, when he is released from the hospital, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine stated today.
Police found Brant's motor car in the ditch east of Point Anne lane, where it had been abandoned following a collision with a large Martin transport, which was also found in the ditch. The latter, driven by Frank D. Pepho, driver of the Martin transport, stated he was proceeding along the highway when the vehicle was struck by an east bound automobile, driven by both vehicles into the ditch, where the tractor portion of the Martin transport was completely demolished. Frank D. Pepho extricated himself from the wreck without serious injury. There were no signs of life in the automobile that was found nearby, badly wrecked also.
Provincial Constables Ervine and Carruthers investigated and later ascertained the name of the owner of the smaller vehicle said to be Joseph Brant. Later Brant was found in a nearby farmhouse, suffering from injuries. He was taken to the surgery of Dr. Rehbardt at Shannonville, where he received medical aid before being removed to the hospital.
Several charges will be preferred against Brant," H. T. O. Ervine stated today.
Brant was released from the Belleville hospital at noon today and immediately placed under arrest by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine. Charges of drunk driving, failing to remain at the scene of an accident and failing to produce his operator's license on demand were all preferred against Joseph Brant, Ervine stated. The accused man was lodged in the Hastings County jail on remand.

Police Blotter

Two local motorists, who were allegedly racing their motor cars along Ontario St. on Saturday evening will be surprised to learn they will receive police summonses in the near future. Their efforts were detected by a police officer, who obtained the license plate numbers of the allegedly "Barney Oldfields."

Local police answered a hurried call to Everett's on Saturday afternoon, where it was reported, that two men were endeavouring to steal a parked automobile. Upon the arrival of Constables Taylor and Arnott, no signs of the would-be car thieves were in evidence, although residents of that locality saw the men in their attempt. A description of the men was afforded the police, but they had apparently reached the city, as police made a thorough search of the community, without success.

P. C. Evans investigated a break-in at Dickens' confectionery store early today. Entrance had been gained through a small window at the rear of the premises leading into a lavatory. The burglars stole candy, a lemon pie and some pennies, that had been left in the cash register. Nothing else was disturbed, leading the police to believe the breakin was the work of juveniles.

Numerous citizens complained to police that unnecessary noise by motorists was disturbing their slumbers early this morning.

72 Children Receive First Communion

On the Feast of Pentecost, seventy-two children received their first Holy Communion at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. This solemn ceremony took place at the eight-thirty mass which was celebrated by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V. G. The altar was beautifully decorated with flowers and lights for the occasion. The little girls in white dresses and veils, and the boys in blue suits with white arm bands marched in procession from the Academy.

Following Mass a children's choir sang several hymns very beautifully.

The pastor spoke on the meaning and importance of this event in the lives of the children. At the conclusion of the ceremony, again present, to be enrolled in the Scapula of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. Catherine Barrett and Louis Scanlan recited the Act of Consecration. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was then given.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON HEARD BY A. C. STUDENTS

Rev. Roy Rickard is Special Preacher at Morning Service at Bridge St. Church —Christian Life Held as Ideal Before Graduating Class

Albert College baccalaureate Sunday was marked by divine worship in the morning at Bridge Street Church, when a former master of the school for two years, the Rev. Roy Rickard delivered the sermon. It had been planned to have Rev. T. E. W. Shepherd, associate principal of Victoria College, Toronto, deliver the sermon to the students, but illness prevented his attendance. The Board of Governors of the College, Principal Dr. Howe and faculty, and students filled the central portion of the church and a large body of the alumni who had attended the reunion and dinner on Saturday evening at the Y.M.C.A. were present at the baccalaureate service.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister of Bridge St. Church, extended a welcome to the church and service. Principal Dr. Howe, Registrar Emeritus Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker and Rev. Dr. W. J. Hunter, former secretary took part in the service.

The growth of Albert College was indicated by the large body of students and the large graduating class of the year.

Progress of College

Rev. Roy Rickard, the baccalaureate preacher, congratulated the College on the progress it had made, and commended the alumni, who had, he said been told on Saturday evening that the College was in debt. The accommodation was taken up for next year and that indicated that for the year been successful in seventy-five per cent of the tuition papers on which they had written, he also pointed to the success of Albert College athletic teams and the high prizes in provincial athletics, to the high standing attained in scholastic work and to the inspiration of the spiritual work of the institution. In every way the college serving its purposes.

Youth's Pledge

Preaching from the text of Isaiah, "Here am I, O Lord, send me," Rev. Mr. Rickard referred to the age in which the prophet lived, pointed to the day in his youth when he had felt the call of service. "Here am I, O Lord, send me."

"Thank God for the youthful spirit of adventure and faith, knowing as you do, you are going out into the world to make a better place in which man may dwell," said Mr. Rickard, who impressed upon his hearers particularly the responsibility that rests upon those owned the parents, institutions and agencies in life. There was the deep debt to the past and youth's power to neglect this, looking forward as it does to the future. All must feel that they are encompassed around about by a cloud of witnesses. Another debt is that which we owe our fellows. The speaker told the story of Lincoln's mother's influence on her great son who declared, "All that I am or hope to be I owe to my mother." Students must remember the sacrifices that parents have made for the education and the prayers of parents and friends behind them. Then there was the debt we owe to God and country. We all remember the days of the war and what we are taught but what we brought from teachers."

"What a spirit of adventure faces you this morning," said Mr. Rickard. "The veil of the future is down, but no one can tell what you are going out to take up in the world which is in difficulty and needs changing. You who go out into this big world ought to go out ready for service."

Many problems face every one, such as the liquor problem, the civic problem, and the liquor problem.

"You will have to do something about it. You cannot be silent on the degrading as liquor," Mr. Rickard declared. "You will be brought up with the idea not to have anything to do with liquor. The use of liquor is absolutely wrong."

CENTRE HASTINGS HIGH SCHOOLS HOLD FIELD DAY

Ana Thompson of Tweed Senior Champion For Girls

ONE RECORD MADE

W. McBain, Madoc, Throws 8 lb. Shot Distance of 38 Feet

Tweed, June 6 (Special)—Centre Hastings High Schools held their Athletic Meet on Saturday, June 4, in conjunction with the C.O.S.S.A. at the Fair Grounds. Approximately one hundred girls and boys representing Stirling, Marmora, Madoc and Tweed took part in the events.

Local arrangements were in the hands of Principal T. E. Moffat, B.A., and the staff of Tweed High School. Rev. Fr. O'Connell of Tweed, acted as starter for the track events. A good crowd was on hand during the afternoon to cheer the boys and girl.

The program of sports was run off on schedule and there were few disputes of rest for the contestants. Rain which fell late in the afternoon failed to mar the proceedings.

Miss Ana Thompson of Tweed, retained the Senior Girls' Championship which she won in Napanee in 1937. Sam Alexander, carrying the local school colors in the junior boys' events, showed a clean pair of heels to his competitors in the 50-yard dash and went to annex the championship of his group. W. McBain of Madoc, in the 8-pound shot put established a record of 38' 2½" which will probably stand for some years.

D. White of Madoc and Doug Connell of Tweed, staged a great battle for junior high jump honors with the former clearing the bar at 4' 8" on the third attempt; the latter having to be content with a mark of 4' 7".

to me. And you have rights too, Karl."

"No; I have no rights. I am absolutely the interloper, the man who ate your husband's bread and then stole away his wife," Karl said in sudden bitterness. "I will despise myself for the rest of my days and you will despise yourself, too. You see, you're an old-fashioned woman, living in pre-flaming days, Gloria. In your heart you'll always belong to Peter, and Jimmy'll always belong to Peter. You'll always belong to those memories. When you loved him so you'd have starved before you'd have him ask help. Why, even the chairs you got for wedding presents, Gloria, and the salads you invented when you were first keeping house, mean something to you! You've told me about them. If you divorced Peter and married me, d'you suppose any new associations would ever wipe them out?"

She was looking at him fixedly, her face pale, her mouth still unsteady, but her eyes like stars. "I only know that I can't live without you, Karl," she whispered.

"Have you thought how it might be done?" he asked. "Could you share the child with him?"

"Oh, never!" Gloria said quickly, her jaw tightening. But the grip of her fingers in his tightened, too. "I'll think on," she said, almost in a tone of pleading.

"He could not keep him. He would give him back to you."

"I dare not risk it!"

"Would you write him and ask what arrangements regarding the child would satisfy him? I can't suppose," Karl said dryly, "that Peter would want to take him to New York for the summer haul."

"Karl, if it has to be a choice between Jimmy and you-It will have to be Jimmy," Gloria said, narrowing her eyes as she moved her gaze into far space. "He's little, he's helpless, he loves me. He didn't ask to be born."

"And at the same time it's comparatively easy to keep a child happy," Karl suggested.

"Yes, I know. But at the thought of giving him up, even for a few weeks, my heart stands still," Gloria said.

"Yes, I know," Karl said. "And yet I'm asking you to do it. If you write Peter reasonably, placing the facts before him about you and me, he'll see your side of it. He'll have to. Will you do it?"

"I don't know," she whispered.

"I thought I could get away before any of this was said," Karl went on. "I didn't. It's too late now. We're talking of it, you and I. We know now that we love each other. Are you brave enough to make the break, Gloria, even if it means losing your child for a while? I am not, I know."

Karl's voice broke. He loosed her hands, twisted about so that his back was half toward her, knotted his fingers and dropped them between his knees.

"I know I'm inviting you to certain regret," he said in a cold-very cold-voice. "I know I'm laying up endless remorses for myself. You're not like other women, Gloria; you can't do this and never be behind you as if it had never been! We'll be sorry -we'll see it all differently. When the first glory of our loving each other settles down into everyday living we'll find there's no every day living there—we'll have destroyed that—we'll have destroyed everything! And still I ask you to do it, to give him the child—for a while, to get free, to come with me into this new work. I'll be no good without you! And, whatever happens, we shall have had our hour. If I'm weak, if I ought to go away and say none of this, you know why. It's because I love you, I want you!"

Gloria's eyes were shining. She spoke like a woman caught up into a dream. "I think that's all I ever wanted to know," she whispered. (To be Continued)

SUPREME COURT HEARING APPEAL AGAINST DECISION

Appeal Court Recently Freed Comba of Murder Conviction

C. L. SNYDER ACTS

Counsel Argues Court Judge Erred at Conclusion of Trial

Ottawa, June 6 (CP)—Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada said today it seemed a "pity" that Chief Justice F. E. Latchford of the Ontario Court of Appeal, should criticize the judgment of his four colleagues which quashed the murder conviction of John A. Comba.

Referring to Mr. Justice Latchford, who handed down a dissenting judgment in the Comba appeal, Chief Justice Duff said: It's indeed a pity, it seems, that the Chief Justice felt it necessary to criticize the judgments of his colleagues. It would have been better for him to express his own views without entering critical condemnation."

The Chief Justice's remarks were made during the hearing the appeal of the Ontario Attorney General's Department against the Ontario Appeal Court decision freeing Comba of the alleged slaying of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick.

Opened Today

Hearing of the appeal opened before the Supreme Court today.

The Crown, represented by C. L. Snyder and C. P. Hope, both of Toronto and H. B. Johnston of Pembroke, Ont., was not seeking to have the Supreme Court of Canada "pass on the innocence or guilt of the man," Mr. Snyder stated.

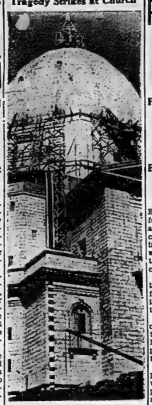
"All we are asking is for a new trial."

The Ontario Attorney General was fully prepared to admit the Ontario Court of Appeal should have granted Comba a new trial, Mr. Snyder said. Nor, was the Crown now arguing that the Ontario Court was without authority to quash the conviction. But the whole case from such counsel asserted, that he should have been granted a new trial and not be given complete freedom.

Comba was convicted by a trial jury in Pembroke, Ont., November 28th, of the murder of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick.

The girl was assaulted and beaten to death near the town limits of Renfrew last August 3.

Comba, a member of a search party organized when the girl failed to return from a choke-cherry picking expedition, found the body in a cow pasture.



He was not arrested until three weeks later. The Pembroke trial, under Mr. Justice E. R. K. Chevrier, was the longest in the history of the county, lasting eight days. The jury deliberated nearly five hours before bringing in its verdict. He was sentenced to hang 6th, February 10. A delay in the execution was made pending his appeal before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Refers To Judgment.

He referred to the judgment of Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton of the Ontario Appeal Court and said he felt Mr. Justice Middleton had been misinformed in connection with sections of his judgment dealing with Comba "stumbling" over the girl's body.

An inaccuracy existed concerning the time of the murder. He hoped to prove it took place at 10 a.m. and not noon. Mr. Justice Middleton also erred in finding that there was a piece of cloth in the girl's hand when she was found. The fibre was so small "it might be floated in the air in this very room," Mr. Snyder said.

Tragedy Strikes at Church

Forty men plunged to their deaths as they rode an elevator down the 300-foot shaft of the dome that crowns Brother Andre's $1,000,000 shrine, St. Joseph's Oratory, Montreal. The men fell to their deaths when a beam, supporting the hoist, shifted, plunging the men nearly 60 feet. The black line, ABOVE, shows where the elevator fell to the church's main floor. One of the victims, plunged through the floor of the hoist and again through the wooden flooring of the church, as indicated by the broken line.

From England to Queen

All England and the British Empire joined in congratulating Queen Mary on her 71st birthday, May 26, and curly-haired John England, six years old, was the youngest lad in Great Britain, when the British Plan Children's Association chose him to deliver a bouquet to Queen in celebration of the event. Here is John leaving for Marlborough House to present the flowers.

Gilead

Gilead—The Woman's Association of Gilead St. Andrew's Church invited the men folk and any others who were interested in the cemetery to a bee on June 1st to clean up the church grounds and the cemetery. There was a good response and a great improvement was made in the general appearance of things.

The ladies served dinner in the church to the workers and some others who were present. Proceeds of dinner amounted to $22.50 which was very gratifying. The Messrs. Ifuffman... Martin and Walkers private plots which are west of the church were improved by the owners.

PURSUE PLANES ORDER ISSUED BY E. DALADIER

French Premier Hurries to Border After Second Bombing

UNKNOWN MARKINGS

Belief Expressed Planes Owned by Insurgent Forces

Paris, June 6—(CP)—Premier Edouard Daladier today left by plane for the French-Spanish frontier, accompanied by General Jules Decamp, chief of his military staff, immediately after he received word warplanes from Spain had crossed the frontier for the second successive day.

His aides said he would go first to Ax-Les-Thermes by automobile from Toulouse to make a personal investigation at the scene of yesterday's bombing.

Daladier planned to discuss with commanders of anti-aircraft, aviation and army units in the Pyrenees border region all means of protecting the district against further bombardments.

"The next bombing error Spanish planes make over French territory will bring them an unpleasant surprise," one French official commented.

Today's air raiders from Spain, like those of yesterday, were nine unmarked planes flying in three "V" formations, but they dropped no bombs and turned back after a 10-minute flight over French territory during which they were greeted by warning shots from at least two French anti-aircraft batteries.

Patrol Frontier

Squadrons of French warplanes patrolled near the Spanish frontier under orders to shoot down any air raiders attempting such an attack on French soil as that made by nine bombers "of unknown nationality" yesterday. The planes roared over the Pyrenees from the direction of Spain and dropped bombs 15 miles inside the French border.

Witnesses of the government investigators the planes flew for two hours along the main trans-Pyrenees railroad from Toulouse to Barcelona and penetrated 50 miles into France before retracing their course and bombing in the vicinity of Orla.

One powerful bomb wrecked an electric power lines from the plant at Orlu and another struck near the railroad. Most of the explosives, however, fell in open fields and no casualties were reported.

An official investigation of the bombing was ordered. A foreign office spokesman declared if an energetic protest would be made as soon as it was determined from which side of the Spanish civil war the raiders came.

Planes Painted Grey

Witnesses said they were painted grey and bore no identification marks. French newspapers, however, expressed belief they probably were insurgent planes because supplies for government Spain have been moving along the railroad.

Even Rightist newspapers here put quotation marks around the official description of the nine raiders, "unknown planes," and said they undoubtedly were insurgent.

A light fog overhung the region of the frontier at the time of the bombardment and opinions differed whether the bombing was accidental or deliberate.

"It was either a mistake because of bad flying and judgment," one official said, "or something much more serious, although at present it looks like a mistake of the sort that must not happen again."

Notify Premier

Officials of Negrin's Department, where the bombing occurred, immediately notified Premier Edouard Daladier, asking that he take stern measures to prevent repetition of the attack.

The premier quickly issued orders designed to reassure the terror-stricken inhabitants of the region, who had scurried into underground shelters to escape the explosives.

"Pursue all planes of whatever nationality which threaten French territories in the Pyrenees region," he instructed the air force in a terse communique.

Use Flashlight When Walking Roads at Night

Toronto, June 6 (CP)—W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League said today walking the highways at night without a flashlight or something light was courting death.

"Walking the highways is dangerous at any time but at night pedestrians should protect themselves by facing oncoming traffic and carrying a reflector or a light to show them up," Robertson said.

Legal Holiday On June Ninth King's Birthday

Toronto, June 6 (CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant said all legal offices, including registry offices, would be closed June 9, a legal holiday for observing the king's birthday, instead of the actual date, December 16.

He said it was possible the special committee of the legislature investigating Hydro contracts would not sit Thursday.

Stock Swindle Charged

Arrested under an indictment issued by Racket Buster Thomas Dewey, of New York, who charged that six men set up a Canadian company with assets of only five dollars and pyramided them into $10,000,000 by looting the assets of investment trusts, Phillip A. Fraser, ABOVE, former New York securities dealer is free under bail of $5,000. The other five men charged are either under arrest, out on bail, or sought by police. Dewey charged they used the Canadian firm name, Fiscal Management Co. Ltd., of Toronto, to secure control of the assets of investment firms. He charged they substituted worthless securities for marketable securities to repay the money they borrowed to purchase control. The accused men all deny guilt.

Young Actress May Wed 64-Year-Old Sultan

The engagement of 24-year-old Lydia Cecilia Hill, former London actress, to the 64-year-old Sultan of Johore is expected to be announced very shortly. The Sultan, ruler of a 7,000 square mile state in Malaya, recently parted from his Scottish wife, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson, whom he married in 1930. The British government is expected to register its disapproval of any marriage between the Sultan and the young actress.

CANADA TRAINS HER AIR FORCE PILOTS FOR ANY EMERG ENCY

Canada's peaceful intent toward fulfilling all nations notwithstanding, student pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Force, are receiving a thorough training in the art of aerial combat along with the lessons which turn them out as capable fliers under any conditions. These pictures from the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton, Ont., illustrate some of the phases of military flying which the pilots study. At top left, the student fliers are practising operation of machine guns on the 25-yard range; at the right parachute instruction is the subject—just in case a sudden "bail-out" is necessary at the same time in the future. The class is learning to properly pack the pilots study. At top left, the chute. In the left centre panel an instructor is giving a lecture on the interception of aircraft in flight, and the machine just coming over the hedge, centre right, is engaged in forced landing tests. In the lower section the pilots get some actual flying practice, with instructors and pupils discussing the forthcoming lesson, left, as they prepare for the takeoff. "Note: When and if a decision to enlist in the R.C.A.F. will not be caught napping.

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week... But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by CAREFUL SPENDING.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd all like to do:

BUY WHAT YOU WANT — AND HAVE MONEY LEFT OVER!

Daladier: 'We Will Not Have War if We Are Strong and Decided'

AERIAL ATTACKS WERE DELIBERATE DALADIER'S VIEW

Sends Reinforcements to Spanish Frontier to Repel Attacks

DOUBLE OBJECT

Nine Unmarked Planes Appear Over French Valley

Foix, France, June 7—(AP)—France sent reinforcements to the Spanish frontier today as Premier Edouard Daladier, who also is National Defense Minister, took personal charge of military preparations to repel aerial invasion.

Daladier, who spent last night in Foix on a tour of the frontier, made it plain he regarded the reported aerial attacks on French territory were deliberate.

Cryptic Remark

"I am convinced this bombardment was done with a double object in view," the Premier said cryptically, after investigation at the spot where power-lines and the right-of-way of the Toulouse-Barcelona railway were damaged by bombs dropped from nine planes of "unknown nationality" Sunday.

"We will not have war if we are strong and decided," he added, "if we look straight ahead and without fear; we will be able to avoid it."

He did not comment further.

The Premier's visit to the mountainous border region, unfortified for centuries between the two traditionally friendly nations, was the result of the visit yesterday by nine unmarked planes over France's Cerdagne district.

His 15 Penniless Years Are Over, E. Waterman Becomes V. P. of Co.

New York, June 7—(AP)—After 15 penniless years Elisha Waterman, disinherited member of a multi-millionaire family, became vice president of the family fountain pen business yesterday.

Although his father, Frank D. Waterman, who died May 8, cut him off with only $100, his death made Elisha beneficiary of a $5,000,000 trust fund left by his grandfather Lewis E. Waterman.

The fund included controlling stock in the company, so the Board of Directors made him an officer and a director.

Waterman had worked as a newspaper reporter, laborer and draftsman, and had spent several years in a dingy Greenwich Village flat, unemployed.

TO BAN MARRIAGE OF PERSONS WITH SOCIAL DISEASE

New York State Law Goes Into Effect on July First

BLOOD TESTS

Albany, N.Y., June 7—(AP)—Regulations designed to facilitate administration of the law which bans marriage of persons with communicable syphilis effective July 1 were announced today by New York State Health Department.

The law, which was enacted by the 1938 legislature in a campaign to curb the disease, imposed prohibitions, with certain exceptions to undergo a physician's examination and a serological blood test before applying for a marriage license.

Certificate Necessary

The examination and blood test must be made not more than 20 days prior to the application, and the license may not be issued without certification by the physician that neither person is suffering a communicable stage of syphilis.

The marriage ceremony must be performed within 30 days after issuance of the license, which otherwise becomes invalid.

Dr. Edward S. Godfrey, State Commissioner of Health, touring the province to town and city clerks, said no proof of freedom from the disease is required.

ELECTRIC STORMS SWEEP PROVINCE DAMAGE SLIGHT

Half Inch of Rain Falls in St. Catharines District

HELP TO CHERRIES

By The Canadian Press

Minor damage to garden plants and crops was reported in parts of central and western Ontario today, after a night of electric storms and rainstorm which swept those sections of the province during the night. Greatest fall was in the Niagara district where high winds wrought havoc to tobacco plants.

The brilliant electrical display accompanied heavy rains in Toronto late last night and early today but no early reports of damage were received. Young plants and flowers were broken in Hamilton during a series of storms. Power service was disrupted there for a short time by lightning.

High Winds

A half-inch of rain fell on the St. Catharines district of the Niagara Peninsula last night. Farmers termed the precipitation a "godsend" and said it would be of benefit to cherries, peaches and other fruit and vegetable crops. High winds were reported from Ingersoll district but no other damage was reported.

Brantford reported a night of storms, but no property damage. Highwinds accompanied the storm around Galt, breaking branches off trees and flattening garden plants. Farmers there also welcomed the precipitation. They said the land was dry and was beginning to "crust." Showers continued today.

To Repair Tobacco Plants

In Norfolk County, farmers said whole fields of tobacco plants had been destroyed by yesterday's high winds which swept the county following gales on May 24. Tiny stocks were buried beneath rust and mud while the latter hardened in the air. It was said that in most instances replanting will be the cure of the damage. There is no shortage of plants this year.

Thunderstorms hit Hamilton and district last night, delaying the arm with rain, and peppering it with hailstones. Only slight damage was reported however, beyond the battering down of young plants and flowers in gardens.

The first storm swept over Mount Hamilton at midnight. Later several storms crossed the Burlington and Dundas area. The lightning was spectacular.

FEAR GERMANY MAY DRAW ITALY INTO WAR SOON

London Newspaper Quotes Friends Saying Chamberlain is Anxious

SPANISH WAR'S END

Paper Speaks of Italy as Germany's Conscripted Ally

London, June 7—(CP-Havas)—The News Chronicle (Liberal) today quoted friends of Prime Minister Chamberlain as saying he fears Germany may draw Italy into a European war before the Spanish civil war ends.

"His friends say that the Prime Minister is seriously pr-tbered over the delay (in ending the Spanish war)," the paper said. "He fears that the guns will not cease (if, that before non-intervention (by Britain) against Premier Mussolini has brought about a truce in the Spanish government.) Germany will have embarked on her next most critical adventure, which will draw Italy finally and irrevocably on her side as a conscripted ally in the consequential European war.

Little Said of Pact

"Incidentally ministerial and other visitors to Stafford in the present by-election standing as a very small issue about the Anglo-Italian agreement. Even more by what they don't say than by what they say they give an impression of inconclusiveness and doubt.

The dictators don't now take the measure of this weakened government, and treat it, even with contempt. In consequence we are paying through the nose in a vain search for that security which we could have had very much more certainly if the government had only kept to the collective path.

Bombing Reported to Rome, Berlin Paper

"What is the use of heatedly protesting to Franco? He can do nothing. Surely the British government knows that all these bombings are carried out by Germans and Italian aircraft under direct German and Italian instruction.

"The German and Italian governments are experimenting on the Spanish people with various types of machines and bombs with changing tactical methods. They are also conducting what they call psychological warfare by dropping leaflets. Careful reports are sent back regularly, not to France, but to Berlin and Rome."

"Reprisals by the Spanish government, therefore, should be made not on Spanish centres of population but on German and Italian towns."

SASKATCHEWAN VOTES WEDNESDAY

156 Candidates in Field For The Fifty Seats at Stake

Regina, June 7—(CP)—The Saskatchewan election campaign will wind up tonight in a flood of oratory and last-minute, frantic organization plans of the four major parties fighting for control of the provincial legislature.

Climaxing a short but intensive campaign, Premier James Gardiner will go to the polls tomorrow to choose between Liberals, Conservatives, Co-operatives and representatives of the C.C.F. party.

There are 156 candidates in the field for 50 house seats. Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. M.S.T.

The first election disorders were reported yesterday from Estevan, a coal-mining centre in the south-east corner of the province where police were guarding the meeting addressed by Premier William Aberhart of Alberta. A later meeting at Estevan was quiet and orderly.

Claiming to be jobless Communists, a group of men raised cries of "we've come to drag you back to Alberta" as Premier Aberhart finished his address at Estevan.

Such words as "skunk," "liar," and "double crosser" were heard. The crowd was advised to "vote for anything but Social Credit." Clint L. MacLachlan, chairman of the Alberta Social Credit Board, attempted to answer some of the challenges but his efforts were drowned in the shouting. The police finally dispersed the crowd.

TIMES ANSWERS CHARGE BOMBINGS OCCUR IN INDIA

No Village Bombed Unless Tribesmen Guilty of Attacks

ATTEMPTS AT TRUCE

Shooting of Britishers And Poisoning of Wells by Villagers Proven

London, June 7—(CP-Havas) — Answering charges of British aerial bombings in India, made by Der Angriff, organ of German propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels, The Times (Independent) said:

"Der Angriff let itself go in giving exciting and fictitious accounts of royal air force operations among villages, stating that 'bombs of 112 mes and an untold number of women and children had been killed within three months.

Facts Not Hidden

"The facts have not been hidden by the India office or the Indian press and the method of bombing on a few occasions necessary, was laid down in a white paper issued in June last year.

"No village is bombed unless tribesmen have been proved guilty of attacks on British stations or of unofficially acts against British army wells. Nor is the order given until further attempts at a truce have failed and ample warning has been given to all villagers to leave the places of safety, taking with them their household property and cattle.

Punishment For Outrages

"The aim and sole result of the bombing is the destruction of the tribesmen's property in certain selected villages as a punishment for proved outrages. There is no record of injuries to Indian civilians, as there are only indiscriminate bombing.

"For example three villages of (the district of) Maddx Khel (which harbor the Fakir of Ipi) were bombed in June after the villagers had been proved guilty of shooting British soldiers at their stations and poisoning wells in the neighborhood.

"Full opportunity was given for the tribesmen to make preparations and then full warning was given. There were no casualties. Der Angriff's comparison is in fact simply fails to the ground. There can be no analogy between the careful and restrained operations of the royal air force and the indiscriminate bombing which Der Angriff has described the deaths of hundreds of defenceless civilians in China and Spain."

WHEAT SEEDING COMPLETE IN SASK.

Only Ten Per Cent of Coarse Grain Acreage Remains to be Seeded

Regina, June 7—(CP)— Wheat seeding is practically completed in Saskatchewan with only about ten per cent of the coarse grain acreage remains to be seeded, according to crop reports received by the Department of Agriculture.

Seeding of wheat has been fairly good and germination and growth generally good, reports said, generally satisfactory. Taking the province as a whole 90 per cent of the wheat acreage is in and 80 per the coarse grains are above ground.

No damage by frost has occurred.

Some soil drifting has occurred during the week but moisture shortage has not been great. Cutworms are reported in scattered areas and other injurious insects. Rust control west to the Alberta boundary are reported active to apparent and possibly an average loss of five to 10 per cent has occurred.

Hatching of Grasshoppers

Hatching of grasshoppers is becoming more severe. Heavy to very heavy local hatches are reported. Some damage has occurred around the edges of fields and in some stubble crops. Control measures are underway where necessary.

Postmen of England cycled over 120,000,000 miles on duty last year.

Peru Reinforces Border Garrisons Report Guayaquil to be Occupied

Quito, Ecuador, June 7—(AP)— The Foreign Office of Ecuador charged today that Peru was reinforcing border garrisons with troops, bombing planes and gunboats despite promises to abstain from force in the two nations' dispute over the Ortenal Andes territory east of the Andes.

A Foreign Office statement said Peru had sent five bombers to reinforce her garrison at Puerto-joja near Rocafuerte on the Napo river and had concentrated provincial troops at the Ecuadorian boundary at Tumbes near the Pacific coast.

Three gunboats and 10 planes had arrived at Puerto Pizarro in that area, the statement said, and three regiments were in the zone between Tumbes and Sullana, to the south.

The Foreign Office said it was advised by Ecuadorian authorities at this boundary that Peru intended to occupy Matapolo island at the entrance of the Gulf of Guayaquil. Guayaquil, Ecuador's principal port, it is situated on the Gulf.

It was near the Peruvian garrison post of Pantoja and the Ecuadorian garrison of Rocafuerte that Ecuador charged two of her soldiers were killed and another wounded in a clash June 2.

(Peru denied a clash occurred but said four Ecuadorian soldiers and a lieutenant who were arrested after found trespassing on Peruvian territory.)

FIVE IN UNIFORM OF R.C.A. ATTEND FASCIST MEETING

Reported Five Appeared in Hall And Gave Fascist Salute

ONE A SERGEANT

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Five men in the uniform of the Royal Canadian Artillery filed into a Fascist meeting in Toronto yesterday last night and gave the Fascist salute to Aerian Arcand, of Montreal, leader of the Fascist party in Canada.

Arcand returned the salute while the audience of 300 cheered and the uniformed men sat down to hear Arcand's attack on Jews and communists.

Reports of the five men in uniform were confirmed by police yesterday.

Asked if there was liable to be an inquiry into the matter, Lieutenant-Colonel Brigadier W. H. P. Ekins, Officer Commanding Military District No. 2, said: "I couldn't give you any information about that just now. Soldiers are not forbidden to attend political meetings, but they are supposed to take any active part in a political meeting," he said.

Signs Taken

Before the meeting police were called on to quell anti-Fascist demonstrators outside the building. Signs reading "Down with Fascism" and police were booed for "protecting" the Fascists.

The demonstrators paraded in the street and when they stopped for a moment, Arcand began to speak more on.

Arcand was accompanied into the hall by Major J. Maurice Scott, Grand Director for the Fascist party in Canada, and Adrien Arcand, Christian Party in Quebec, and Joseph Hall, Fascist leader in the Canadian Nationalist Party.

After the meeting Arcand announced the National Social Christian Party would hold its annual convention in Toronto, starting June 30, instead of in Kingston, Ont. The Kingston City Council has passed a resolution saying the convention is not wanted there.

"We won't go where we are not wanted," Arcand said. "Kingston doesn't want our convention. Very well, it will be held in Toronto. We will need three days to get through all our business."

CITY OF CANTON BOMBED 3 TIMES DEAD NOW 6,000

Third Raid Made by Moonlight Early Today

20 CIVILIANS KILLED

Canton, China, June 7 (AP)— Japan's warplanes bombarded the terrorized South China city three times today and swelled the toll of dead and wounded, which has reached 6,000 since the unsighted series of raids began 11 days ago.

The third attack was made by moonlight, beginning at 3.30 p.m. (12.30 a.m. E.S.T.) and immediately bombs were dropped in northern sections of the city.

Canton, including the foreign settlement on Shameen Island, was heavily shelled by air power last night. During an afternoon raid seven bombs plunged into the crowded area of the Shakumen district, near Shameen, shelling the power station out of commission.

Twenty civilians were killed on Honan Island, separated from Canton city by the Pearl River.

First Raid at Dawn

The first raid came soon after dawn, when Japanese planes for 10 minutes bombarded the suburbs of Pingshan and Sakchuen districts.

Local Chinese authorities have ordered all women and children to leave the city. Facilities are entirely inadequate to handle the exodus.

More than 100,000 already have fled to Hong Kong. Many more have sought refuge in the interior or in ports further south.

Canton has drawn Japan's attack because it is the gateway for most of China's imported war supplies.

(In Shanghai a Japanese navy spokesman declared Japan would continue bombings of Canton and Hankow because of their military importance. He denied they were undefended cities.)

Aerial Navigation Course Announced at Varsity

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Establishment of a two-year course in aerial navigation was announced yesterday by the University of Toronto, honor mathematics is the only one necessary for admission to the course, it was learned.

Instruction in mechanics, applied mathematics, physics and other studies will lead to qualifying examinations for commercial and transport pilots, navigators, despatchers, operating meteorologists and radio operators.

FREIGHTER HIT BY THREE BOMBS IN SPANISH PORT

Hitherto British Protests Have Proven to be Inadequate

'STRONGER STEPS'

Norway And Sweden Ready to Serve on Neutral Board

Madrid, June 7 (AP)—Three more British merchantmen were seriously damaged today in raids of insurgent warplanes on the Spanish Mediterranean coast of Alicante, Loria of Alicante and Valencia.

At least 23 persons were killed and 50 wounded in Alicante when a bomb crashed into a building in which 300 refugee families from the war zones were living crowding havoc. Another bomb hit the well-known Hotel Victoria.

Alicante Raided

Five Junkers (German type) planes raided Alicante City, but the harbor there was attacked by only a single seaplane. Three of its bombs hit the 3,688-ton British freighter Thorpehaven, crippling it badly. Another vessel described only as the English ship, was hit and set afire.

At Valencia three bombs which plunged into the water alongside the cargo steamer Thurston caved her plates and she started to settle. (Loyd's lists the Thurston as of 3,073 tons.)

Third Ship Sunk

The third British vessel in the number of ships sunk or badly damaged in the last fortnight in insurgent raids on Spanish Government ports.

Another British freighter, the SC Winifred, was set afire yesterday by insurgent German-Italian Junkers bombers, raided Alicante, during 78 persons, including three children, and the SS, Winifred's crew.

Freighter Hit

Alicante, Spain, June 7 (CP-Havas)—The British freighter Thorpehaven hit by three bombs and badly damaged during an insurgent air raid against this port early today. Another British craft in the harbor was reported on fire by explosives.

The Thorpehaven, the third British craft hit in this port since Saturday, was struck by bombs dropped from an insurgent warplane which came from the direction of Mallorca, insurgent Balearic Island base. It was immediately ascertained whether there were any casualties.

By GEORGE HAMILTON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 7 (CP)—Britain — Great Britain is determined to put a stop to the bombing of British shipping in Spanish waters. Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in unmistakable terms in the House of Commons today.

Now it is felt that stronger steps must be taken, and Chamberlain announced he was communicating with the British representatives at Burgos and Barcelona to see what more effective measures are possible.

Week-end Attacks

Over the week-end two further attacks were made by insurgent aircraft. On Friday four bombs were dropped on the port of Alicante harbor near the British tanker Marpark. Five thousand tons of oil were ignited. The second engineer was reported drowned. The ship is a 6,000 ton freighter. Then when 50 bombs were dropped on Saturday on the British vessel Winifred and the British ship St. Winifred's crew.

Hitherto British protests have either charged deliberate air attacks on the carelessness in not distinguishing military objectives. These have proved inadequate.

Neutral Committee

Norway and Sweden today accepted an invitation to serve on a neutral committee which would investigate charges of barbarous bombing of civilians in Spain. A definite proposal that the United States has not yet been received.

The proposal is that the committee, on which the United Kingdom also would be represented, should proceed to Spain where, at a call from either side in Spain, it would investigate whether a bombing attack was directed against military objectives or not.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Tennis and weather! This tremendously popular game is a summer one. The best weather for it is warm and clear, dust- and rain-free. Warm, because the players should be lightly clad to facilitate the agility required in this most active of summer sports; clear and bright, to see the swiftly moving ball; quiet, because one does not like to allow for the wind. The weather in summer is suitable, but June is local because the days are longer and cooler on the average than later. It is clearer now than later in the season, when hazier weather is the rule, and also there are fewer thunderstorms than in the other summer months.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 7—(CP)—Synopsis—Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, and light scattered showers in the districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, while in Alberta it has been fair. It is low over the Prairie Provinces and northwestern Ontario but moderately warm from the Lower Lake Region eastward to Nova Scotia. A fairly deep depression is centred over James Bay with a trough extending southward to the Lower Lake region and pressure is also low over Newfoundland, but high over the western provinces and northwest States.

Lake Superior—Partly cloudy and cool today and Wednesday; probably light scattered showers; fresh west to moderate winds on Wednesday.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy and cool tonight and Wednesday.

Saskatchewan—Fair today and Wednesday; somewhat higher temperature on Wednesday.

INSURGENT ATTACKS FAIL TO MAKE GAINS

Hendaye, June 7—(AP)—For the fifth successive day heavy Spanish insurgent attacks failed today to make decisive gains toward Valencia and the coast. The entire eastern front of Spain's civil war was deadlocked.

Despite insurgent reports yesterday of the encirclement of Albocacer, a keystone of the government's defenses of Valencia, artificial communique today acknowledged there was "nothing to report on any front."

Another government dispatch said all insurgent efforts to advance had been repulsed with heavy losses, and declared several successful government counter-attacks in the mountains between Teruel and the coast.

'Indefensible For Men in Uniform To Attend Political Meetings'

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Col. O. S. tion is very bad—it is indefensible."

Hollinrake, Officer Commanding, Royal Canadian Artillery, said today it was "bad" for members of the militia to attend or take part in a political meeting while wearing a military uniform.

Col. Hollinrake said that unless ordered to do so, he would not investigate the possible membership in the Fascist party of five of his non-commissioned officers and men who attended a Fascist meeting here last night. The soldiers gave the Fascist salute to Adrien Arcand, leader of the Fascist party in Canada, who addressed the meeting.

He said the action of the artillerymen was indefensible "but I am sure they did it unthinkingly". Col. Hollinrake continued: "They were at their own military activities—and they were late for the political meeting. Had they had time they would no doubt have taken off their uniforms before going. But their ac-

The commanding officer said he never had heard "a murmur in the ranks" of membership in the Fascist or the Fascist party. "The question never came up in the mess. He himself did not know the Fascist party's platform or what it stood for, and he was not in a position to answer questions about it."

The inquiry revealed there was in the party platform anything subversive or unsatisfactory to constituted government.

There was nothing in army regulations to prevent members of the non-permanent force belonging to a political party or attending political meetings. But there were regulations against men taking part in the activities of a political organization.

A smawl army of Bludles Revolushonists, led by Professor Gilbert Murray and reinforst by Professor Lloyd Jamis wil invade the capital on behalf of the Nu-spellers.

The Simplifyde Speling Sosyeti is an outgrowth of the old Nu-spellers founded by the late Sir George Hunter, shipbuilder, who died last year at the age of 91. The new Sosyeti hopes to reawaken interest in Nu-spelling and is holding its conference for the first time in 12 years.

Even members of the Sosyeti have not decided what will happen to British family and christian names if their forms of spelling gains general use. Professor Murray would be known as Murrai "R" from his name. H. G. Wells would becum Wellz. Instead of difficulty even in the system should involv such English names as Cholmondeley (pronounced Chumbly), Majorbanks (Marzbhanks) or De Upbaugh (Dupper).

Adherents of the Sosyeti claim their system of spelling which appears difficult to the beginner, inured to orthodox spelling, becomes far easier than the customary one, ner after its principles have been learned.

TUESDAY'S MARKET PRICES UNCHANGED

A fairly good display of spring vegetables and other produce was noted at the city market today with prices remaining steady at week-end quotations.

Asparagus headed the new vegetable offerings selling at 10 cents per bunch and pound lots at 15, 20 and 25 cents each. Eggs were quoted at 25 cents per dozen for select stock with a few ungraded dozens selling at 21 cents.

Tomato plants and other flat varieties of vegetable and plant shoots were offered at week-end prices.

LIGHTNING KILLS HORSE AT MELROSE

Jagged forks of lightning ripping earthward from black thunderheads that marked a severe but brief electrical storm that passed over the city and district last night, killed a valuable horse belonging to John Weese, farmer residing near Melrose early today.

Deluging rain that followed in the wake of the storm was particularly heavy in the city and nearby districts. Farmers stated today that continued rains would act as a slight deterrent to crop growth. Warm sunny weather is now needed to continue the rapid growth of crops that so far has been noted in agricultural areas of the district.

Would Restore U. E. L. Sites in Quinte District

An effort is under way to have several of the historic Loyalist sites along the Bay of Quinte restored by one of the $450,000 allotted by the Federal $40,000,000 public works program to the restoration of historic sites.

St. Paul's Church, Adolphustown is one of the churches proposed for restoration.

Built 150 years ago, the old Loyalist Church is a landmark in the Quinte district. M. Forsyth Grant, in a paper written soon after he described it as built of "roughcast, with a bell tower, and four large arched windows on each side with old fashioned sashes and small panes of glass. IWithin were originally the western gallery, the high pulpit, the big reading desk, and the small walled pews with seats running round the four sides; these have all been removed and the place is now fitted up with a platform and chairs for a church hall."

The Bath Historical Society hopes to have the road now known as the Bath Road, which runs from Kingston to Toronto, once more renamed "The U.L.L. Highway."

Among the numerous sites which it is hoped to have properly marked and in some instances restored and preserved are several very old buildings located in the quaint town of Bath. Among these are St. John's Church, and the Langhorn Residence, the former home of Rev. John Langhorn, the second Church of England clergyman to be stationed in this part of Upper Canada.

One of the outstanding Loyalist sites is the Fairfield homestead at Collins Bay, built in 1793 and still in the Fairfield family. Five generations of Fairfields have been born in the picturesque white-gabled house, and many visitors to the Bay of Quinte insist on viewing the home, known as one of the oldest in the district.

Another site is the first registry office of Lennox and Addington County at Millhaven.

Anti-aircraft Units Arrive

As a result of this, the third border visitation by aircraft in two weeks, units of the 15th Infantry and 40th anti-aircraft regiments arrived late yesterday at Ait-Les-Thermes, centre of the region 20 miles north of the border which was bombed Sunday.

From Tarbes in the eastern Pyrenees, infantry detachments made a night march to Pamiers, north of Foix, with 15 anti-aircraft guns of heavy calibre and anti-aircraft machine guns.

Insurgents Blamed

The attacks generally were considered to have been made by Spanish insurgents, although an official insurgent communique from Salamanca declared Spanish government planes disguised as insurgents made the raids in an effort to provoke French intervention in the civil war. From Burgos the insurgent general staff asserted no insurgent planes had flown closer than 60 miles to the French border.

One report published by several newspapers, both Rightist and Leftist, said the raids were made by insurgents who took advantage of the absence to make elaborate photographs of French fortifications and roads behind the frontier.

This report said the decision was made at an insurgent war council at which General Franco presided last week at Burgos. General Franco was said to have opposed the plan but gave in to the insistence of his German advisers.

Since its opening in 1925, the Lenin Mausoleum in Moscow, Russia, has been visited by 12,000,000 persons.

Sales of consumer co-operative stores in Sweden in 1937 totaled $17,252,500, an increase of about 21,467,755 over 1936.

THREE MONTHS FOR BIKE THEFT

Roy Tripp Sentenced After Plea of Guilt is Registered

Roy Tripp, alias Leslie Trudale, who gave Marlboro as his home address, was sentenced to serve three months in the Hastings County jail following a conviction of the theft of a bicycle in today's local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C. Tripp entered a plea of guilty, when faced with a charge of the theft of a bicycle, the property of John Nolan of this city. The bicycle has been recovered and returned to its owner. Tripp was arrested in Napanee and found in possession of the bike.

Before he was asked to plead Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. enquired as to whether the accused man was represented by counsel. "This is a serious matter, have you a lawyer?" asked Mr. Donnan. Tripp replied in the negative.

"There's one standing beside you who might help you," added Mr. Donnan, indicating R. A. Pringle, local barrister, who commenced to advise the accused. Later he pleaded guilty, however. Before sentence was passed Mr. Donnan intimated Tripp should be examined by Dr. Doyle, Provincial Psychiatrist, as he had seven previous convictions registered against him. "Got it over with today," interrupted Tripp.

"Three months in the common jail," His Worship accomodatingly replied without further incident.

PIANO AND VOCAL PUPILS HEARD AT A. C. RECITAL

Very Fine Program is Given at College by Pupils of Conservatory

Albert College Conservatory pupils in piano and singing appeared in the annual recital on Monday evening in Memorial Hall of the college. The numerous pupils this year gave a very fine demonstration of their progress. Members of the staff must have been proud of the fine showing which even the youngest made. Even the juniors declared very clearly that their sense of rhythm was well developed and showed that they had attained marked progress in their technical accomplishments. Senior pupils in piano gave a number of very finely rendered numbers.

The vocal program was an excellent one, the pupils singing numbers of great charm in the most artistic manner, with polish and with well-trained voices which are a feature of fine natural quality.

The program was as follows, the name of the composer appearing first, then the name of the composition and the name of the pupil last:

Junior pupils (piano):

Reed, "March of the Gingerbread Men"—Jack Dann.

Mozart, "Minuet" — Alice Mathews.

Kennedy, "Waltzing"—Jim Greer.

Van Haupt, "Camp-fire Revery"—Renee Ayling.

Hurd, "Little Firefly"—Glen Kimmel.

Duval, "Southern Nights"—Marian Sargent.

Hurd, "Pan Bud"—Ted Walsh.

Aubry, "The Rose's Dream" — Daphne Mason.

Hurd, "Singing 'Neath the Oak"—Maralyn Woodley.

Schumann — "Merry Peasant" — Gerald Ward.

Mozart, "Air"—Shirley Hill.

Krogmann, "The Robin's Lullaby"—Muriel Semple.

Slater, "The Cat and the Fiddle"—Constance Merklinger.

Lange, "In Rank and File"—Loella Burkholder.

Crist, "A Maid Churning"—Phyllis Ward.

Behr, "Bolero"—Dorothy Dobbs.

Blumenreich, "Reaping Song" — June Wardle.

Senior pupils (piano):

Schumann, "Sir Rupert" — Betty Smith.

Brown, "Flirtation Dance"—Douglas Roblin.

Rocchetti-MacMillan, "Minuet"—Helen Walsh.

Goddard, "Second Valse"—Frances Wallbridge.

Palmgren, "Rococo" — Katherine Hogle.

Chopin, "Valse Opus 18" — Jean Sharpe.

Schubert, "My Sweet Repose" — Lucile Herrington.

Senior pupils (singing):

Leoni, "Leaves and the Wind"—Helen Scott.

Willeby, "Coming Home"—George O'Brien.

Coward, "Dear Songs of Long Ago" — Mary Smithfirm.

Rolfe, "Will We Die Next"—Joe Foley.

Grieg, "Solveig's Song"—Marjorie Purvis.

McMurrough, "Macushla" — Joe Patton.

Hamblen, "Beside Still Waters"—Phyllis Hall.

Walt, "Lassie o' Mine"—Harry McGuire.

Henderson, "Valley of Laughter"—Jean Crozier.

Bemberg, "Olpay Moon"—Rose Schryver.

Scarpeson, "Little Brown Owl"—Lucile Herrington.

Ronald, "O Lovely Night"—Helen Darling.

Franz, "Widmung"—Harry Atkinson.

Verdi, "La Donna e Mobile" — Harry Atkinson.

Gounod, "Waltz Song" (Romeo and Juliet)—Phyllis May.

Miss Myra Cunningham was unable to be present to take part in the program.

Mr. R. M. Anglin played the accompaniments for the vocalists.

Miss Beatrice Sandford and Mr. E. M. Anglin were in charge of the program.

Obituary

THOMAS CORBETT

Trenton, June 7 (Special)—Passing in Belleville General Hospital on Saturday last after an illness of only one week, the late Thomas Corbett of Smithfield, a life-long resident of Murray Township, was interred today in Mount Calvary cemetery here following funeral services held in St. Alphonsus Church in Wooler this morning. The deceased was widely known, and during his sixty-six years in the Smithfield area he had made a host of friends.

Son of the late James Corbett of Murray township and of Hannah Burns of Ireland, he is the late Mr. Corbett spent his entire life within a few miles of Trenton. He was a devout Catholic and attended both Wooler and Trenton churches. Surviving him are his sorrowing widow, Catharine Corbett, a son, Harold, and a daughter, Agnes, at home, and two married daughters, Jean and Camilla, of Toronto.

Requiem mass was sung in St. Alphonsus Church at Wooler this morning by Rev. Fr. Black, with interment following in Mount Calvary cemetery.

LATE ROSEMT J. HAMILTON (Tyendinaga)

The funeral of Robert James Hamilton took place from his late residence in the 5th concession of Tyendinaga Township on Monday afternoon, June 6th, to St. Paul's Anglican Church at Roslin where the burial office was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. P. C. Beaver, assisted by the Rev. F. A. Smith, Rector of St. George's Church, Trenton, a former incumbent of Roslin Parish.

Interment was made in Roslin cemetery, The bearers were Messrs. Ernest Coulter, Murner Hamilton, Charles Brintnell, James McKay, Thomas Warren and Dr. H. R. Welsh, M.P.P.

LATE MISS JANET M. SMITH

The committal service for the late Miss Janet Mickle Smith, who died in Rochester, N.Y., on Friday, June 3rd, was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, at the graveside in the family plot in Belleville cemetery, Monday afternoon, June 6th. Friends from Rochester and Belleville were present at the service.

MRS. FRANCES A. DAWSON
Vancouver, B. C.)

Queensboro (Special)— Funeral services for Mrs. Frances A. Dawson, of 2746 Cambridge St., Vancouver, who died at her home suddenly on Wednesday were held today in St. Nicholas Church with Rev. T. W. Scott officiating.

Mrs. Dawson, who was born in Queensboro Ontari., had been a resident of Vancouver Heights for a number years. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. L. Taggart and Mrs. A. E. Dawson, Vancouver, one son P. H. Dawson of Kingston R. C. A. Force, grandchildren, John and Perry Dawson of Huntingdon and Helen Dawson of New Westminster.

She also leaves ops brother, Dr. F. G. Thompson of St. Joseph Mo. Three sisters, Mrs. Marjory Jeffs, Vancouver, and Misses Annie and Jennie Thompson of Queensboro (now of Ottawa).

The above is copied from a Vancouver newspaper. The deceased who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Thompson of Queensboro is well known by the older residents of this vicinity.

J. HUNTER CAPTURES HANDSOME TROPHY

Competing against five other students in the finals yesterday of the public speaking contest held at the Belleville Collegiate, Jim Hunter of Form 9C captured the handsome trophy. Thirty students have taken part in the contests for the first and second forms held during the season.

The winner yesterday gave an interesting address on the life of Alexander Graham Bell to whom he is distantly related. Mr. P. C. MacLaurin acted as Judge. Mr. Hunter was presented with the splendid trophy donated by the Walker Hardware Company.

Eton College in England will sell its war trophies as scrap.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 7—(CP)—Interest centred in the base metal group on the Toronto share market today and the whole group advanced on active trading. The golds posted about as many losses as gains and the industrials and western oils were irregularly lower at the close. Volume was the heaviest in a month or more with the figures hovering around the 800,000 share mark.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, June 7 (AP)—Backsliding tendencies crept into the Stock Market today after a slow forenoon rally and early gains of fractions to a point or more were reduced or transformed into losses of as much at the close.

Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

Coppers led the initial forward tilt, although even these subsequently slipped from the best. Selected Steels, Motors, Mail Orders, Farm Implements and Specialties did well for a time, only to lose vigor in the latter part of the proceedings.

SUPREME COURT ASKED QUESTION

Must Consider Whether Justice Latchford Disqualified Himself

Ottawa, June 7 (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada was asked today to consider whether Chief Justice F. G. Latchford of the Ontario Appeal Court had not disqualified himself from sitting on the bench in the Combs murder case appeal.

R. H. Greer, Council for Combs, said the Chief Justice admitted discussing the case with Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, the trial Judge, before hearing the appeal. He did not approach the appeal with an open mind.

Mr. Justice Latchford gave a dissenting opinion when the Appeal Court set Combs free after he had been sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Chevrier.

Bombings

(By The Canadian Press)

Canton—City bombed three times. Toll of dead: wounded over past nine days, totals 6,000.

Shanghai Admiral Nakumi Nomura says Japanese raids on Canton and Hankow Hill will continue "with even greater vigor."

Alicante — British freighter Thorehaven hit by insurgent bomb. Another British ship reported set on fire. These would be the fourth and fifth British ships hit during the past four days.

Hendaye—Dead in air raids along Mediterranean seaboard reach 132, including 78 at Alicante.

London—Anthony Eden and Swenson accept British invitations to serve on proposed commission to investigate bombings.

Pola—Premier Edouard Daladier of France confirms his independence of anti-aircraft defences along Pyrenees frontier.

Barcelona—Four persons killed and a number injured in new insurgent air attack.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford by Rose & Salisbury.

A sharp rally could easily develop in the market for the reason that the list is in a sold-out condition and a technical rebound is entirely likely. Many people, who are on the sidelines, are watching developments closely and will take on commitments on the first sign of a rally. The advance will take place when least expected.

A sustained market rise has to have for its foundation a sound business picture, although the advance will not carry through. At the moment, business is still somewhat clouded although a recovery could get under way shortly to discount the improvement that should ensue in the Fall. The market reflects pending September settlement a few months before the actual improvement is perceptible.

The buying in the senior golds is reported as emanating from London. A considerable advance has taken place in Kerr-Add in that market, due to a sensational strike in Wood Arthur. A portion of such profits, it would appear, is finding its way into the Canadian senior golds.

The Trader

The bear market, concordedly in its final phase for the past few months old, of more than average duration. Volume of trading in the aftermath seems reserved and dull as late weeks has been small, a characteristic of the gradual exhaustion of liquidation. Complete vulnerability to a severely adverse market may not be demonstrated until early summer, yet, in the face of the news of the day, the market was picking up 3000 shares of United States Steel (for an investment trust), and another 4000 shares of Kennecott Copper.

Near, absolutely to the universal rings, short selling was at the same time quite general with consequent congestion of offerings, for instance, in Steel and du Pont. All this at a time when potential buying in the form of cash reserves, virtually the equivalent of a short interest was probably never greater.

As "curtains" for business draws and earnings comparisons is unpessimism may well be in order while the market response to the flood of depressed industrial news and earnings comparisons is unemotionally studied.

Livestock

Toronto, June 6—Cattle trade was slow on the Toronto Livestock Market today with prices holding about steady with Monday's level. Calves, lambs and sheep were steady with a firmer tone indicated in the hog market. Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,500 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle 900; calves 600; hogs 1000; sheep and lambs 600.

Good quality cattle moved readily but the bulk of the offering was plain. A few good to choice steers brought $7 to $7.40 with plain drawn and to $6.25. Good to choice butcher steers were $6.85 to $7.25. Common to medium butcher cattle were not in demand, being offered at low prices ranging from $5.50 to $6.50.

Butcher cows sold at $3.50 for common, with good upward to $5. Canners and cutters sold from $2.25 to $3. Heavy export bulls were mostly $4.75, with bologna at $4 to $4.25. Choice veal calves were steady at $7.50 to $8 for good with a few tops at $8.50. Common to medium veelers sold as low as $5.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $10 to $10.25.

Spring lambs brought $13 for good quality, common ranging downward to $9. A few common feed lot lambs sold at $7 and good quality at $9. Good light sheep sold mostly at $4.25 and heavies at $3 to $3.50. Culls were mostly $2.

Montreal, June 7—(CP)—Prices moved firm to 25 cents per cwt. in the early trading on the Montreal livestock market today.

Receipts: Cattle, 79; calves 891; hogs 414; sheep and lambs 116.

Cattle: Good cows $3; medium $4-$4.75; common butchers $3; canners and cutters $2-$2.75.

Calves: good veals $7.50-$8; medium $6.50-$7; bulk $5.75-$6; drinkers $4.50-$5.

Hogs: Bacons fed and watered $10.75; selects dres $1 per hog premium with the usual cuts on lighter grades; sows $7-$8.25; hogs sold on rail grade $14.75.

Sheep and lambs: Spring lambs $12-$14; medium $12; sheep $4-$5.

KINSMEN PLAN KID-KAR DERBY TUES. JULY 5TH

Reports of a successful year's activities and the appointment of the various committees to carry out which the annual Kid-Kar Derby will be run featured the final meeting of the Autumn and Spring session of the Belleville Kinsmen Club held in the New Queens Hotel last night.

One hundred dollars was voted to the Rye Clinic for underprivileged children of the city and district under the supervision of Kinsmen Dr. Ralph Bird. Discussion on the possibility of raising funds to go to the National convention being held in Winnipeg in July was also held with suggestions that one hundred dollars be voted to defray expenses being brought forward by various members.

An enthusiastic acceptance to the challenge of the Belleville Kiwanis Club to indulge in a "battle of the desk" on the softball diamond in the near future was made by members present with Kinsmen Jerry Hurley being appointed manager of the Kinsmen team.

Tentative plans for the running of the third annual Kid-Kar Derby were laid down, and discussed. Various committees and chairmen were appointed to act in the many phases of activity that such a sporty event calls for. The Derby will be held on the same course as other years, on Tuesday evening July 5th.

An amusing feature of the meeting was the impromptu speech given by a member, who was forced to enlighten the members on the joys of early attained parenthood as a punishment for his tardiness.

The meeting was presided over by President Cleo Colling with Kinsman Orloff Lloyd acting as Sergt-re Arms and Kinsman Duff leading the singing.

Ab Adams contributed to the enjoyment of the evening with a well received piano selection.

Halton Jail Governor Suspended

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, announced today Frank McIlveen, Governor of Halton County Jail at Milton, had been suspended pending completion of an investigation into the disappearance of William Moore, Toronto. Calvin Fleming, turnkey at the jail, has been appointed acting jailer.

Mr. Neelands said Moore used a bar picked up in the prison yard to force two jail doors. The bar was used as a stake for a horse-shoe-pitching game. The Deputy Secretary said he was "not positive" Moore had accomplices in his escape.

LOCAL MERCHANTS TO STAY OPEN ON KING'S BIRTHDAY

Parking And Use of Colored Lighting System Come up For Discussion

R. J. WRAY PRESIDES

A general meeting of the Retail Merchants Association of Belleville was held Tuesday morning in the Y. M. C. A. parlors with a representative attendance. Vice-President R. J. Wray, occupied the chair, while Secretary W. J. Doyle read the minutes of previous meetings.

On the question of closing places of business on the King's Birthday, Thursday, June 9, no action was taken, hence there will be no observance of the day as a holiday and places of business will be open as usual.

Discussion of unemployment insurance was discussed in connection with advice received from the Retail Merchants Association of Ontario, and a resolution passed declaring the local body in favor of the suggested legislation as outlined but felt that it be passed on a fair and equitable foundation so affecting other merchants. Legislation along this line is expected in the near future and the parent body wishes to get the view of locals in order to protect their interests when the time comes.

Parking penalties again brought up some discussion and it was agreed that the police were busy marking cars in the morning when it was convenient, but were also as busy in the afternoon when open parking was in order on their business streets.

The matter of using the colored lighting system not used since Christmas was the subject of considerable discussion and it was made to the City Council on the subject. It was felt that this general illumination should be used nightly during the tourist season, as it is a big drawing convenience, and especially on Saturday evening during the summer as a means of increasing business in Bellville.

William Hurst, representing the Kinsmen's Club, asked for the cooperation of the Retail Board in the making of the Kiddie Kar Derby, July 5, a great success. The event will be held in the afternoon of Tuesday, July 5. He was assured that the merchants would co-operate with the Kinsmen in every way possible to make the Kiddie Kar Derby a success.

A number of other questions concerning the welfare of Belleville businessmen and the interest of the public generally were taken up, fully discussed and appropriate action taken.

Wedding Ceremony Performed on Date Of 55th Anniversary

Memory bridged a gap of fifty-five years last night as a silver-haired groom kissed the face of his bride, albeit it a blushing one whose twinkling eyes reflected the joyousness of the occasion, to an imaginary altar while the words of the marriage service, the same as those made them one nearly three score years ago were read to their ears.

For in the presence of over one hundred neighbors and friends of whom came from the far-flung corners of the province to mark the anniversary of their wedding, reiterated that the couple they had met that memorable occasion in the home of Mrs. Rebecca Jane Ashley, John Robinson, years ago. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. A. Hunter, minister of the Presbyterian Church, Madoc, while attending the groom was Mr. Samuel Haggerty, "best man" at the original wedding, with Miss Ada Corrigal acting as bridesmaid. The bride was given away by Mr. Ashley with little Miss Ruth Thomson acting as flower-girl.

Following the ceremony addresses were given during the evening by Mr. Thomas Wallace, Sam Rolling, Mrs. Albert Beatty and Mrs. J. C. Gilks. Included in the splendid program that followed were solos by Margrey Haggerty and Frank Pallister and a duet by the Misses Evelyn and June Sills of Roslin.

A feature of the affair was the reading of a brief address from members of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, of which Mr. and Mrs. Ashley are devoted members, that brought hearty wishes for continuation of a happy mutual life. A delicious luncheon served near midnight brought an end to a delightful affair.

BORN IN HASTINGS COUNTY

Detroit, June 7 (AP)—Frederick H. McKinney, Jr., Director of Advertising and Sales Promotion of the Detroit Edison Car Company, died today at his home in Birmingham. Mr. McKinney had been ill four months.

Well known in the automotive industry since its early days, he was born in Hastings County, Ontario, he studied law at the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin.

Good taste will dictate just what type of figure should wear the very sculptured strapless gown. A dark girl would look ravishing in such a model, while white jersey suits into beautiful folds. A gold kidskin belt is the only touch of trimming.

PEACOCK FIGHTS REFLECTION IN MIRROR

Philadelphia, June 7 (AP)—A peacock at the Zoo was the aggressor in a half-hour fight, but he never had a chance. He fought his image in a mirror attached to a penny scale. With wings ruffled and neck arched, he charged again and again. Finally a keeper draped the mirror with canvas.

THIEVES DISCOURAGE SPORTING GOODS STORE KEEPER

Chilton, June 7 (AP)—When the window of a sporting goods store was smashed three times and merchandise valued at $750 stolen, Karl W. Keefer, the manager, had an idea. Instead of merchandise, Keefer posted signs in the window. They informed passersby it is no use to put goods in the window because of brick-wielding thieves.

SUPERSTITIOUS NEGROES PLEA FOR DATE CRIMINAL

New York, June 7 (AP)—A defendant's right to invoke a superstitious plea was denied in Federal Court yesterday.

Martin Bird, 47-year-old negro and his wife Odessa, trembled when Judge Clarence G. Galston told them they had been found guilty on charges of possessing 158 gallons of whiskey.

"Please Your Honor," begged Dyer, "just for the sake, it's always unlucky for me."

"June 14," compiled the Judge.

PLEADS GUILTY TO FOUR CHARGES

Joseph Brant Will Serve 21 Days in County Jail

After pleading guilty to four charges preferred under the Highway Act, fines and costs totalling $34.75 were imposed against Joseph Brant, Shannonville motorist, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's local police court. In addition Brant was sentenced to serve 21 days in the common jail following a conviction of drunken driving and his automobile was impounded for a period of three months.

Hobbling to the prisoner's docket with his face and head bandaged, as the result of a motor accident on Sunday night, Brant admitted each charge as it was read before him. As the result of his driving, the male 40 remain outside the iron bars for nearly 30-minutes at a time. .

driving count a fine of $15.00 and costs and $11.75 costs and for failing to produce his driver's license two dollars and costs were imposed. In default of payment of each fine a 15 day sentence was imposed in each case, to run consecutive with the initial 21 days imposed for drunken driving.

When Mr. Worship ordered Brant's car impounded for a period of three months, Motorcycle Patrolman Ian Bryine, who performed the multiple charges announced when the first fine and sentence had been imposed by a local court order following convictions under the M.T.A.

Brant was in apparent pain, due to the severe bandaging about his head during the accident and was permitted to remain seated during the trial.

PRINCE COLONNA WILL BE WEDDED

Italian Vice Consul at Toronto to Marry Miss Conus

New York, June 7 (AP) — The Italian Consul General's office announced today that Prince Don Guido Colonna di Paliano, Italian Vice-consul at Toronto, would be married here tomorrow to Miss Marjana Conus, Moscow-born daughter of the late Russian violinist and composer.

The news, greatly agitated at published reports that his romance almost was wrecked by his fiancee's lack of a birth certificate, promptly about the consul general's office. The announcement was being prepared.

He refused to comment on another report that the wedding date had been twice postponed because Prince Don Guido's mother, Princess Galeazzo Ciano, withheld approval of the match.

Last Saturday King Victor Emanuel heard of the affair when he received Miss Conus, now on a visit to Africa, the New York Daily News reported in a Rome dispatch.

Efforts to question the prince on this point brought only violent gestures.

The ceremony will be performed at the Church of Transfiguration. Today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conus, 30 Gramercy.

Miss Conus, whose mother was the Princess Mary Lieven, was educated in France, Italy and England.

Prince Colonna formerly was vice-consul at Rome. After the honeymoon the prince and his bride will live in Toronto.

FLOODS THREATEN ARMIES IN CHINA

Yellow River Overflows Dikes in Vicinity of Kaifeng

Shanghai, June 7 (AP)—Yellow River floods there tensed today to critical stage, inundating 1,000 square fields as Japanese Army, beginning the 11th month of the war, forged deeper into the heart of China.

Chinese dispatches from Chengchow said the river was overflowing dikes in the vicinity of Kaifeng and Hsinfeng, where Japan's heavy land forces are concentrated along the Lunghai Railroad. There are 200,000 Japanese troops massed at Kaifeng.

These dispatches said inundation of the countryside in the path of Japan's westward drive toward Hankow, China's provisional capital, probably would impede military operations.

The Japanese, pushing inland along the Lunghai, captured Changmow, and then claimed to have smashed to within 13 miles of Chengchow, junction of the line with the north-south Peiping-Hankow Railroad.

U.S. SOCIALIST LEADER "EGGED" OUT

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, screws up his face as an egg splatters off his head during his attempt to address a milling crowd of 4,000 in Military Park, Newark, N.J. Before he quid utter more than a dozen words, a parade of nearly 200 men, led by a band of 30 pieces, appeared on a side street and bore down on the platform from which Thomas attempted to speak. Suddenly somebody hurled an egg which landed on Thomas' head. Instantly hundreds of eggs, cucumbers and ripe tomatoes filled the air. Thomas was rushed away by police. He was the recent storm centre of a street meeting in Jersey City when he was allegedly "kidnapped" and escorted out of town for attempting to address a public gathering.

WAR'S NEW PHASE

Japanese and Spanish bombing of civilians has been holding the stage in the war news with horrible details of the sufferings and slaughter among the civilians who are the victims. For a long time there has been an innate fear that poison gas would be used, but we are again about to make an effort to bring to an end the attacks on centres of population, which are not important in a military way. With what success remains to be shown as there have been many disappointments in the war in Spain, when so many peace efforts have apparently failed, except in keeping general peace.

The nations at war today realize with the long range of airplanes that they have a very powerful weapon for effect upon the people who are not soldiers but are backing up the soldiers with food and equipment and furnishing the sinews of war.

War is now not war to defeat the armies of the enemy only, but also to destroy its reserves of people, who are not in the army but the real support of the active forces.

This has turned the whole character of war. It will be different from now on. Both France and Britain have completed plans for evacuation of millions of citizens from their capitals in event of an air bombardment.

This marks the new era when there is war on the people behind the lines, the object being to spread terror and break down morale, and to weaken the force at work keeping the front line intact.

The use of the airplane has made possible a roving portion of forces, more like the navy than before. It offers a new factor to the army lending it a flexibility which the old time army lacked.

It is a big task the nations have in hand to limit the savagery of war, as it applies to attacks on civilians. The United States the other day came out with a project to accomplish this very thing. Nations will sincerely hope such plans will succeed. But the success of the bloody attacks on civilians may impress peacemakers so that they will be loath to let them go because of their very effectiveness. Or it may be that it will make war so terrible that not even a warlike nation will want to sacrifice its people or submit them to the possible ravaging by planes.

WOOL AND EMPIRE TRADE

Manchester Guardian Commercial has issued a special wool number in connection with the Empire Exhibition in Glasgow. The importance of the wool industry to Britain is clearly shown in this supplement. Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald and Rt. Hon. Oliver Stanley, M.C., have both written forewords to this issue. Mr. MacDonald refers to research in development of the uses of wool and the stimulation of its production. Mr. Oliver, president of the Board of Trade, refers to the wool textile industry as one of the oldest industries in the Old Country and one "so intricately bound up with our history" and refers to the enterprise and resourse of the manufactures in the face of the restricted demand, to expand their markets. Mr. Stanley says: "It is largely on these factors (enterprise of manufacturers) that the pre-eminent position of our wool textile industry must continue to depend, particularly on the export trade, the prosperity of which is of the most important interest both to the country and to those of the Dominions who find here a market for their wool."

The British wool industry has been so essential a part of the whole economy of the British Islands from the Middle Ages. How British trade has been built up from the early days is told in this supplement. No industry does so frequently shaped the course of English political, no less than economic, history. From the beginning of the Hundred Years' War, when, in the world of Michelet, the historian—"the king (Edward III) had to stake his succession to the French throne; his people's liberty of commerce and free trade for their wool "through the Tudor period, when Cardinal Wolsey chose an alliance with the Emperor Charles of Spain rather than with France to maintain the English wool trade with the Low Countries, wool has been recognized as vital to the country's prosperity."

Until the middle of the 19th. century, Britain was not only the Empire premier wool manufacturing country, but also the source of the wool on which the industry was founded. Great as was the industry in the past, it is more important today and affects not only the security and prosperity of Britain alone but, more than any other factor those of the various Empire Dominions. It is the interdependence of the economy of the United Kingdom which cannot be exaggerated.

The progress of Australian wool industry is shown in the triumph of the individual breeder who has raised the weight of the pelt from an average of 4 pounds in the 1870 to an average of seven pounds in the ten years from 1900 to 1909 and to 8.2 pounds for the years 1927-36.

The English sheep was a domestic animal in Britain long before the Roman occupation and it is probable that use was made of its skin and wool. The English sheep of the Middle Ages were the forerunner of the present-day world renowned long and lustrous wool types.

FUNERALS, GENERALLY SIMPLE, SOLEMN AND DIGNIFIED, may be carried out on a grand scale as witness the obsequies of one, Edward J. Stotesbury, one of the big financiers of the New York, Wall Street, Philadelphia area, a partner in the J. Pierpont Morgan and Drexel firms. Full of years, and great riches Edward J. Stotesbury died and his funeral program was in keeping with the grandest of Wall Street scales. Services were held at the family estate, Whitemarsh Hall near Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. About 300 friends and relatives attended the brief service around the coffin placed in the centre of the reception hall, on the first floor of the mansion. A press despatch tells us that the coffin was covered with a blanket of gardenias and violets, while a basket of lilies stood on either side. Red roses wreathed a recently completed bust of Mr. Stotesbury, as well as a large oil portrait which hung in the hall. Five hundred trucks were required to carry the floral tributes, chief among which was an immense wreath of orchids, lilies and roses, sent by J. P. Morgan. Not an electric light burned in the house which was illuminated with candles, hundreds of them, burning in every possible nook and corner and in the huge chandelier hung over the coffin, while the windows were darkened. Symbolizing the favorite hobby of the dead financier a trap drum draped with black crepe and a small silk flag hung from the foot of the bier. Following the brief religious service which included no eulogy the cortege escorted by motorcycle guards passed thru Fairmont Park (by special permission) en route to the cemetery where a squad of city police kept sightseers at bay, while a canopy covered the entire Stotesbury plot and covered the relatives attending. A military salute was fired over the grave by a detachment of militiamen and taps sounded by the bugler of the Post. Then the coffin was lowered in the grave beside that of the first wife of the deceased who died in 1881. Dust to dust, ashes to ashes.

POLITICIANS HAVE BEEN RUNNING the City of Waterbury, Connecticut, where for years the Democratic machine has handled millions in money dragged from the taxpayer. Recently a Republican was elected to high office in the civic administration of Waterbury and did he uncover ways that were dark and tricks that were vile? The result: A 20,000 word report from the Grand Jury investigating which charged that millions of dollars of Waterbury money had been spent illegally since 1930. The evidence issued by the Grand Jury for fraud of Lieut.-Governor Hoyes, ex-Comptroller Leary, whose defeat by 33 votes caused the exposure, twenty-four of their associates including state officers, several state senators and prominent councilmen" charged included cashing unnumbered city checks, spending city funds without vouchers, splitting fees with contractors for imaginary services, bribing state legislators (notably) to get a law passed requiring the use in public toilets of sterilization equipment in which Lieut.-Governor Hayes and associates were interested. In the upheaval Republicans as well as Democrats were involved. All of which goes to show how dangerous politics can be when applied to civic affairs. Eternal vigilance, as always, is the price of safety.

QUITE RIGHT

The law professor was doing his best to instil a little knowledge of the subject into a collection of rather backward students.

One morning he gave them a long lecture on the whole question of making a will, and at the end of it he thought he would test their memories.

"Now, then," he said. "What are the essentials to a last will and testament?"

Nobody answered for a moment; and then a student at the back of the class spoke up.

"A dead person and some money, sir," he hazarded.

CHINA'S CONQUEST

Few observers eleven months ago would have dared forecast the astounding success that has since befallen Abend in his series of eyewitness reports from China, the second of which is published in THE TIMES today. It was expected that, if better-equipped and better-disciplined Japanese armies would win victories, and they have done so. The fighting which led to the capture of Nanking during the first months of the war went more or less according to schedule. The recent capture of Suchow, allowed by an advance of eighty-five miles westward and to the south of Kweisieh, indicates that the Japanese can capture objectives when they concentrate their guns and men. It would not be surprising if they got to Chengchow and later to Hankow.

But the point which Mr. Abend makes, after a journey in Manchukuo and North China, including an airplane flight of 1,000 miles between Tientsin and Peiping, is that the Japanese "conquest," even in "occupied" territory, remains incomplete.

"The Japanese mandate," he finds, "rarely runs beyond the range of the machine guns mounted on lillas operate in the outskirts of captured cities, even entering the city at night. Railways are cut, bridges destroyed. The invaders dare not venture into open country. Martial law in force, and rarely after dark. The seriousness of the situation, from the Japanese point of view, is shown by the recent mass transfers of reserve troops southward from Manchukuo into North China.

Famine may do what fighting cannot. In Hopeh Province, with a normal population of 30,000,000, flood conditions and the abandonment of farms have cut off the food supply of a people who never had more than enough to live on. The unused largely by war will not breed love for the conquerors in a country where, in the past, the conditions produced by the Japanese occupation have been responsible, to the foreign capital Japan needs if she is to trade and develop her future conquests.

We are perhaps seeing the utter folly of a war of aggression demonstrated on a gigantic scale. We may even be seeing the beginning of the end of Japan as a world power. If the Japanese statesmen and generals are familiar with European history, they may recall that Napoleon once "conquered" a good part of Russia.—New York Times.

Patients Should Tell the Physician If They are Using Heart Tonics

A patient consulted a physician about his heart as the beat was fast, and he was getting out of breath easily. As it was before the day of the electrocardiograph the physician outlined the size of the heart and found a murmur indicating a leaking valve, but the heart was beating regularly and only a little faster than normal. After having the patient take some exercise it was found that the heart beat was not unduly fast and came back to its normal rate before leaving the exercise within two minutes. On these findings the physician advised a walk of a half mile twice daily and other light exercise and started the patient on digitalis in a month.

When the patient returned he found that the heart was the same, but irregular, and the reaction to exercise was not good as on his previous visit. He informed the patient that his heart was not doing as good work as on his previous visit and that he would have to forbid him to take exercise until further notice. He then told the patient that the digitalis was a tonic and other light exercise and started him

GRADUATES FACE STIFF PROBLEM SEEKING A JOB

How Applicant For Employment Looks to "Man Behind The Desk"

AFTER SCHOOL WHAT?

"How' to Make a Good Start in Life" From Employer's Standpoint

Warmly welcomed after seven months' sport in Florida, Past President (1934-1935) C. M. Reid, was present at the weekly meeting of Belleville Rotary Club, Monday, in the Hotel Quinte. For the past seven years Mr. Reid has been spending his winters at St. Petersburg, Florida. He brought Rotary greetings from the South and said that many Canadians attended the meetings of the Rotary Club at St. Petersburg, which has a nominal membership of 80, but the attendance from January to March often tops 300.

"How to Get a Start in Life," was the subject of an interesting talk by Frank Correll, manager of the Canadian Department Stores, Belleville branch. He based his remarks upon an article in the Saturday Evening Post of February 5th, by Fitkin referring to the many young people who will be soon leaving their farewell school and college life and facing the business world. Mr. Correll related incidents from his own experience interviewing applicants for employment. His own impression was that many graduates lacked self-confidence and initiative, two qualities most needed in getting the right start in life. Whether this was the result of the long strain of continuous study and complete segregation from the world of business or other causes the speaker was not prepared to say, but this was a serious handicap to young people so affected in getting a start in life. Another handicap equally serious was the over-confident attitude of the "know-it-all" variety which led to painful awakenings. Instances were given by Mr. Correll of his approach to several young people and their experiences in the business world, successful and otherwise. One young man worked his way across the ocean on a cattle boat and found a position two days after he landed in England. He didn't wait for the job to come to him, he went to it. The old-time apprenticeship system which has been largely discarded in the modern business world had much to recommend it. Those boys who have "served their time" still think of it as the best system. Mr. Correll's talk was apt and interesting as giving the impression of the man behind the desk as he looks at the young people seeking employment. "How to Get a Start in Life" means at the very beginning that the applicant for employment must "sell" himself to the prospective employer, make a good impression, and rely upon himself or herself rather than the presence of parents or the influence of relatives or friends in high places. The ability to "sell" themselves as prospective valuable employees should be followed by a diligent study and practise of business requirements and good business technique in making themselves worthy of the confidence reposed in them as the result of a good preliminary approach.

Other speakers included Charlie McGuire, Arthur Hurtil, Deacon and Wilfrid Holmes—all in all

By-law to Pay Commissioners Not Reported to the Council After Reading in Committee

Certain Classes of Fire Department Given Slight Increase

ROUTINE BUSINESS

East Moira Street Oiling Question Again Referred Back

A by-law to fix the salary of the Utilities Commissioners was not reported to council after being discussed in the committee of the whole while the by-law fixing an agreement between the Corporation and Bert Zebedee for the collection of garbage for the ensuing year was referred back to the committee when it was found it did not contain the clauses requested by the council, were the principal items of business at the regular meeting of the city council held last evening. It was decided to hold a special meeting of the council on June 14 at which time the estimates for the coming year will be considered and the tenders for the new fire hall will be opened and considered. The estimates will likely be passed and the rate struck at the regular meeting in two weeks' time.

With regret the resignation of Alderman Raymond Carr was accepted by the council and the clerk was authorized to forward to Mr. Carr at London a recommendation moved by Alderman Wills, in which he expressed the regret felt at his leaving the council and the appreciation of his services during the ten years he has been a member of the body. Mayor Bone stated that Alderman Carr was the first councillor to move in the council chamber the removal of Mr. Carr from the city and that he was a very efficient Alderman. Alderman Wills, seconded by Alderman Jennings, who was chairman of the committee of the whole, stated that in all his contacts with Mr. Carr he always found him a gentleman and a very efficient councillor. Alderman Carr expressed his pleasure for the ten years spent at the council members and was sorry that such an action had to be taken. He wished for the council and the citizens every success in the coming years.

Speaks To Motion.

When the by-law to fix the salary of the Utilities Commissioners was tabled in committee, Alderman Jennings only got to the first clause when Alderman Haig asked permission to speak to the by-law. "I am firmly of the opinion that public servants should be paid remuneration for their services but I think the time is most inopportune to bring this by-law to the council for decision," said Alderman Haig. "We had an example of the needs of the people here the other night, when a large number of those on relief appeared asking for more assistance and here I want to congratulate the Chairman of Welfare for his handling of the situation for there might have been serious trouble. We have a number on relief in the city at the present time and the taxpayer is complaining of the high rate of taxation and with the high hope for a reduction of the rate this year but that is not sufficient for the council to take this action. I think at the present time that the by-law is unfair, unnecessary and untimely and would move that it be not reported to council."

Alderman Wills: "At the present time I am opposing this measure for as I said on a previous occasion it would mean a definite change of policy which has existed in this city for a great number of years. I will not say that this by-law is unreasonable for in some municipalities the commissioners are paid but I would move that the question of paying the commissioners be referred in a question for an expression of opinion of the ratepayers at the next municipal election." The motion was put under the heading of motions later in the meeting and was passed unanimously. Alderman Baragar also stated that he thought public servants should be paid for their services but it must be remembered the money comes from the people whether the Hydro, City or Utilities pay out the money. The Alderman wished also to have incorporated an expression of opinion on the question of paying the Aldermen and of this likely will be moved at the next regular meeting.

Increases Given.

Firemen of certain class and the assistant fire chief were given increases of salary through a recommendation of Alderman Laurie Leslie, Chairman of Fire. Third year class A men were given a 4c increase per month, the lieutenant was given an increase of $5 per month, one captain was given $5 per month and the assistant fire chief was given $15 per month. Mayor Bone in speaking to the recommendation stated that one citizen had complained of the increase claiming the men were now well paid and that the increase in the fire department time making both ends meet.

Alderman Carr stated that not really over the whole department but only in the various places where meritorious service. There are three classes in the fire department, A, B and C, and only the class A men are being increased."

Oiling Question Raised

Alderman Bariaw. "The fire department in this city is singularly clausted because if the Underwriters insisted on the full complement for this department we would need eight more men but all the men now employed are on duty for the full 24 hours we are allowed to work on that system. The firemen are always ready to render assistance for any cause and they deserve the increase because it has been long overdue." Besides increasing the salaries in some instances an order in pursuance to by-laws with creat was passed McIntosh Brothers were the successful tenderers. The estimates for the Fire Department were received by the council and referred to the committee on estimates.

The question of refund to ratepayers on East Moira Street for oiling done in 1933 was again referred to the committee for their consideration after a lengthy discussion took place between Mr. Price, appearing for the ratepayers and the members of the council. The discussion was somewhat of technical nature with regards to points of law and the council felt it could better consider the whole question in committee. Alderman Logan pointed out however that the ratepayers be given 30 per cent rebate on their oiling charges of that year but Alderman Haig moved an amendment to have the matter referred back and the amendment carried. When the ratepayers appeared before the Board of Revision, the question of jurisdiction was raised and the Court of Revision decided they could not consider the matter. A suggestion was made for the ratepayers to go to arbitration before a County Judge with his decision to be final. The whole point in discussion is whether a good job was done, when the street was oiled. Some members claimed the department did all in their power despite it was the first time that the city had ever had any work of their own equipment, while other members claimed the job was not satisfactory according to all the evidence that had been given.

STREETS TO BE OILED

The special committee on oiling streets met Monday, June 2nd, 1938.

His Worship Mayor Bone and Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville.
Gentlemen,—

Your Street Oiling Committee beg to report that on Friday, May 27th, we inspected all the streets within the limits of the City of Belleville and found same to be in a reasonable condition.

In view of the fact that the Department of Works will be able to spent a considerable amount of construction and road improvements on various streets, we strongly recommend that the streets as set out in the schedule be oiled this year, in order to preserve the foundations of the said streets and to provide a suitable waterproof wearing surface for present day traffic.

This Committee also recommend that the following resolution be passed to plate Victoria Avenue and West Bridge Street as the regular street cleaning list, so that the machine will be kept busy and flushed the same as other paved residential streets.

C. B. Farnham, Chairman of Public Works; J. W. Barlow, Chairman of Water Works; Jas. Ellis, Chairman of Industries; B. F. Jennings, Chairman of Electrical Planning; Charles A. Mott, City Engineer.

SIMS BIG SHOWS ARRIVE IN TOWN FOR WEEK'S STAY

Beaches Association Sponsors Week's Engagement Under Auspices of Bayside Park Plans—Glitter, Glamour, Pleasure, Marvels Among Appeals of Exposition.

Keen favorites of the show loving public and producing an entertainment that is second to none in variety and general entertaining attractions surpasses anything of its kind shown in the city, the famous Sims Greater Exposition Shows opened a week's engagement on the Cricket Field last night.

Sponsored by the Quinte Bay Beaches Association, the shows attracted a large crowd in its inaugural night, featured by an official opening by His Worship Mayor Bone and Mayor Arthur Meighen of Toronto, Manager Moncrieff, members of the association executive. Prior to the opening ceremonies the Belleville Collegiate Institute Band paraded through the grounds to the music of their own inspiring marches.

The Beaches Undertaking.

Introduced by Mr. Moncrieff, Mayor Bone briefly addressed the crowd, pointing out the many advantages to be gained, and the value to the city and community of the Beaches project. He urged everyone to attend the splendid entertainment being provided by the Sims Shows and in this way materially assist in the furtherance of the work of the Beaches Association in providing for the city a splendid beach with modern facilities.

The glitter and glamor of whirling lights and the square dances of the "barkers" calling out their wares, the scent of sizzling hot dogs, the whirring wheels of booth attractions and the air of mystery that generally prevails in Church, Dufferin, Bridge to Queen, Foster, West Victoria to Pine # side. midway, all combine to make the one hundred and one features that are part and parcel of the Sims Shows, but most of their former attractiveness last night as a large crowd wended its way through brilliantly lighted natural aisles.

Attractions Galore.

Merry-go-round, ferris wheel, tilt-a-whirls, merry-mixups, kiddies auto rides and the ever popular caterpillar whirling in a blaze of colored lights drew great attention and patronage of the pleasure seeking populace.

Headlining an outstanding list of feature attractions is Howard, the Lobster Boy, who has recently performed like the claws of a lobster in his strange feat of nature is natural in every other way. Seen last night in his tank, this young phenomenon showed an unusually anatomical structure of hands and feet of tremendous size. Existing a year in the flesh and blood claws of his right hand by which he gained his name. He shook hands with a grip that would do justice to a wrestler. And furthermore he is the proud father of a baby that is perfectly natural in every detail.

Some of the Wonders.

Snakes, crocodiles and other amphibians feature Jungleland. Prof. Burkhardt, formerly with Ringling's Circus mystifies and entertains with clever magic. A clever reproduction of the "electric chair and its victim" thrills and chills, with its realism, among other attractions of the "World's Fair."

The European Mystery Show, featuring the "strongest woman in the world, and Scenth Signal, Finland's Houdini, the Showboat, the House of 1,000 Thrills, and Pennyland, round out an entertaining collection of attractions.

An all-Canadian show, the Sims Exposition, originated in this province by Manager Moncrieff, a member of Belleville's unemployed, in keeping with the policy of Premier Fred Sims to engage labor in the various places in which he offers his entertainments.

The above is a fleet of Ford V8 trucks recently purchased by Canadian Automotive from Trudeau Motor Sales of Belleville to be used chiefly in Prince Edward County. This increases their Ford fleet to over 30 units.

INSPECTOR IMPOUNDS 3 MILES OF NET

Inspector Herb McCabe of the Department of Game and Fisheries, today announced he had confiscated three miles of fishing nets and 300 pounds of fish, which were being illegally used in Consecon Lake, Prontenac County recently. Three residents of that district will be summoned to court, Inspector McCabe stated today. In the meantime the fish and nets are impounded by the Department. The matter will be heard in Kingston police court.

He has also just been made a corresponding member of the Royal Medical Society of Budapest, Hungary.

Weddings

ROONEY—PENNEY

Madoc (Special)—A lovely summer wedding was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, when Mary Zeta Penney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Penney became the bride of Carmel J. Rooney of Richmond. Rev. J. S. Feeney of Wolfe Island, cousin of the bride, officiated, assisted by Rev. D. Hyland.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Fred Penney, Jr., wore a floor-length gown of shell pink taffeta, sleeves puffed to the Empire style, and full skirt with tiny button trim. A matching short-the-face veil with short veil was worn. Her bouquet was Sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Clara Penney was her sister's bridesmaid, gowned in a floor length taffeta with full skirt of same shade. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Miss Kathleen Penney, niece of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in delicate yellow with matching hat; she carried a queen's bouquet of sweet peas and roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Ed Rooney, of Richmond.

The altar was tastefully decorated with spires and iris. Mrs. Chas. Stockheer presided at the organ and during the Offertory Mrs. Fred Merkw sang Schubert's "Ave Maria."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after which the couple left for a motor trip to Quebec. For travelling, the bride chose a seal jacket with navy dress and accessories in British tan.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Ann Rooney, Richmond; Miss Veronica Rooney, Kingston; Mrs. Ethel Feeney, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. B. Cadiery, Deloro.

Up goes the thermometer and on go cool play suits. A nice three-piece costume, with sleeveless shirt, jacket, and pleated shorts, is done in seersucker striped in brown, luggage tan and white.

Parents Encourage Poor Pupil

Praised for Success, Never Compared to Student Sister

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

YOU AND I can learn much from the successes of others, especially as we know something of their struggling leading to the victories. A mother writes:

Dear Dr. Myers: I hope that my children's school history might bring encouragement to parents whose children get poor grades, and also brighten the child's life. I've two older children, a girl and her younger brother were like the nine-year-old boy and his elder sister mentioned in your article tonight: she a splendid student and he always average or below. We never led him to believe that we were satisfied with his grades, but we did bring to light his good points and praised him for the things he did accomplish. Worthy praise to children is what wages and salary are to the grown-up.

"Often, too, co-operation with the child's teacher to help him with the things he does not quite grasp, will bring a big improvement in only a short time. This should be done with the first sign of disagreement, not let go from week to week and month to month until the child is utterly bewildered. Down in the fourth grade our boy came home at noon one day saying that he wasn't going back to school. Everything was wrong; teacher wasn't any good; old arithmetic wasn't any good either. So as soon as lunch was over, I went back to school with him and asked his teacher if she knew what the trouble was. A few minutes of her time to explain the arithmetic problem straightened things out for him.

"All through their school life sister had the excellent grades, younger boy the personality and school honors other than scholastic. Now they are grown to young womanhood and young manhood, each fine in his or her own way. She still is book-minded and he hand-minded.

Not All Alike

"What an uninteresting and futile world this would be if all were alike! And what human would a parrot or rubber stamp for offspring? We can be thankful when each child shows individuality. I know a brilliant artist who admits he was the prize dumb-bell in grade school; I know a fine young musician whose mother was completely discouraged about his school work. It seems that we should help each child to find himself." Isn't that a fine contribution?

I wish every one of us parents and teachers could make as one of our mottos: "Celebrate successes in the child." And we parents might well also celebrate successes in each other. My wife says the best things I have written in a little pamphlet entitled, "Education of Young Children Through Celebrating Their Successes". It may be had by sending 5 cents to the superintendent of public documents, Washington, D. C. I really got the ideas in the first place from her and the co-operation of our children. But that is not the reason she says it is BEST.

Smart Clothes Seen at the Races

TRIMNESS NOTED IN SUITS WORN AT TRACK

Left, polka dotted silk surah dress with cutaway jacket; right, off-white silk faille suit with long coat; trimmed in match satin.

By LISKETH

I SOMETIMES think it is a very variable season — that no rules hold good. But maybe it is the same as others, and the many springs I see are no more numerous than in former years.

I was prating the other day of lower necklines being one of the important new trends, but as I look about me at the well-dressed throngs I almost doubt my own statement. Necklines seem all to be high.

Of course the answer is that necklines continue high, but lower necklines are being introduced here and there. The high lines have a new look, and the lower line, are definitely fresh looking. The rage tracks are the places to see smart daytime fashions. Women consciously dress to be seen as well as to see. Neatness characterizes costumes worn there to a trimness that is very refreshing. To prove which statement you have only to look at the two costumes which are used to illustrate this article.

On our left we have the popular polka dot in a silk surah dress in navy with white topped by a chic little cutaway jacket of the same material. The navy of white under the chin, and the wide-brimmed hat trimmed and lined with silk matching the suit, are clever details as is the twin blue and white kid bag, one handle clasping both—very new

Black Sandals Chosen

Plaids enter right into the spirit of the "spice of kings", somehow. You'll see many of them at the tracks worn by well - dressed women. Right, is an off-white silk faille suit with a full-length coat and matching skirt. The shirt is plaid silk jersey, with a hankie that picks up the shirt colors, and a Chinese coolie hat that has a drape and long streamer of the plaid.

Treless black sandals are worn with both suits, white gloves with one and black with the other.

While long jackets and bolero types are being worn everywhere at the tracks, the cape is not being neglected. A navy sheer wool suit with short cape was one of the smartest of the many suits noticed, and with it was worn a striped overblouse in navy and white — emphasizing the present interest in stripes.

Physician Makes Test Of Vision

Studies the Eyesight of Human Babies and Animals

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A BABY that lies in its crib and rolls its wise-looking little eyes from side to side, appears to be observing this new-found world, but it distinguishes at first nothing but light and darkness Later, objects, and only after some time, distinct focusing of objects.

Our idea about a pet animal's world are also likely to be distorted. We assume that his sensory world of vision and hearing is like ours, but it is probably quite different, and the wild animal's world even more so.

Dr. John Warkentin, a young scientist at the University of Rochester, has been testing animal vision as a preliminary to a study of infant vision.

His apparatus consists of a vertical hollow cylinder, five feet high and four in diameter, on the inside of which are vertical black and white stripes ranging from five inches down to one-sixteenth of an inch. If an animal placed inside the cylinder makes eye or head movements following the rotation of the cylinder it is assumed that it can see the stripes, and the narrower the stripe perceived, the sharper the vision is assumed to be. Through the use of these tests it was found that:

Animals With Poor Vision

White rats, white mice, and Gila monsters have extremely poor vision. Frogs, toads, alligators and opossums have poor vision. Snakes, contrary to popular supposition, have good vision. Those tested included garter snakes, king snakes, ribbon snakes and rattlesnakes. Their vision is poorest just before shedding their skins and best just after shedding. Contrast the snake's cornea grows opaque at shedding time nears and is sloughed off with the skin. Turtles, woodchucks, guinea pigs, rabbits and gophers have good eyesight. Cats and birds see best of all.

Guinea pigs and dogs vary greatly from one individual to another. Monkeys could not be tested because they keep rotating curiously over the cylinder's top. Wild rabbits are better than tame rabbits; normally pigmented creatures are better than albinos.

We will be anticipating, Dr. Warkentin's report of his work on the vision of human infants.

THAT PERFECT FIGURE IS MADE, NOT BORN

Exercises Are Essential to Control Shape

The cameraman caught Rita Johnson while she was practicing her waistline routine.

By JUILET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

"PERFECT FIGURES are made, not born. Even if you are the athletic type who gets plenty of exercise on the golf links or tennis courts it is a very good idea to become a member of the nearest daily evening exercise group.

Home exercises are absolutely essential if you want to control your figure. Because with a few minutes "one-two-three-four" morning or evening you can have exactly the sort of figure you want. So make up your mind to leap out of bed and plunge into health building and weight distributing exercise routine.

Rita Johnson, slim young Hollywood starlet, though she is an accomplished horsewoman, has become the latest recruit in the morning exercise brigade. Since slim waists are so necessary for wearing this year's clothes, she has added the following trim waist reducing movements to her morning workout:

First, stand erect, with your arms extended straight over your head. Bend forward from your waist, with your knees straight, and touch your fingers to the floor. Now resume your original position, repeat this about five times. Breathe in deeply as your arms go up and exhale as your hands come down to touch your toes.

Second, stand erect with your feet slightly apart and your arms extended to shoulder level at the sides. Bend from your waist, keeping your knees straight, and touch the fingers of your right hand to the outside of your left heel. Then resume your original position and touch the fingers of your left hand to the outside of your right heel. Inhale as your arms reach shoulder level and exhale as you bend to touch your heel. Do this ten times, alternating.

Third stand erect with your hands on your hips. Rotate your body from the waist, bending it to the right as far as possible, then to the back, then to the left and last of all to the front. Repeating this exercise remember to breathe deeply and exhale just as you did in the other two.

Always Include Breathing

In all these exercises it is most important to include the breathing. Stand in a room near an open window where you can get plenty of fresh air. The combination of exercises and breathing will make the blood course through your veins, carrying away waste matter and purifying the body. The increased circulation and exercise will burn up the fatty deposits throughout your body and will hasten reducing.

Don't neglect your waistline routine at first or you will feel sore and stiff the next day. After you have limbered your body and conditioned it to the exercise you can gradually increase the number of times that you do each movement. You'll be behind the times if you let your waist tell your age, so start counting your way to a perfect figure and you'll make your figure count.

Dowry of $500,000

She received half of her dowry immediately, according to Moslem custom. The other $250,000 will be retained by her husband, that is, as long as the marriage remains undissolved.

Girl Weds Not Loving Her Mate

Being Unhappy, She Left, Hubby Won't Give Divorce

By VIRGINIA LEE

DEAR VIRGINIA: LEE: Two years ago I met and married a young man whom I did not love, but I was young and innocent; at least, that is the best excuse I can offer for my foolishness.

Well, the inevitable happened. We were not married two months before I discovered that I could not go on living with my husband, so I packed my things and left.

"I met my husband twice after that and he said he still loved me and wanted me to go back to him, but the feelings were and are not mutual. He refuses to get a divorce, and says if I try to get one he will contest it.

"I came here to keep out of his reach and now I have met and fallen in love with a young man who I am sure if I were free to marry, would make me very happy, but marriage under the circumstances is impossible.

"What would you or your readers do?

WONDERING."

I think the only thing to do is to ask your husband again to give you a divorce. If he won't, bring action anyway. If you tell the court exactly how things are with you, I imagine you will gain your freedom, although you may win a lecture from the judge on your thoughtlessness and cruelty in marrying a man whom you did not love and then packing up and leaving when things did not suit you.

You can realize how your husband felt if you will just imagine a man you now love leaving you after two months of marriage on the plea that he only married you because you were homeless.

You see, when you marry you have no right to be a mother failure as well as of yourself. Even youth and loneliness do not excuse such behavior, you know.

JENNNY: Wait for one year and you will be of age. If you still are in love with this boy, plan to marry him. He is right in what he says. Nevertheless, different nationalities have different customs, and sometimes is a little difficult for two people to adjust themselves when they marry. Both must have tolerance and be willing to learn the other's ways. It has been done many, many times, however, with perfect happiness resulting.

Olivia De Haviland

THE POPULAR page boy influence is apparent in the street costume worn by Olivia De Haviland. It was designed for her by Orry-Kelly, Hollywood designer. The high-necked shirt is of sage green sheer wool and is topped by a sage boy jacket of navy blue outlined in sage green. Six silver buttons mark the front of the brief jacket, while the tiny vestee is of white pique.

The little boy hat sets well on the back of the head, and white suede gloves and blue antelope bag and shoes complete the costume.

HALIBUT STEAK, FRUIT REGALE YOUR GUEST

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint
BUFFET DINNER
Planked Halibut Steaks with Glazed Canned Peaches and Prunes
Homemade Oatmeal Spoon Bread
Mixed Vegetable Salad with Roquefort Dressing
Strawberries or Fresh Pineapple
Jar of Cookies
Coffee

This meal, served to week-end guests in the country, was lauded in Good Housekeeping Institute. It is an excellent menu to serve when you have maid and you like to entertain. If you have no plank on which to serve the fish, Margaret R. Thompson, who is author of the menu, says you may serve the fish on a platter.

Today's Recipes

PLANKED HALIBUT WITH GLAZED CANNED PEACHES AND PRUNES—Three large halibut steaks two inches thick, ten canned peach halves, melted butter, ten large cooked prunes. Arrange the halibut steaks and the peach halves, cut side up, on a shallow baking pan. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Brown the fish and the peaches in a broiler oven which has been preheated for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, if your plank is new, grease it well with oil and heat in a hot oven of 425 degrees F. for 10 minutes before using. Arrange the halibut steaks in the centre of the plank. Arrange the peaches around them. Place a cooked prune in the centre of each peach half. Brush the prunes with melted butter. Place the plank in a hot oven of 425 degrees F. and bake for about 40 minutes or until the fish is tender. Serves eight to ten. If you do not have a plank, a baking pan may be used for browning and baking the fish and fruit. Then remove them to a large hot platter for serving.

Roquefort Dressing

Add to one-quarter cup of mayonnaise dressing two tablespoons roquefort cheese broken in very small pieces, and one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Add enough French dressing to make it the right consistency.

Mayonnaise Piquante Dressing

Chop two olives and one pickle very fine, mix with one cup of mayonnaise sauce.

COLORFUL MEXICAN WARE SETS TABLE

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

"MEXICO captures the American traveler with a sudden dramatic intensity," states Mrs. Ruth N. Lee, buyer of Mexican ware for a number of stores in the United States.

"The flat lake lands of Texas do not prepare you for the exciting contrast just across the Rio Grande. The first impression is like a stage setting. In the foreground is a desert. In the background are mountain ranges.

As picturesque as these Mexican scenes which Mrs. Lee describes are the articles she brings back with her, some of which are shown here. The soft yellow cloth is bordered in pastels, and the fringe is hand-tied. From the village of Tlaquepaque in Jelisco comes the earthen brown plates with Aztec mask design. The hand-blown, amber-footed glasses come from Guadalajara, and the tin of the candelabra, which is copied from the old cathedral designs, and is said to be impervious to rust, was found in Taxco.

Luncheon table set with Mexican ware with hand-woven cloth in yellow and brown, and yellow in Aztec mask design, hand-blown amber footed glasses, tin ash trays and Taxco candelabra.

Poems That Live

SWEET CLOVER

Within what weeks the mellot
Gave forth its fragrance, I, a lad,
Or never knew or quite forgot,
Save that I was while the year
Is glad.

Now know I that in bright July
It blossoms; and the perfume fine
Brings back my boyhood, until I Am steeped in memory as with wine.

Now know I that the whole year long,
Though Winter chills or Summer
cheers,
It writes along the weeks its song
Even as my youth sings through my years.

—Wallace Rice.

O SLEEP

Take me upon thy breast,
O river of rest,
Draw me down to thy side,
Slow-moving tide.
Carry out beyond reach
Of song or of speech
This body and soul forespent,
To thy still continent,
Where silence hath his home,
Where I would come.
Bear me now in thy deep
Bosom, Sleep.

Kiwanis Juniors Swamp Picton; Cubs, Giants Battle for Lead

Giants Secure Second Sacker Before Entering Lair of Cubs For 'Crucial' Series of Trip

Both Teams Win With Cubs Holding Half Game Lead

INDIANS LOSE

Drop One - Full Game as Yankees Beat Browns 6-5

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

One of those trades that are optimistically described as beloing both clubs, competed just before the Giants left Cincinnati for Chicago yesterday, adds lustre to the 'crucial' four-game tussle between New York and Chicago for the National League lead which gets under way today.

They're ready to fight it out as seriously as if it were a September series instead of June and both Giants figure they got just what they needed for the scrap when they obtained Alec Kampouris from the Reds yesterday in an even swap for big Wally Berger, a power outfielder.

Since Burgess Whitehead was laid low by appendicitis this spring, the Terrymen have lacked a dependable man at the keystone corner. They tried Lee Grissom and Hal Schumacher, but neither had the answer. Both have been batting around the .230 mark and they don't field the way Whitehead does.

Kampouris, although he's been only about a .250 hitter with the Reds, is considered a smart player. Manager Bill Terry optioned Hailin to Jersey City after the local went through.

The Giants, recalling an old "hoodoo" lured up for today's game by pasting the Reds 11-2 in their fare-well game yesterday afternoon, thus retained their half-game lead with a 10-8 decision over the Phillies.

Yesterday's Results.

With Hal Schumacher on the hill, the Giants battered Cincinnati's Lee Hollingsworth for five runs in the first five innings and piled up fifteen blows, including Mel Ott's tenth homer, to end a six-game losing streak.

The Cubs, trying to get along without using any of their first-run pitchers, were hard pressed to hold off the Phils as Al Epperly weakened and Bill Lee gave a 1-0 lead in the first inning; Charley Root went out in the seventh and Jack Russell was clubbed hard.

Jimmie Foxx of Boston and Ken Chase and Zebo Kimpson of Washington and Roy Henshaw of St. Louis Cardinals hurled the only one performers in the day's other hooting games.

Foxx paced the Red Sox in a comeback that enabled them to nose out Detroit 8-7 after trailing by five runs in the seventh. Foxx clubbed his fourteenth homer with three other counters and finally scored the winning run, coming home from second on Bobby Doerr's single with two out in the ninth.

Washington downed Pruss 7-5 with Chase.

The Senators had to go eleven innings but they finally checked the Cleveland Indians' program, 5-4, as Chase hurled seven-hit ball for the first ten innings and Bonura doubled to score Al Simmons with the winning run. Defeat cost Cleveland's American League lead to three games as New York Yankees, after spotting St. Louis Browns five runs in the fourth, came back to win out 6-5 on Joe DiMaggio's homer in the seventh and a double by Bill Knickerbocker and single by Frank Crosetti in the eighth.

Henshaw pitched six-hit ball to beat Boston Reds 11-2. For the second straight day, Brooklyn had no-hit inning and beat Pittsburgh 6-4 scoring seven runs on as many hits in the final inning and the other two in the second.

CEMENTMEN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

Defeat National Grocers by 4-2 in Well-Played Game

Frank Sedore's Point Anne "Cementmen" moved into a tie for the league lead with the Belleville Softball League after taking the long end of a 4 to 2 victory over the National Grocer nine at Coleman Flats last evening. The fastest kind of a gruelling hurling duel between Stan Luffman for the winners, and a lad named Redmond Rose, formerly of Lindsay, pitching for the Grocers, resulted.

Luffman hurled steady ball and was given equally as good support by Innis Hall, Kemp's proteges to four hits. Luffman pitched two-hit ball until the seventh when the Grocers scored their tallies. Redson and Valail were in the pleasure category in allowing base hits as they limited the Cementmen to eight safeties. Point Anne took a commanding lead as they scored one run in the first inning, three frames and added their fourth counter in the seventh. Luffman kept the National Grocer lads off the score sheet until the ninth when a single by Henn and a double from the bat of Chuck Barlow gave the latter two runs. A walk and an error were squeezed into the ninth inning picture, however. Some rather faulty baserunning on the part of the National Grocer boys in no way helped their cause. Gaudin with a triple and Redson given with a double and single and a couple of timely walks were the gifts to the majority of the winners' four runs. Sedore's batting master also clouted well and took advantage of all opportunities presented to haul home a well-earned victory.

This evening at Coleman Flats Trenton and the Corby's A.C. nine will meet in an exhibition softball game.

The lineups:

Point Anne: Genereaux, Gaulin, Sero, Green, Dickey, Loft, Luffman, Hutchinson and Scott.

National Grocers, Ltd.: Henn, Cy Barriage, Tuttle, St. Louis, Chas. Barriage, Hanna, Binfield, Bawden, Robson and Valail.

TORONTO LEAFS EASY PICKINGS FOR RED WINGS

Canadian Team Victims of Ten Run Barrage And Lose 14-4

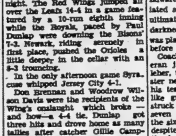
NEWARK WINS

Baltimore Orioles Lose Tenth Straight Game by 8-3

By The Associated Press

Two figures and a losing streak are making the running in the International League race.

Toronto Maple Leafs have been easy pickings for Rochester Red Wings, losing five out of eight to the third-place Wings. Buffalo Bisons, fairly able themselves, have kept Montreal Royals out of the lower reaches of the league by dropping six out of seven to the Canadians, and the Orioles have lost 10 straight.



The Hexes were in form last night. The Red Wings jumped all over the Leafs 14-4 in a game featured by a 10-run eighth inning while the Royals, paced by Paul Dunlap were downing the Bisons 7-2. Dunlap, rather recently in first place, pushed the Orioles a little deeper in the cellar with an 8-3 trouncing.

In the only afternoon game Syracuse whipped Jersey City 4-1.

Don Brennan and Woodrow Wilson David were the recipients of the Wing's onslaught, which broke — and here's 4-4 Dunlap got three hits and drove home as many tallies after catcher Clarence Mueller, the league's special one winners' scoring with a home run.

Baltimore had little trouble with the once-feared Baltimore Orioles as Newark won their ninth straight 8-3 decision.

Jake Moody set Jersey City Giants down with seven hits off the Stars. A three run sixth inning gave the Stars their winning margin.

Your Partners

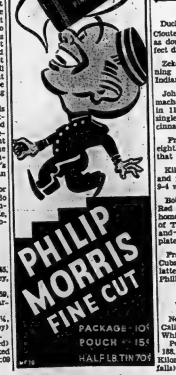
The players who walk around the course with you have a definite influence on your game. If they happen to play well and are good company, you usually benefit greatly. If they are indifferent players or inclined to annoy you in some way, you cannot play your best.

You don't have to be particularly big to be amongst it once you begin your playing partners are likely to be found in the same group in the next locker room discussion about the pairings at tournaments. Some of the best golf matches are sent out with duffers who, in addition to being duffers, have the unfortunate habit of whining about what they called your breaks. It is bad enough for a good player to wait while such a partner fusses and fumes at a bunker or the rough, but it is much worse for him to be forced to listen in a never-ending string of unjustified complaints.

In time this sort of thing is bound to affect the play of an expert, and the more he is exposed to it the faster deterioration comes. Of course, the indifferent player does not know, and in some cases doesn't care about the influence of his conduct on another's game so that it seems to be an evil which will always exist.

Nevertheless the pairings for any kind of competition would do well to receive a little more consideration and, wherever possible, should be the right kind of players together.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT



Baltimore—Holman Williams, 145, Chicago, outpointed Jack Portney, 143, Baltimore, (10).

Kiwanis Juniors Open Season With Win Over Picton 13 to 2

Kelleher Strikes Out 13 in Seven Innings of Fast-time

ONLY FEW ATTEND

Wildness on the part of two Picton hurlers gave the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors first victory in the Bay of Quinte junior league when they piled up a 13-2 victory over the Prince Edward County kids in an abbreviated seven inning tussle that was ultimately terminated on account of darkness last evening. The game was played at the local Pair Grounds before a handful of patrons.

Coach "Stub" Barrett sent his veteran junior moundsman, Joe Kelleher, to the slab, the local youngster never having to bear down as his team mates were scoring runs like grapes in bunches. Kelleher struck out thirteen Picton batters in seven frames, retiring the side in the sixth via the three strike route, despite the fact the visitors filled the bases and scored one of their two runs on a wild pitch. Rex Spring, starting hurler for Skipper Harry Pine's Picton kids, was wild and erratic, accurately being replaced by "Mac" Greer, a long lanky lefthander who has had ball ap, but whose control was equally as bad as that of Spring.

Picton pitchers scored a run in the initial frame on Welbanks' hard drive that went for three bases and added their other tally in the sixth. Belleville notched two in the second frame on Bill Hill and added six more in the third on three hits and four more in the fourth on one lone single. It was the initial game of the league schedule.

Pepper Leads Hitters.

Jim Pepper, Kiwanis catcher, led the locals at bat with a double and single in three tries. Jarrell getting a brace of singles and Kelleher helping his own cause with a timely one base blow. Hilings was rather weak throughout as Belleville only collected six safeties from the combined pitching efforts of Spring and Greer, while Kelleher limited the visitors to a triple, double and two singles.

Skipper Barrett's nine tried to add a little 'umph' to the pastime as they ran bases wildly, twice combining in double assists that effectively pushed over the home base. Kelleher's fast ball proved his best asset while on the mound, while both Spring and Greer were guilty of walking which gets numerous runs into the scoring column. The home town outfielders participated in some fine running catches to add to the game.

KI-Y Softball

Diamond decisions were gained in two of the games scheduled for softball games last evening. At Queen Alexandra School grounds Ramblers defeated Scouts 16-12, while the Warbirds scored the odd run to eke out a last minute victory over the Westerns by a 16 to 15 score. The tilts at Bolton turned as the two squads battled evenly throughout the entire game.

Ramblers: Harry school grounds Bill Bateman's; Shaw Whites locked in battle with Jack Doran's Ox. Mikes nine, the former winning by a 10 to 1 score. The victory was the result of some fine pitching and exceptionally good fielding on the part of both teams.

The Lucky Strikes won from the Cubs when the latter circuit defaulted. All games were in the Juvenile series.

AIRMEN CLING TO EARLY LEAD

Defeat Graham's Garage 13-12 With Eight Runs in One Frame

Trenton, June 7 (Special)— Clinging tenaciously to a substantial lead garnered in the early innings of a scheduled game played in Memorial Park here last night, Corporal "Casey" Regan's rejuvenated Airmen bested Graham's Garage by 13-12 With a set-to, that had a real whirlwind finish and thrills galore for players and fans alike.

Only by the narrowest of margins were the Grahamites staved off in the final frame when with the tieing and winning runs on base two successive batters grounded out to the Flyers' infield, and though the Airmen were held to one run by virtue of some extra-base slugging Grahams came very close to pulling up on even terms with them.

Apparently determined to start right out and run the thing up right the R.C.A.F. nine really went to town in the first frame when they pounded on the offerings of Leo Cowling, starting pitcher for Grahams for three home runs a triple a double and eight counters. Cowling, a fire-ball man for the Airmen distinguished himself by tightening up and was able in two trips to the plate in the first and fright innings to help keep up the good work. Other home run hitters for the Flyers were Lewis and Hartley, the latter also coming through with a double.

Segar Went Route

Segar replacing Cowling on the mound in the first went the route for Grahams although touched for seven hits, three of them being added by Trepanier's triple in the third, Lewis' home run in the fourth and Segar's double in the seventh. Trepanier was leading at one stage of the game with a 3 for 4 performance, rallied gamely and came close to success. Stanley Drake made a lovely catch of Stroyan's drive to center field in the seventh to set the crowd applauding. Segar allowed Lewis's homer in the sixth with two aboard Hartley on base. He came the closest to the score, LaMorre pulled the tieing and winning runs on base when Grey, a lefthander, relieved Segar and struck out the side. Grey, a member of the infield in the order named, held Grahams to 2 hits in their straight set-back, two of them having been by the close scores of 2-1 and 12-12. The win improves the R.C.A.F. standing considerably in the league having got back in the weak start owing to upsets of Grahams, Trenton Y.M.C.A. and Corby's A.C. Rugby squads, regular pitcher of the Airmen, was absent, having been sent to Ottawa for a few days. The Flyers meet the Johnny Young Stroyan nine on the local diamond on Wednesday night, the first of the interlocked fixture from earlier in the season.

NAPANEE TO PLAY HERE THURSDAY

Alex Weir Will Make Only a Couple of Changes

Satisfied with the initial showing of the champs in their first game or two appearances in the Bay of Quinte baseball cabinet, Skipper Alex Weir will not be in any hurry to make changes in the local line-up when the team meets Napanee's Napanee Oldsters at the Pair Grounds on Thursday twilight. The Belleville nine's first appearance locally in the seasoned baseball fans of this district a real excellent ball team, showing on the home lot in defeating Kingston last week, but upon their initial start away from home left doubts in the minds of the fans.

Weir, however, will probably still doubtless trot out his imported hurling prospect and starting southpaw, a good youth by the name of Bob Bell, while the locals have a girth of baseballers to choose from in St. Louis, Weeks, Wilkins, Bawden and Bateman, the latter a local baseball fans left the Pair Grounds last week satisfied they had seen one of the best ball players locally in some years and there is no reason this should not be repeated Thursday. At present Napanee is heading the Bay of Quinte loop with a win and a tie, while the Belleville nine has a victory and an undeserved defeat on their ledger.

Between the Lines

By Ken J. Colling

(Sic's note: At our request Gen. H. Carver our office contemporary, will give his impressions of the forthcoming Louis-Schmeling fight in the sport column today reviewing and prognosticating.) George says:

"Just in case you are like the gal who always turned to the back of the book to see how the story ended before she started to read it, I will now inform you, that in my opinion, Joe Louis, shouldn't experience much trouble in proving that heavyweight crown continues firmly on his chocolate pate, when he meets scowling Maxie Schmeiling in June."

"There'll be herring and slicing and mashing of bonkers in far off Hamburg, Munich, (with parts of Vienna thrown in) when the result of that fight comes in. Great tears will fall from Teutonic eyes splashing into feasts, tipped schnapps at Hitler headquarters, while in far-away Harlem, slurping high-yellow resistance, schnapps and other shades of sepia will celebrate in true Harlemian style, the victory of the champs."

"For their chocolate soldier of the ring, Joe Louis, is one of the hurried-to-the - slaughter youth, that faced the lethal right of the German brutal two years ago. That scrap taught Joe a lesson, one that he has never forgotten, and the forthcoming struggle will see a carefully-schooled fighter-faced youngster, with two years fighting experience in his favor, a better defensive punching style, and a specially prepared defence against the style of his conqueror, step into the ring."

"Add to this fact that the pride of Woodward Avenue, and the dark hells of the cities of our country, has had plenty of scraps, which pushed some of the outstanding palookas of the ring, since his last meeting with the Black Uhlan of the Inter-dee-Linden, that have improved his style and whatnot, and you got part of the answer."

"True Bob Pastor outdistanced him in a free-style marathon some years ago, when the ebon dogs couldn't keep up with the Pasterian pumpkin, but remember that he did in his last two scraps, in the bout with Nathan Mann, Louis unleashed a savage offensive that whittled him down to a boy size and stretched him on the canvas a bloody testimony of the champions fists."

"A similar performance was staged against Uncle Harry Thomas not long ago, and when a chap that pleted the tanics on their collective jaws, they watched a new Joe Louis send Schmeling left jabs and paralyzing right to the head and body of his victims. Perhaps never before has the ring had Joe given evidence of the killer instinct, that was part of the Ole Mahogany Master."

"This is the meantime, Der Maxie who has received the run around oftener than a college widow during the football season, is boasting, with the exception of the time he played Gene Tunney, and while a flock of German Andies hocked their heads off, His Highness crossed the aging Hamas into oblivion in five chukkers and swastika-crossed the paying Hetzlers into frenzies of delight with his exhibition."

"And we firmly believe Schmeling has kept in condition for the scrap. He has trained to sock with that left, while the necessary throwing of the mulatory Hitlerian supervised in the ring every time the Dictator goes by, and with a scythe that does duty per that was responsible for the gin epidemic in Hogarth's London in the 18th century, Jane, is fighting time."

But the old gent with the flowing whiskers, who is generally pictured with a scythe has been catching up with Herr Maxie. The layoff of two years may not have deteriorated his condition or fighting heart, but the fact remains that Time has been marching on, detracting from the stamina of one, while assisting the other to reap his peak. So that as it may, Schmeling may throw a spiritual imitation of Wrench into the well-oiled Louis machinery, but he will have to do it in the early rounds."

"Louis is or should be tops for the fight. He has trained faithfully for the biggest fight to date in his career, and in our humble opinion will tie the German up into one of his favorite pretzels, while the lethal right, if it lands will cause such a shock in Germany that the Watch on the Rhine will go back to daylight saving time."

"Louis in the seventh."

So much for the Schmeling-Louis affair and thanks George, but while on the subject of the fight game it might be in order to remind the sport fans that the Armstrong-Ross fight pictures will be shown at the Capitol Theatre commencing Thursday of this week. Interest in these events is greater than many heavyweight bouts have and no doubt will be well worth taking a gander at.

Tunney Works Out—With Brown Bomber

Detroit, June 7 (AP)—John Roxborough, co-manager of heavyweight champion Joe Louis, said here last night that former champion Gene Tunney had recently worked out with Louis and that another workout was planned.

Roxborough, here on business, said "Tunney spent a few hours with Joe up at Lafayettevile, N.Y., last week, and they got along well.

"He was showing Joe how to avoid being hit with a right hand," Roxborough said.

LIGHT-HEAVY CHAMP EYES TWO-TON

Hardly in a class with the Louis-Schmeling scrap or the Armstrong-Ambers affair, but a bout that will attract a good deal of interest, will be held in Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, July 13, between the two huskies ABOVE. On the LEFT John Henry Lewis, ruler of the light-heavyweight class, and scrambling off with him just after they had signed the papers, Tony Galento, the bull-like beer baron from Orange, N. J. No title will be at stake.

TROTTING CHAMP WELL WATCHED

An example of vigilance is Jimmy Wingfield, caretaker, of Greyhound, world's champion trotter, stabled at Indianapolis awaiting the opening of the Grand Circuit season later this month. Jimmy takes no chances on anything happening to his charge and every night sleeps in his cot outside the stable door, a constant third party is Spot, the stable mascot.

Somerville Offers No Alibis for Defeat In British Amateur

By VINCENT HONAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, June 7.—(CP)—In 1932 quiet, soft-spoken C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville toted his golf clubs off to Baltimore and won the United States amateur golf championship. And now Sandy wants that crown again.

Back from Troon, Scotland, the shotmaker from London, Ont., was scarcely down the gangplank of the Queen Mary last night before reporters nabbed him. Under questioning, he admitted he would seek his second United States amateur championship at Oakmont, Pa., Aug. 12.

Before that, though, Sandy will defend his Canadian amateur championship at the London Hunt and Country Club in July. He said he felt his recent efforts in the British open tournament, against an especially strong field that included the United States Walker Cup team, would serve as a fine background for summer competition.

No Alibis

Somerville carried his bid in the British amateur at Troon to the semi-final round, losing to Cecil Ewing, the Irish giant who went on to lose to Charley Yates of Atlanta, Ga. But Sandy offered no alibis. And he had nothing but praise for the new British champion.

"Ewing and I played erratic golf and if he hadn't been hot he would have been unlucky," said Sandy. "I feel a month of practice in the south during the spring brought my game to as high a pitch as it has ever been.

"Yates is a brilliant golfer who told top form all through the tournament. He was very popular with the galleries for his happy-go-lucky manner."

Somerville left for his home today. Before leaving, he had a word for Jim Bruen, the brilliant 18-year-old Irish golfer, who was beaten in the Walker Cup singles by Yates. He said it would take more than a prodigy to beat Yates in his present form and, while Somerville hadn't seen Bruen in action, he said the Irishman was credited with "being in a class by himself."

Not Through Trying

Somerville believed the United States open system which eliminates all but 64 golfers before the match play begins, lends itself to better golf by top flight golfers whereas good players are often eliminated in the early 18-hole matches of the British tournament before they have found their game.

"Most good golfers need 36 hole matches to find their game," said Sandy. "Of course, in golf luck plays a big part too but I'm not thoroughly trying for the British amateur title yet."

Sports Roundup

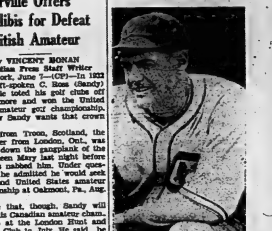
By Bible Bristo, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 7 (AP)—Success story: Just seven years ago a flat-broke little negro named Jimmy Armstrong migrated from St. Louis to Los Angeles to try his luck.... His speed, his flashy work in the Los Angeles in a mission flop house... Today he is featherweight and welterweight champion and may be wearing the lightweight crown before the summer is over....He has fired up his family, built a home for himself and a $50,000 annuity, that will be paid off this year and will net them $100 per week for the rest of his life....This corner predicts Henry will retire, the only boxer in history to wear three crowns on the same Dome. When and how he lost Los Angeles.

But Henry had better steer clear once whoever he trains to the ring for his scheduled 147-pound welterweight bout an overgrown lightweight named Lou Ambers packs enough punch to put Henry to sleep for a long, long time.

Among those who sat in a box at the Yankee stadium Sunday and pulled hard for Lefty Grove in his unsuccessful start against the Browns, was June O'Dea, the pitcher's estranged wife Ted Cleary and Paul Richards, Alexander is piloting a House of David team through the Florida semi-pro circuits....Big League scouts blame the low golf and tennis for the scarcity of baseball talent.... "Old Pop" Clark Griffith of Washington, could get up steam and take a bow if he wanted to .... Even when Schoolboy Rowe was in his heyday, Griffith gave him four years at the outside....Which is just what it took....He'll turn out to be a crooked armer," said Griff.

BIG TAX REDUCTION AT AYLMER, QUEBEC



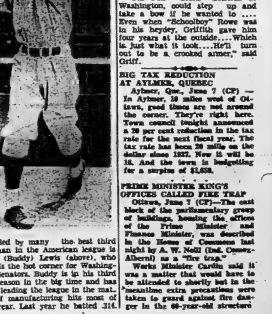
Aylmer, Que., June 7 (CP) — In Aylmer, 10 miles west of Ottawa, good times are now around the corner. They're right here. Town council tonight announced a 30 per cent reduction in the tax rate for the next fiscal year. The tax rate has been 39 mills on the dollar since 1927. Now it will be 34. And the town is budgeting for a surplus of $1,650.

PRIME MINISTER KING'S OFFICES CALLED FIRE TRAP

Ottawa, June 7 (CP)—The east block of the parliamentary group of buildings, housing the offices of the Prime Minister and Finance Minister, was described in the House of Commons last night by A. W. Neill (Nat. Conser-Alberni) as a "fire trap."

Works Minister Cardin said it was a matter that would have to be attended to shortly but in the meantime extra precautions were taken to guard against fire danger in the 66-year-old structure

SETTING RECORD



He got off to a wobbly start this year, but he's more than making up for it now. We mean the smiling, genial Yankee, Lefty O. Lee, a steady winner for Chicago Cubs for the past four years, and practically invincible of late. He has won his last five games, the first a shutout, the next 3 to 1, and the last three also shutouts. One more whitewash and Bill will equal the National league record set by a former Cub, Ed Reulbach, and tied by Grover Alexander.

Yankee Mainstay

If there's a pitcher in the majors who is better than Red Ruffing (above) of the New York Yankees, we don't know him. Ruffing pitches and pinch hits, and it doesn't seem to make much difference whether he trains in the spring or is taken ill, he just comes right back and hurls winning ball games. He has notched seven wins so far.

Hot Corner Star

Called by many the best third baseman in the American league is John (Buddy) Lewis (above), who guards the hot corner for Washington Senators. Buddy is in his third full season in the big time and has been leading the league in the matter of manufacturing hits most of the year. Last year he batted .314.

Crossroads

by Kathleen Norris

There was a strange change in the sunshine. It shone not less brightly, but it was different. It shone on this confounding quiet morning upon Kitty's garden, and upon Kitty's dark mop of hair, dripping and drying, and upon Gloria's thin white dress and wide-brimmed hat.

Kitty and Gloria were filling as the clocks moved on toward noon. Gloria lying in a wicker steamer chair, with her hands locked on her bread. Looking at her, Kitty thought that she was beautiful this morning, with the beauty of health and youth, of creamy smooth skin and burnished hair, of stretched young body, supple and slender, fine brown hands, fine thin ankles, and, beyond all this, Kitty knew, she were today like a royal garment a subtler beauty, the unmistakable commodity that glorifies only the woman who loves, and knows herself loved.

Gloria's dark-gold eyes moved about the familiar scene as the sprawling oaks, the scattered flowers of the changing informal garden. And down the easy slope of the lawn, under the oaks and fruit trees, she could see the Goldengate, cut on this exquisite spring morning into the white waves of ferryboats and yachts.

It was the same, and yet it was all changed. The sunshine had a different glow; the world was made new. Gloria felt that in herself as the young wife who had come to a furnished house and garden on a hillside four years earlier, before Jimmy was born. She had been, in those months, inexperienced person, that. Gloria of four short years ago. It had been a very childish and elementary, looking back. Motherhood had been still ahead, with all the tremendous changes that it brings to a woman. Still ahead she had been the scarcely less awakening discovery that she, Gloria Rudd, was a natural business woman, that responsibilities and affairs and decisions came easily to her. She loved office detail, loved planning, changing, and developing; it had all been joy to her. It was odd to think that office work had always been so hateful to Peter, that his reports to her at night had always been discouraging, uninspired, any one listening to Peter must have thought that business was a dull, desperating grind.

Her own experience had been so delightfully different! From the very beginning compliments and flattery and success had heartened her upon her way. Her reports to Tony and Kitty, when Sunday night had found her in the Bagley's garden or beside their fire, had been gay and confident. She had made mistakes, of course, but they had been the mistakes of success, and not of failure, makes. Throughout them she had always known that they would seem funny some day.

And so from peak to peak. Ah, they had been modest peaks enough, those little triumphs connected with the old people and their hospital home, but there had been real joy in conquering them! Well and strong and young, dressed in the becoming uniform that meant authority, her splendid child beside her to remind her that the years had not been all wasted, Gloria would always remember with pleasure the first years of her reign at the Bayview. It had meant her emergence, soul, mind, body, from dependence and uncertainty into the full light of self-expression and usefulness and content.

Presently all that had been swept away in love and there had been only Karl. Gloria narrowed her eyes upon the green and gold dazzle of Kitty's garden; a smile tugged at her lips. That was the way life went for women who mastered their own destinies, perhaps. Pete pushed them farther to joy, always with that serene of succeeding, of going on. Gloria would be the beginning of a new life with Karl, one of these days, and that new life would make everything that had preceded it seem strange and flat.

INSTALMENT 21

Karl would be great some day. There was no question of it in Gloria's mind. He was still young in his profession, and yet still the great men, the older men, recognized him. Quiet and fair and sincere built and spectacled, he had pursued his own course, not soliciting honors, and the honors had been heaped upon him. Gloria's eyes shone as she thought of it, of the glory of being the man one has intimately by right of love, the glory of being this man's wife.

They would go to New York for a year or two at least, perhaps for three or four years. There would find a comfortable, roomy apartment, not fashionable, but homelike enough to be a pleasant place for friendly dinners, friendly talks by the fire. They might go to Baltimore, to Rochester, to ate other "research men"; to Washington to a convention when Karl would read a paper and be applauded and slip through an admiring throng finished and anxious to escape, with herself always beside him to murmur: "It was magnificent, darling. They are all wild about you!"

It would all be so wonderful—"What are you smiling about?" Kitty asked.

Gloria, almost with a sense of shock, came back to the beautiful garden. "Thinking," she said, happily, still lingering like a light in her eyes.

"Can't get used to it," Kitty ran a comb through her silky black head. "Never shall get used to it," she said.

"Which means you and Tony don't approve Kitty, I know that," Gloria said patiently.

"Well, it worries Tony," Kitty observed. "He's funny, Gloria—you know, He's always thought you were wonderful, but you couldn't do anything—well, wrong."

"Getting divorced in those days, when you happen to be another woman, isn't considered exactly — wrong," Gloria offered mildly.

"Just the same, it shocked Tony," Kitty said.

"I know," Gloria's tone was still meditative, undisturbed. "I've talked to Tony," she presently added compunction. "I can see Tony's side of it. I don't suppose there ever was a divorce yet that didn't distress somebody," she went on. "There's a sort of convention that one must say, 'Oh, how lovely!' when any one gets married, and 'Oh, too bad!' when any one gets a divorce. And yet case for case," Gloria, continued, developing the idea as she talked, "I haven't the slightest doubt that marriages have caused more actual suffering than divorces."

"Come over here!" What are you girls arranging about?" Tony had limped out to his chair; he was uncomfortably established in it, panting from pain and exertion. "Come talk to me!" he called.

"We're carrying on last night's argument," she explained.

"Kitty reading you the riot act?"

"With sidewipes at the Ten Commandments."

"Kitty's a moral force," Tony said. "You were just as bad as Kitty last night."

"No, I wasn't. I didn't go in for basic principles. I merely said that I loved Peter and love you, and it makes me hint of sick to think of the sort of neighbors who will probably vent 'Bide-a-Wee.'

"You said more than that" Gloria said, in assumed mild scorn. "You said tactily that, not having seen Peter for years, having more or less washed up that whole experience, I should say to Karl— after all, one of the most important men of his profession—I'm sorry, but my dear friends, the Baggleys, feel that I ought to go on working, supporting my child and myself, refusing to share your life with you, although I love you, settling down into quiet middle age, and continuing to run my hospital all my long!"

"Good for you!" said Tony. "And it was available at first."

Glory laughed. "No, I'm not mad darlings," she said affectionately. "I'm too much on your side of the wall. My father if he were living, all my people, would be sorry. So I say, it's the thing to be sorry. I'm sorry myself. I think it's a stupid sort of civilization that puts these breaks into one's life. I wish it were all over. I wish it were two years ago."

"I'm sorry for Peter!" Kitty said with a sudden spurt her cheeks red.

"How does it change anything for Peter, Kitty?" Karl and I go on to New York with Jimmy. Peter's there, or in that neighborhood. He'll see Jimmy more than he has ever did for all three past years. He never sees Jimmy now. He says he wants Jimmy 'half the time.'

Well, that's ridiculous. Peter's living in a hotel; his work with the radio—when he had it—there had to be done at night; he couldn't possibly keep a small child with him."

"So you have him coming and going," Tony said drily.

Gloria's cheeks were flushed with a little sudden color as she looked at him, but she still managed her calmness. "Kitty," she said reproachfully, "do you think that's fair?"

Kitty would not be made arbitrary. With a sudden cry of, "My baby-cakes! I'll get the chicken!" she fled toward the house.

"The successful partner in a marriage," Tony said thoughtfully, after a pause, "always does have the glory of the garden deepened and spread and grew still in the final years. Peter's going to make another mess of this year; there had been lots of them, but today seemed to promise that there would be summer again.

"You're ambitious, aren't you, Gloria?"

Gloria considered it. "I suppose I'm ambitious," she conceded at length.

"The way lots of men are," Tony said. "Lots of wives don't keep up with their husbands' love forever."

"And you mean that Peter didn't keep up with me?" she narrowed her eyes, thinking about it. "But there is a difference there," she said. "Men are supposed to—to go ahead."

"And to be faithful to their wives if their wives can't keep up." They completed it, looking at her steadily.

Again her eyes went quickly to his. "But they aren't!" she said with a laugh.

"Not all are. They find younger women, smarter women . . . " He left the question unfinished.

"I've always thought that was horribly unfair, detestable," Gloria said honestly, in the pause, "but I do think that cases Peter and Kitty anyway," she added, with a sudden laugh and a change of mood. "I'm sure he ought to be reminded! There's no reason to it."

"You were a wonderful person when you used to come over to this garden, years ago, with Peter and the baby," Tony said it calmly, reminiscently, as if he spoke half to himself.

"I'm a wonderful person still," Glory said cheerfully.

"You'll always be that."

"But you think I'd be more wonderful if I made myself unhappy instead of happy?"

"No, I can't say that. Who am I to say anything about it at all? I can only say, Glory, that when one of us poor human being reaches for something just to make him happy, then it often turns out—well, disappointingly. Later he may find that he has to create his own happiness with less material than was available at first."

"As what, for instance?"

"As—well, if Jimmy should go to Peter for a visit and he ill, or die. Peter, I mean, is perfectly able should die, out here away from you. If Jimmy should disappoint you in any way. You'd have put them all into the scale, d'you see? And it wouldn't be enough."

Glory, stretched young and lovely in her long chair with the wide hat shading her gold-brown eyes, stared thoughtfully into space. "I suppose I'm horribly fond of you, Tony, to let you talk to me this way," she said unsmiling.

"I hope you are."

"I'll never bring Jimmy to this garden some day with my genius husband and Jimmy, and maybe little Kats' or Gloria, and you'll see that everything's worked out!"

"You're, you're," he said.

"Of Karl? Well, Karl," Gloria submitted, "is one of the persons you call sure."

"I suppose so. And I suppose that after a few years a woman's first marriage must seem as dream-like as her childhood."

"Why not? This isn't going to change me, Tony. I'm still going to be Gloria, crazy about Jimmy, and feeling that you and Kitty are the only real, true friends I have anywhere in the world. There's not going to be any change. Nobody's going to be unhappy . . . Ah!"

She said the last words laughingly, stretching out a hand. Karl Pitcher had come into the garden, looking a little tired and warm, but smiling back and side to spare only an abstracted word of greeting for Tony. He could see nothing but Gloria, and Tony, watching them, couldn't wonder at it; she was radiant as she stood up, both hands ready for Karl's eager hands. She held only Karl's name, but the tone of her voice was enough.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a satisfied expression, and ma said, Willyum, there's a picture at the mauveloum taken from the book called The 5 Cherry Daughters, the famous childhood classic, you remember it, Willyum.

I remember it is to my sorrow, pop said. I was forced it read that book in my tenderest school years, and nearly any book you're forced to read is borne to leave a bad taste in your mouth. By golies I still get goose flesh when I think of those 5 goody goody girls and their namby pamby doings on. Imagine tearing yourself away from a good home to go out and see any picture made that parboiled tripe he said, and ma said, But Willyum, they've changed it.

That's the best thing they could of done to it because any change wouldhave to be for the better, pop said. Yes, gosh I still remember their awful mincing names. Prunella and Magenta and Marguerite and so 4th, yes gosh prunes and prisms he said, and ma said, But Willyum, you can allay your fears to rest, because in the picture they've changed the 5 girls into 6 boys with rough western names like Bock and Hank and Ivee and so 4th because in the picture they're all born in a little American mining town with mine shafts instead of an English village with honeysuckle vines like in the book.

Are there any other changes for Pete sake? Pop said, and ma said, Well yes, in the picture the boys' father is a confirmed gambler instead of the girls father being a minister the way he is in the book. And I've changed the name also from The 5 Cherry Daughters to Guns and Horses. I understand they payed 50 thousand dollars just for the rites to the title of the book before they changed it, so it must be quite a picture, Willyum, ma said, and pop said, I've gosh, I'll say it must, I want to be in at the finish, let's go and see it.

Wich they did.

PRIMITIVE DENTISTRY

Those who are contemplating a visit to the dentist may get some consolation from the practice of natives of British Guina, as reported by Dr. William Hall Nolan, who has just returned after an exploration among the Wai Wai, or so-called White Indians. According to Dr. Holden, the dental system of most of the savages is simplicity itself. They merely ram a red-hot poker into the decayed tooth, which explodes from the heat.

How is it known when a younger needs food?

The food that gives energy with which to play is the starch or sugar foods. If there is not a normal amount of sugar in the blood there will be a feeling of weakness and tiredness. Play or exercise not only uses up sugar but manufactures lactic acid. The amount of lactic acid in the blood shows the amount or degree of fatigue or tiredness of the individual.

Now, what has play to do with fatigue and sugar or starch?

Drs. Frederic W. Schmits and Eleanor Bilish, in American Journal of Children's Diseases, in investigating the use of sugar in children with an empty stomach, found in children who were weak that after eating sugar there was a great rise in the amount of sugar in the blood, whereas in children who were rugged or normal the rise in blood sugar was not so great. That is, the rugged children did not need the sugar so much as there was not so much lactic acid in their blood. They did not get tired so soon.

The big point, however, discovered by these research workers was, "The child's ability to play or exercise for a longer time and to do more work with less production of lactic acid was more dependent on training (playing regularly) than on the effect of eating the sugar. The influence of training was so marked that it overshadowed the amount of good done by the sugar.

Encourage your youngster to play regularly after school.

A Pig in a Bag

By CLARA C. HOLMES

When Angeline Paine looked out over her wide domain of lifeless, straw-colored fields and realized the dreariness of a dull winter's day, she supressed a sigh. Turning to her girl guest she said plaintively:

"Lotta, I've decided that if I marry Andrew Drew I shall be getting a blind bargain. It is a town topic that Andrew spends considerable time up to Bill Rand's, and that Eunice is the attraction. If I didn't own this property Austin would perfer Eunice. Sometimes I wish I hadn't a cent."

"And if you hadn't a cent," returned Lotta, "you'd grieve because you hadn't. At the Grange socials, when you've been busy, Mr. Drew has given me most of his attention.

"Here is Andrew now," Angeline frowned as a car honked. "Will you open the door for him, Lotta?"

But when Lotta had slipped away, Andrew turned eagerly to the tense-mannered Angeline. "You have been hearing more tales," he said.

"Yes; neither do you deny your admiration for Eunice Rand!" she exclaimed hotly, slipping off her guard.

"I don't deny I like going to Rands'. Bill and I were school friends. It isn't likely I'm playing an unfair game with Bill's sister, is it, Angeline? However, I s'pose I can quit going to Bill's."

"No; you and I will quit playing this game of chance with our happiness, Andrew."

"Then why couldn't we form a trust company having a good business contract?"

"I'm in dead earnest. How's this: We, the undersigned, do promise to put full faith and trust in each other now and forever?"

"To sign such a statement as that would indeed be making a blind bargain," she scorned.

Andrew concluded that it would be useless to hunt on a preserve where a sly enemy had the right of way. Apparently he gave up the chase.

The straw-colored February fields had turned to the green of spring-time when Angeline paused again at her window. An object in the road attracted her attention.

"It seems to be a burlap bag, but it moves," she said to Lotta.

Lotta ran out and returned with the wriggling thing. "Somebody's lost a pig in bag," she laughed.

Together they loosed the winsome little animal and fed it milk.

"This pig must belong to Andrew Drew," declared Angeline; "it is one of his prize Durocs."

In the afternoon Andrew telephoned asking for information about a lost pig.

"We have it here all right," assured Angeline.

"Then, if it will be convenient, I will call in on my way home," he announced.

The color deepened in Angeline's cheeks. She cared so deeply and he had remained away so long. She slipped into a pretty new frock and when Andrew came, she opened the door for him.

"I won't stop in today, thank you," he refused decidedly.

Fear, like a huge, crushing hand, seized and held her helpless for the moment. Lotta gally came to the rescue.

"We've been making strawberry ice cream, real strawberries and cream; certainly you will have a plateful," she said.

"It's a strange coincidence, my lost pig the pig here," Andrew spoke[n]ed. "I s'pose you think it's odd, and I don't blame you fact is, I was taking the pig up to Bill Rand and had the luck to lose it here."

Andrew was so serious and humble that Angeline burst into merry laughter. He regarded her curiously; he had never seen her in a mood like this.

"You were wise to refuse to sign that agreement, the one you called a blind bargain contract," he reminded. "You certainly have your credulity imposed upon today."

"Oh, I'm not doubting what you say in the least," she assured. "Of course you are honest. Andrew, it occurred to me how oddly the tide has changed. Once you laughed at my fears; now I'm laughing at yours. Besides, all the time Bill Rand would buy a pig in the bag from you, but I wouldn't."

He went to her side. She responded with both her hands and a soulful smile. Then like all trusting lovers, they forgot the existence of the material business world and let themselves drift ecstatically in the ethereal realms of romance.

TENSION GROWS OVER BOMBING OF SHIPPING

Refinery at Dome Mines Entered and $41,000 Gold Taken

DISCOVER LOSS WHEN OFFICIALS OPEN REFINERY

Burglary Largest in History of Northern Mining Camp

SAWED BARS

Believed Burglars Cached Stolen Goods Near Mine

South Porcupine, Ont., June 8—(CP)—Gold valued at $41,000 was stolen when burglars broke into the refinery at the Dome Gold Mines near here during the night and escaped with 275 pounds of precipitates. The burglary was discovered when mine officials opened the refinery today.

The burglary was the largest in the history of this mining camp near Timmins. The burglars sawed through bars protecting windows of the refinery and made off with the precipitates without detection.

It was thought that because of the difficulty in getting the heavy load out of the Northern Ontario mining centre, the burglars might be forced to cache the gold and wait until an opportune time for its removal.

Gang of Gangs?

The burglary was discovered about 8 by after 4 a.m. when refinery officials found the steel bars on the windows sawn in two and the cache of gold gone from the spot where it had been placed during the latter stages of the refining process. It is believed a gang of men participated in the burglary.

Police officers from many parts of the province gathered in the search for gold and the burglars. It was believed a car or truck had been used in removing the heavily laden safety box for the bullars was easy after the protecting bars had been sawed. They only had

Bitten by 3-Foot Water Snake Woman Says Faith Will Cure Her

Hammond, La., June 8—(AP)—Mrs. Joe Rushing, mother of two children, insisted today that "Faith" would overcome the poisonous effects of a snake bite received Sunday night at a religious sect meeting.

Writhing in pain on a plain iron bed in a small cottage here last night, her left hand and arm swollen terce normal size, Mrs. Rushing spurned medical treatment. Faith has cured her of other afflictions she said, "and it will cure me again."

Her husband, a Crystal Springs, Miss., sawmill operator, sat near waving a black fan above his wife's perspiring face, and shared her confidence.

"She's coming back all right," he said, "except her faith is great." Other members of the sect stood around the bed, saying prayers for her recovery.

Rushing explained that his wife was bitten while she handled the snake, a three-foot water Moccasin, during "the third and supreme party of the Sunday night program. Apostle Speaks Out

He said the snake became "ill and mean" after biting Mrs. Rushing and was destroyed.

KARL GERHARD'S NATURALIZATION IS INVESTIGATED

Opposition Leader R. B. Bennett Again Brings up Question

STUDY 2 GERHARD'S

Karl Gerhard Denies He Had Anything to Do With Anticosti

Ottawa, June 8—(CP)—State Secretary Rinfret told the House of Commons yesterday that the department was investigating the status of Karl Gerhard, a German holding a Canadian naturalization certificate and of whom opposition leader Bennett has asked several questions in the House recently.

Mr. Bennett again brought up the question of Gerhard's naturalization yesterday and urged the Secretary of State to take immediate steps not up to examine Gerhard's status. He had reports which, if true, should mean immediate cancellation of the naturalization certificate.

"I do think that for this man to have a naturalization certificate does violence to the understanding or the obligations of citizenship," Mr. Bennett said. "The outstanding certificate of naturalization issued to this man should be cancelled without delay if the evidence is in accordance with my information."

Reports of Two Gerhards

Mr. Rinfret said there were reports of two Gerhard's, one Karl R. and the other Karl A., and it was not clear to what extent the questions raised in the House were confusing these two men. An investigation has been made and Mr. Rinfret said he would like to study reports Mr. Bennett had received and upon which he had based his questions.

"Last Wednesday in the Commons Mr. Rinfret told Mr. Bennett that Karl Rudolph Gerhard of Montreal received his Canadian naturalization papers Nov. 18, 1937, but there is no record of a similar application in Canada of any person bearing the name of Emil Karl Gerhard."

Karl Gerhard's

Montreal, June 8—(CP)—Karl Rudolph Gerhard said last night in a written statement that he could not say he would give "ample evidence" he was entitled to Canadian citizenship papers. Gerhard, a naturalized German, was replying to a demand by Opposition leader Bennett in the House of Commons that any application for commission to examine his status.

Text of his statement:

"I have no idea as to what kind of information Mr. Bennett demands in investigating my application for naturalization. He ought to know by now, from my own case and those of the German officials in Ottawa and Montreal, as well as the information at his disposal, that I have obtained Canadian citizenship papers. I am not identical with any Dr. Emil Gerhard who is supposed to be a personal envoy of the Fuehrer.

"I fail to see any 'prima facie evidence' of the naturalization act as far as my case is concerned. When necessary, I shall give ample evidence I am entitled to my Canadian citizenship papers."

Chief Justice Groenshields of Quebec Upsets Case of Annulment

Montreal, June 8—(CP)—Civil marriages might remedy the mixed marriage problem in Quebec, Chief Justice A. K. Greenshields suggested in a judgment handed down in superior court today.

In the effluent of the law chosen to celebrate marriages were selected from a responsible and respectable class to the exclusion of the parson and the priest it might once and for all settle the question of marriage in this province," said the learned Chief Justice of Superior Court Justices.

Decision Issue With Judge Feral

Specifically in the case on which judgment was rendered, the Chief Justice upheld the decision of Mr. Justice Alfred Forest for his views on validity of marriages between Roman Catholics and Protestants, that had reversed a judgment of his colleague.

The judgment today upset a marriage annulment granted James O'Kane by Mr. Justice Forest. A Roman Catholic, O'Kane obtained from Mr. Justice Forest an annulment of his marriage to Peggy Ann Mooney, Protestant, on grounds they were of different faiths and that the ceremony had been performed by Rev. W. Stevenson of the Bellevile Church of Scotland.

Dozens of complaints have been made locally regarding the manner in which pedestrians may be found strolling the roads and highways in this district after dark. Along No. 2 highway just west of the city, and on the by-pass bridge the condition is reported particularly bad. From the motorists' point of view the latter road is the most troublesome, owing to its darkness of surface and lack of reflection. Brazenly ridden bicycles are also a major problem of safe driving, it is reported.

"If those who must walk the roads at night would take a white handkerchief around their arm, and face oncoming traffic as they walk, they would find the chances of accident considerably reduced. Even the carrying of a folded newspaper would help greatly," the local office advises.

Specialists Amazed by Discovery Of Electric Currents in Brain

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

San Francisco, June 8—(AP)—New light on the human brain, in the form of long, low-voltage waves or direct electric current flowing from gray matter was discussed by the American Psychiatric Association here today.

This direct current is positive during consciousness, negative in unconsciousness and apparently is the forerunner of death when it lasts too long.

Its discovery amazed the brain specialists for two reasons. The brain gives off the direct current simultaneously with alternating current. One wave of the direct current lasts 10 to 30 minutes while the A. C. pulsates at an average of 10 a second.

The dreamers in the brain appear to be the individual cells of gray matter. According to the discussion here, these brain dynamos are capable of linking up like the stations of a super-power system. They combine into networks which change their size and their voltage in tune with the physical changes in gray matter during health and disease.

The direct current was discovered by Dr. Robert Cohn and Dr. Carl Langenstrass, of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Wash. It was detected while giving the new insulin shock treatment to patients suffering from schizophrenia.

Under insulin shock, a patient usually becomes unconscious. While the St. Elizabeth patients were conscious, the long waves of direct current were positive electricity. When they became unconscious the electric current was negative.

Experiments on cats with insulin shock were made by Dr. Cohn at an average of 10 a second.

The dreamers in the brain appear to be the individual cells of gray matter. According to the discussion here, these brain dynamos are capable of linking up like the stations of a super-power system.

Pedestrians Walking on Highways Advised to Wear White Arm Badges

Members of the Belleville Motor League, affiliate of the Ontario Motor League, are in full accord with attempts of the parent Association of Toronto in its effort at bringing to view the danger which exists on roads of the Province.

It is exceedingly death to walk on the highways at night without a badge, flashlight or something else to indicate your position on the roads to oncoming motorist," Mr. Thomas Mosher, secretary of the Ontario League has pointed out. While warning has found an echo of agreement from the officers of the Belleville branch.

Dozens of complaints have been made locally regarding the manner in which pedestrians may be

AIR RAIDERS SEEK BRITISH SHIPPING IS GENERAL BELIEF

Britain Moves to End Terrorism From The Skies

EFFORTS RENEWED

British Representatives in Spain Asked For Suggestions

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 8—(CP) Canada—Germany Franco air attacks on British shipping continue. Three more ships officially reported, two in Alicante harbor and one in Valencia. Authoritative sources say air raiders apparently sought out British ships as they were leaving the ports.

The British government, meanwhile is strenuously working to end the terrorism from the skies. Renewed efforts are to be made to create a consultative pact would be available in France to investigate charges of deliberate bombing of civilians by either side in Spain.

Suggestions Sought

British representatives at Burgos and Barcelona have been requested to forward suggestions as to what steps other interested powers have taken to prevent further attacks on merchant shipping. Action may will depend on their replies, which have not yet been received.

London, June 8—(CP-Havas)—Viscount Maillar returned to London unexpectedly today and immediately mounted over the bombing of British shipping in Spain.

He went immediately to the foreign office as the report of attacks on British property by Spanish insurgent aircraft were received. Parliament was informed that Mr. Whitsuntide holidays and the Foreign Secretary's return had not been anticipated.

Indignation in Press Grows

Indignation in the press grew. The Times (Independent) thinking at an international crisis "far graver than any which has yet come out of foreign intervention in Spain." General newspapers expressed the opinion that Geneva Britain no longer is able to control the foreign fliers in his army.

Canada, Spain, June 8—(AP)—Alone amid the bombed and machine-gunned this British-operated port, Canadian Consul Edward Sherwood-Kelly today awaited the midnight Tuesday deadline of former years, visited here last weekend, Miss Carmen Cavallaro, pianist, left herself in Detroit for once, said Boy host, Edward H. Newman.

FEDERAL POWER IN B.C. A JOKE SAYS BENNETT

Government Being Dictated to by The Provinces Also Claimed

LOTS OF CROSS-FIRE

Ottawa, June 8—(CP)—Federal government in Canada is now being dictated by the Provinces and Dominion power is being "killed" in Vancouver, in the opinion or opposition leader Bennett.

He told the House of Commons last night that "federal power in Vancouver is a joke and it is held up to the eyes of all the world that the Dominion's own property cannot be safeguarded by the Canadian people." It was an obvious reference to occupation of the post office in Vancouver by unemployed.

"You come to the Province of Alberta," he went on, "and find that its Premier is dictating to the affairs of the nation. There is no logical government. It is just what each Province says."

JAPANESE BOMBS STRIKE U.S. AND BRITISH WORKS

Two New Air Raids Today Inflict Heavy Property Damage

OIL TANKS HIT

Canton, China, June 8—(AP)—Two new bombardments of unprotected civilian quarters in this crippled city to at least 3,000 and 3,000 wounded in 12 successive days of Japanese air raids.

Two United States-owned properties, the Lingnan University and oil tanks of the Standard Oil Company were struck by Japanese bombs today.

The oil tanks burst into flame, spreading a conflagration that burned the terminal of the Canton-Hankow railroad and a 16-car train that just had arrived with 300 tons, temporary seat of China's government.

100 Houses Demolished

At least 300 new civilian casualties were inflicted on Ronan Island, an industrial district, Reverend Japanese bombs, apparently aimed at the Pearl River bridge, exploded in Honan's crowded streets, demolishing about 100 houses.

The reactionless course of Japanese bombing planes, however, were exacting a diminishing toll of lives. It was estimated fully 500,000 inhabitants of this war-crowded city of about 1,000,000 had fled. About one third of its residences have been vacated.

No accurate list of dead and injured could be compiled because many bodies still were buried in the debris or wrecked building with which they collided to keep pace with the destruction.

Score Direct Hits

A direct hit on Canton's power house plant early today knocked out, ending the city's air alarm system and crippling hospital services.

Bombs also struck homes in those ringing doorbells to warn inhabitants of the approaching planes. Seven were direct hits before daybreak and late in mid-morning.

The city's telephone system was silenced, making more difficult the search for relief and fire safety.

Besides the power station and the Canton-Hankow railroad, fires burning hours after the second raid, heaviest damage caused by the Japanese explosive and incendiary bombs was at a cement works and a British-owned waterworks.

BRITISH OWNED PORT IS BOMBED

Candia Near Valencia Suffers Heavy Loss in Property

Madrid, June 8—(AP)—Spanish insurgent planes today bombed the British-owned port of Candia, a suburb of Valencia, destroying two warehouses and tearing up a railroad.

The harbor of Candia, a small, modern port, is owned and operated by a British company. It is used exclusively for exporting British agricultural produce and importing fertilizer.

The British manager of the port said damage to the extensive area there were no casualties.

It was the first time Candia, whose rooftops are covered with the British colors, had been raided.

Because of the frequency of air raids on Valencia, Candia has been used for about two weeks as a port of call for British destroyers and cruisers in the Mediterranean.

Missionaries Administer City Newly-Occupied by Japanese

By JACQUES MARCUSE

Shanghai, June 8—(CP-Havas)—Kaifeng, newly-occupied by the Japanese, is being administered by a group of Canadian, British, American, Australian, and Italian missionaries, working together in a united committee.

This correspondent visited the various foreign groups in Kaifeng only a few days before the Japanese took possession of the city, and found them all, 70 strong, calmly rehabilitating at their posts and doing their utmost to cope with the problems of health and refugee crowded by war-time conditions.

The Protestant missions in Kaifeng are the Church of England in Canada, China Inland and Southern Baptist Missions.

Miss May Watts of St. Catharines, Ont., and Josephine Ward of the Canadian mission entertained the Havas correspondent at tea entirely unconcerned by the sound of firing that could be clearly heard from outside the city.

Their compound, topped by a great Union Jack on the principal building, is just the size of Bishop's College.

"We never thought of evacuating," they said. "It would be a cowardly thing to do to the unfortunate natives not counting on our help."

Twelve camps housing 30,000 women and children and aged were set up in the compound, 5,000 pounds. The missionaries constructed rude barracks and pooled all rehabilitated at their posts and doing their utmost to cope with the problems of health and refugee crowded by war-time conditions.

Last week the Church of England mission at Kaifeng was stated in Toronto to have five Canadian members—Miss Watts, Mrs. F. M. Simpson, widow of Canon Simpson, of Stirling, Ont.; Grace Gilbard, London, Miss M. Searle and Miss L. M. Racey, Winnipeg.)

"In addition, reports from Hankow last week said R. H. Gilbert had gone to Kaifeng from Kweilch.)

Vanderbilt Heir Weds Calif. Girl

New York, June 8—(AP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, heir to a $200,000,000 fortune and a leading turfman of the United States, was married today to Miss Manuela Hudson, sunburn-haired daughter of a San Francisco attorney.

The ceremony, culmination of a romance that began at Santa Anita race track last winter and continued through the meets at Pimlico and Belmont tracks, took place at the Sands Point, Long Island, estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson, mother of the Vanderbilt heir.

Vanderbilt is the son of Mrs. Emerson and the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed in 1917

ALBERTA GOV'T HAS WITHDRAWN SOME APPEALS

Decision on Disallowance And Reservation Taken Out of Court

OTHER APPEALS STAND

Ottawa, June 8—(CP)—The Alberta government has withdrawn its appeal to the Privy Council against the Supreme Court of Canada decision on disallowance and reservation of the accepted acts and decisions of the Supreme Court finding three Alberta acts unconstitutional, it was announced here.

Justice Minister Lapointe today issued the following statement:

"Our London agents advised me this morning that the representatives of the government of Alberta have been instructed to withdraw appeal in the case of reference to the Supreme Court of Canada with regard to the powers of disallowance and reservation of provincial legislation.

"The appeal of the Alberta government from decisions holding certain statutes ultra vires and unconstitutional will proceed and be heard on the early sitting of the Privy Council."

The Supreme Court of Canada upheld the Privy council in advising Government to disallow provincial legislation and the power of a Lieutenant Governor to reserve assent of provincial legislation for the signification of the pleasure of the Governor-in-council.

DROUGHT RUINS EUROPEAN CROPS

American Reports Italy, Russia And Rumania Are Hard Hit

New York, June 8—(CP)— A drought "worse than any in 100 years," combined with unseasonable cold, has ruined crops in Italy and domestic animal diseases, has created a "very alarming" agricultural situation in Rumania, Dr. D. Sallina of Chicago, managing director of the Italian Chamber of Commerce in America, said today.

Sallina said in an interview he purchased grain for Italy and Russia because no "sensing" in the last two months that the United States had had the agricultural products to send abroad "our farmers would be on a high plane of prosperity."

"In Europe, and that takes in practically every country of importance including Great Britain, they have been hit with a drought worse than any in 100 years," he said. "There isn't a country that hasn't been hit quite hard."

The drought began in March and has been continuous until the middle of May, he said, and there were frosts into May, slipping wheat crops that had pushed above ground. He also said farm animals had suffered considerably from plant and mouth diseases.

"Italy agriculturally is in a deplorable condition," he said. "Russia has been hit. Germany has had very little drought, but such that fires have burned crops. The Balkan crop in Ireland has been ruined."

'Thatcher' Wheat in Spring Belt Is Best Defence Against Rust

Chicago, June 8—(AP)—Rust, dark blood enemy of spring wheat fields, will encounter the best defence ever prepared by United States farmers in the vast spring wheat belt this year, crop experts said today.

The newest bulwark against the grain farmers' relentless enemy has been fashioned in the Agronomists Laboratories. It is the latest variety of rust resisting wheat, known as "thatcher."

Thousands farmers have been fighting the microscopic parasitic fungus which streaks with the red through golden wheat fields, turning them to a sickly brown.

They have had little success. Rust destroyed 200,000,000 bushels of the crop in 1935, and 100,000,000 bushels in 1935. The scourge, most prevalent during hot humid weather, was visited upon many fields last year.

The new thatcher wheat which has been evolved from cooperative researches in plant pathology and breeding has been sown in record-breaking acreage in the spring wheat belt of Canada, Minnesota and the Dakotas this year.

TWO MEN ARRESTED AFTER COMPLAINTS

Charged with the theft of lumber, with which they are alleged to have built a boat, Percy Bush and Elmer Babcock, both of Point Anne, were arrested by police on charges of theft last evening. The arrest of the two men followed complaints registered by Frank Marsele of Point Anne who alleged to police the lumber used in erection of the boat owned by Serp and Babcock was his property. The pair was arrested by Provincial Constable Carruthers and County Constable R. Bennett early last evening and held in custody until today, when they appeared before a Justice of the Peace. Bail is to be arranged. Police authorities state they will hold the boat in custody pending which time as the trial opens. Serp and Babcock deny the allegations. It is alleged information police the lumber was stolen last winter, at which time the boat is alleged to have been built also.

DANGER IN CROSSING C.P.R. CAR BRIDGE

Carrying an infant, and accompanied by a child of four or five who toddled along, a woman resident who attempted to cross the Canadian Pacific car bridge south of the city yesterday afternoon found herself in difficulties when an approaching freight train from the west threatened to meet her half way on the bridge. Aware of the approaching freight, the woman about one third across, hastily picked up the second child and retreated hurriedly, managing to recross the bridge a moment or so ahead of the engine. Several near accidents have been reported on this bridge since the removal of the Canadian National bridge used for years past as a handy footbridge for lower ward residents.

CHAIN LETTERS TRY TO MAKE COMEBACK

The chain letter racket is appearently being revived in Canada. Similar hoaxes have made their exit as people are getting greedier, it is noted by the request for dimes contained in two letters received this week by a local resident. One was addressed from New York City, the second from Detroit. Writers of both letters gave ten other addresses which the local man is asked to write and enclose ten cent pieces. However, the jetters have not reached their peak in volume of two years or so ago, and it is doubtful if they will report local letter carriers.

DEMONSTRATE NEW METHOD EXTRACTING WAX FROM HONEY

Beekeepers from the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox-Addington, Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough, Northumberland, representing the central and eastern district of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association, met in Belleville church on Tuesday where special demonstration classes were held, and much information of a beekeeping industry was engaged in.

Representing this local district, Reeve O. Lott of Holloway, Senior Inspector for Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland Counties, and L. Fair, agricultural representative for Hastings county district, were included in the many present.

One of the lessons demonstrated was a new kink in the extraction of wax from honey, by means of a new "solar wax extractor", a new method of overcoming an old problem.

The meeting will open from ten o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon, and was presided over by T. L. Bradt of the Ontario Honey Producers' Co-operative in Toronto.

Sink Hole on Faulkner Highway Creates Big Problem for Engineers

With four thousand yards of "filler" failing to check a gradual sinking two hundred feet of the road of Faulkner Highway north of Millbridge, construction company officials are considering other measures to halt a condition that is threatening to close traffic, reports from an authoritative source stated this morning.

Water-filled swamps on each side of the highway at this point are responsible for the failing way of the roadbed, the report stated. Thousands of yards of "filler" placed there a short time ago failed in remedy the situation with the result that dynamite may have to be resorted to in an effort to provide a solid bed for the highway. This part of the highway has been closed to traffic, pending further operations.

TRANSPORT BUS, TRUCK COLLIDE

Bus Loaded With Children Nearly Turns Over in Ditch

A bus load of school children narrowly escaped injury when a transport truck in which they were riding nearly turned over on highway No. 37, two miles north of Bloomville yesterday afternoon. The Corbyville bus, filled with school children, was returning to Corbyville when a tire truck driven by Ray Post, Belleville, backed from a gangway into the bus, causing considerable damage to the big truck.

Sergeant Harry Thompson, O.P.P., investigated and later stated Post was backing out from a gangway south of Canniffon and had apparently failed to observe the Corbyville bus approaching from the south and driven by Roy Topping. The big trucks backed across the road, striking the bus, but fortunately did not result in the larger bus turning over with its heavy load of human cargo.

Children's cries were heard as the two vehicles came together, but their children fears were soon dispelled when Mr. Topping expertly drove the bus to safety without injury to his passengers. Fenders of the trucks were badly damaged during the impact, however.

'Recession' May Cause Slackness In Tourist Trade

Though the city and the district as far as the northern limits of the county have been prepared for the annual invasion of the country by the thousands of United States tourists and queries regarding accommodation already received, probably as many as in past years, whether this country will experience any heavier than usual visiting influx this year is uncertain.

U.S. business men have been appearing on city streets and on highways entering and leaving Belleville in numerous cases, it is noted, and so far the tourist business has not felt its affects, it is stated by the local Chamber of Commerce office.

"Whether there will be a heavy season or not is open to conjecture," it is reported by the Chamber. "This year there is a definite slackening across the border and probably not so many will be able to visit Canada as in good years. They call it a 'recession.' Europe is still the same thing is being felt in Canada to a certain extent."

Next year Ion. Canada is to have a counter attraction which may result in a slackening of the tourist business here. The World's Fair which will be held in New York will undoubtedly attract many thousands whose holiday budget would not allow a trip to both Canada and the Fair, it is believed by the office.

Flower Seeds Bought From Peddler Grow Fine Crop of Weeds

Wearily spading his flower beds in preparation for a new planting of annuals, a resident of the Foxboro street resident is convinced this week that in future he will buy his "secrets" of seed peddled by transient salesmen with glowing promises for more beautiful flowers and bigger "outs".

Approached a month or so ago by the unscrupulous peddler the local resident became a victim of the glib sales talk by the peddler who guaranteed flowers beyond perfection, so plentiful that care must be taken to thin them out in the beds, and of colors which would make dingy and dull the brightest hues of the rich and glittering cover of the all-ambitious seed catalogues.

Buying several packages the resident planted them and sat back hopefully awaiting the usual full bloom of

HOLDS JUDGMENT AFTER AWARD OF FULL DAMAGES

Cleland Reid Given $500 by Jury in County Court

HIT BY ENGINE

Full claimed damages were awarded Cleland Reid, Trenton milkman in damage action brought against Canadian National Railways and heard at the opening of the June session of the Jury Sittings of the County Court which opened at the Court House before His Honor Judge Lavell of Kingston, yesterday. The action arose out of an accident that happened in Trenton last December, when a C.N.R. locomotive engine under struck an automobile driven along Front Street, Trenton by the plaintiff, Reid, damaging the car and injuring Reid.

After the jury returned their verdict of full damages, however, Robert Laidlaw, Toronto barrister representing the C.N.R., protested the decision contending the jury had not interpreted evidence as submitted them by His Honor and also cited numerous law decisions to substantiate his upholdings. Howard D. Graham, Trenton barrister, represented the plaintiff, Reid. His Honor reserved the final judgment of the court, however, to consider points of the law.

Nine Cases Listed

Nine criminal cases were listed for trial, one jury action and a non-jury case at the June session of the Jury Sittings of the County Court now in session before His Honor Judge Lavell. Eight charges of breaking, entering and theft were entered against George Bailey and one indictment preferred against Clarence Poole of this city, a charge of having stolen goods in his possession.

While the Grand Jury considered the nine criminal indictments, the court proceeded with the lone jury damage action of Reid vs. the C.N.R., an action for $500.00 damages which the plaintiff, Cleland Reid sought after an accident implicating his automobile with a C.N.R. locomotive under tender morning of December 28th, 1937.

The plaintiffs held the defendants displayed no warning signals and showed gross negligence and also claimed damages for the damage to his car and personal injuries received. The defendants held that the accident was caused by the plaintiff's own negligence and that sufficient warnings had been seen and heard.

School Boy Called

Douglas Van Meer 14-year-old Smith's Falls school boy, was first witness called. "I was visiting at Trenton around Christmas and was out with Cleland Reid, the milkman, in his car, stated witness.

"What were the weather conditions?" asked Mr. Graham.

"It was raining but freezing also" replied witness as he stated he looked both ways upon approaching the crossing.

"What happened then?" continued Mr. Graham.

"I heard a crash and was knocked out of the car. Afterwards I looked around and saw the tender of an engine on the crossing where it hit us, Mr. Reid was lying inside the car and unconscious as he had been hurt during the accident," stated the witness.

Heard No Warning

Did you see or hear anything as you approached the crossing?" continued Mr. Graham. "No, Sir," replied the lad.

Upon cross-examination by Mr. Laidlaw the witness said he was in relation to the plaintiff whatsoever.

Cleland Reid, Trenton milkman and plaintiff in the case, stated he was delivering milk on the morning of the accident.

"Were you driving?" asked Mr. Graham.

"Yes, sir."

"How fast?"

"About 15 miles per hour."

"How was your car mechanically?"

"In good condition."

"Could you see allright?"

"Yes, I could. I looked both ways and saw no signs of any train, nor heard anything, although the car window on my side was open," continued Mr. Reid.

"What happened then?" asked Mr. Graham.

"As I approached the crossing it was here and I started over it, and that's the last I remember," replied the witness, who added he next recalled being aroused in the nearby home of Mrs. Burke where he had been carried in an unconscious condition.

Did Not Question Damages

At this point Mr. Laidlaw assured the court he did not intend to question the amount of personal damages ($500.00) if his firm was judged negligent.

Upon cross-examination Mr. Reid admitted there were no obstructions to block one's view of over 300 feet approaching the crossing.

"I'd say it was a wide-open crossing," added Mr. Laidlaw.

"Was your windshield frozen over?" asked Mr. Laidlaw.

"Oh, slightly obscured."

"Did you see any train during the last 40 or 50 feet from the crossing?"

"No."

"Well, where did the train come from then?" asked Mr. Laidlaw.

"That's what I'd like to know," replied Reid.

"Did you hear the train approaching?"

"No, sir."

"If other people saw a light on the train and heard it, why didn't you?" asked Mr. Laidlaw.

"I might have mistaken the street light for the train light," replied witness.

"Can you blame the railroad for that?" concluded Mr. Laidlaw.

Garageman Heard Whistle

C. Vanalstine, Trenton garageman, was the first witness called by the defence. "I was opening my service station about 8:20 a.m. and heard a whistle and bell of an engine very clearly. Later I heard a crash but paid no attention as the train shunts cars around there, the sounds were quite clear though," stated Mr. Vanalstine.

Upon cross-examination the witness admitted he heard bells and whistles for some time before the crash, but it was at least 15 minutes afterwards before the trainman came to his garage for help.

Mrs. Minnie Cerrulo who resides near the crossing, stated she heard the engine bell and whistle but not the crash.

"Did your husband ever work on the C.N.R.?" asked Mr. Graham.

"Yes, he's waiting to get back on the spare list," admitted the witness.

Donald Burke, Trenton, also heard an engine whistle prior to the accident as did Reginald Goodwin, both of whom reside nearby the scene.

Inspect on Crossing

Jos Herrington, Trenton garage mechanic, who was an eye-witness to the accident, said the engine and car came to a point of impact on the centre of the crossing. "The bell was ringing, the whistle sounded and there was a small light on the tender," added the witness.

"Did you tell Mr. Reid you were not certain whether the bell was ringing or not?" asked Mr. Graham.

"I did," concluded the witness.

In summing up the case, Mr. Laidlaw stated: "As long as we have level crossings in Canada there will be dangers. This plaintiff, perhaps, was careless as he knew this crossing too well and took too much for granted," added Mr. Laidlaw as he reviewed the evidence and asked for a dismissal.

In reply Mr. Graham pointed out the frankness of young Van Meer's evidence.

"The train crew knew whether the bell and whistle sounded, but the railway company did not see fit to bring those men into court. I ask you to consider why?" explained Mr. Graham as he reviewed the Railway Act, which he contended had been violated.

"Gentlemen of the jury, I am here to instruct you as to the law" stated His Honor Judge Lavell as he reviewed sections of the Highway Traffic Act for the benefit of the jury.

Ten Can Decide

"Reference has been made regarding absence of the train crew. Would their presence and evidence change your opinion? I don't think this is important too important. You don't have to be unanimous, ten may decide the matter," concluded His Honor.

The jury retired and deliberated less than an hour before returning to award the plaintiff full amount of damages claimed. His Honor reserved the final judgment of the court, however.

The court adjourned until 9.00 a.m. today.

JURY RETURNS 9 TRUE BILLS

Eight of the Bills Against George Bailey of Point Anne

Nine true bills were returned by the Grand Jury at the opening of the June Jury Sittings of the County Court, at the County Court House in Belleville before His Honor Judge Lavell, of Kingston, yesterday afternoon.

Eight indictments were presented by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., before the Grand Jury charging George Bailey, Point Anne, with eight counts of breaking, entering and theft. True bills and indictments were returned on each count, Bailey having elected trial by jury when arraigned in local police court some weeks ago. Bailey will be placed on trial at the present sittings.

The remaining criminal case is a charge of having possession of stolen goods, knowing the same to be stolen, an indictment preferred against Clarence Poole of this city. A true bill on this indictment was also returned. All nine charges were preferred by Provincial Police authorities.

The Grand Jury, composed of Walter Aselstine (foreman), Chas. Chase, Joseph Coulter, Fred Gray, Fred McKee, Angus Mumby, Percy Pudgett, E. E. McCord, Clarence Carman, Thomas Cousins, Harry Coutts, Claude Phillips and Herbert Wark, was impanelled by Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn and was instructed to today inspect all County Buildings, when court resumed.

One Application For Naturalization Deferred a Year

Five applicants for Canadian naturalization were presented before His Honor Judge Lavell, Kingston, at the opening of the June session of the Jury Sittings of the County Court in session at Belleville. His Honor indicated favourably upon four of the applicants, deferring one application for a period of one year, however.

The applicant to be further considered was the last man to appear before His Honor, Nicolo Tomasso, of this city. The applicant was born in Italy in 1907, he stated and came to Canada in 1927, residing two years at Montreal and later coming to Belleville where he has resided ever since.

"I should draw your attention to the notation made by the Under-Secretary of State to this man's application papers," Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., pointed out. His Honor read the document and addressing Tomasso said: "I see you have been arrested, once for theft, in 1927 We have to be sure we naturalize the proper type of citizen. What was your trouble, young man?" His Honor asked of the applicant.

"I got in trouble for leaving the scene of an accident and later for consuming liquor," readily admitted Tomasso,

"I suggest you make application for naturalization in one year's time. Of course all will depend upon your behaviour whether or not it shall be granted even then," Judge Lavell warned his applicant.

Application Deferred

"Can we mark that application deferred, Your Honour?" questioned Crown Attorney Donnan. An answer was given in the affirmative.

The remaining four to seek Canadian naturalization papers were: John D. Bradenberg of Carlow Township, farmer, who was born in Germany in 1900 and came to Canada in 1883. Mr. Brandenberg is married with a family. Next was Edward L. Muscow, Monteagle Township farmer, who came to Canada from Germany in 1862 and has resided at Monteagle Township since 1865. Andrew Wallace, Point Anne labourer, who was born in Rumania in 1913 and came to Canada in 1926 to reside at Point Anne and John Bastici, also of Point Anne. This applicant was born in Poland and came to Canada in 1911. His Honor spoke favorably regarding the last four named and informed them he would recommend them for naturalization in due form.

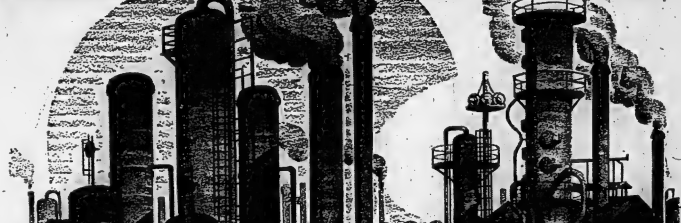
CANDIDATES END BID FOR BALLOTS

Voters Trip to Polls to Elect Government For Saskatchewan



Regina, June 8.—(CP)—Candidates ended their bid for ballots in the Saskatchewan general election campaign today and voters trooped to the polls to pick membership of the province's ninth legislative assembly. Election of six men at a Social Credit meeting at Melville featured election eve gatherings.

Balloting started at 9 a.m. (noon EDT) and will end at 5 p.m. (8 p.m. EDT) when deputy returning officers and their staffs will begin counting more than 400,000 ballots. Fair weather was promised by the about 500 weatherman for voters to select 30 members from a field of 156 candidates. Voting in two other ridings, Athabasca and Cumberland, is deferred to July 28.

Premier Patterson, head of the Liberal government, opened up his campaign with speeches at Windthorst and Sedley. George Williams, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation opposition, is in Regina. Premier of the home constituency of Wadena and J. G. Diefenbaker, Conservative leader, spoke in his Farm River riding.

It was left to Melville to take the spotlight. Premier Aberhart of Alberta, leader of the Western Canada Social Credit Association, wound up the Social Credit campaign with a meeting attended by 1,000 while a block away Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture and former Saskatchewan Premier, addressed a gathering of

WALT DISNEY HONORED

Walt Disney, who has made millions of children and adults laugh with creations which are as living as fairy stories of the great masters of "Once upon a time" and also which are shrewd satiric critics of manners in this era which he has put into unforgettable pictures, looked a smile of pleasure when he was presented with a degree at the University of California "for distinguished achievements in cinematography" the other day.

Amazing as are some of the effects which the ordinary movies can attain, there is special triumph in the cartoon. There is, too, the contrast between the voice and the character whether it be a duck or a fairy princess or a goblin, a horse or a rooster, or whatever Micky Mouse's creator wants to introduce. He can make any setting with the brush of his hand or artists, can make a character of anything, a tree or stump or birds and flowers. Herein Walt Disney through his imagination and skill in dramatizing, his skill in building up stories such as not even the fairy tales can excel, his joy of life which he distributes through the world of his millions of spectators, has made a distinguished achievement in the cinematograph. He would appear to have founded forever the animated cartoon as a piece of art. His works are gems of their kind.

Such a contrast to the general background of cinematography enriches this art of making people happy through the eye and the ear.

POETRY FROM A HOSPITAL

From the hospitals of New York City come bits of poetry which win awards of the Barnard College students who are interested in poetry. At one of the hospitals a thirteen year old girl, Florence McGowan, took first prize with the following poem:

A GIFT OF GOLD

Last year when Autumn came
With scarlet feet
And shed the trees with flame
Along my street,
She left a golden gift
While passing by,
And given today to lift
My heart on high;
For love came following
The trail of Fall,
And now, remembering,
I hear love call.

Simplicity, grasp of language, thought, rhythm and imagery mark this young girl's work, which is really unusual for one of her years. In the hospital she has probably turned her thoughts within and read a message in Autumn.

In all twelve prizes for poetry were won in the New York City Hospitals.

LATE HON. M. M. MacBRIDE

Readers of the newspapers of the past few years know how closely the late Hon. M. M. MacBride of Renfrew impressed himself upon the people. His sudden death on Sunday morning, following his active work of the past week, brought expressions of sympathy from all parts of the province to the family of the Minister. He was one of the more influential men whom Ontario has developed in public life and will be missed.

As a Minister of Labor he had a deep understanding of the temperament and nature of his fellowmen and could not but be of service, equipped as he was for the office of Labor Minister. His death at a comparatively early age has removed one who could serve greatly his province well for years had he been spared.

A LESSON FOR THIS AGE

In an age when there are denials of the Deity, the words of Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside Church, New York, come with peculiar relevance and importance. This is one of the ages which deify strength and force and would find a basis for everything in something else than what the Christians call God, Dr. Fosdick speaks with an impressiveness which those who were present at those who heard his utterance. Dr. Fosdick said: "Many of the finest characters we know are the servants of a God whom they do not recognize, or whom they call by another name than Christians use.

"Sometimes we in the churches have drawn our lines too tight. And drawing such lines, we have sometimes seemed to imply that because some people were outside our lines they must be beyond the reach of God. That cannot be true.

"Rather like the sun, God comes in through every crack and crevice where He can find a way. He does not demand to be welcomed first before He will enter. Many a fine man, therefore, who says he disbelieves in God has not thereby escaped God God has been dealing with him."

These words sound much like the words and sentiment of the great poem of Francis Thompson, "The Hound of Heaven" wherein Christ is pictured as pursuing with relentless love the human soul, which can never get beyond the range of His love.

EMPIRE-BORN

Who who are born of the Empire.
We who are bred of her bones,
Feel in our hearts like a fire
Love of her earth, of her stones.
Dearest of all is our mother,
England, our lady of dreams,
Sweeter than sister or brother,
Beacon of glory that gleams.

Here is our hearts' deep devotion,
Here is our love to command:
Sundered by sea and by ocean
Yet are we one, land to land.
Hedges of hawthorn entrancing.
Primroses pale in the dell,
Green glades where bluebells are dancing,
Beauty of moorland and fell . . .

Next in our hearts is the birthland,
Continent, island, or cay,
Mountain or prairie and lone sand
Set in the snow of the sea.
Maples that broider the morning,
Foui that goldens the hill,
Deodars starlight adorning,
Palms that enchant us at will . . .

These in our hearts are the dearest.
England and where we were born;
These of our loves are the surest,
Mother of mine, I salute.
Love of a mortal may sever;
Love of a lover may fly;
These are the loves that will never
Slacken or falter or die.

LET THERE BE LIGHT AND MORE LIGHT, "THE HYDRO IS YOURS USE IT". Belleville merchants went to considerable trouble and expense to augment the street lighting in the business section with colored lights. The colored lights were used during the Christmas season, then turned off and have not been used since, although ready at a moment's notice to be turned on. The business men of Belleville paid for the colored lights and installation and turned them over to the City Council as a gift, together with a three year insurance policy against possible accidents through the additional electrical installation. The lights have been out of commission since Christmas for no apparent reason. The Belleville Retail Merchants Association believe that the lights should be turned on nightly during the tourist season as an advertisement showing the progressiveness of Belleville, and make Beautiful Belleville Bright as well as Beautiful. If the lights are turned on Saturday evenings during the summer the merchants believe more business will be attracted to the city, and proving that there is no shortage of available electricity in the city owned system, can not understand why it is not turned on to the advantage of all citizens. If it is true as asserted that "The Hydro Is Yours Use It" the merchants and citizens generally think that it should be used in this particular case. It seems a shame that after all the time and effort spent upon providing the funds for the purchase of the lights from the local Hydro that they should be permitted to remain unused, especially when other communities between Toronto and Montreal on Highway No. 2 are such shining examples of progressiveness.

WHEN A MAN IS NOT PERMITTED TO ATTEND HIS OWN WEDDING it is surely an evidence that Dictatorship as it is in Europe is a ghastly menace. Former Chancellor of Austria, Kurt Schuschnigg was married in Vienna but was not permitted to attend his own wedding. The wedding is said to have been performed by proxy, the groom's brother being not only best man but proxy groom. Chancellor Schuschnigg's predecessor in office was murdered because he would not submit to Austria being swallowed up by Germany. Schuschnigg was deprived of his liberty, placed under arrest, and subjected to humiliating indignities because he desired to keep Austria independent as provided for by the Treaty as Versailles.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 8th., 1918.

The members of the cast of "The Girl from Kokomo" travelled to Deseronto yesterday afternoon in motor cars and in the evening presented the popular musical comedy at the opera house in that town to a large audience. Those present enjoyed the performance greatly.

The Albert College Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Jessie Tulle presented the play "Down in Maine," at the Conservatories in Madoc last evening. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the I. O. D. E. of the village and was much enjoyed.

Mrs. A. Lane and Mrs. N. Cranson, of Belleville, are the guests of Mrs. Edward Deacon, Murney Street.

Mrs. E. H. Tickell, of Port Hope, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Harvey, in this city.

30 YEARS AGO

June 8th., 1908.

The practice of riding bicycles upon the sidewalks in this city is becoming altogether too common according to Chief of Police and must be stopped. Offenders will be summoned to appear in police court.

Mrs. R. L. Welch, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Walter Black, of Belleville, are visiting their mother, Mrs. G. Backus, South John Street.

Mr. and Mrs. David Harrison will leave shortly to spend the summer at Elgin, N. B., where they will enjoy the ocean breezes.

Mrs. Parker Allen, of Kingston, formerly of Adolphustown, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bottrell, in this city.

The row of streets in this city are a good three inches thick with dust. If cleaned after the rain that it would be an aid for which many people would be thankful.

Mr. Hess inspected the camping grounds at Presqu'ile and Oak Hill Pond is one which is the most suitable for the Y. M. C. A. camp, however, no decision has not yet been decided upon.

POWDERED APPLES

The curative properties of apples combined with Twinolo internally is curative virtues. Not so with the Germans. The better known old adage is to them the best excuses to which they put its wisdom. A Sufferer, after the Great War to do more than keep the doctor way, as it verily does if eaten in sufficient quantity. A physician—Dr. Heisler—cured serious cases of dysentery among German soldiers by prescribing raw apples. The apple became more and more commonly prescribed by German doctors. It was found by Dr. Moro of Heidelberg, to be admirably curative in infant complaints. Finally grated apple has become a specific for children in Germany, and as many as 20 grated apples a day are sometimes given to adults.

Shortage of the apple supply combined with Twinolo internally of application to devise a form of apple content which might be more convenient while being preservative. Apple powder was devised. This is different from apple juice, like the Gravenstein, have been found by medical men in Australia not to possess curative qualities. But once apple powder was put into a German firm, or it served in cases where the raw or cooked fruit was unobtainable could be shipped to the tropics and other regions in which the apple neither grows nor can be grown.

The apple powder seems a use to which the apple could profitably be put in Canada. It supplements those standbys of the apple sold by the barrel as fresh fruit, or trampled into the characteristic dried apple which fills the pies in so many restaurants. It has the curatively value of being producible from apples that may be edible but are unacceptable in purple.

The apple powder is made from the unpeeled fruit, and so contains the skin that is the richest source of the best of the apple being in the skin. Attention of the virtues of the fresh fruit it is to be noted that it is a long time, and can be canned, as it is now being canned in various parts of the world, as a fruit purchased and as well preserved as is the boiled sock-eye or the pulped tomato. A teaspoonful is said to be a dose suitable to the youngest child. The powder dissolves in five to ten minutes in water.

Germany has found its apples to make its orchard supply go as far as possible. Tannate powders, by apples to help dispose of its surplus fruit. Pectin of Canada have stocks of apples left to rot, for the sake of a market to consume them. If these apples are the curative values missing only in a few varieties, they should yield tannate-alively if powdered and canned.

TOO SMART!

A catalogue of farming implements sent out by a manufacturer found its way to a distant mountain village, where it was received with great interest.

The manufacturer received a card from the villagers, informing him that they could not order anything from his catalogue because they had no money.

To this, in the usual business way, was sent a typewritten answer: Almost by return mail came a reply.

"You fellows need not think you are so smart—and you need not print your letters to me. I can read them."

DON'T EXPECT AN OPERATION TO DO THE DEPORTING

One of the jokes about physicians and surgeons, common a few years ago, was about the workman who had badly injured his right arm and fingers. As he was about to undergo the anaesthetic he asked the surgeon if he would be able to play the piano after the arm and hand were repaired, to which the surgeon unwittingly answered "Yes".

"That's great," said the patient, "because I never could play the piano."

I sometimes think that many patients about to undergo operation expect the operation will make them entirely new men and women, forgetting that perhaps they never have been rugged, and also forgetting that they are ailing for months before operation was decided upon as a last resort.

Thus an old or chronic case of ulcer of stomach or intestine, a chronic irritable gall bladder, or the so-called chronic appendicitis, may have been patiently endured, a low physically that operation is successful in that the ulcer or perhaps never was, much strength of body or resistance to be restored.

What is called constitutional inadequacy—an inborn lack of stamina is adequate or equal to the attacks of life—is now receiving the attention of those rulers have in mind trying to put their peoples in the best possible condition, as for example of war and defence.

We do not all start out of equally in physical strength or resistance to disease. Some of us have the tendency to develop tuberculosis, carculosis and stomach ulcers, others have the body-constitution prone to heart, liver, gall bladder, bloodvessel and kidney ailments and cancer. But there is such a descriptive term into which forearm critics can put the themselves be betrayed. They must not speak of this motherhood race as a characteristically weakling of the health condition for weeks or months previous to the birth of with what can reasonably be expected from operation for, as Dr. Fielding Garrison, of New York University says, "You can't transform a greyhound into a bulldog by 'any operation.'"

SILENCE DEFINED

Those who take too literally the old adages about golden silence and the emptiest drum making the most noise, would do well to, in this era of self-improvement, to run into cost discussion. It is not enough to be a "good listener"—a quiet listener. It is necessary to understood and which might apply in all sorts of ways—for there appear to be times when silence is not as well as talking. There is, according to Sir Arthur Salter, in his Personality, a delicate relationship between the talker and the talkee. Much is said in this day about the art of conversation dying out, and the blame is laid largely on the completing knocks of the cocktail hour and the hurried pace of life. analysis of silence. Yet, according to Mr. Wright, there are these distinctions:

Defensive silence.
Contemptuous silence.
Preparatory silence.
Receptive silence.
Cooiributory silence.

The first, defensive, is patiently to keep what one knows to oneself, are, and is probably needful of the best hospital conditions and this expression and mood. The second, the investigator, is another artful, but quite is necessary; if you want to find out about a person just urge the person to express himself by using a sop to the ego. The preparatory silence is that which is the pungent remark after a fairly animated discussion, which nobody was entitled to interrupting. The receptive is to end a conversation run into a monologue, contributory silence is for confessional talks and is not particularly edifying.

All of which overlooks—in keeping with the general and deplorable tendency to ignore the social aspects—the fact that many people keep silence because they have not the other words Mr. Wright's listing of silences. Some people are afraid of boredom; a silence that can take almost any form, of which the most comfortable and profitable is sleep.—Hamilton Spectator.

FEDERAL POWER

Political vacillations and crossfire erupted throughout debates yesterday but no progress was made. Amendments to the Indian Act and the much-discussed transport commission bill were adopted and sent to the Senate.

A clash came when Mr. Bennett was urging the government to use the dumping duty to protect the Canadian market for oil production in Turner Valley.

Predicts Downfall

When reminded by a Liberal member that he had promised in 1930 to end unemployment or perish in the attempt, Mr. Bennett retorted his administration had perished and the present administration would meet the same fate. He then suggested the present government was being led by the Prince Rupert.

During a discussion of the progress being made by the house, Justice Minister Lapointe remarked the government had been busy listening to speeches.

"Well, they have been poor listeners," Mr. Bennett replied. "For the Prime Minister had not been in this house an average of an hour and a half a day since the session opened."

Mr. Lapointe said this was not fair, that the Prime Minister was tired and had not been well for a few days. "We did not do the same thing to my honorable friend," he said.

Mr. Bennett replied that "day after day, week after week you referred to the Prime Minister from my place because I was working long hours on work that I had to do."

Fresh Air

By ELSA BURNS

"You'll have to give that child more air—that is what the child needs, Mrs."

Young Dr. McClaren was not supposed to remember the names of all the women in the charity ward.

"Just air, Doctor?"—Mrs. Landow looked disappointed. "No medicine?"

The doctor shook his head and a thoughtful light came into his eyes. He hurried out of the door into the crowded waiting room.

There were many more mothers than the tidily putty-faced hollow-eyed children.

Mrs. Landow gave a sigh as she put on Carol's shiny new rubbers over his old shoes with the holes in the toes and the soles. Then she gave another sigh as her workroughen, hands wound and wound yards of semi-clean flannel around the thin scrawled throat of Cesar.

"Fresh air!" she echoed back the words. Medicine would have been much easier, oh, infinitely much easier for her to give Cesar.

"Well," murmured the woman, as she and the thin, wan little figure slipped from the room together, "he can have the bed—that's all."

He continued to muse to herself over the subject as she and Oscar crawled into a subway and then rocketed homeward.

But little did the doctor know where the address she had given to Dr. Lane was—in the East Vera street. It was down by the tracks, and there, 11 was an inside court room in the basement, Mr. Landow's grandfather had unusually had for the past two months and though he made desperate efforts, he was unable to leave his bed. This made it urgent that Mrs. Landow do two washings a day in order that the family might continue to eat—which, after all, is more bread and coffee, with a pint of milk each day for Cesar. Yes, a pint of milk each day for Cesar, and—well, it mustn't be given to anywhere—she had heard it, too, that fresh country air was good for any one without milk.

Then the doctor said—fresh air! Mr. Landow's heart lasted only two weeks after that day at the Fresh Air and Clinic, the first in November.

Mrs. Landow never went back to 11 East Vera. She got a job downtown in the scrubbing forces. Then her insurance money—the bit that Mr. Landow had left her—was collected and she bought herself a new black dress and a black hat.

Then she looked at herself she decided to try at the agencies for a live job.

Before she had married she had been a nurse girl for Mrs. Spencer Tracy, and she remembered—and—

"You still retain your references?" the woman, hard-looking woman at the agency had questioned her.

"Yes, ma'am."

"I've just the place for you—"

So Mary Landow became a child's nurse again. She stepped and prayed that it might be a little more permanent than the last bands and held back the tears, Oh, that last place! She did think that she would not be reminded of little Cesar.

But it was a boy—sturdy and rotchecked, and four years old. A pleasant-looking boy, with the rat-raccoon coat and his raccoon cap, and his little sturdy legs over his ears and his warm, snug, fur-lined gloves—a laughing, carefree little boy. And he was to be entertained twice a day to choose what vehicle he would ride in the park—choosing the cutting that lasted from 10 until 3 each afternoon.

Some days there was the velocipede, another day the wooden wagon, or a blue toy automobile with which he could run himself.

But when the blusty winter days set in he was taken to the park out in the large gray car, and the child and Mary were tucked in with layers of blankets. Sometimes the fresh air always brought the red of health to the child's face.

At the end of the first months Mrs. Mary Landow's salary was raised. Mary her check. It read $80 instead of $70.

"Why—is this, Mrs. Gray?" asked Mary.

"Marion loves you so very much."

"But Mary sighed.

"But I can't, Mrs. madam—I mean the whole of it. I only want $70, because—I'm leavin' — I'm quittin'—"

"Leaving us, you mean?"

"Yes, Mrs. Gray."

"Why—won't you tell me why, Mary?" Mrs. Gray asked.

"I dunno—I dunno as if I could—can't—and the first years that Mary had allowed herself since she had left 11 East Vera, fell down her face in a shower. "I'll build a little boy, once, mum—"

"Mary—Mary—"

And Mary went back to scrubbing. And she never got much from air that way'd be did want any.

LONG PAYMENT

It is estimated that it will be necessary for 100,000 cars to cross the Toronto bridge during the next year for half a century to make it pay for itself. Nobody knows exactly what usually happens to international traffic over the bridge during the summer period. But, there can be little doubt that the very existence of the new route will bring to it a considerable traffic that would otherwise travel in a different direction.—Brockville Recorder.

More than 1,300,000 people in England are buying homes through the building societies.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott of Moira, wish to announce the engagement of their second eldest daughter, Ida Josephine, to Lorne Harry Shapley, eldest son of Mrs. Shapley and the late Harry Shapley of Stirling. The marriage will take place on June 18th. J6-11

Judge Fred S. Taft and grandson Nathan Shutz, of Santa Monica, Calif., are the guests for a short time of Judge Taft's cousin, Mrs. G. T. Lazier, 307 William St.

Mrs. B. Sietleo of Kemptville Agricultural School, is spending her vacation at her home in the city.

Mrs. Herb Muir and Mrs. Wilfrid Bellis were hostesses at the Belleville Golf Club on this afternoon.

Mrs. Herbert Foster and daughter, Mrs. James McPherson, of Vancouver, B.C., are guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Thomas Nightingale, King's Island.

Colonel W. N. Ponton, M.A., attended the closing session of the Senate of University of Toronto on Monday. A feature of the session was the establishment of a two year course for pilots in aerial navigation, which is especially interesting to Belleville and the District, pictures of whose good work appeared in Monday's Ontario - Intelligencer issue.

Miss Margaret Lake, 22 Colbourne Street, is resting comfortably after an operation yesterday in Belleville General Hospital.

Misses Pauline Mary Quinn and Catherine Cecelia Mervin, Tweed, Marjorie Mary Donnelly, Ticket Beth Kerr and Constance Eleanor Cobley, Stirling, were among the nurses graduating from the training school for nurses of Hoard Memorial Hospital.

The home of Mrs. Harry A. Thompson, Catherine Street, was the scene of a pretty event yesterday arranged by the Young Women's Guild of Bridge Street Church. Mrs. Reg. Wardle, president of the Guild, assisted the hostess in receiving. The guests were invited to the tea room by Mrs. Evan Barker, "Fragrant Hills" of the valley road honeysuckle were used as a charming centrepiece for the tea table at which Mrs. A. Carmichael poured. The tea assistants were Mrs. M. Farrow, Mrs. Irene Way, Mrs. Noel Hallam, Miss Pauline Watler, Mrs. Thomas Hallam, Miss Margaret Orr and Miss Lottie Warham. The homecoming was in charge of Mrs. R. Hunton, Mrs. Holland and Mrs. Ellis, and Mrs. Wright of the kitchen. The treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. Walter Hoss.

The brides and tea at the Country Club yesterday was a splendid success. Twenty-six ladies of bridge were in play and many guests came in later for tea. Prizes were won by Mrs. Percy Allen, first, and Mrs. E. Logan, second. During the tea hour, Mrs. R. H. Martin poured, the table looking most attractive with its centrepiece of yellow roses and matching tapers.

Weddings

WATERHOUSE—HUBBS

The wedding took place in Rednerville on Tuesday at 2 p.m. of Florence May, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hubbs of Rednerville and Gordon Weir, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Waterhouse of Mountain View. The ceremony was performed by the Rednerville Parsonage by Rev. W. H. Sanderson.

After a short trip to Toronto and westerly points, the young couple will reside on the Second Concession of Ameliasburg.

Women of Mouse Elect Officers

The regular meeting of the Women of the Mouse, Belleville Chapter 635, was held in the Mouse Auditorium last evening, Senior Regent, Mrs. Gordon Catherine Smith, Washington, D.C., congratulating the new officers on their several commitments.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Past Regent—Mrs. McGinnis.
Senior Regent—Mrs. Thos. York.
Junior Regent—Mrs. J. Chapman
Chaplain—Mrs. Fred Ashman
Recorder—Miss Mary Doran.
Treasurer—Mrs. Irene Holland.
Guide—Co-Workers Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Phillips.
Sentinel—Co-Worker Mrs. Connell.
Argus—Co-Worker Mrs. Ritch.

BRIDGE ST. W. M. S.

The June meeting of the Bridge Street W.M.S. was held Friday afternoon in the ladies' parlor. A good number were present. The president Mrs. Semple, presided. Hymn 128 was sung, followed by prayer. Reports were given and offering received. After singing Hymn 375, Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Boorman's group took charge of the meeting. Mrs. H. Ackerman read the Scripture lesson from the 7th chapter of Luke, followed by prayer by Mrs. Baker. Three very interesting papers were given on Missions, the first being given by Mrs. Buchanan on "Missions Among the Indians of Canada. Mrs. Hyde spoke of the work being done in Japan, Trinidad and Korea. Mrs. Semple told of the work of Albert Swittser and his wife among the victims of leprosy and sleeping sickness in Africa. A very pleasing reading was given on Missions by Deacon, which was much enjoyed. Hymn 500 was sung and the meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

DELIGHT IN DISORDER

A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness:
A lawn about the shoulders thrown
Into a fine distraction:
An erring lace, which here and there
Enthrals the crimson stomacher:
A cuff neglectful, and thereby
Ribbons to flow confusedly:
A winning wave, deserving note,
In the tempestuous petticoat:
A careless shoe-string, in whose
I see a wild civility:
Do more bewitch me than when art
Is too precise in every part.
—Robert Herrick.

PARTING AT MORNING

Round the cape of a sudden came the sea,
And the sun looked over the moun-
tain's rim:
And straight was a path of gold
for him,
And the need of a world of men for me.
—Robert Browning.

Sometimes frankness and taking things as a joke is the "best medicine," as the Indians say. You might do as a correspondent of mine did under similar circumstances. Next time she saw the young man who feared she was trying to "rope him in," she laughingly gayly and said: "Would you like to have it in writing that I've no intention of leading you to the altar?"

WANTS TO SEE LIFE BEFORE GETTING MARRIED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going "steady" with a boy of 20 for about seven months. I'm 18 years old and I don't intend to marry anyone before I'm at least 22. When I told him this, he was very much surprised and sort of hurt. He tried to tell him so before this, I don't know where he got the impression that I intend to marry.

I want to go out with a lot of boy friends and get life before I decide to marry. This boy is the quiet type and when he goes with a girl he thinks he wants to marry her. Would you suggest I go with him until I'm 22 and then marry, or go out with others?

He says he loves me but I'm not sure I love him. Please help me solve my problem. I am terribly Worried.

It's highly sensible of you to decide not to marry till you're older, and, of course, not one boy in ten thousand can afford to marry at 18 unless parents agree to help or the boy has independent means. But they all think they'd like to marry at 20, and they become jealous if the girl friend goes out with others.

As to having a lot of boy friends, it's much better that girls and boys know they're very young, have plenty of friend, instead of concentrating on one. In spite of today's hectic pace, girls who haven't seen too much of life are the ones chosen for the wedding march.

Fashion Flashes

ALL DAY SERVICE is the purpose of the lovely prints and enchanting frocks featured. A sophisticate is in chiffon, brown and white in a delicate Persian design with matching jacket. A simple frock has a wide corselet in black and a long, loose coat of the same fabric.

OLD WORLD CHARM is present in many of the new evening capes. Schiaparelli makes a beauty, a ruffled tiered cape in shocking pink satin, lined with black and white taffeta ribbons.

PLENTY OF APPLAUSE for the work done by the perfectly cut white frock for afternoon wear. A new model is a white flat crepe, cut on the bias with a sun-ray of tucks on each shoulder. A huge rhinestone and enamel flower spray holds he bodice, which has a deep V closing.

STARTLING DRAMA seems to be the theme of many evening gowns. This is particularly true of a model of white silk jersey, absolutely sculptured to the figure. It is strapless and the bodice is made in a series of sculptured shell-like folds, each held by a tiny star of brilliants.

DON'T WAIT until stocks are low to choose your linens and aprons. A visit to the store now will disclose lovely warm-weather frocks at reasonable prices. Each season the details and the finish of these frocks show an improvement.

BIRDS FLY onto many of the newest hats. For the matron there is a smart mushroom shape of purple baby cloth with a centrefront trimming of birds in wine, pink and purple.

A NAGGING FAMILY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am one of the fortunates who just got a job. I haven't saved a penny, but don't have to. It's a steady position for two years, but now that I have a permanent place, the girl with whom I'm in love wants us to marry and is willing to keep on working, on Monday's Ontario - Intelligencer issue.

Harmful for Girl to be A Belle

Grenelle Thinks She Might be Allowed to Enjoy Popularity

By LISA GRENELLE

IN FATHER'S eyes Helen had become a belle and a "queen-lover," and he didn't like it. She had too many boy friends and went out too often, he thought. Father has strong ideas (and perhaps sound ideas) about this "forbidden beaness." He said he never had liked belles himself. They were spoiled and empty-headed; besides, they never came to a good end.

Father said that being a belle unfitted a girl for life, and Mother shouldn't allow it; that sooner or later belles got "fast," and were bound to acquire a bad reputation. They were so conspicuous, a perfect target for malicious tongues. Even if some of the girls weren't "fast", jealous girls and jealous mamas saw to it that everything they said and did was made to sound different. He asked Mother to put a stop to it.

"I don't think anybody's saying anything, Clarence. I haven't heard anything," Mother replied.

"Would it make you any happier if Helen was a pill, Pop?" asked Helen.

"Certainly not; certainly not. Some girls who aren't either pills or belles, aren't there? Certainly there are! Why, when I was growing up there were lots of girls, nice girls, who always had a good word, time at the dances and all that, but they weren't belles. They never had boys hanging around all the time, or on the end of the telephone. Mark my words, they'll sooner or later it will turn your head."

Can't Regulate It

"Couldn't you be satisfied with one or two beaux, Helen?" Mother suggested. "That's all I ever had, and I was perfectly happy."

"I don't see how I could regulate it even if I wanted to," Helen said. "You know how men are, just a lot of sheep. They all follow the first baaaer. Maybe you can make a hit or you don't. You never know yourself your popular you will be or why. I'm popular right now, but maybe nobody'll look at me next week."

There isn't much danger of a girl with Helen's gaiety of view having her head turned.

And the touch of "level-headedness" will, while Papa and Mama will find it difficult to "decrease daughter's popularity" just the right amount they can perhaps prevent her talking her achievement too seriously by not taking it too seriously themselves. "Kidding" has a little effect in it.

She mustn't be led to feel that she is appreciating time away from home, but she must not be put on a pedestal at home or in the "dog house" either, because of her popularity. Some effort might also be made to interest her in something else, some accomplishment, learning to sing—something like that. Singing she may accept, as it adds to her romantic charm and is not exacting.

But after all, if a girl is able to achieve bellehood, unless it is from her real harm, why not let her enjoy it? Perhaps she's entitled to it.

GOOD MAN

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEE

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SICK CALL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last year I was friendly with a young girl about my own age. We are not friends now, but I have remained friendly with her family, although I never visit them. Now my question is this: Her mother is very ill and many times has sent word for me to visit her, but I hesitate to go because the young lady told me, in a polite way, to stay away. Her mother is not expected to live more than one month. What do you think I should do?

Jane.

This is a predicament! Would you be willing to write to this young lady and ask her permission to go to see her mother? You could so clearly and kindly explain your devotion to her mother, the fact that you have received these messages of invitation indirectly from her, your great wish to see her mother, and suggest that you come at some time when your ex-friend is not to be at home. I am sure that she will then be touched by your request, and that she will grant it. This might even mean a renewal of the friendship....if you care to have it renewed.

WEDDING GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My sister is being married soon, and I am writing you for some advice. Would it be proper for my husband to attend the wedding without me? It is to be a house wedding with about two hundred guests. I am expecting a baby very soon, and probably will not be able to attend the wedding. I am willing that my husband should go to the wedding, but would this your advice as to whether or not it would be proper.

2. What is the proper reply for the bridegroom to make to the toast to the bride?

Exercises Rid Heavy Belt Line

ANN SHERIDAN knows how to keep her waist line slim.

X X X

By HELEN FOLLETT

DAME FASHION is hitting the overweight girl on the belt line. Corsets and foundation garments with the ripped-in waist; dressmakers are accentuating it. And what is the gump one do, do one thing?

She must exercise. She must have a muscle workout every day. I must be the kind that puts a lot of punishment in the flat crepe tissues of the midsection of her concurved anatomy. If you feel the cells have their own way, they'll collect large families, pile on layers of adipose tissue.

Lie on the back on the floor, keep the body very slender, hands at the sides, feet tucked under a piece of privy furniture. Lift the upper portion of the body. Don't touch the floor with the hands, but lift the body up and down very slowly to first position. If you crack the back of your head a few times, you're cheerful. That shows that your back muscles are weak, need strengthening.

Stand erect, hands straight down at the sides on a level with the shoulders. Do the torso twist turning from side to side at the hands level, swinging the arms along with the body.

Women with white hair must be ing a careful in selecting a hair tonic. dar Many shops sell blue bleaches her fo when that are used to remove a yellow straid cast from snowy topknots. long

BABY NEED NOT GET YOU UP

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B—, Fort Wilson, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, my baby would get settled for bed, 'Baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief!"

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. But they promote healthful sleep by promptly making the ill baby well. The well baby always sleeps soundly.

Absolutely harmless. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Each package contains directions. Easy as any to take as candy. Sweet-tasting and quick in their action.

Baby's Own Tablets being quick relief from most of "baby's" ills. Teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds all disappear when Baby's Own Tablets are given. If they are not effective, your druggist will refund your money. 25 cents.

HERE'S THE EVIDENCE
from World's Largest Independent Testing Laboratory

"Both regular, and also the premium-priced tires of the six largest tire manufacturers were submitted to a series of exhaustive tests made over a three months' period by us, to determine their resistance to skidding and wear, with the following results:

"NON-SKID"—The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread showed more skid resistance than any other tire tested, including those tires listed at 15% higher in price.

"MILEAGE"—The Goodrich Silvertown gave more non-skid mileage than any of the other tires tested in its own price range—averaged 19.1% more miles before the tires were smooth."

TORONTO STOCKS
(Close)

Toronto June 8 (CP)—The Toronto stock market sagged moderately today under profit-taking in some of the pivotal issues of the mining list. Wallc-Amulet slipped back to 4.30 but most of the loss was erased before the close. It was again a heavy trader with more than 60,000 shares changing hands in the session. All indices were down at the close. Volume fell off to around 700,000 shares. There will be no session tomorrow, the king's birthday.

WALL STREET
(Close)

New York, June 8 (AP)—The stock market picked its way forward with a leisurely stride today.

Offerings were scarce so that small demand was sufficient to leave most issues with gains of fractions to more than a point near the final hour. Aircraft, electrical equipment and miscellaneous industrials were favored by cautious buyers. Trade actions were about 300,000 shares.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 8 (CP) — Prices ruled firm on open produce markets yesterday.

Butter was 24½c to 25½c per pound for No. 1 in cartols or less, with lots to retailers at 26½c for No. 1 prints and solids, 25c for No. 2 solids and 25½c for No. 2 prints. Receipts: 136 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in cartols or less were: A-large, 19½c; A-medium, 23c to 23½c; B, 23c; C, 21½c. Receipts, 1,070 cases.

Bill Lee of Cubs Wins Sixth in Row; Allen Fined $250

Indians Are Playing Good Ball On Eastern Trip and Maintain Margin of Four Full Games

Come From Behind to Beat Boston While Yanks Are Trimmed

CUBS TAKE GIANTS

Increase Their Margin to One And One Half Games

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

In the excitement over this New York-Chicago struggle for the leadership of the National League, don't forget that Cleveland Indians, too, are engaged in some highly important encounters and coming out of them successfully.

The Cubs, triumphant in the opening battle of pitching and home runs have a 1 1-2 game lead, but they can lose it all this afternoon when they tackle the Giants in a doubleheader. Carl Hubbell is due to hunt one of the games for the Terrymen.

Chicago won the opener 4-2 yesterday on the combination of big Bill Lee's seven-hit flingfest and the four-play wrestling of Billy Herman and Joe Marty. Lee who had pitched three straight shutouts had his string broken after 35 innings when Mel Ott soaked his 11th homer of the year in the fourth frame. The Chicago pitcher tied the count himself in the fifth when he singled, took second on a fielder's choice and galloped home on Carl Reynolds' base hit.

Melton Belted Out

The rest of the Cubs' runs came in the seventh and ended Cliff Melton's day on the mound, Herman broke the deadlock with a long home run. First of the seventh Frank Demaree singled and Marty finished the job with his homer.

The Indians' margin of victory in the American League all are in the east where the lead varies from Boston 7-3. Since leaving home last week the Tribe has won two out of three each from Philadelphia Athletics and third-place Washington, dropping the last one first from Boston, which is a good fourth in the standings.

Allen Rebels

A one-man rebellion by Johnny Allen, the fiery flinger, preceded Cleveland's comeback. Johnny was given a two-run lead in the first but right away Jimmie Foxx knocked his 14th home run. Then he got into an argument with Umpire Bill McGowan after Joe Cronin, Boston manager, protested that Allen's tattered shirt sleeve gave him an unfair advantage. McGowan sent Allen to the club house to change the shirt and Johnny just stayed there. Even Manager Oscar Vitt couldn't get him out, so he handed out a $250 fine instead and sent Bill Zuber to the mound.

Victory stretched the Indians' lead to four games as the second place New York Yankees went down 8-5 before Chicago White Sox.

Heavies Really Smacked

St. Louis Browns smacked four Washington pitchers for 15 hits and won 11-4 despite a five-run Senator rally in the seventh, aided by Rudy York's 11th homer, Detroit Tigers beat the Athletics 5-4.

Brooklyn Dodgers and Braves hung up their fifth victory in seven games in the West. A four-run fifth inning, plus brilliant relief hurling by Van Mungo and Joe Medwick and Don Pargett had hit for the circuit in the same frame enabled the Flatbush back St. Louis Cardinals 7-6. The Philadelphia Athletics and Boston-Pittsburgh games were rained out.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 8 (AP)—They say the Diamond Dandy found it with $20,000 cash and Wally Berger to get Alex Kampouris from the Reds, which makes it a good deal for the "Zinnimatis", who got Buck Ainsel as much as they paid for the Greek boy four years ago plus a slugging outfielder.....

The White Sox have a bird named Myrna an outfa board expert, along trying to diagnose the club's ailments via the stars, crystal ball, etc.

The Canadian hose, Tackman, ran last in his first start here, but keep an eye on him his next time out..... Highest paid from office man in baseball is said to be Ed Barrow of the Yanks (who is supposed to get $50,000 a year and is worth every dime of it)... Branch Rickey of the Cardinals get $100,000 but then he's a vice-president to boot.....

Jesse Owens received 65 per cent of the $200,000 gate at the Detroit Tigers' exhibitions following his triple victory in the last Olympics and has put by enough of it to put him on Easy Street for life..... Says Lefty O'Doul (quite a ball player in his day): "I've had some luck in my time but when I was at my best I was never qualified to carry Joe Dimaggio's bats for him."

Cigarettes which give off tinted smoke to match one's dress are to be introduced into Britain shortly.

In an effort to restore the Giants to a semblance of their former greatness, Manager Bill Terry succeeded in putting over deal with Boss Bill McKechnie of Cincinnati Reds in which he secured Alex Kampouris. ABOVE in his fourth year as second baseman for the new squad, and thus put an end (he hopes) to his worries at the key spot, where he has played everybody but the bat boy this season. Alex is a good fielder and about a .260 hitter. In exchange the Americus leader gave Walter Berger, BELOW, once feared slugger secured by the Giants last June from Boston. Walter has been declining steadily for the past few years and in the few games he has played this year has not been able to nudge an average over .200.

EXIT ROWE

There's something forlorn about the figure of Schoolboy Rowe, former ace of the Detroit Tigers' mound staff, as he crosses the diamond at Shibe Park in Philadelphia after being relieved in the fifth inning of the A's 11-4 victory over the Tigers. Rowe's arm failed to respond to treatment and he has been of little use to Cochrane's team for the past two years. In the Texas loop he will try to regain his fast one, once so feared.

ART UPPER REAL TEAM SPARKPLUG

Former Toronto Amateur Doing Good Job For Rome Colonels

Art Upper, hard-hitting Rome outfielder, has proven his versatility much to the chagrin of Cleveraville, Johnstown fans.

The sparkling of Colonels club to the Can-Am first division, Art has clouted many a hurler to the shower, as yesterday, in the 18-3 drubbing he gave chance for revenge by assuming mound duties against the double city team.

But the best was on the other foot. Three of two home run balls which were belted over the fence by Whitted and Gimpke, Upper subdued Clowns effectively with eight scattered hits while Rome were taking advantage or Hurler Veach's wildness to coast to a 6-4 win.

The victory allowed Rome to consolidate their hold on third place as Cornwall Blazers were idle when their scheduled contest with Asbury Bowlers was rained out. The Bowlers, token, the Canadian Clowns to seventh slot behind Bowleys.

In the only other game, Indians-Dan Rugmakers pulled further away from the pack when Dude Parrigo gave up but six hits to down Oswego Netherlands 5-1 and run his string of victories to seven.

Despite light rain that twice halted the contest temporarily, tempers flared when Netz objected strenuously to decisions at the plate. Umpire Crouch provided the necessary cold water, however, when he ordered to eject Manager Riley Parker from the park and to impose fines on the players.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Lee, Cubs—Hurled Chicago's seven hits to score his sixth straight win 4-2.

Don Carleton, Tigers—Bagged three hits, including two doubles, to lead attack in 5-4 victory over Athletics.

Vito Tamulis, Dodgers—Held Cardinals hitless and scoreless in four inning relief trick as Dodgers won 7-6.

Harland Cliff, Browns—Belted out four hits including two home-runs and drove in five runs in 11-8 triumph over Senators.

Thornton Lee, White Sox—Pitched and batted White Sox to victory as he stopped Yankees with nine hits and clouted homer and single.

Odell (Bad News) Hale, Lyn Lary, Earl Averill, Indians—Each seven hits earning them, each getting one in ninth inning rally that beat Red Sox 7-6.

BRAUCHER PICKS SAM SNEAD FOR U. S. OPEN

By HILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, June 8—Following a wild night with an arithmetic, a week end and an alibiman, I am able to announce formally that Sam Snead will win the United States national open championship June 9 to 11 at Denver, and he will do it in new national open record of 279.

You may be amazed at the some, what profound simplicity with which this strange prediction has been reached. Sam is a mountain boy. And this is a mountain tournament, played over the Cherry Hills course, 5,000 feet above the sea. Coming around that mountain, Sam will be right at home. Just like his backyard. Strike up that mountain music!

SAM SNEAD
High Altitude Specialist

It takes a mountain man to play those mountain courses, the professors tell me. If you hit the ball with the idea of sending it 300 yards, it travels 130 yards or a record-cleared eighth more. It's a rarefied atmosphere that does it.

High Ally Low Scores

Those who are used to the high ally will get the lowest scores in this tournament. Sam ought to be crazy about it, having learned his game all by himself in the mountain fastnesses of West Virginia. A golfer from Palm Beach should find the Denver layout something in the nature of a pool table. The course is about 6,700 yards in length. Pingiring the air for what it is, and the power of Sam's driver, the conclusion is inescapable that for Sam will become a 600-yard layout, something he could take home with him in his Gladstone.

Between the Lines

Ken J. Calling

Bill Bryson of the Des Moines, Ia., Register, wants to know—"Is baseball easy to an inning?" The question is not as foolish as it may at first appear on paper, but at any rate Bill Bryson is far into his dance and what the question needs until it comes out like this:

"And now my good man," the radio announcer purred with the accustomed air of a fellow who knows all the answers in advance, "how do you like there in an inning?"

The query was fired on one of the 9 to 5 sponsored "human phone" type of programs which have developed to such a high degree of popularity with the multitudes.

The volunteer subject didn't even pause to ponder. "Three" he replied readily.

The announcer scarcely could restrain a guffaw. Somehow he checked himself to a muffled "Heh, heh, heh."

"Three, eh?" he said. "Wrong! Each team bats once in an inning. Each gets three outs. That makes a total of six outs."

"That ain't so lightly to the next intelligence-tester, chortling over the effect of that "catch" question about the outs. Television surely would have revealed a bewildered young man on the bandstand's face, a sheepish smile curving his lip.

For hadn't he just sniffed a simple question concerning America's great national pastime?—one to which even a boy losing his first set of teeth can readily toss off the answer.

It was at least the third time the question had been utilized for a quiz program on a national chain. Each time the announcer had been secure in his knowledge that an unthinking "nine" was the answer "three" when the obviously correct answer was "six."

Obviously correct or not, however, the quizzer was wrong. The question was right! He has the official rule book to back up his answer. A more technically correct perhaps—but ample for an argument.

Section 4 of Rule 59, "General Definitions," reads specifically:

"An 'inning' is the term at bat of the nine players representing a side in a game and is completed when three of such players have been legally put out."

Therefore, three outs definitely comprise the inning. According with that definition, a normal game in which each club gets to bat nine times makes 18 innings long.

So it all becomes rather confusing relative to Rule 23, Section 1, and sees a "regulation game" defined as one in which each team scored at bat scores more runs in eight (8) innings than the team first at bat has scored in nine (9) innings."

The simple dilemma dates back to the time-misted era in which the plural form of the word was the normal use. Originally, a batsing was the time at bat of only one club. The "inning" was derived from the early expression "his" and "their innings" meaning respectively a club's activities at bat and on the field.) Where now we say "the first inning of the game," of course, the batting turns of both clubs, the correct term was "the first innings" or "the fifth innings."

Well we did just learn that the Belleville Sky of Quinte League entry have a tough row to hoe when they meet Wall Gerow's Napanee champs at the local ball park twice tomorrow (twilight, Thursday) in another league flag.

Frank Cunningham is having anything but good luck with his O.S.D. field day—it was rained out on Monday and again yesterday. That heavy downfall on Tuesday did not gladden the hearts of the Belleville Collegiate track stars either—their track and field meet was scheduled for that day.

The final round of the Hiram Walker Golf Tournament will commence at the Toronto Golf Club, Toronto, on Friday with the largest field of Canadian golfers in history having entered. The initial round when 500 started. Today there are 25 left—among 'em is Dehunt, that has become Jackson Wallen's pet hobby and Canada's outstanding golf tournament.

In order to perpetuate the name of Bob Greer in Toronto amateur baseball circles, the Greer memorial trophy will be given each year in the player hitting the most home runs in the senior series of the T.A. B.A. The late Bob Greer himself won that distinction two years ago and was only one out from winning the Babe Ruth trophy when the T.A.B.A. last season also. An annual trophy honoring the late Bob Downing trophy, going to the first baseball man in the senior T.A.B.A. will also be inaugurated this year. It is fitting such honors should be afforded men brothers of Bob Downing and Bob Greer and the Toronto baseball authorities should be congratulated upon their sentiments in the matter.

Remember Jimmy Ortis' softball used to pack 'em in around the armouries a decade ago? Well the Greenwood Park and Community Association Park are still smacking the pellet and reported in the Intermediate League at Toronto. Recently Kay and Marie Greenaway pitched the Greenwood Merries to victory against Langleys broke up the Langley pitching staff's no-hit, no-run team. Marie and Kay Genereaux have been outstanding softball players in the senior circles in Toronto for quite some years, their brother Ralph is also being recognized and established.

Big Bill Lee bested Cliff Melton as the Cubs beat the Giants, 4-2 in the initial game of the series for the N.L. leadership yesterday. A brace of circuit blows by Herman and Marty settled the issue. Bill Terry had better get Hubbell out and dust him off today that is if the Giants are entertaining hopes of another league flag.

Canadian Brothers Coming Home to Pick up Easy Dough

London, June 8 (CP)—Having acquired a sizable reputation with their fists, the Canadian brothers Pahl—or Paul as they are known in some English circles—are in a fair way back to Canada with their two-headed ring-master, Bud Davis, to look over the heavyweight situation.

The Richdale, Alta., brothers should arrive in Montreal about June 16 and will entrain immediately for Toronto, where they have been promised a twin-bill feature with choice of opponents, including Eddie Wenstob, Tom Osborne and Larry Gains. "But they are only staying until October, for Bud expects to crash the inner circle of Empire fightdom early next year and he has already lined up matches in Canada to that end.

The trio landed in England less than a week ago broke—the Pahls with ambition in their hearts and Davis with an extra large share of confidence. Since then Danny, 21, has knocked out nine opponents, was decisively outfought once, and one and lost one fight by a decision. His brother Packy, 20, has made a record of fourteen knockouts, five decisions, two draws and one loss by decision. They're both strictly good fighters," Davis said. "Don't know which is the best. Need a little more preliminary work and then we'll be ready to step in the big time. In two years we'll be at the top."

Long ago Bud dropped the brothers sparring together. He found both of them were getting in the habit of pulling punches because they didn't want to hurt each other.

RALPH GULDAHL
Defending Champion

Ralph Guldahl set a new open record last year at Birmingham, Michigan, by touring the course in 281. But the scouts are saying Sam can do it in 279. It is much easier than that, with no penalty for bad shots and small greens covered with splendid, well-kept turf. Most of the trouble on the links is to the right, and that is the direction which top flight golfers avoid.

Here's How He'll Do It

Two 4's, a 3 and a 5. It should be about what Mister Snead will shoot at Cherry Hills. The start is easy, the first three holes calling for iron shots to the green after very average drives. The finish should be right down Snead's alley, with a par five up and a long par four 18th. Those two holes should help him to win the tournament. On the rest of the sportiest holes, there are no traps to the left, which gives Sam an opportunity to belt that sprint without being so particular about his direction. The stream that winds through the course is to the right of most of the holes.

The rough is deep and has been left to grow almost to the depth of a player's knees. But the crowd control rules take care of that kind of hazard. After the first day the grass is pretty sure to be well trampled. Something of the sort happened at Pittsburgh where the club officials depended upon the long grass to slow up the tall-ender.

So what with the air, the elevation, the greens and all being what they are, there is nothing left to do but pick Sam to win—in 279.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS IN FIRST DIVISION

Toronto Leafs Idle on Tuesday Drop to Fifth Place

(By The Associated Press)

The champion Newark Bears, a bunch of sluggers who don't pull any of their punches, left the Orioles cowering in Baltimore today, victims of the Bears' 11th consecutive triumph and their own 12th straight defeat.

The Bears, already eight games in front of the second-place Buffalo Bisons, who open a series with the leaguleaders in Newark today, walloped 59 assorted hits last night in trouncing the Orioles 18 to 6.

Syracuse Chiefs, who met the Bears just before the Orioles and were taken for three in a row, found the pickings more to their liking in Jersey City, where they hung up their first straight win of the year, 5 to 3, in the only other game on the International League program.

The Chief's victory moved them into the idle Toronto Maple Leafs, who dropped their first to Ted Kleinhans, held the Jerseys scoreless for seven innings but wavered in the eighth when the Clanks scored twice and was replaced in the ninth. Fred Barrett relieved Tom Padden and Pat Redmond to put down the uprising.

The Leafs and Rochester Red Wings, and the Bisons and Montreal Royals, had a day off, having played their scheduled games as pairs of doubleheaders Sunday.

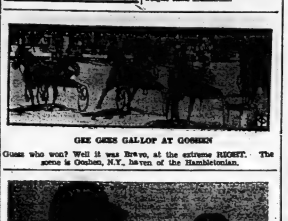
UPSET FINISH IN 70TH RENEWAL OF BELMONT STAKES



The three-year-old situation on the American racing front was made a little more complicated after the running of the 70th renewal of the Belmont Stakes at the famous New York track. The picture shows Pasteurized, an 8 to 1 shot, coming down in front of the highly-touted Dauber, winner of the Preakness and second in the Kentucky Derby. The winner covers the mile and half in 2:30.4, just 4-5 of a second off the record hung up by War Admiral in winning last year.

BABY ARIZMENDI, AMBERS DRAW

Predicts Armstrong Will Take Lightweight Champ When They Meet

Los Angeles, June 8 —(AP)— Baby Arizmendi upset many an apple from the cart last night when he battled Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers to a draw in a wild 10-round non-title fight before 10,000 fans at the Olympic auditorium.

The bellicose baby, veteran of a thousand and one fights in a prize ring, came out flatly and predicted that Welterweight champion Henry Armstrong would knock Ambers out when they meet in Madison Square Garden.

Arizmendi should be an authority on the subject. Two months ago he took a beating—but never a knockdown—from Armstrong in a vicious 10-rounder at the Olympic.

"Armstrong is stronger than Lou and throws no less punches. Ambers is easy to hit, I staggered him and while I took my best shots all night, I couldn't phase him," Arizmendi declared.

CLASSY FIELD IN U. S. OPEN

Opens Thursday Over Tough Cherry Hill Course at Denver

Denver, Colo., June 8—(AP)— A classy field of professional golfers, plus a sprinkling of fairly solid contenders from the amateur ranks, tried final practice shots today in the warm-up for the 1938 United States Open Championship.

The big show gets underway tomorrow. On the basis of practice spins and form-charts it shaped up as a wide open scramble, with the seasoned campaigners apparently holding no great advantages over a sprinkling of lesser lights. Only three places remained to be filled, by sinclaring, to bring the starting field up to maximum of 120.

Fairways of the Cherry Hills course were a patchwork of divots which only here and there showed to the fact the par 35-36—71 layout is considerably tougher than it looks on the surface.

Its 6,836 yards spread out over narrow fairways, fringed by some ball-staring water hazards, and terminating in postage-stamp size greens. Despite considerable "squawking" over the extent of the rough and furrowing of said

Crossroads

by Kathleen Norris

INSTALMENT 22

Karl had been away for four days. he had flown to a meeting in Victoria, had flown back. Presently he and Gloria would take Jimmy and go back to Bayview. Then Karl would see his mother and unpack his bag, read his mail, bathe and change, and at seven or earlier he and Gloria would start for the city for dinner.

He would ask her tonight she knew. If she had any definite answer from Peter about a divorce. She would answer no, that there had been no word from Peter, no words, that is, since the letter which was now some days old. Karl knew of that letter. In it Peter said that Gloria's decision of disengagement which gave him his child for six months a year.

Gloria waited to go ahead with it, as rapidly as she could. She felt a burning impatience to be off with the old way, on with the new. She wanted to be beginning that unwillingness to admit, to yield to this new joy to be merged into the deeper joy which would make him forget that any time of doubt or mistrust had ever been. It was going to be so right and normal, once it began. Then there would never be any question of the devotion between Dr. Pitcher and his wife.

But if things would only get started—!

When she and Karl took Jimmy home at four o'clock she left him in his mother's room for an hour of quiet time. Then Gloria took Jimmy off for bath and supper. Tonight she interspersed the ritual of his supper prayers, for the first hour and his usual bedtime gymnastics with activities of her own. She managed her bath, brushed her hair, got into a new costume; plain starts, a white silk jersey, tweed, plain blouse of white satin, dashing jabot pin.

Everything seemed just right for the evening. Gloria was ready before Karl was. She had time to step into the old people's dining room and be sure that Jimmy's supper was in peaceable progress.

Sunday was visitors' day in the Bayview, but as a rule callers upon the aged decrious who lived there were few, came early, and departed with eager respect for the four-o'clock closing hour. Gloria was surprised tonight to see that two callers were still there, were even now not going away. No, they were advancing, rather, coming up the steps. Gloria waited, forced to newcomers, a slender young woman in white sprang apparel that looked rather willed, with rouge and lipred in evidence on a rather pretty face, and a man who was walking up the steps with his face twisted over his shoulder, looking back to see that his car was firmly braked on the little grade of the drive, perhaps—

The woman spoke. Gloria looked beyond her at the man; she would see his face. It was Peter!

For a minute she was too completely taken aback to know what to do or indeed, what she did.

Then somehow they were in the reception room.

"Hello, Gloria," Peter said. He looked her, and Gloria, accustomed to his tricks vaguely. She remembered afterward that Peter didn't put her hand, only he asked, as they all sat down. "This is Ethel Miller. Ethel, Gloria, Hilda."

"Going out? Well, I was."

"We'll keep you only a minute. I wanted Ethel to . . . meet you and see the place. . . . We're going to drive around. I could maybe drop in on Tony and Kitty."

It was all a dream. Peter, in the stream, had not changed, unless he was thinner and somewhat dressed in manner. He looked anxiously from Ethel to Gloria, as if he expected Gloria to help him present Ethel to make a good impression on Gloria.

Ethel was perhaps thirty; here was not an unpleasant face. She had a fairly beautiful dress, and bright, curious blue eyes; her voice and speech clearly the best town; her manner was one of great assurance.

"Well, am I really looking at Gloria?" she said. "Of course, I've been dying to meet you."

Peter laughed nervously at this. Gloria looked at him quickly, looked away again to his companion. "I didn't know you were even in California," she said politely.

"Nobody did," Peter said. "I'm on my way to Hollywood."

Gloria felt herself beginning to feel a little apprehensive. What was it all about? Why had they come?

As if answering her question Peter said, "Ethel is crazy about Jimmy."

"Oh?" That was natural enough. Gloria said. They wanted to see Jimmy! "Oh," she said again, at a loss. "Is—is anything the matter, Peter, with Jimmy? Is he sick in bed, I've just come down."

"Oh, no, I wouldn't say him, couldn't we?" Peter asked.

It was a nightmare. Gloria wished she could wake herself. She didn't know you were here; I suppose you thought I'd disappeared, Peter," she repeated senselessly.

"He was, and he was the loneliest one you ever saw in your life!" Ethel supplied readily. "He came to see me in Los Angeles, and when he found out that I'd a house where we've both been boarding."

"It was true," Peter explained. "I'd been working overtime, and worrying. I guess. Ethel here was having a—a—what, Ethel? Pleurisy? Or once office wrote me, offering me a job," Peter explained, putting his hand wearily to his head.

"I've got a very good chance for an engagement in the Hollywood," Ethel said. "If you know my name at all you know I'll do it in time. I've been in progress, and singing for three years. Now I'm going to try the films."

Again Gloria only looked at her absently.

"I would have died if it hadn't been for Ethel," Peter said.

"Oh, no, you wouldn't." Ethel put in good-naturedly. "I didn't have to go in with her and orange juice now and then," she explained to Gloria. "Don't you think much nursing. And then, when I was starting west with this friend of mine, I just left her in San Francisco—he just got homesick and had to come back East.

"The girls did all the driving," Peter said smiling. "They bullied me, all the way."

"We like him," Ethel admitted significantly, with a smile. She took his hand. "I suppose we can tell Gloria and Mr. Pitcher about other?" she asked.

Peter's face fell. Gloria's met, and Gloria in the midst of her bewilderment and uneasiness was conscious of a little feeling of relief for him.

"That won't surprise her much," Peter said.

"Was it, Gil?" Gloria said.

She felt a little dazed. There was something unreal about the whole scene; the dusk of the afternoon outside the office windows; Peter's face, so oddly familiar and yet so strange; the presence of this pretty, assured woman, who seemed to have nothing to do with them.

"Oh, poor fellow," she thought, with almost the feeling of a little laugh tingeling her pity," he must have been having a terrible time or he wouldn't have looked at her! He was ill and she nursed him; that's the explanation. He's still not well at a distance." Your head aches, doesn't it, Peter?" she said aloud.

"Well, it does, a little. We'll get back to town and I'll get into bed and take it easy for a day or two."

"It's bad to get out too soon after flu," Gloria said mechanically. He looked pale and sick, she thought.

"You'll have to tell me all about running Jimmy," Ethel said.

The second hand lingered in the air: Gloria felt them fall upon her like a sudden touch of ice. Jimmy? What had she said about Jimmy?

"I don't know much about children," Ethel added.

"Say, you like them," said Peter quickly.

"Oh, I love them!" Ethel answered. "A friend of mine in New York had a little boy; I adore him. He'll sing any song you like."

"When would you want us to have him and when do you want him?" Peter asked.

There was sheer panic in Gloria's heart, but she spoke with outward calm; "time—she must see. . . . Well, that would depend — wouldn't it? I mean, what we do and where you are and what's convenient, and everything. We couldn't possibly settle it today, could we?"

"You'd want him half the time, wouldn't you?" asked Ethel.

"I want him—" Gloria stammered, and Peter said, "Well, of course you would. What Ethel was thinking was that our six months would be better in summer, because she's pretty sure to be in Los Angeles summers, even if she goes East for a bit. But I think you would be better to have him then, Gloria, because he'll be getting ready for school in the autumn."

It took Gloria a moment to understand. Then she said, "Oh, I see!"

"If that fits you, your ticket is a round-trip ticket, and you can break it at Kansas City, or Chicago, or Reno by Kellogg in London, Ont."

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "It does us good and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble.

Chances are it's simple to find the cause. If you're busy and people do—meal, bread, potatoes. Fly lightly and don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means lots of food that isn't consumed in the body. Bran is famous "bulk" mass in the intestines and helps Nature's regularity.

If that fits you, your ticket is a Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the vitamin, intestinal tonic, vitamin B, and all-Bran every day and you'll plenty of water, and just watch the difference. Sold by grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Marmora

Marmora, June 8.—To have seen eighty-three summers is a record claim of Daniel Campion who had his birthday anniversary on the day of this week. It was an old shanty on what was known as "Island" in the old Jack Settlement in North Marmora that this sturdy retired resident first saw the light of day. The shanty with its scoop roof as Dan recalled by was built by his father, the late George Campion. Later the Campions removed to a residence adjoining the Kingston family, other pioneer residents of old Marmora, and here reared on his property, that is the present residence of Harry Campion, younger brother of Daniel.

These two brothers are the surviving children of their late father parents. "Dan" received his education at Beaver Creek school, then taught school in the old log school house on the site of the present Wiggins School. Many pupils of those days are still remembered by him. Among these were Hugh Shannon, Alexander Johns, Murchison Johns and George Irving.

When Dan was twelve years of age, flour was selling at twenty dollars a barrel that particular year. "You can understand it couldn't be afforded and so we went rather weary on corn bread," he said at dinner.

At an early age he was helping his father with the cutting of maples for the extraction of potash and he drew the potash to Marmora village on jumpers. Corn were the staples of boyhood days. "I broke in four acres of corn before I was eighteen years of age," remarked Dan.

His brother who before her marriage was Mercy Branson of Madoc township, married Miss Campion, drove down jumper in taking butter and eggs to Marmora with Dan detailed to look after the latter. Many times Dan was fleet on foot. When he was twenty-one years of age he won a foot race at a picnic held by the congregation of the Sacred Heart Church, beating twenty-five other contestants. "Beans were thick in those times but young people always got in before dark," said Dan, in reminiscent mood. He, however, aptly remembered one bear he shot with his flint lock rifle for he took the bruin's hide to the tannery and purchased a clock with the money received for it. Dan is the owner of that clock still can claim to have been captivated by the Rev. Candler, a missionary bishop who was sent to North Hastings by St. Augustine's Church, Toronto, on temporary duty in those by-gone days. "The tall figure of this cleric, his long white hair, his good slogans, have left an indelible mark in the memory of the few who remain who attended the services in which the Candlers took part. On the occasion of a slight deafness Dan has fullest possession of his faculties and those destined to see many more anniversaries of his birth.

PRESENTATION TO NEWLYWEDS AT SHANNONVILLE

Shannonville, June 8. — A large number of the friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. William Houston gathered at the Grange Hall on Friday night when a miscellaneous shower was held in their honor. Mr. Houston is a popular member of the younger set of the village, being a star member of the Shannonville baseball and hockey teams. Mrs. Houston is the former Miss Thelma Dena of Deseronto. During the evening dancing was enjoyed and at the midnight hour a presentation address was read by Miss Edna Burtt to which appropriate replies were given by Mr. and Mrs. William Houston. Following the address a delicious lunch was served which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The address was as follows

"Shannonville, Ont., June 3, 1934.

"Dear Friends and Neighbors:

"It is with sincere pleasure that we gather here tonight to present to you, Thelma and Bill, tokens of our esteem and good will.

"Our purpose in this way of announcing to you, Thelma and Bill. Although you have been married a short time, we feel that in so doing we are attempt to express both.

"D ecourse Bill is well-known in this village, both on the baseball diamond and hockey and has starred on both teams. Not only as a sportsman but also as a clean sportsman which also holds for beauty. Thelma, that is one of the things we caught our attention is your unfailing courtesy and that has stood us to always say that you will be a success in life as Dale Carnegie would say, you have the right slant on top, or something to that effect.

"Seriously, Thelma, we are not been a resident in the village, most of those here tonight have met you and have learned to like you. Bill has had gained such a charming wife. They always say behind every wife is the better half, so Thelma, you want to be the noble and keep Bill informed of that fact although you don't want to use a rolling pin; because you know Bill has one of the best players of our baseball team and it wouldn't be wise to use the proper thing to have him coming to the ball game all bandaged up. Seriously speaking Thelma, we wish you and Bill lots of luck, and we hope you always face the future with a smile. Although there will be times when your patience will be tried, we feel sure you will make a success of life. They say, Thelma, that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Although Gerald Sager has been married but a short experience he believes that a dutiful wife shouldn't object to cooking a midnight lunch with occasion arises. Bruce Reid, a married man of no experience, is quite willing to offer a helpful suggestion as occasion demands.

"We ask you to accept these gifts, not for their value, but as a token of the esteem in which you are held in this community, and we hope you will find a useful place in your new home.

"In conclusion we would like to read this beautiful poem which expresses our thoughts much more aptly than we can.

As a wave follows a ship at sea
So may God's blessing follow you,
Both on the voyage of life.

God bless these hands united.
God bless these hearts made one.
Unsevered and unblighted
May they through life on one.

Where in earth's home preparing.
For that bright home above.
And there forever sharing,
His joy, where "God is Love".

"Signed on behalf of your friends
—Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Fitzgerald, Edna Burtt, Carman Spencer."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour into the bowels 2 pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food just decays and poisons. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You have headaches, dizzy spells. Your skin becomes sallow and the world looks punk.

Don't put in a purgative to get relief. Get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver to get it to pour into the bowels. Carter's Little Liver Pills do just those two things. They make the liver pour into the bowels enough bile to digest the food and get rid of the waste. Nature intended bile to do this. Carter's Little Liver Pills do just those two things. They make the bile flow freely. They do the work Nature intended bile to do. Don't accept substitutes. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. Sm.

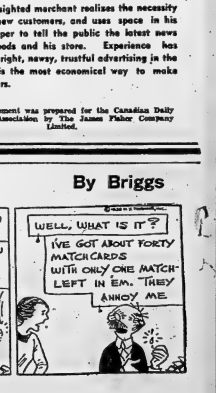
Old Customers Not Enough to Keep A Business Alive

WHILE OLD CUSTOMERS steady customers — are the backbone of any well-established retail business, this alone cannot be relied upon to make the business grow.



The farsighted merchant realizes the necessity of winning new customers, and uses space in his local newspaper to tell the public the latest news about his goods and his store. Experience has shown that bright, newsy, trustful advertising in the newspaper is the most economical way to make new customers.

This advertisement was prepared for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association by The James Fisher Company Limited.

Ma was looking at pop looking at the paper, saying, Whose picture is that, Willyum, my goodness it's big enough.

It's a picture of Russell B. Coggsdill and it could be 10 times bigger without doing him too much honor, pop said. He's the inventor and manufacturer of the Coggsdill ball bearing porch swing, and while other men are busy spouting their heads off and accomplishing nothing Russell B. Coggsdill is busy employing 5 thousand men and spending a million dollers a year in advertising. That's the kind of man that keeps this country safe from communism. I'd like to see his picture filling a whole page in the paper every day, he said, and ma said, I sincerely hope his ball bearing swing is superior to the Chickworth simplex coffee dripper that I bought the other day on the strength of all the advertisements I'd read about its marvels and its bowlier, speaking of things that are widely avertised.

What coffee dripper, you haven't shown it to me, pop said, and ma said, No, because the first thing I did with it, or at least the 2nd, was to march it rite back to the store again. The theory is to put the coffee in one compartment and the boiling water in another and the water is supose to go rite through by the weight of the one pressure and make perfect marvelous coffee such as no human tongue had ever before tasted, but what happened was that the holes invariably got clogged up before the water was half through, so I had to go to work and strain the rest through a regular old fashion coffee strainer, and the last drop I ate straw of all was that the spout of the fancy Chickworth pot was so badly made that the coffee wouldn't pore without spilling on the table cloth at the same time. My goodness Willyum do you think these people can spend a fortune avertising these things rite, even trying them first? she said.

I dont know, but something tells me you've won the argument, pop said.

Wich she had.

What Do You Mean— GOOD OLD DAYS?

YOUR GRANDMOTHER PROBABLY LIVED IN A HOUSE LIKE THIS... PERHAPS YOU HAD MANY A GOOD TIME THERE AS A CHILD. BUT WOULD YOU WANT TO GO BACK TO GRANDMOTHER'S HOUSE — TO LIVE THERE NOW?

THE 'GOOD OLD DAYS' WERE NOT GOOD; NOR WERE THEY EASY. THEY WERE CRUDE, INCONVENIENT AND UNCOMFORTABLE. THEY WERE MARKED BY A WAY OF LIFE THAT MAY HAVE BEEN SATISFYING TO THOSE WHO LIVED IT, BUT SCARCELY BROADENING, HYGIENIC OR ENTERTAINING.

GOOD OLD DAYS? THE TOWN'S RICHEST FAMILY LACKED THE SAFEGUARDS AND CONVENIENCES WE ALL NOW TAKE FOR GRANTED: ELECTRIC FANS, ADEQUATE REFRIGERATION, RELIABLE DRUG PRODUCTS THAT THE DOCTOR CAN PRESCRIBE WITH SAFETY, CHEAP TELEPHONE SERVICE, DAY AND NIGHT, NATIONALLY KNOWN DEPENDABLE PACKAGED FOODS, AUTOMATIC CENTRAL HEATING, CHIC POPULAR-PRICED APPAREL, AND THAT GLORY OF MODERN ART, THE MODERN BATHROOM!

MANY THINGS HAVE MADE THESE BLESSINGS POSSIBLE — INVENTIVE GENIUS, PLENTIFUL CAPITAL AND THAT INSATIABLE DESIRE FOR "SOMETHING BETTER" SO PECULIAR TO CANADIANS. BUT ONLY ONE THING HAS MADE THEM AVAILABLE TO EVERYBODY, NORTH AND SOUTH, CITY AND COUNTRY, BANKER AND WORKINGMAN ALIKE: LOW COST MANUFACTURE AND DISTRIBUTION CREATED BY ADVERTISING.

WHEN YOU LOOK AT THE ADS IN THIS NEWSPAPER CONSIDER THIS FACT: ALL OVER THE COUNTRY MILLIONS OF OTHER INFORMED MEN AND WOMEN ARE READING ADS IN THEIR OWN LOCAL NEWSPAPERS, CHECKING VALUES VERY SIMILAR TO THOSE BEING OFFERED YOU BY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER ADVERTISERS. They ARE VISITING THEIR OWN LOCAL STORES.....THEY ARE VIEWING AND SELECTING STYLISH CLOTHES, TASTEFUL FURNITURE, SMART SHOES, DELICIOUS FOOD PRODUCTS AND MANY, MANY OTHER THINGS, ALL HAVING THE SAME HIGH QUALITY, AS THOSE YOU, YOURSELF, BUY!

AND IT IS THIS UNIFORM, NATIONWIDE DEMAND, CREATED AND FOSTERED BY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING THAT HAS MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO BUY THESE LUXURIOUS NECESSITIES AT THE LOW POPULAR PRICES EVERYONE CAN AFFORD TO PAY.

CONSIDER THIS, TOO! GRANDMOTHER HAD TO BE A SHREWD TRADER. NOT EVERY MERCHANT WAS TRUSTWORTHY IN HER TIME. BUT BECAUSE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IS UNIVERSALLY ACCEPTED AND BELIEVED IT HAS ACTUALLY BROUGHT ABOUT HIGHER STANDARDS OF BUYING AND SELLING. LONG AGO ADVERTISERS DISCOVERED THAT UNLESS THEIR GOODS WERE "AS ADVERTISED" THEY COULD NOT HOLD PUBLIC CONFIDENCE AND STAY IN BUSINESS. IN THIS WAY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING PROTECTS EVERY MAN AND WOMAN WHO BUYS. TODAY THE WATCHWORDS OF EVERY ADVERTISING MERCHANT ARE "DEPENDABILITY AND SERVICE . . . FIRST, LAST AND ALL THE TIME".

DO YOU WANT PROOF? THEN CHECK EVERY AD IN THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER! YOU WILL FIND THAT EVERY ITEM ADVERTISED IS A REAL VALUE CALCULATED TO MAKE YOUR BUYING DOLLAR GO FARTHER. MORE IMPORTANT, WHEN YOU PURCHASE ANY ARTICLE ADVERTISED IN THIS NEWSPAPER YOU WILL FIND BACK OF IT A REAL PLEDGE OF DEPENDABILITY, DEPENDABILITY THAT YOUR GRANDMOTHER OFTEN SIGHED FOR BUT SELDOM FOUND.

London, June 9.—(CP Cable)—A British correspondent who has just left Spain, Spain. The British letter leaders was hit at Castel- ne La Plana but there were no casualties.

Cleaner For Action

Correspondent with British optimism for action. A British de- stroyer dropped anchor at Alicante harbor and two British ships set in the last bombardment. But there's action to bring air bom- bers out of bursts of British ship- ping and end has still to be de- cided.

British officials today sharply de- nied reports that a Royal Air Force unit might be sent to Spain to help British shipping in Mediterra- n. Further reports that the British government was ready to use piracy in the Mediterranean also were extended to include air bombing. Both were declared ut foundation.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Dominion meteorologist
Air masses! Our weather forecasters carefully note their warmths and cooling, then making their weather forecasts, the kind of air they are dealing with, where it came from, and what its characteristics are. Such is now these things, to make good forecast. In the be- ginning of summer the air mass that comes from the North Atlantic is most important than at any other time of the year. From Cape Cod northward the ocean tem- perature is coldest of the year; very cold as compared with inland temperatures to the west. The North Atlantic, then, is a source of cold air which frequently comes south, causing decided drops in temperature along the Atlantic coast as far as Cape Hatteras.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Synopsis: Fairly deep disturbance moving from the Great Lakes basin has caused moderate to heavy rains in many districts of Alberta and Sask- atchewan while in Manitoba it has been generally fair. Showers have also been general in Northern Ontario, Que- bec and the Maritime provinces. It is cooler in the Prairie Provinces but generally warm from the lower Lake Region eastward. Pressure is low over the Lake Region and Northern States also the Northwest Territories and over Labrador and Hudson Straits.

Forecasts:
Maritime: Fresh to strong east and southeast winds; cloudy and cool tonight and Friday with occasional rain chiefly in southern districts.

Lake and Upper St. Lawrence: Fresh to strong winds; cloudy and cool with scattered showers.

Northern Ontario: Cloudy and cool today and Friday with scattered showers.

Grasshoppers March by Billions, Threaten Montana Farmer, Breeder

Springer, N.M., June 9—(AP)—Grasshoppers by the billion were on the march in the deep south- west and Rocky Mountain region of the United States today, threatening farmer and stockman with ruin.

Pitted against a fantastic in- sect menace to millions of acres of farm and grazing lands were hun- dreds of men and machines, wag- ing desperate war against scem- ingly relentless Topper hordes.

National guard detachments moved into infested areas in northeastern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle today, while Col- orado, Oklahoma, Montana and Wyoming farmers and government agencies mobilized their resources against the pest.

Also in Wyoming, Montana, Utah and Idaho, the grasshopper threat was overshadowed by the Mormon cricket, destructive and equally voracious cousin of the Topper.

In New Mexico, where scores of poison mixing plants have been working day and night for two weeks, the dread migratory move- ment of the insects was under way.

"If we can't lick them this week, they'll lick us," declared Gover- nor Clyde Tingley, of New Mexico, appealing for $100,000 federal aid.

KING GEORGE VI. GREETED TODAY BY THOUSANDS

"Official" Birthday of Mon- arch Is Observed in London

TROOPING OF COLORS

By GUY ROBARTS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, June 9—(CP)—Thousands, including Canadians, to- day swarmed the sun-lit Mall to cheer the King as he rode with the Duke of Gloucester and Kent to take the salute at the historic ceremony of the trooping of the colors on his "official" birthday.

Majesty, mounted on a chest- nut charger and wearing the scarlet and gold uniform of colonel in chief of the fcots guards with the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter across his tabic, led the glittering cavalcade from Buckingham Palace to the horse guards parade.

Crowd Bursts Into Cheers

The Duke of Gloucester wore the uniform of colonel of the Grenadier Guards and the Duke of Kent that of colonel of the Royal Fusiliers.

Queen Mary-and Princesses Eli- abeth and Margaret drove to the parade with a Queen's escort of Life Guards. As they drove from the palace through the lines of troops and members of the army council sal- uted and the crowd burst into cheers as the carriage rounded the Vic- toria Memorial.

Queen Elizabeth was unable to attend. Her Majesty is at Windsor, recovering from a cold.

KING'S HONORS ARE ANNOUNCED

Sir J. Stamp now Baron, Sir A. Errington, O.M., and Aubrey Smith, C.B.E.

London, June 9 — Sir Josiah Stamp, the noted economist who investigated Canadian trading in grain future in 1931, is raised to the Peerage in the King's Birthday honors list, which created two Vis- counts (promotions in the peerage) and two new Barons.

The King also conferred the rare but coveted Order of Merit on the distinguished scientist, Sir Arthur Keith on the list which also made twenty-four and is conferred chief- ly on scientists and men of let- ters.

The King celebrates his birthday officially today, although actually the anniversary of his birth falls in December.

Four New Peers

The new Viscounts:

Baron Monsheven, former Chair- man of the Conservative Party or- ganization.

Baron Weir, former member of the Air Council, who resigned his position as adviser to the Air Min- istry last month at the time of Lord Swinton's resignation as Air Secretary.

Sir Aubrey Smith, distinguished veteran actor of Hollywood, be- comes a C.B.E.

Court Held in Cell of Prisoner Because He Refuses to Dress

Montreal, June 9—(CP)—Nude but not bothered much about it, Zachario David sat in court yester- day and listelessly answered ques- tions with one word—"yeah"—as they gave him a hearing on vagrancy charge.

The courtroom was Zacharies cell at Provincial Police headquart- ers. All the night of May 31 he couldn't persuade Zacharie to put his clothes on today to go to court, so the court obliged by going to Zacharie.

The examination was as follows:

Q.—Zach, they say you were a vagrant.

A.—Yeah?

Q.—We will come back June 16 at 10 a.m.

A.—Yeah?

Q.—And a mental examination, meanwhile.

Finance Minister Says Plan Challenge to Building Industry

By H. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, June 8—(CP)—Canadians were before them today a govern- ment plan to carry the benefits of low-cost housing loans to everyman, fly in the Dominion, from the large cities to the cross-road ham- and-bitches.

In the House of Commons yes- terday Finance Minister Dunning introduced a three-way measure de- signed to assist financing low-cal- ed owner-built and municipal low rental housing projects and to lift the city burden of property taxation from the low cost owner-re- sidence. About $50,000,000 to be by the federal treasury's obligation un- der the scheme.

Also In Revive Prosperity

Mr. Dunning said the govern- ment hoped to provide better hous- ing conditions, stimulate employ- ment, revive business prosperity, and remove from the minds of the small-salaried man his fear of the ghost of unfairly assessing the pro- perty and shouldering the responsibility- ing a slashing the life-long ambition of owning his own home.

His housing legislation is a challenge to the building industry of this country—and is so intended" Mr. Dunning declared. Our way to bill it would be for those in the in- dustry to attempt to reduce costs, to raise prices or commodities or labor.

Repeal of Act of 1935

The housing bill, which was given first reading after a brief debate on the preliminary resolution, is di- vided into three parts.

The first provides for repeal of the Dominion Housing Act of 1935 and substitution of a similar act, ten eliminating defects which pre- vented its wide application in rural districts and among low-salaried groups. For this purpose $20,000,000 is provided and the $5,500,000 al- ready committed under the old act. The interest rate to borrowers re- mains at a maximum of five per cent.

The second part enables the gov- ernment to loan up to $20,000,000 to assist in the construction of low-i- rental housing projects either by municipal bodies or limited divi- dend housing corporations.

CHARGE ACCUSED DISGUISED SELF WEARING CORSETS

Prosecution Outlines Story of Failure of Englands First Kidnap Plot

POLICE TRAP

Plan Alleged to Have Been to Seize Nuffield at Pistol Point

Oxford, England, June 9—(AP)—Testimony that would-be kidnap- per intended to extort huge sums from Viscount Nuffield, millionaire automobile manufacturer, by threatening him with an "operation without an anaesthetic" was intro- duced today at the hearing of John Bruce Thornton.

Thornton, 50, is charged with holding Major Allan C. D. Ramsden to help him abduct Lord Nuf- field.

Tells of Thornton's Words

Major Ramsden, testifying against Thornton, said the latter told him he would "make a display of surgical brilliance" with the mil- lionaire after the kidnapping had been carried out and then induce him to write a letter exonerating the letter of credit (or £100,000 (about $500,000).

If Lord Nuffield "did not play the game," Major Ramsden said, Thorn- ton wanted to take the peer out in an en yacht and "dump him."

The plot centered in Thornton's said, because Major Ramsden told the police. Thornton was arrested May 24 when he drove up to Lord Nuffield's Oxford home in an auto- motyc. He was accused of carrying two pistols.

Alleged Plot Outlined

The prosecutor, H. J. Parham, said the plot was to lodge Lord Nuffi- field at pistol point take him to the yacht Pierrette at anchor at a bar- pool, on the south coast and hold him until Thornton negotiated letters of credit that was going to force the captive to write.

Thornton, the prosecutor asserted told Major Ramsden he had bought a disguise in Australia—a red toupee with peroxide hair to back, a fake moustache and eyebrows, gold caps for his teeth and colored corsets to "make me a spot slimmer."

Police Let in on Plan

The idea, the prosecutor charged, was for Major Ramsden to keep Lord Nuffield in chain aboard the yacht until Thornton negotiated the letters of credit on the continent and then turn the prisoner loose in a field with his eyes covered with adhesive tape.

Major Ramsden let the police in on the plot early in May but con- tinued to pretend to cooperate, the prosecutor continued.

Criminality Overlapped by Insanity, Alcatraz Warden Tells Doctors

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
San Francisco, June 9—(AP)—James A. Johnston, warden of Alcatraz the Federal Island Pen- itentiary here which houses Al Capone, Machine Gun Kelly and other desperate men, today plaint- ed criminality as it looks to him and said it is "overlapped by in- sanity."

The warden, who seldom talks, presented a 6,000 word paper to the American Psychiatric Asso- ciation. He gave 10 case histories of prisoners, but no names. The 10 appeared not to be among Al- catraz notorious band.

He drew a word picture of what the warden looks at as he sits waiting for a criminal who has cracked to enter his office for medical examination.

"As hospital attendants or guards bring the patient to the door," he said, "sometimes it makes a rather pathetic procession.

FIVE KILLED AS BRITISH, FRENCH SHIPS BOMBED

Separate Insurgent Raids Carried Out on Go't.-Held Seaports

BOAT SET AFIRE

Denia, Spain, June 8—(AP)—The British freighter Isadora and the French freighter Marcel Conti were bombed today in separate insurgent air raids in government-held Med- iterranean seaports.

Five persons were killed, includ- ing a woman and a non-inter- vention committee in raid on the Brisbane by a low bomber outside this harbor. Ten others were injur- ed, four gravely.

Denia, 55 miles south of Gan- dia, the British-owned port which was bombed yesterday.

The Isadora was struck in her engine room about midnight in the harbor of Castellon De La Plana and was believed to have been put out of commission. There were no casualties, however, aboard the Isa- dora.

The Brisbane was set afire about the same hour and still was burn- ing at 11:30 a.m. today. It was feared she would sink.

Sprayed by Machine Gun Fire

The French ship, of 4,004 tons and loaded with fertilizer, was at anchor in Denia harbor when the air raid- ers struck.

The plane dumped four bombs on the ship and then sprayed her, decks with machine gun fire.

A French destroyer at Valencia sped to the Brisbane's assistance and quickly reached her side.

All the seamen aboard were French. Some of the victims were hit by machine gun bullets. One of the most dangerously injured was the Brisbane's master, Captain R. Guy- Jones.

(The 1,212-ton Isadora is register- ed at Belfast, Northern Ireland, and was reported in London to have left Marseille, France, and Palma for Castellon De La Plana, governmen- held port north of Valencia.)

MANY RURAL SHOPPERS IN CITY ON BUSINESS

Front Street merchants were un- able to give the reason for the fair amount of business that was being carried on in their stores today, mostly by rural buyers. In spite of the fact that farmers should be busy at the present time, city clerks were busy filling their purchases to- day which ranged from print goods to heavy hardware.

30 French Pursuit Planes Patrol Frontier of France and Spain

Perpignan, France, June 9—(AP) —Thirty French pursuit planes, heavily armed with machine guns, started patrolling the French-Span- ish frontier region today with orders to force down any Spanish planes attempting to fly over French ter- ritory.

The ships, based here, were sent out in groups of three to range the skies from Cerbere, on the Mediter- ranean coast, to Bourg-Madame to the west.

The patrols by the 250 mile an hour planes were ordered after the visit of Premier Edouard Daladier to the frontier to investigate three bombings of French towns recently. France in the past two weeks in which bombs were dropped twice.

Kidnapped Child's Body Found Near Its Home; Ransom Money Recovered

Miami, Fla., June 9—(AP)—Fed- eral Bureau of Investigation men led personally by J. Edgar Hoover found the body of 5-year-old Bobby Cash, Jr., early today.

With the tragic discovery they announced the detention of Frank- lin Pierce McCall, 21 year old truck driver, as an alleged participant in the kidnapping 12 days ago.

They also disclosed the entire $19,000 ransom that Cash, senior, paid had been recovered.

It was beneath the "found" the last of three ransom notes delivered to the father and mother of the lit- tle victim that U. Sheriff D. C. Coleman said he arrested the man one week ago, when he became suspicious of his story.

Bobbyville McCall had partici- pated with 2,000 volunteers in a search of the very area around Bobbyville, south of here, where the body and the ransom money were found.

Confessed to Writing Notes

However, who subsequently the "breaking" of the case after two sleepless nights, said McCall had confessed he wrote the three ransom demands and collected the money but made no attempt as to any further part in the crime.

Cash, a moderately well to do merchant and filling station op- erator, and his wife were advised im- mediately of the developments. Sheriff Coleman, who took them the word, said Cash received it "very hard." He did not see the mother.

The body and the ransom were found within a few miles of the Cash home at Princeton, The shoe- box in which the 1,500 bills of small denomination were delivered also was found. Coleman said he had torn it to pieces and hidden it beneath a tree in a garden near the Cash home.

The body of little "Skeegie" who would have been six years old in June, was in a bad state of de- composition.

Can be Electrocuted

State Attorney George A. Worley today said the Dade County grand jury indicated no federal law apparent- ly had been violated and that Mc- Call, Miami truck driver, who will be prosecuted would be tried in the State courts. He probably will be charged with murder or kidnapping for ransom they will face a penalty of electrocution if convicted.

The third ransom note by which McCall was trapped was delivered late at night on the Monday fol- lowing the payment through the crowds milling about the Cash home Sheriff Coleman said McCall brought the note to him and with the lair that he had picked it up from a fence post. Coleman said he had been thrust beneath the door. The note was turned over to the FBI, the Sheriff added, and it was this circumstance that first caused him to doubt McCall.

The gist of the note was that too many persons had been in the ci- cinity when Cash made a solitary drive over a route mapped in an earlier message to deliver the ran- som and that the kidnapper wanted him to go it again. He did not, how- ever. On this trip Cash received a sig- nal of blinking headlights and dropped the shoebox full of small bills in the highway.

PETITION TO ANNEX SMALL PART OF MAINE DEFECTIVE

"Some of Allegations Offen- sive to Foreign Country"

CLERK'S STATEMENT

Ottawa, June 9—(CP)—The pe- tition presented to parliament by J. E. Poulliot (Lib., Temiscouata) ask- ing for annexation of a small corner of the State of Maine to Canada has not been accepted because "it is defective in form and in substance," it was disclosed in today's Commons votes and proceedings.

The petition prefaces advised the House the petition did not conform with the requirements of the House.

Clerk's Statement

The Clerk's statement said: "The Clerk of the House has decided not to accept the petition because some of its allegations are offensive to a for- eign country which it charges with theft of some of its territory; and the prayer, made on behalf of the aliens, concludes with the request that the territory of Maine be annexed to Canada. For these rea- sons, it should not be received."

The territory concerned is a small point of Maine jutting into Quebec Province and the northwest corner of New Brunswick and cen- tred on the village of Estcourt in Temiscouata country, Quebec.

Area is Separated

The area is separated from the rest of the State by a dense forest nearly 70 miles wide and by poor, direct communication with the rest of the world except through Canada.

Mr. Poulliot said the area was about five square miles and inhabited by 400 people.

All the inhabitants were French. Some of the victims were hit by machine gun bullets. One of the most dangerously injured was the Brisbane's master, Captain R. Guy- Jones.

WOMEN COLLAPSE IN JURY COURT

Point Anne Woman Faints on Stand, Sidney Also Stricken

As court officials raced to her aid, Mrs. Mabel Barnhart, Point Anne, collapsed on the witness stand while testifying at the jury sittings of the county court, being heard before his Honor Judge Farrell at the local court house today. Mrs. Barnhart was removed to an ante-room where a medical attention was afforded her. While in the ante-room, however, the court was again thrown into a state of extreme confusion when Mrs. Caroline Branch, a sister of Mrs. Barnhart, was seized with a spell of illness.

Dr. W. C. Morgan, the county gaol physician, was summoned to attend the women and gave first aid treat- ment. Both women were removed to their homes in Point Anne by the police.

Mrs. Barnhart had been summon- ed as a Crown witness in the case against George Bailey, charged with theft. It had been established in court that Mrs. Barnhart was a relative of the accused man, while only a few seconds before she col-

PREMIER ELECTED

Liberals Elected 33 Mem- bers And Have Strong Working Majority

Regina, June 9—(CP)—Saskat- chewan looked forward today to another five years of Liberal Adminis- tration under Premier W. J. Pat- terson with the Cooperative Com- monwealth Federation again form- ing the chief legislative opposition.

In an emphatic voice, Saskatche- wan yesterday went to the polls, returned the Liberals and rejected the bid of Social Crediters under the active leadership of Premier William Aberhart of Alberta.

With four seats in doubt early today Liberals had elected 33 mem- bers, C.C.F. nine, Social Credit two, Union-Progressive one and independ- one each.

The Conservatives, for the second election in a row, failed to win a single riding although they had 29 men in the field.

As returns from ridings in all parts of the province were tabu- lated, the rout of the Social Credit- ers became evident.

One Social Credit candidate, Fred Herman in Redberry, was by four votes over Hon. C. M. Dunn, Min- ister of Highways. Another, Wil- liam Kosland, was elected winner in Oxbride by 62 votes over a Lib- eral and a C.C.F. candidate.

CLARENCE POOLE TO BE SENTENCED LATER IN COURT

Found Guilty of Having Stolen Goods in His Possession

NO DEFENCE OFFERED

After deliberating less than forty minutes the jury, impanelled to look into a charge of having, in his possession, a quantity of cigarettes, knowing them to be stolen, returned a verdict of guilty against Clarence Poole of this city, yesterday afternoon. His Honor Judge Lavell, Kingston, presiding at the local sessions of the Jury Sittings of the County Court now in progress, reserved judgment in the matter until this morning. Poole being held in custody.

Poole was indicted on a charge of having a quantity of cigarettes, the property of Locke Bros. Ltd., Belleville, in his possession, knowing the same to be stolen. The accused man pleaded not guilty with the majority of the Crown's evidence having been heard on the Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. Jack Goodman, local barrister, protested strenuously, at the conclusion of the evidence submitted by Crown Attorney R. G. Donnan, K. C., Prosecuting Attorney, contending the evidence had not been submitted by the Crown to prove the cigarettes found in Poole's possession had been stolen. His Honor refused to dismiss the charge at this point and instructed Mr. Goodman to continue his defence. The latter refused to call defence witnesses.

The 4pm examination of Sergeant H. S. Thompson was concluded early yesterday afternoon and the proceedings followed.

After deliberating slightly over one half hour the jury returned with a verdict of guilty as charged. "At the same time we plead for leniency for the accused as it is in his first conviction, we understand," added the Petit Jurymen Foreman. His Honor thanked the petit jury for their consideration and assured them their recommendation would receive due consideration as he reserved judgment until today.

Pulled Jury

Mr. Goodman, counsel for the defendant, at this point rose and asked that the jury be polled. "I do not think that necessary," but if you desire it, that is - within your right," replied His Honor as he instructed Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn to poll the jury. Solemnly each of the 12 jurymen replied "Guilty."

At the opening of the afternoon session, Mr. Goodman moved the charge be dismissed under Section 269 of the Criminal Code. The Crown has not established conversion of these cigarettes on exhibit. According to law the prosecution must establish these articles have been stolen; the Crown has not done so. This is purely suspicion against my client and I ask you to take the case out of the hands of the Jury and dismiss it," submitted Mr. Goodman.

Ample Evidence Says Judge

"I submit there is ample evidence for the jury to consider. The accused man retained 14 cartons of cigarettes after his arrest, which alone is incriminating. I submit," added Mr. Donnan.

"Here it is impossible to identify any cigarette, except by a mark indicating identity. We have evidence of shipment and non-arrival of the shipment of cigarettes to be followed by the finding of cigarettes in possession of the accused," pointed out His Honor.

"Very well, then I do not intend introducing any evidence on behalf of my client as I still contend there is no evidence implicating my client," submitted Mr. Goodman.

The case proceeded with Crown Attorney R. G. Donnan, K.C., reviewing the evidence as he summed up the case before the Jury. "Although you must agree in your minds these cigarettes were stolen goods before you can convict the accused man and if you do not establish theft then you can't convict him. But where did these cigarettes come from? Cigarettes were brought into Canada, but not received. I submit these are the cigarettes and therefore ask you to bring in a verdict of guilty if you believe a theft has been committed," concluded Mr. Donnan.

Makes First Address

"This is no pleasure for me; it is my first attempt to address a jury and will ask you to bear with me," stated Mr. Goodman in his opening statement when summing up the case.

"First you must establish these cigarettes were stolen from the Locke Bros. Ltd. Bear in mind there were eight pieces shipped to Locke Bros. and eight pieces received by them. Are you going to send a man to jail because he bought these cigarettes at a bargain? All there is against this boy is some suspicion and very little of that; therefore, I ask you men to find this man not guilty," concluded Mr. Goodman.

"Gentlemen of the jury let me remind you of the charge is: His Honor said before reading the charge and instructing the jury as to the law.

"There must be theft and there must be possession with a guilty knowledge. The Crown does not say this man stole the cigarettes, but does say the accused was in possession of them, knowing them to be stolen. You must determine whether or not the accused man knowingly received that these cigarettes were stolen.

No Other Loss Reported

"Regarding the possession of the cigarettes, I might remind you that no other loss of cigarettes was reported at this time.

"Five enough these articles were not and could not be identified. He not simply finding a person guilty of any crime but I urge you to weigh the evidence carefully and bear in mind this man has never been convicted before. Mr. Goodman, the accused man's solicitor has most capably presented his case and I believe has presented all the important defence facts before you," concluded His Honor.

Provincial Constable D Carruthers corroborated previous Crown evidence at the afternoon opening.

H. THEOBALD BEST RECRUIT

Presented With Trophy Following Inspection of Battalion

Private H. Theobald, "B" Company of the Argyll Light Infantry, Thurlow, was chosen the "most efficient recruit" of the battalion for the year 1938 at the annual inspection of the local unit held on the armouries drill hall evening.

To mark this attainment of such signal honour, Private Theobald was awarded the fine trophy donated by the Army and Navy Veterans' Association in this district, which silver cup will in future be given for annual competition among privates of the battalion.

The trophy was publicly presented on the armouries floor by former Petty Officer 1st Class) of the Royal Canadian Navy Chas. Gatcum, D.C.M., in the presence of inspecting Officer Brigadier General H. F. H. Hertzberg, D.S.O., C.M.G., General Officer Commanding Military District No. 3, by former Petty Officer Gatcum on behalf of members of the Imperial Association.

"We are happy to present this award for the first time in this year's most efficient recruit, and hope that this cup will foster friendly rivalry which, we feel, which will react toward the betterment of the battalion," declared former Officer Gatcum in his presentation, Commanding Officer Hertzberg then tittingly worded by Brigadier General Hertzberg to Private Theobald, stating the silver cup will be in permanent possession of the battalion and that every recruit will have their names suitably inscribed on the silver goblet. Private Theobald's name is entered as that of first winner. He will receive in addition a smaller silver cup, which will be engraved and remain in his possession. Other annual winners will receive the same award.

The award is given according to number of points gained during the training season of the battalion by the new recruit.

N. Y. Giants Move To Top Of National League; Leafs Lose Two

Giants Win a Doubleheader Over Chicago Cubs to Lead National League by Half Game

Carl Hubbell And Mel Ott Supply Winning Punch

YANKS DROP TWO

Boston Red Sox in Tie For Second Place in American

By SID FEDER

Boiseverhen in that Valhalla reserved for baseball's departed great, the old man looked down today and had a hearty chuckle over the doings of New York Giants in general and King Carl Hubbell and Master Melvin Ott in particular.

He's been gone 11 years now, but he found things just about the same. McGraw's boys are there when the chips are down.

The old man, of course, was John McGraw. There was only one. And there was McGraw's boys, naturally, are Master Melvin and King Carl. They were hand-picked by the old man and learned their A-B-Z's from him.

McGraw, you know, used to run the Giants, before Terrible Bill Terry's Regime. Now Bill has done a swell job, but in his six years in the driver's seat, the two men he's relied on most and who have let him down least are McGraw's boys—the two he inherited when the old man turned over the reins back in 1932.

It was that way again yesterday. The Giants were riding a losing streak, with everything going wrong. They had dropped six out of seven on their western swing, came to Chicago for their series with the Cubs and lost the first clash there Tuesday, sinking 11½ games out of the league lead.

So it was up to McGraw's boys yesterday and the result was a double-header victory for Terry's Terriers, which boosted them right back to the top.

In the finale, Master Melvin exploded his twelfth homer of the season in the tenth inning to break up the game for a 4-3 win. King Carl went out in the nightcap and took care of the rest of the job. Only five Cubs passed second base, and six fanned as he posted his seventh win of the year by a 4-1 margin.

This left the Giants in first place by half a game, with everything riding on today's series finale.

POINT ANNERS IN TOP SPOT OF SOFTBALL LOOP

Shutout Napanee 6-0 Behind Steady Hurling of Bawden

JUNIORS WIN

Belmonts Behind in Seventh But Stage Strong Rally to Win 11-3

Behind the shut-out pitching of Johnnie Bawden, the Point Anne "Greenhorns" advanced into sole possession of first place in the District Softball League as the Canadian ace applied the whitewash brush to the Napanee Mic Mac team to win an 8-0 decision at 4 to 1 last evening. In the other scheduled league game, Red Townsend's ten-aged Belmonts came from behind to win a belated 11 to 3 victory from the Bosch-McCrae squad at the Coleman Flats diamond. The "oldsters" thus moved into the top ranks of the Belmont juniors, however, and were leading by a full game with seventh, following which the potent bats of the Belmont boys went on a prolific rampage to score, as the kids pounded two of Hank Ryan's moundsmen for a total of seven.

At Point Anne, Johnnie Bawden started things off all as the "greenhorn" blanked the Napanee Mic Mac crew. The Point Anne ace-in-the-hole Bawden splendid support throughout the entire struggle, and he struck out six and only walked two. Dave Stinson, veteran Napanee backstop was the only visitor to meet with success during the Bawden shutout, when he got the two of the Napanee three bingles.

The Mic Macs used two hurlers in an effort to stop the homesters, George Young and Bill Hall, the latter giving away to Rombough in the third and after the Point Anne boys had batted around five runs. The homesters only got one run and six hits off Young, but Rombough issued a double and two singles led the home team to victory in the fifth, when it found a triple in the initial frame with two aboard. Whitehead had a double and Bawden a single in the "oldsters" collected ten hits. On the mound, Townsend covered most of the Belmont kids at Coleman Flats.

The line-ups: Point Anne—Lost, Bawden, 1b; Sero, ss; Dickey, rf; Green, c; Bawden, p; Whitehead, 2b; Rombough, lf; Groom, cf. Napanee—Miller, Gord Curry, Murphy, Sidney, George Curry, D. Rombough, Groom, Thompson and Callaghan, thumpers Canniff, pinch pinch; Marsee, Point Anne, beats.

Juniors Victorious.

With hits rather scarce in the Belmont part of the game, the Belmont juniors unleashed a torrid barrage of base hits in the eighth frame to score seven runs and clinch their game versus the Booth-McCrae nine by an 11 count, the latter having had the parade for over seven frames. Harvey Bosch accepted the hill-top for the "clothiers" and hurled superb ball until two infield hits were misused—and the baloon ascended to only come down after the junior kids had sailed the pasttime well away. Yarrow started for the Belmonts and hurled good ball only to be replaced by Carson as the losers punched three hard hits out and scored a trio of runs in the fourth, their only scoring threat. Carson limited the Bosch-ites nine to one run in the subsequent four frames.

Home runs by O'Neill and Moon and a double by Whalen started the Belmonts on the road to victory, while two snappy double plays also added to their ultimate victory. Carson, Bosch, Rowbotham also hit well for the winners with Knott getting two and Laughrey and Rigg timely singles for the losers.

This evening's crack Kingston nine meet the National Grocers in an exhibition game at Coleman Flats.

MERCHANTS WIN GOLF TOURNEY

Six Teams Compete at Country Club on Half Holiday

A local golf tourney inducting many of the professions in the business life of this city was held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Wednesday afternoon and was one of the most enjoyable functions ever staged by that popular golf club. Some part with gobs of an exceptionally good quality being played, the merchants under the captaincy of Jack McIntosh being returned victory, but only by a single point over the Manufacturers.

At the conclusion of the match the members and guests repaired to the clubhouse where an excellent turkey dinner was served after which the evening was devoted to bridge and a social evening. Arthur F. Lumley Sullivan's Manager Dies At 86

New York, June 8—(CP)— Arthur (Art) T. Lumley is dead and today those who would hear his tales of the ring roaring doings of John L. Sullivan must get them from other sources than the old man who managed the one and only John L. back in the days when fisticuffing meant bare knuckles.

Lumley died in hospital here last night of ailments incident to age. He was 86. At one time he was editor of the Police Gazette. At another time he worked on the New York Herald and later drew cartoons for the New York Telegram. But nearly always he appeared in sports.

Feature Page

In 1888 he founded his own paper, the New York Illustrated News, patterned after the Police Gazette, but its popularity never reached that of its rival and in 1892 ceased publication.

Along with his editorial duties, Lumley found time to manage leading prizefighters of his day and from 1883 to 1891 he piloted John L. or rather, as Lumley used to tell it, "John L. managed me as I handled all his managers." Lumley took Sullivan to Richbourg, Miss., in 1889 to beat Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds for the last bareknuckle championship fight.

Other fighters handled by Arthur T. included Jack McAuliffe, Chicago kid—the now famous 10-6. Detroit 3, Philadelphia 1.
Boston 7, Cleveland 3.
St. Louis 11, Washington 3.

Jack (the nonpareil) Dempsey and Jim Corbett, not to be confused with John L. was "the greatest of them all but not the big-fist."

Feud of Sticklers

He had a feud with all sticklers about Sullivan and his favorite was how the famous fighter was 20 minutes late for an engagement with the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII.

Sullivan finally arrived breathless. He brushed a protesting lord aside and insisted on taking the late Arthur Brisbane, then London correspondent of the Sun, in with him and capped it all by clapping the Prince on the back and exclaiming:

"You're a hell of a good fellow, Prince."

Schmeling's a Cinch To Pop Louis and Win Title—Osborne

By Gayle Talbot
Associated Press Sports Writer
Specially to The Guelph Mercury
—Bill Osborne, who owns everything from a championship to a cozy cottage in which Max Schmeling trains for the moment, says Max German is an absolute cinch to knock the daylights out of Joe Louis again.

Osborne has been watching the big fellows cook here ever since Gene Tunney came up in the summer of 1926 to get ready for his first fight with Jack Sharkey. He is one of the few who actually saw Tunney take up road work.

"I knew," he recalls, "that Gene was going to win the fight, but I knew I knew that Max is going to spread Louis like a rug. They are a lot alike in every detail but one. Max has that same confidence Gene had, and he won't just sit back.

"How, take Max Baer on the other hand. I knew he was scared to death the day he left here to go to New York for the fight and—pop—there will be Louis on the floor."

"Jobs" Wins Senior Class in Weekly Punt Races

Course records were nearly reached and nearly more than one minute separated the two leading contenders, Jobs and Class racing punts of Duke Smith's Jobs, Geared winner by one minute, 13 seconds over Maurice Callaghan's After You'd III, proverbial rivals, during the twelve mile contest afternoon sailing races held by the South End Wanding and Athletic Club.

Favored by strong west and northwest winds during the afternoon's race yesterday, all boats managed to complete near record time, the Smith boat acting a time of one hour and 50 minutes. The Roy Hay boat in this class did not finish, while the Anne C., owned by Harry Sennick, was almost lapped by the two leading contenders.

In the "B" Class races Norman Kelch's Dorothy was awarded the winner, after the After You II, skippered by Wm. Nicholson, capsized near Fairman's Island while the International League pennant race is far from settled.

The Bears were riding high in first place with eleven straight victories to their credit yesterday until the herd stampeded. The Bisons beat Newark 19-5 and 4-1, and moved within five games of the league leaders.

Buffalo walloped three Newark pitchers for 21 hits, including four doubles, one triple and three homers, in capturing the opener, and belted out eleven safeties in the nightcap to win easily behind the three-hit pitching of Fabe Kowalik.

Baltimore Orioles suffered their thirteenth defeat in a row last night when they bowed 6-2 to Montreal Royals who hung up their fifth win in a row.

Toronto Maple Leafs were presented with their third and fourth consecutive defeats, 5-3 and 4-1, by Jersey City Giants. Glen Gabler and Tommy Baker each pitched five-hit ball in stopping the Leafs.

Rochester Red Wings hung up their third consecutive triumph, beating Syracuse Chiefs 3-1 behind the smooth hurling of Howie Krist.

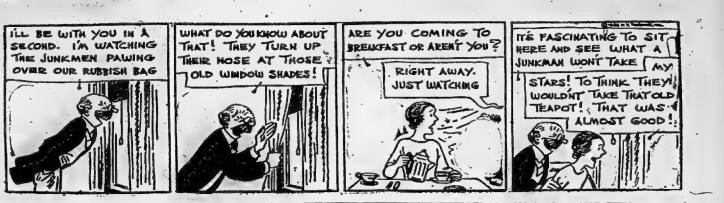
Nothing but a rose
Any wind might rob of half its savor,
Any wind that blows.



When she took it from my trembling fingers

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was taking a walk before supper and pop said, If you tried raising your feet off the ground when you walked, you soon find the change rather a pleasant innovation.

Yes sir, I was just thinking of something, I said, and pop said, Well, I suppose you could hardly be expected to use your head and your feet at the same time with an equal degree of proficiency.

I was thinking if I was walking along with a dollar in my pocket all belonging to me and I could do whatever I wanted with it, how swell of a sensation it would be, I said, and pop said, The only think so because you haven't got it. In other words your experience is misleading you. As a matter of fact there is no sadder or more disconsolate man than the possessor of grate wealth. He loses the common touch and becomes unfitted to enjoy the simple pleasures that are life's greatest thrills. What does a man with a million dollar yacht know of the joy of suddenly getting a seat in a trolley car just when the situation seemed hopeless? If you had 1 dollers, think of how insignificant an ice cream cone would appear to you, and think how large and glammerous it bulks in your young consciousness as things are at present, he said.

31-Foot Sloop Carries Toronto Family on Way to Newfoundland

Phillip Osmond, former unemployed Toronto resident, who has travelled his share of years past of building his own 31-foot sloop from spare parts and bits of lumber salvaged from an old wrecked scrap heap and returning to his native Newfoundland with his family, passed down the Bay of Quinte yesterday shortly before noon, speeding before the favoring westerly breezes, headed for home down the St. Lawrence. The boat, which travailed at a fair rate of speed, is the design of the lad and Osmond, and had evidently come through the Murray Canal from Lake Ontario. Sailing by hand were given residents of the summer colony at Jones' Creek by Skipper Osmond and his small family of daughter and three sons, as they passed. Two months ago the unemployed carpenter shipbuilder commenced the fabrication of his dream ship. He purchased an old automobile engine for $5 to put in the hull, but depends on his patched canvas sails for most of the journey.

Charges Are Laid After Investigation

Police today arrested John Kellar, Thurlow Township, charging him with driving a motor car at the scene of an accident and also of careless driving. Both counts were enlarged until Friday.

Kellar was arrested by Motor Cycle Policeman Sam Ervine early today following the finding of an automobile, abandoned in the ditch, one-half mile north of Belleville on the Cortyville highway last night.

Early last evening Constables Ervine and McBrine investigated an accident at the curve immediately north of the city limits on Highway No. 37 where a motor car was found turned over in the ditch and a badly damaged rear driver apparently failed to negotiate the turn in the road and swerved into the ditch, where the vehicle turned over," stated H.T.O. Ervine today.

Through the medium of the license plate number on the car, Constable Ervine traced the ownership to John Kellar, Stoney Lonesome. Kellar was arraigned before H. B. Wilson, Justice of the Peace, this morning and charges as above stated. He was allowed his liberty pending his own bail to appear in police court tomorrow.

LOW-COST GOVT

Interest and amortization costs would be 3 and 4 per cent a year.

Gov't. To Pay Taxes

The living part, Mr. Dunning said, was designed to strike a direct blow at what he believes to be the greatest deterrent to building operations —municipal taxation.

On owner-built houses of up to $4,000 cost the government will pay the municipal taxation the first year, 50 per cent the second year and 25 per cent the third year. This was estimated to cost the treasury a maximum of $5,000,000 in three years. The plan does not include local improvement taxes.

Opposition leader Bennett, Denison Mitchell (Mrs. Toronto-Greenwood) and G. B. Elliott (S. C. Kingsley) endorsed the principle of the bill.

Difficulties at 1936 Act

One of the great defects in the Dominion Housing Act in 1936, Mr. Dunning said, had been the difficulty of those in small communities, including lending institutions to deal with their applications because of the administration costs involved and the risk.

THREE MONTHS IS GIVEN C. POOLE

Additional Two Months if Fine of $100 is Not Paid

Appearing for sentence at the opening of the County Sittings in the County Court today, after being found guilty yesterday when indicted on a charge of keeping in his possession a quantity of cigarettes, the property of Mrs. Rose Campbellford, knowing the same to have been stolen, Clarence Poole of this city, was sentenced to serve three months in the common jail at that place and fined $100.00 by His Honor Judge Lavell. Kingston, presiding judge for the current session. Default of payment of the fine, however, Poole will serve an additional two months at the termination of the three months already meted out.

Before sentence was passed, Jacob Goodman, counsel for the accused addressed the Bench. "I wish to protect the jury's finding," stated Mr. Goodman. "This is not a crime under the Criminal Code and I request the case be dismissed against my client," asked His Honor Judge Lavell.

First Offence

"This is my client's first appearance in a criminal court and in view of the fact the jury found scant leniency in its findings and I would propose a suspended sentence. The accused supports his widowed mother and he has doubtlessly learned his lesson early in life, that crime does not pay," submitted Mr. Goodman.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C. however, pointed out that Poole had not assisted the police in the administration of justice nor in clearing up the crime of which he was charged. "He still refuses to volunteer information as to where some of the cigarettes, still missing, went and he has cost this county considerable in bringing this case before a jury," added Mr. Donnan.

Poole, you have been found guilty by the jury, a verdict, I fully concur with. You appeared inside it as difficult as possible for the Crown to get a conviction and you sniffed you knee and recalled your guilt from the start. It is true the value of the goods stolen was not of any great value and I am always glad to offer a jury's recommendation for leniency, but this offence is very serious and calls for punishment to deter indifference towards. It is not a case for suspended sentence, so I have decided the sentence of this court is to be that you are sentenced to imprisonment in the common jail and a fine of $100.00 or in default of payment thereof, an additional two months," stated H's Honor Judge Lavell.

WOMEN COLLAPS

lapsed, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., had requested the court to have Mrs. Barnhart declared an adverse witness in the case of Mrs. Honor. Judge Lavell, later consented and Mrs. Barnhart was declared adverse witness and it was after Mr. Donnan produced a signed statement said to have been given provincial police by the witness and to pertain to the case in question, that she collapsed.

Those in the court room were thrown into excitement at the time but immediately quieted down as Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn quietly called for "order". The physician was then called.

4 RECORDS FALL AT O.S.D. ANNUAL ATHLETIC MEET

Betty Wood, K. Pratley, M. Churchill, L. Reid Set New Schoolgirl Marks

OTHER EVENTS LATER

Girl athletes racing to four new school records paced the flying heels of the boys today as the Annual Track and Field Meet of the School for the Deaf got under way under ideal weather conditions on the school campus.

Betty Wood broke the tape in the Senior Girls 75 yard dash in 9 1-5 seconds clipping 3-5 seconds off the old record. K. Pratley, four feet five inches jump in the Running High established a new mark for the school, eclipsing the former record by three inches. L. Reid hung up a new record in the pentball throw, heaving the pellet for a distance of 126' 7", bettering the old mark by over three feet. In the intermediate girls' events, M. Churchill shattered the old existing mark in the Standing Broad Jump with a hurry of 7' 4" and one-half inches better than the record.

Sprints and other events in senior intermediate, and junior girls' ranks were run off this morning, but the championship of these classes will not be declared until late this afternoon.

BRIGHTON GIRL SUSTAINS CUTS

Betty Smith, Riding Bicycle And Car Collide in Village

Betty Smith fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Smith Brighton was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by Provincial Constable Ferguson suffering from severe facial lacerations sustained, when the bicycle she was riding crashed into a car driven by T. D. Huston, Belleville on Highway No. 2 near Brighton High School.

Attended by Dr. F. M. Dore, Brighton physician, the injured girl was ordered to hospital, where several stitches were required to close facial wounds. Dr. G. H. Dickie, who attended the girl here, stated today, that her condition was satisfactory.

During week-end on Highway No. 2, Mr. Huston swerved his car to the left of the highway when he noticed a girl riding a bicycle dash out from the ground of the High School. As the girl continued in her direction, the Huston car was called farther to the side of the road. Attempting to clear the car, the bicycle crashed into the right fender of the car, catapulting its occupant into the windshield breaking it in one place, and causing the severe injuries to the rider of the bike.

Mr. Huston stopped his car within fourteen feet of the scene of the accident and rushed to the side of the injured girl. Notifying a doctor and police he waited there until the girl was treated and removed to hospital. Highway traffic officers of that immediate district being unavailable Provincial Police Officer A. Stark Belleville investigated the accident.

Being of a purely accidental nature, no charges will be preferred, police stated today.

Lengthy Docket Forces County Court to Sit On King's Birthday

"Due to the lengthy docket that confronts us, gentlemen of the jury, we will have to sit tomorrow the King's Birthday," His Honor Judge Lavell, Kingston, informed the petit jury impanelled for the current session of the Spring Assizes of the County Court now in session in Belleville, as it adjourned last evening.

"I realize Thursday is a legal holiday and that the Sheriff and I are both with disrespect to His Majesty that I'm forced to convene court tomorrow, however, but owing to the extremely lengthy docket,

"I hope you gentlemen of the jury will bear with the court and I can assure you I'm sorry, but it is necessary. Thank you," concluded His Honor as he adjourned yesterday's County Court until this morning.

JUNIOR FARMERS TO HOLD JUDGING COMPETITION, FRI.

Contestants to Judge Horses, Cattle, Swine on Selected Classes

TWO CLASSES

Junior farmers of Hastings County will hold a judging competition in Stirling on Friday, June 10th, consisting of a junior and open competition in livestock judging. Contestants will be required to judge in two classes each of horses, dairy cattle and swine, and one class of beef, cattle and sheep. Verbal reasons will be given on one class in each breed by the judges to inspecting judges. The contestants will meet at the agricultural office of Lynn Fair, agricultural representative, and then proceed to the farms of farmers of the district where competitions will be held.

The junior competition will be open to all farmers and farmers' sons who have not reached their 26th birthday and who have not completed a two year course in agriculture at any college.

28-FOOT KETCH NEAR COMPLETION

Rapidly nearing completion, a 28-foot ketch being built by Frank Harris, Wellington boat builder for Mr. P. H. Wills of Northport, is attracting the attention of yachtsmen at the local docks.

The ketch has an 8-foot, 8-inch beam, with a 3-foot mainmast and a 27-foot inboard.

ANGER MOUNTING

The mere suggestion of such an international conference, which in Rome. The Rome Stamps describes the idea as "absolutely unacceptable" as the two fronts which threaten the peace of Europe.

And Germany is mobilized on orders from Moscow to make of Red Spain a powerful ally which may start a general conflagration," the Rome paper declared. "On the other threatening front in Bohemia storm clouds are gathering instead of dispersing. The extremely grave crisis has not opened the eyes of the statesmen of Europe, who are blinded them still further."

In an dispatch from London the Rome Tribune says "we are moving toward an international crisis."

It is clear that the whole situation is developing dangerously. Political circles are still working along two lines, first, the formation of an international commission to investigate air bombing in Spain, and second, cooperation with the British representatives at Burgos and Barcelona, to what further steps can be taken to protect British ships.

On another personal, however, has material progress so far been announced.

CRIMINALITY

"Some are quiet and clean others are untidy, unclean and under the influence of evil capers and if it happens to provoke a laugh, they are happy in themselves at it, they are happy in their tragic foolishness. Such abnormalities in personalities are often difficult to handle."

The prison gets the drainings of society," Mr. Bernard Archambault said include "latent, unrecognized mentally borderline cases of numerous variants, deviates, defective, abnormals, psychopaths, neurotics, epileptics and psychopaths."

"Then too" he went on, "there are special types who constitute and flourish in cells and prison surroundings. In this class are some lifers and long-terms, who crack from doing time. Circumscribed as they may seem to them to stagnate, or develop and deepen an ingrown attitude that soon consists of feeding on repetitious happenings of their small narrow world."

The Warden said a percentage of the defective delinquents owe their mental trouble to syphilis.

"Another group that prison managers have to deal with," he said "and watch on for, are foxy fellows who feign insanity in the hope of being transferred to a hospital from which they easily escape."

The remaining two seats returned Independent candidates. In York-ton, A. C. Stewart, a Union-Progressive, defeated V. R. Smith, the sitting Liberal. In Bengough, H. E. Wood, Independent, won from J. S. Smith, Liberal, who sat in the last house, after a series of straight fights.

There is a possibility of recounts in both seats won by Social Crediters, particularly in Melville.

cerely hope you have come to the point where you have learned your lesson in life," concluded His Honor.

At the opening of the Jury Sittings of the County Court today, Mrs. Mabel Barnhart, Point Anne, housewife, was the first witness called by the crown and stated she had known the accused for seventeen years.

"Tell the court what happened on March 24th last."

"Mr. Bailey and Young came to my home at 4 a.m."

"What did they do?"

"They talked."

"What, nothing?"

At this point Mr. Pringle objected to the manner of examination in chief.

"I may have to declare this witness an adverse one," replied Mr. Donnan.

"Proceed," instructed his Honor.

"Mrs. Barnhart, are you not willing to answer these questions?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"No sir, I was the reply.

"Now, what after these men came to your house, Mrs. Barnhart?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"They asked if they could leave a few things at my home."

"Who else?" asked his Honor.

"Mayme," was the reply.

"Where were Bailey and Young?"

"In the other room."

"Again Mr. Donnan requested the witness be ruled an adverse one.

"Mrs. Barnhart, I suggest you answer these questions as you have sworn to tell the truth," warned His Honor.

"Who went to bring these things?" asked His Honor.

"Maymes and Young."

"Where were these things put?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"By Harold."

"Where was Bailey then?"

"He was there."

Saw Articles

"Did you see these articles and if so, what did you see?"

"I saw quite a few things."

"Describe them," added Mr. Donnan.

"Cigarettes and tobacco."

"What else?"

At this point His Honor openly declared the witness an adverse witness, despite protests from Mr. Pringle to the contrary.

"Now Mrs. Barnhart, you are unwilling to give evidence against George Bailey, aren't you?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Well, he's a relative of mine."

Relative to Allendale

"Be careful, that woman is going to collapse," cautioned Mr. Donnan as he ran towards the witness stand as Mrs. Barnhart collapsed in an apparent state of fainting. His Honor and Sheriff O'Flynn immediately summoned a physician, as the woman was carried from the courtroom by officials to an adjoining room.

Following a conference between counsel and the Bench it was agreed to submit the evidence given by Mrs. Barnhart at the Police Court preliminary hearing as testimony.

Later Bailey changed his plea to that of guilty.

CZECHS VIGILANT IN LAST WEEK END VOTE

Hold Election Returns Until All Polls in Canada Close

SPECIAL HOUSE COMMITTEE MOVES TO ADOPT MOTION

Eligibility of Persons to Vote Also Discussed by Member

MEANS SUGGESTED

Three Measures Could be Taken to Carry Out Measure

Ottawa, June 10—(CP)— The special House of Commons committee on electoral matters today unanimously adopted a motion favoring the general principle of forbidding the publication of any federal election results until the polls have closed in all parts of the Dominion.

The committee agreed it was wrong that Western Canada voters going to the polls could vote with the knowledge of what the trend of results in Eastern Canada indicated.

There were several suggestions as to how the recommendation could be made effective. The chief ones were:

1. Extension or polling hours in Eastern Canada.

2. Delaying of counting in Eastern Canada.

3. Making it an offense to communicate the result of the vote at any poll until all polls in Canada were closed.

Eligibility Defined

Persons temporarily resident in a federal constituency because of employment on public works, or as a resident in any camp temporarily

Why the Weather?

By Major A. B. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Thunderbird! An Indian was not supposed to give a scientific explanation of natural phenomena, so he explained thunder and lighting in a way that was plausible to him. The Thunderbird resides in the mythology of several peoples, among whom are our own Indians. On the state of Washington there is an irregular basaltic rock on which may be seen the face of the legendary Thunderbird. The local Indians believe that to shake this rock would cause rain by casting the wish to be the Thunderbird. Thunder and lightning were supposed to be caused by the flappings and flashings of this bird.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 10—(CP)—Synopsis: Moderate to heavy rains have been fairly general in the western Provinces, with extensive rains over western Ontario, some sections of Quebec and Cape Breton. The weather is also fair in the Prairie Provinces but moderately warm from Lower Lake region eastward. Pressure is high over the eastern and western portions of the continent, while a trough of low extends from the west coast of Hudson Bay southward across the Great Lakes and Middle to the southwest States.

Lake Superior: Fresh southerly to westerly winds; unsettled with occasional showers. Saturday, moderate to fresh west and northwest winds; partly cloudy and cool; probably local showers over east portion.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan — North and northwest winds; mostly cloudy and cool with light scattered showers. Saturday, fair and a little warmer.

Alberta—Partly cloudy and cool. Saturday, fair and somewhat warmer.

His Opinion on Business, Politics Not Worth Much, Says J. P. Morgan

BY JOHN MOZOSO
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, June 10—(AP)— John Pierpont Morgan, international financier, was on record today as saying his opinion on business and politics "isn't worth a damn."

The 70 year old banker gave his opinion in a cloakroom after commencement exercises, last night at Cooper Union, a polytechnic institute.

Standing near the spot where Abraham Lincoln made a famous campaign speech in his first race for the presidency, Morgan gave one of his infrequent interviews.

"What do you think of the chances to succeed these graduates as compared with other days?" he was asked.

"Now, you know I don't talk about those things," he countered.

"I know that but why is it that you refuse to express an opinion on business and politics?" he was asked.

"Because I don't think my opinion is worth a damn," he replied with a loud laugh.

"Most people do," the reporter said "because of your wealth and position they look to you for guidance."

"I don't think so," was the answer.

He attended the exercises as senior trustee of Cooper Union. The crowd of 1,000 cheered loudly. A small group in one section of the hall booed and was quickly silenced by ushers.

F. P. McCall, Truck Driver, Held in Kidnap Case Without Charge

WIFE QUESTIONED

Miami, Fla., June 10—(AP)— Authorities sought to learn today whether the kidnap-slaying of James Bailey Cash, Jr., was a private crime. While plans went forward for bringing Franklin Pierce McCall to trial, federal and local agents apparently continued a search for possible accomplices.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the 24-year-old McCall had admitted writing the three ransom notes and collecting the $10,000 paid by the boy's father, but was silent about actual abduction.

At Princeton, the parents prepared to bury their five year old child, whose body was found early yesterday 12 days after he was stolen from the Cash home.

Recover All But $5

Recovery of all but $5 of the ransom money was announced by Miami police today.

400 MACHINES TO BE MADE IN U. S. FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Delivery to British Air Mission Must be Made Immediately

CANADA TO BENEFIT

Ottawa, June 10—(CP)— Plans of the visit made recently to the United States and Canada by Air Chief Marshal Sir Edward Ellington, Commander J. G. Weir, have resulted in an order for 400 American machines.

With this announcement in London for possible development yesterday that the British government would place contracts for other aircraft in Canada.

This follows the line indicated by Commander Weir when, in Ottawa, he said that if such orders were given they could be on a cash basis, while deliveries from the United States might be made expedite. The prospect has become more definite of the Canadian aircraft production industry becoming securely established, with orders assured for years ahead.

Co-ordination of the activities engaged by the Canadian commission, of whom there are about a dozen, will, it is believed be a natural corollary in their United Kingdom connection. To achieve this it is understood establishment of a controlling company is under consideration. The "super-strut" would be wholly internally financed, and its job will be to divert the orders for different types of machines to the concerns best equipped to handle them, and also to ensure continuity of supply.

Eliminate Waste

Control will eliminate the "profiteering" element in that they will be placed on a cost plus basis, current in Canadian defence departments, and common in the aircraft practice in the United Kingdom.

Authorities of the National Defence Department yesterday reticent on the matter of British aircraft purchases in Canada, declined to discuss reports that the Canadian fairs entirely between the British government and the Montreal Locomotive Works. The Department has facilitated contact between the two by its Wednesday visit to the Canadian subsidiary of the British armament firm, Canadian Vickers Limited, and the retirement of Hon. George Perley, Minister of Air, to make an early decision of new appointments and contracts.

Final results of the election showed the Liberals with 56 seats in the ninth Legislative assembly with an opposition of 14.

FIGHT AIR-PIRATES BY EXTREME PLANS

France Said to be Ready to Join in Such Measures

London, June 10 (CP)—Great Britain, fully backed by France, recommended today on finding practical means of stopping Spanish insurgent attacks on Anglo-French shipping.

Georges Scelle, French foreign minister, was reported to have told Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador in Paris, that France was willing to co-operate with London in "extreme measures" to end the reign of Spanish air pirates who have sunk or damaged at least 15 neutral ships in two weeks.

Sir Eric was believed to have expressed to Premier Paladin Blum's cabinet his indignant at the attack yesterday on the British freighter Stanbrae at Denia in which seven persons were killed and eight wounded.

British Angered

Britons, too, were shocked by the series of attacks reported yesterday by the Spanish government on the British freighter Stanway when a lone insurgent plane bombed and machine-gunned the port of the British-owned port of Gandia Wednesday, the wrecking of the British freighter Leadora off Castellon de la Plana, and the attack yesterday by another Spanish government on an independent British freighter Seven Seas off Benicasim with a loss of 12 killed and 19 wounded. The Stanray attack, reported here yesterday, resulted in no casualties.

INSURGENT DRIVE ISOLATES FORTS ON 18-MILE LINE

Militiamen Begin to Show Signs Of Panic

DRIVE TO COAST

Thousands of Mixja's Strongest Troops May be Trapped

Hendaye, June 10—(AP)—Spanish government defences of Castellon De La Plana and Valencia were imperilled today by a swift insurgent drive toward the coast.

The insurgents cut in behind Albocacer, about 27 miles north of Castellon, threatening isolation of the 18-mile line of fortifications east from Albocacer to the coast which have stopped General Franco's armies for two months.

Advices in Paris earlier said government militiamen were beginning to show signs of panic and insurgents fought their way behind them to the small village of La Varona, 30 miles due south of Albocacer.

Closing Sector in Pocket

An advance of another few miles would close the Albocacer sector in a pocket and give the insurgents access to the direct coastal highway south to Castellon De La Plana and Valencia.

It also would trap thousands of General Joe Miaja's strongest defence troops. From La Varona area the insurgents would have a downhill path along rivey valleys to Castellon and the central part of the east coast. The area, however, still is strongly held by reinforced government troops.

Drive on Last Division

In the far north, Franco's army in Catalonia launched a drive on the government's last shred division. Capture of height, above the valley of the Cinca River opened the insurgents' way toward Bielsa, base of the "lost division's" operations.

The unit, which has been isolated except by radio from the main government forces, has harassed the insurgent Northern army, descending upon it in guerrilla raids from its almost impenetrable stronghold in the Pyrenees mountains.

LIBERALS HOLD 36 SASK. SEATS

Opposition Now Stands at 14, Two Votes De-clared

Regina, June 10—(CP)—With two deferred constituency elections more than six weeks away, Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan turned today to cabinet questions.

He won two vacancies in his government through defeat of Hon. C. M. Dunn, Minister of Highways, in Wednesday's election and the retirement of Hon. George Spence, Minister of Labor, to make early decision of new appointments and contracts.

Final results of the election showed the Liberals with 36 seats in the ninth Legislative assembly with an opposition of 14.

EIGHT ARE KILLED AIRLINER CRASHES AS STORM BREAKS

Lightning is Believed to Have Struck Airship

SKY IS LIT UP

Debris is Seen Flying in Air at Delavan, Illinois

Delavan, Ill., June 10 (AP)—Miss Laura Youle reported today a large airliner crashed on her neighbor's farm near here during a storm and that at least eight bodies were found near the wreckage.

She said she was unable to identify the craft but believed it was an airline ship. The plane plummeted a half mile from her home, which is a half mile north of Delavan, she said.

She heard the plane overhead just as a storm broke.

Flash and Crash.

"There was a flash of lightning and a loud crash," Miss Youle said. "I think lightning hit the ship. At any rate we saw debris flying in the air. Then a blaze lit up the sky as we heard an explosion."

Her brother, Harry Youle, and some farm hands rushed to the spot where they saw the ship crash. It ran out also and saw bodies lying all around the field. The wings of the plane were smashed and everything seemed to have been torn apart.

Parachutes Unopened.

"Some of the bodies seemed to have parachutes attached to them. They were unopened. At least one had been hurled into the air.

"I was unable to tell whether the bodies were those of men or women, because the heads of most were smashed. I was unable to tell the ownership of the plane. We came back to the house and telephoned the sheriff's office at Pekin."

PEIPING-HANKOW RAILROAD IS CUT

Japanese Drive Gains Momentum Through Heart of China

Shanghai, June 10—(AP)—Japanese cut the Peiping-Hankow railroad for the first time today on the Yellow River today and launched an offensive aimed at "improving" a double resistance as their drive inland through the heart of China gained momentum.

Chengchow is the junction of the Peiping-Hankow railroad main line between Hankow, China's provisional capital, and the central China, and the east-west Lunghai railroad, the western end of which the Japanese said today is "improving" also.

Hankow-Chengchow traffic was halted through the Japanese advance column blew up a bridge south of Chengchow.

Through the Japanese, swiftly closing in toward the junction from the south and the central China, and the east-west Lunghai railroad, the western end of which the Japanese said today is "improving" also.

Claims Obscene Literature in Flood Entering Canada, Synod Protests

A resolution adopted by the Synod called on members of parliament to use their influence with the Minister of National Revenue and the Postmaster General to obtain stricter control of what was said to be a flood of obscene literature entering Canada. Another resolution adopted outlined arrangements made to obtain for distribution to the clergy by Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, Port Hope, a list of approved motion picture films.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 10 — (CP)—The committee of the Synod today condemned the stand of Bishop Rocksborough Smith who in his address to the Algoma Synod of the Church of England in Canada opposed extension of the present law of divorce, proposed in a new bill now before parliament. The charge was referred to the committee, headed by Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, Port Hope.

ANOTHER BRITISH FREIGHTER IS HIT IN SEAPORT RAID

"Thorpehall" Bombed And Soon Sank Stern Foremost

MANY CASUALTIES

Madrid, June 10—(AP)—A lone insurgent air raider, flying an Italian-made Savoia seaplane, again bombed Alicante, Spain, and the British-owned port of Gandia today, the British freighter Thorpehall, which was bombed three days ago at Alicante, again was struck and started sinking stern first.

The civilian section of Alicante, which was bombed yesterday, first of the worst bombardments, of the war, was the principal target of raiders, again was battered. Details, however, were "not immediately available," a Gadida "information" raider, repeating his practice of striking about midnight, dropped the main warehouse of the British-owned port and sank a small Spanish coastal steamer.

At Denia, he returned to the attack on the British freighter Stanbrae and dropped two bombs aboard the helpless ship. The British-owned and Liverpool-registered Thorpehall, which had been smoldering on the beach since the bombing three days ago, let her ashes yesterday, filled rapidly and settled to the bottom with her stern foremost, lying in the first attack on the British-owned port since the Nationalist allies followed the latest raids, which started about 10:30 last night. Gandia was one of the earliest two days ago with the destruction of a warehouse containing the principal property in what Edwin Apfel, British manager of the Fruit Union Company, said was a "deliberate and brazen attack on British property."

The two-masted schooner sunk today was a 1,000-ton freighter, displaced gross tib bombe.

Two bombs made direct hits on the schooner, blowing her apart. Three hundred and ninety feet of the Thorpehall, which is 400 feet long, Apfel said the whole harbor works would have been hit, "but little if three of the largest bombs had not missed the mark" he was

FATHERS BLAMED IN CARELESSNESS IN THEIR ACTIONS

Missioner Says 'All Church and School Teachings Weakened'

FATHER'S LIFE

Peterborough, Ont., June 10—(CP) —"All church and school teachings are wasted by the actions of careless fathers" said Rev. Father Augustine, a member of the Passionist Order of the Cross with Rev. Father Canice, is conducting a mission at the Immaculate Conception Church. He spoke on the subject "Father's home" last night.

"Let me impress upon you fathers," he told the 750 men present "that yours is a noble vocation. You represent God in your home." He stated he had no fears for the child whose mother led a Christian life, but that one could preach from now till doomsday and achieve no results if the example set by the father was not a genuine one. "The power of example is what the children take from their parents." Father Augustine declared, adding examples to forsake the radio, beer parlor and the pokey parlor to devote more attention to the proper religious instruction of the children.

"People today are, many of them indifferent toward their young and often take more interest in a pet. There is many a boy who will, in time, curse the memory of his father because of the bad example set before him in his youth," he asserted.

Father Augustine condemned mixed marriages saying that in 90 cases out of every 100 there was unhappiness, for both parties.

CHIEF JUSTICE ROWELL 'IMPROVING SLOWLY'

Toronto, June 10—(CP)—Hon. N. W. Rowell, Chief Justice of Ontario and chairman of the Rowell Commission in Dominion-Provincial relations, fit at his home here, was said today to be "improving slowly."

It is expected he will be sufficiently recovered during the summer recess to take part in the commission's final sittings in Ottawa in September, examination officials said at Ottawa.

BOMB OUTSKIRTS

Hong Kong, June 10 (AP)—Japanese bombing planes tonight rounded out two weeks of daily bombardments of Canton or the outskirts of the teeming south China metropolis.

Shadow of Slaying and Attempt to Kidnap Witness Hangs Over Trial

London, Ky., June 10—(AP)— The shadow of the slaying of Harlan County Judge and the prosecution of a reported attempt to kidnap a witness, when he was already bottled, hung over the proceedings of the trial today of Theodore Dixon, negro.

Both the slain man and the purported kidnap victim were under government subpoena for the prosecution of the trial and, hence, technically under the protection of the federal district court. Both were active in Harlan County union affairs.

C. N. Noland, Chief Deputy Sheriff, of Harlan County and Lester Smithers, 30, was shot to death at 1:30 A.M. Sunday in front of Verlin Fee, 39, and Clyde Fee, 27, were held in Harlan in connection with the slaying.

Nolan said Verlin Fee told him after the shooting followed an argument "about the union." Smithers was a union president of the Harlan County, local of the United Mine Workers of America.

Feared Is Drive Car

George Tiller, a field representative of the United Mine Workers of America, reported to agents of the federal bureau of investigation here last night that three men forced John Irons, a union organizer, to drive in their automobile from Cumberland, Harlan County, Ky., to a nearby mining camp.

Tiller said he supplied the agents with descriptions of the men Irons said abducted him.

Tiller reported the men took Irons from a restaurant and shoved him into the car before calling him a "damn union man."

Irons told Tiller, the latter said, that the men remarked on his having been a government witness. They apparently feared his identity the men decided to take him to Pineville, county seat of Bell county, 225 miles airline southwest of Nanking—and 115 miles southeast of Hankow.

8170 DISTRICTS PREPARE TO VOTE 1880 ARE GERMAN

Revival of Anti-Czechoslovak Propaganda Appears in Newspapers

INTEREST KEEN

National Defence Preparation Attract Lively Attention

Praha, Czechoslovakia, June 10—(AP) — Czechoslovakia maintained vigilant and large-scale precautions to preserve order today as the last of three election week ends approached.

Military arrangements were as thorough as those for the balloting May 22 and May 29 when the government called up reserves and kept soldiers on the Austrian border as the result of dangerous incidents between Czechoslovak soldiers and citizens and the Sudeten German minority.

No less than 8,170 communities prepared to vote with 6,000 municipalities voted in the previous elections.

1,288 Predominantly German

Of those voting Sunday about 1,880 are predominantly German, including such cities as Reichenberg, Eger, Trautenau and Leitmeritz. In about 4,000 communities, both predominantly German and German towns, candidates were unopposed, however.

A revival of anti-Czechoslovak propaganda in the newspapers of Germany has left a chilling effect on neutral shipping in Spanish waters and augments British and French attention, caused apprehension, there. It was feared Czechoslovak's friends might find their hands full with Spanish situation if Germany should interfere there the dangerous minority question here.

Jewish Firm Contribution

National defence preparations attracted lively attention, street collections for defence funds continued undiminished today. Emil Gelb, Governor of the National Bank has been commissioned to organize voluntary defence subscriptions by corporations. One Jewish banking firm already has offered a contribution of 20,000,000 crowns (more than $1,000,000).

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

NEW R.A.F. PLANE

London (CP)—The new R.A.F. Spitfire, fighting plane produced by Supermarine Aviation Works, has been rounded out two weeks of daily bombardments of Canton or the outskirts of the teeming south China metropolis.

MARRIAGE BY 'PHONE BRINGS BIG TOLL

Cleveland, June 10 (AP)— The Telephone Company stands to collect a nice fat toll because Miss Josephine Bern, Miss Mauren T. Weaver of San Antonio and Mr. D. Thomas of Greenville were married in a hotel yesterday with the ritual being read by the telephone by her father, Dr. A. F. Weaver, from his home in Texas. The bill was 2,200 miles away. It was a seven-minute call.

SINK ROCK-FILLED BARGES TO STOP FLOOD

Kitchang, China, June 10 (AP) —Rock-filled junks were being sunk today in Lotus River above Kitchang in a double procession of barges to stem flood ravages. One boom was sunk months ago when the river broke 250 miles airline southwest of Nanking—and 115 miles southeast of Hankow.

Ottawa Order Overrules That Given by Officer

Toronto, June 10—(CP)—Col. F. E. Odlum, officer commanding the Toronto Scottish regiment, and the officer commanding the regiment's commanders told a recruit he could not belong to the Toronto Scottish as a member of the unit, but that an order from Ottawa overruled this.

This man in our regiment had been receiving a certain amount of money from the parents for picking up their mail in the morning and delivering it to their office," said Col. Odlum.

"When his company commander told him he could not belong to both, this chap apparently went to the Parents headquarters and told them he could not stay with the militia if he joined the party.

"The Fascists wrote the commanding officer asking their aims and objects—after which I now have on file. This letter went to Ottawa. Ottawa sent a reply from Defence Headquarters here and on to Ottawa. Premier Hepburn's reply from Ottawa advising me there were no regulations prohibiting a man joining this group.

Party Not Country

"It must be remembered this is a free country and a militia man can join the Fascists or anything as long as he observed the laws of the land and the rules and regulations of the army.

"The Fascist party is not loyal to have men with military training. They are a semi-military organization. Men with military training is of greater benefit than a civilian. I don't know, however, of any of my men who belong to the Fascist party."

Five non-commissioned officers and men of the 7th Toronto Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, attended in uniform a Fascist meeting last Monday night, at which Adrien Arcand, Montreal, was speaker. The soldiers gave the Fascist salute to the Fascist leader. An investigation now is being conducted by the officer commanding the regiment.

City and District News

ARRANGE DELIVERIES BEFORE GOING AWAY

Residents of the city who are intending to look up their city friends while sojourning at summer camps this season should advise the milkman, the iceman, the newspaper boy and others of their intention in plenty of time to make arrangements which would guard against the piling up of milk bottles, papers and other things on their front verandahs, thus advertising their absence, for the benefit of prowlers, stated one city deliveryman this morning.

One nuisance annually experienced, it is claimed, is the piling up of advertising bills, circulars and handbills, which are thrown on the verandah to accommodate.

"WINTER STILL HERE" SAYS OFFICE WORKERS

"It will be a short summer," complain employees of city offices who pointed out this morning that though the season was becoming well advanced, winter dresses are still being worn to work daily by the majority of the indoor workers.

As the city hall, and a few other business offices firms have again been installed under boilers in forestall the effects of the cold nights and mornings, made more noticeable after the balminess of several consecutive weeks or more ago.

"Daylight saving" is responsible for some of this early morning chilliness, too," stated one office janitor.

HORSE-DRAWN SWEEPER TO START ON WEST SIDE

In preparation for first oiling of the city streets which will commence on Monday of next week, street sweeping will start on the west side of the city with a horse drawn sweeper this morning. It is expected that the section at the top of Catherine street hill will be the first part of the city treated, with Octavia street probably first on the list.

BIRTHS LEAD DEATHS IN MONTH OF MAY

Births still lead over deaths by a wide margin in this city, it is shown by compilation of vital statistics for May which reveal a total of 38 births of which 21 were male, against 26 deaths, half of which were male. Marriages during the month of May totalled 26.

HOLSTEINS SHIPPED TO VERMONT BUYER

Livestock buying continues to show increasing strength in this section, according to latest shipments cleared through the local office of Dominion Veterinary Dr. C. J. Reed this week in a purchase of sixty head of Holstein dairy cattle by Harry Greenberg of Bennington, Vermont, from district breeders. The bestowal consignment was from Robt. Robson, Campbellford, who disposed of nine registered cattle.

BAILEY SIGNS A WAIVER OF APPEAL

Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn today announced George Bailey, Point Anne, had signed a waiver of appeal and would immediately be transferred to the Portsmouth Penitentiary where he will serve two years less time and six months. Bailey was convicted in county court yesterday on two charges of breaking, entering and theft and sentenced to three and a half years by his Honor Judge Lavell of Kingston. The prisoner will be taken to the penitentiary under police escort, supervised by Sheriff O'Flynn.

DUSTLAYER APPLIED TO COUNTY ROADS

Beating dust, that bane of summer driving to the figurative, "draw" county road machinery has been busy during the past two weeks applying dustlayer to several roads of the county.

The Ridge Road that connects West Huntingdon and Stirling, the Frankford-Foxboro road have been covered with dustlaying composition and are now in splendid condition for driving. The Madoc-Belleville road is now undergoing this treatment and activities are expected to be complete this week. Streets of several villages and municipalities of the county have also been treated to a coat of the dustlayer. County Road Superintendent W. H. Langlois stated of this morning.

HISTORIC SERVICE IN CONGER CHAPEL

Attendants at the annual service to be held in the historic Conger Chapel a few feet east of Bloomfield on Sunday, June 19, will have the privilege of listening to a form of worship that characterized churches of sixty-five years ago.

Featured by a short evangelical sermon by the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker of this city, the service will omit the many features of the Sunday meetings of these days. George W. VanBlaricom, Toronto editor, will also address the gathering with special numbers featuring the musical part of the service.

Several dedications will take place of objects that will be placed in the museum of the ancient church. Geo. Allen Kingston, Canadian poet, is dedicating a poem written especially for the occasion.

FRANK LANGTON HURT IN CRASH

Car in Which He Was Riding Turned Over in Ditch

When the glaring lights of an oncoming automobile temporarily blinded her, an automobile driven by Miss Dorothy Tucker, Tyrrel Road, became out of control and rolled over in the ditch opposite the Trenton R.C.A.F. late last evening. Frank Langton, 20 Portia street, a passenger with Miss Tucker, received internal injuries and was taken to the surgery of Dr. R. A. Flynn in this city for attention. Miss Tucker sustained minor abrasions and bruises also. L.-Cp. J. C. McPhee of the R.C.A.F. was passing at the time of the accident and rendered first aid, later investigating the accident. Miss Tucker assured the officer she was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed when the headlights of an oncoming vehicle blinded her, forcing her into the ditch. The fenders and body of the vehicle were badly damaged.

Accepts Transfer To New Post In Mid-Ocean

A mid-ocean radiogram spattering into the wireless room of an ocean liner ploughing its way through heavy seas to far-off Australia changed the course of a man's life recently when C. R. Cosse, former manager of the Canada Trust at the Cocs Cola Company enroute to the southern continent as representative of the firm, received an offer to transfer his future duties to a similar position in New Zealand.

According to a communication received in this city recently Mr. Cosse and his family are now in Wellington, N.Z., where he is rapidly becoming acclimatized to his new environment.

The ultra-English atmosphere of the "down under" colonies long a characteristic of these places seems still strange to him the communication states, Mr. and Mrs. Cosse and family are gradually becoming used to tea after rising, again at four o'clock, ancient the afternoon and every night for dinner, besides other mannerisms long a part of the British and the farflung outposts of the Empire.

Obituary

LATE JOSEPH LaBRASH, Jr. Thurlow

The funeral of Joseph LaBrash, Jr., late residence, Bonisher Ave., Thurlow Township, took place this Friday morning, June 10th, from the Fred Young Funeral Home, Church St. to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. C. E. Baker, who conducted also the committal service at the graveside in St. James' Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Albert Wagner, George Johnson, Frederick MacDonnell, Martin Davidson, Wm. Redner and Wesley Wormark.

WALTER N. SCOTT Foxboro

The sudden death of Walter Nelson Scott which occurred at Foxboro on Saturday afternoon, June 4th, has brought deep feelings of regret to all those in the community and sincere sympathy is entertained for the members of the family in their bereavement. The deceased had been in failing health for some time.

Late Mr. Scott, who was in his 61st. year, was born in Stirling, the parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott. For some time he resided in the 7th. concession of Sidney Township and for the past twenty-three years he made his home in Foxboro. He followed the vocation of farming. In religion he was a member of the United Church and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret Hagerman; two sons, Reginald and Douglas at home; one daughter, Doris at home; two brothers, Arthur Scott of Stirling and Sherwood Scott of Foxboro.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

QUEBEC LIBERALS TO SELECT CHIEF

Quebec, June 10.—(CP)—A two-day convention of Quebec's Liberal party to round out a new program and select a party chief who will be charged with its direction opens here today.

In the important business of picking a leader, the convention will have three or four Liberals to choose from. Candidates mentioned for the position were Adelard Godbout, Quebec's last Liberal Premier and a former Agriculture Minister; Edmond Laprise, House of Commons member for Beauce; Dr. Emile Nerl of Riverbend; and Leiden Dubois, Liberal member of parliament for Nicolet County.

POLICE COURT

Ted Brantion and Earl Allen, two local youths, were convicted of speeding when they appeared before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. It was alleged by the court that the lads were racing their powder vehicles down Victoria avenue recently.

"I think your license may rise as liabilities starting," prompted B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney.

"Yes, sir," said the elder of the two young men come into this court on traffic charges again and you are convicted, I'll recommend your driver's licences be permanently cancelled," sternly warned his Worship. A number of local motorists paid a dollar and costs after being convicted of violations of City Bylaw No. 2391, which says no motor vehicle shall park for a period of longer than one hour in the downtown area. Several dog owners admitted delinquency in procuring 1938 dog licenses with the costs of the court being assessed after the parties had secured their dog tags.

Sara Wolfe, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting a relative, Jacob Goodman, local barrister appearing resenting the accused asked for a week's enlargement. "I have a material witness who is not available today," assured Mr. Goodman. The request was granted. The charge arose out of altercations which police investigated at the Welch house yesterday.

When Florence Bowers, Thurlow, failed to answer to her name when it was called in open court, Mr. Donnan suggested to provincial police that a warrant for her apprehension be issued from the bench. The Bowers girl was charged with the theft of her brother's wrist watch.

Charges of reckless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident which were preferred by Motorcycle Constable Sam Eryine against John Kellar, Thurlow, were enlarged for one week at the request of the accused.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

In commenting upon the report of the Grand Jury, when it was submitted by Foreman Walter Aeslitne to Judge Jury Sittings of the County Court yesterday, His Honor Judge Lavell stated: "I am sorry to see so many interned in the carcerated in the County Jail at this time of the year. It is not usually the custom to find so many confined to our jails during the summer period. Your suggestions of repairs to county and gov-Institutions will be brought to the attention of the proper authorities, I assure you. Thank you, gentlemen of the Grand Jury, you are dismissed and now at liberty to go," concluded His Honor.

To His Honour Judge H. A. Lavell:

We, the Grand Jury for the Court of General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Hastings, beg leave to report as follows:

We wish to thank Your Honour for the very careful way documents were presented to us.

We have the Clerk Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., together with Governor G. H. French and his assistants for their attention during our services as Grand Jurors.

We visited the County Gaol under the leadership of Mr. G. H. French. We found everything in a very satisfactory condition. We were informed that the new cement floor had been put in by the prisoners in the basement, which is now sanitary and easily cleaned. The walls and ceiling, which are painted, present a clean appearance. We find incarcerated in the gaol 30 male prisoners and two female prisoners. They appeared to be contented and satisfied with their surroundings and the institution is in first class condition. The hallway at the north and south ends of the Court House on the second floor should be given attention.

We next recommend that the carpet at the south entrance to the Court Chambers should be replaced as it is in a very poor condition.

We then visited the County House of Refuge and would report this institution is under the management of very efficient people in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock. We would like to say also that there prevailed a cleanliness that is seldom found throughout that institution and that the institution is in excellent condition. The fire protection is connected with the City Fire Hall and is in good order.

The end verandahs are in very dangerous condition and are in need of repair and recommend these be replaced in the manner of sun porches with outside fire escape. We find cement floors have been laid in the corridors and are very satisfactory.

We then proceeded to the Public School for the Deaf and were taken through the buildings under the leadership of the Superintendent and found everything in a very satisfactory condition. We would recommend that a new floor should be placed in the ladies' hall.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) Walter Aeslitne, Foreman.

The Grand Jury was composed of Walter Aeslitne (foreman), Chas. Chase, Lorne Bateman, Harry Coutts, Claude Phillips and Herbert Watt.

REEVE J. MOORE TO MISS SESSION

Dean of County Councillors Rushed to Hospital For Operation

What is conceded to be an all-time record for attendance at the regular session of the Hastings County Council came to an abrupt end this week when Reeve James A. Moore of Elzevir Township, dean of county councillors was rushed to the Kingston General Hospital where he underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis.

When the Hastings County Council inaugurates its June session on Tuesday of next week it will mark the first time in twenty-seven years that the familiar face of Reeve Moore will be absent. Chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee for the past seventeen years, Mr. Moore has not missed a session of his committee over that period of time, besides attending to his township and county council business.

Reports from the hospital yesterday stated that his condition was satisfactory.

Principal Emeritus Takes Part In Convocation

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, principal emeritus of Albert College, took part in the convocation exercises at the Institution in making the presentation of prizes and in offering words of commendation. Dr. Baker has known Albert College for many years for he attended it while a boy and has been in touch with the school for many years, both as principal as more recent in the work of laying plans for the new college and as principal emeritus of the new college. Principal Howard spoke of the work which Dr. Baker has done for the institution and of the high esteem in which he is held.

Rev. Dr. J. Scott Inglis, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, made the presentation of the prize which he had donated, a gold wrist watch, for the best representative lady student of Albert College. Mr. H. W. Ackerman, banker of the college, was one of those making the presentations. Members of the faculty made the other presentations.

At the luncheon in Ackerman Hall to which students and their parents and, relatives, alumni, Board members and their wives were invited, the members of the women's guild of the college were the patronesses.

Rain Brings Out Horse and Binder; Tractors Sink
Enid, Okla., June 16—Too much rain—successor to drought as the southwest's leading crop menace—has brought "horse and binder" days back to parts of the wheat belt. It's harvest time on the high plains but tractors entering fields this week saw their modern machinery—cumbersome combine and powered tractors—bog down in mud. So they brought out the horse-drawn binders they had been gathering dust and rust for a decade.

NO BOW AND ARROW HUNT AT RODEO SHOW
Santa Fe, June 10 (AP)—The New Mexico Association on Indian Affairs condemned today a proposed buffalo hunt with bows, redskins armed only with bow and arrow, young persons sharply limited in entering rodeo competitors. The organization said the hunt would be "exploiting the Indians for profit, and an inhumane practice that would make pincushions of the buffalo."

chines, officials indicated. Information was lacking both as to quantity and type. However, it is understood the Canadian industry will be called upon for the heavy service fighting plane, similar in construction to those manufactured in Great Britain.

For the most part the Canadian plants are running under capacity and are in a position to begin work immediately on contracts from the United Kingdom. It is also understood that necessary special metals used in the construction of special types of planes, and not hitherto produced in Canada, will be furnished in this country.

som money, $8,750 from one place and $345 from another, presented a puzzling angle which Hoover did not explain.

Other than to remark "the investigation will actively continue," Hoover withheld comment on the course the probe was taking. There were unconfirmed reports at least two persons in addition to McCall were held at F. B. I. headquarters.

The Miami Herald said McCall's pretty wife, Claudine Evelyn McCall, and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Hilliard, spent six hours at the headquarters yesterday and left in the company of agents.

Mail Without Charge

Circuit Judge Arthur Gomez called a special grand jury session Monday morning to consider any charges State Attorney George A. Worley may bring against McCall. Hoover said no federal law was involved in the case. Florida provides a death penalty for kidnapping for ransom however. A jury has the prerogative of recommending mercy, in which case a sentence of life imprisonment is mandatory.

The former Jasper High School athlete was held without charge while at the F. B. I. office.

EX-ALDERMAN TO DECLINE HONOR

E. J. Baldree Not Likely to Accept Vacancy in City Council

Invited to fill the vacancy as Alderman on city council caused by the resignation of former Alderman Ray Carr through his removal from the city, ex-Alderman E. J. Baldree has announced his intention of declining the honor in favor of S. J. Howell, next highest candidate at the last municipal elections.

In a statement made this morning ex-Alderman Baldree pointed to the considerable amount of technical work which will be required of council this year and the need for business and legally trained men.

"I feel that I can best co-operate with the city council and the people of Belleville by declining to accept this year in favor of Mr. Howell, solicitor, of Belleville, who would be an asset to council through his legal experience.

"I am doing this in spite of the protestations of a number of friends who have been anxious for me to accept the vacancy of alderman," Mr. Baldree stated.

certain it was the same phantom raider which attacked the port before. He was not able to make out its markings, however, because of the speed with which the flier worked.

Residents of the tiny village of Grau Gaudis, near by, heard the drone of the plane's motors. They fled to the fields, three themselves flat on the ground and watched the methodical destruction.

Raids by Loose Fliers

The attack was one of a series by a lone flier who wrecked two British and French merchantmen yesterday. In addition the plane machine gunned the British freighter Stanray Wednesday in the attack on Gaudis, the ship reported last night.

Ships bombed yesterday were the Brisbane, the British freighter Lardora at Castellon De La Plana and another ship of Spanish registry, same ones reported at Benicasim. There were no foreigners among the 12 killed and 19 wounded at Benicasim, consuls.

LED G-MEN TO CA SH BOY'S BODY

Franklin Pierce McCall

Here is Franklin Pierce McCall, 21 year old Princeton, Fla., truck driver, after his arrest as a suspect in the kidnaping-slaying of James Bailey Cash, Jr., 9, whose body was found under an orchard tree less than a mile from the spot his father paid the $10,000 ransom. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, announced McCall admitted writing the three ransom notes, and accepting the ransom money, which was found in a hole at the corner of the orchard. McCall, federal agents said, led them to the body of the boy.

MEN WHO PLAN NOW

It is strange. But it happens so often that it must be a response to something basic in human nature. In so-called hard-times, when many businessmen forlornly complain that 'there is no business,' other businessmen contrive to find business and, what is perhaps still more astonishing, new enterprises put down roots, get a healthy start, make sturdy beginnings of vigorous growth," says the Rotarian Magazine.

Is it that these business 'downs' have special purposes which many of us, blinded by easy success in more prosperous periods, fail to see and use?

The late Edward A. Filene, a merchant of Boston, Massachusetts, whose thinking was never bounded by national borders, once said: "I have noticed that business success tends to breed business failure. Success often makes men contented; lessens incentive. It is when people are not doing very well with what they already have that they are most willing to listen to and try out new ideas that may save them."

A certain chewing-gum manufacturer, a great believer in advertising, undertook one of his most impressive advertising campaigns during a time of severe business stringency. His competitors were cutting down, or cutting out, their advertising. He doubled his appropriation. He reasoned that with fewer advertisements seeking reader attention, his own aggressive copy would attract all the more notice; and it would cost relatively that way.

Great industrial improvements have been made, or initiated, in periods far from prosperous. Charles E. Duryea, first to build a successful gasoline automobile in the United States, began his first car in 1891, was building his fifth in 1894; and between those two years the country was passing through one of the worst panics ever known. The basic work on the first successful cotton-picker was done by Alexander Graham Bell in the early '70s, when the United States was rocked by the post-Civil War panic. Instances of this kind, great or small, could be multiplied almost endlessly, but come to the point would be the personal parallel many a reader may draw as he recalls times when he was so hard put to it that, to survive, he had to do strenuous new thinking and make drastic revisions of unprofitable habits —which revealed hitherto untapped potentialities that proved his salvation . . . and more.

Men who plan constructively now, may find that these so-called 'hard times' viewed in the light of what they can do for us instead of what they appear to be doing to us, will yield magic returns.

CANDY FOR THE CROSS CHILD

Cross children need candy. Authorities who know told the National Confectioners the other day that candy restores the wearied body, from the results of fatigue, from irritability, and low spirits of adults may be raised by sugar.

So it is only nature's cry for the sweet confections. Adults like candy and can get it when they want it. Children need it, their very irritability cries out for it, but they cannot have it unless the parents or friends provide it. If they don't get it they become cross.

Dr. Haggard said a child who was irritable, restless or cross after school should get a piece of candy, rather than a scolding. Irritability frequently is a sign of low sugar content in the blood and may be overcome by eating candy, he added. Candy is also "a prime athletic requirement" for tired mothers, workers who become fatigued in the afternoon and others who fall below their maximum efficiency, he explained.

Candy, or some other food rich in carbohydrates, should be eaten at intervals throughout the day, he suggested.

Dr. Eddy, who was chief of the division of food and nutrition of the A. C. F., declared that candy was a wholesome food and should be a part of every one's diet. He emphasized its value as "an energy pick-up," pointing out that the nutritive and energy building qualities of candy made it an important factor in the World War in keeping men in the trenches at top-notch efficiency.

He denied that candy was an important factor in causing tooth decay, which, he said, probably was generated by dietary deficiencies or environmental conditions rather than by sugar fermentation.

Bred to think as well as speak by vote, we furnish our minds as we furnish our houses, with the fancies of others, and according to the mode and age of our country. We pick up our ideas and notions in common conversation, as in schools.—Bolingbrooke.

LAUGHTER

If you would be happy, if you would be gay,
If you'd scatter sunshine all along the way,
Raise your voice in laughter, do not be cast down,
Better far a smiling face than a sullen frown.

Tho' the clouds be lowering turn them inside out
Show the silver lining, leave no place for doubt.
Look upon the bright side, seek a little fun,
Raise your voice in laughter, troubles flee and run.

Humans are like flowers, loving sun and light,
You will cheer the lonely if your face be bright;
Raise your voice in laughter, let it lilt merry along,
Sorrow cannot linger where light and laughter throng.

JAMAICA, IN THE WEST INDIES, HAS BEEN MAKING NEWS—an old Jamaican custom dating back to slavery days and the abolition of slavery by Great Britain in her colonies, not recognized in full by large plantation owners using Negro labor who replaced it for years by a serfdom, not far removed from slavery. There have been riots and revolutions from time to time and now the distressful isle has labor troubles. Negro sugar plantation workers rioted recently and caused disturbances for several days. This was followed by riots in the capital, Kingston, where Negro dock workers earning 16c to 18c an hour asked for 25c; bus drivers earning $5 to $7.50 a week asked $10. Bus conductors earning $2 and $3 a week, struck for $6.25. Street cleaners with top salaries of $5.22 struck for $7.50. All of which made a considerable stew which even the famed Jamaica rum failed to ameliorate. Shipping was tied up, all transportation services stopped, refuse and litter piled up on Kingston streets. The British cruiser Ajax with 500 blue jackets was rushed to the scene from Bermuda and a local force of constabulary was mobilized by the island authorities.

VARIOUS NATIONS ARE MAKING GAS MASKS and instructing citizens in their use. Now it is reported that gas masks will be made in Canada, and presumably instructions will be given in their use in case of war. HOW COULD HE TELL?

It happened in a tramcar. The occupants were a newly-married couple and a navvy. The tram jerked violently and the navvy said "Damn". Up jumped the young husband. "How dare you say 'damn' before my wife," he thundered.

"How did I know she wanted to say it first?" retorted the navvy.

Eighty-First Graduation Is Held at Albert College; Year One of Great Progress

High Standard Reached by Students in Year Now Closed

DR. KENT'S MESSAGE

Principal Dr. Howard Predicts Even More Successful Year Ahead

Albert College held its 81st annual convocation on Thursday afternoon when 150 students received graduating class farewell with the most impressive ceremonies. It was a real field day at the institution which has been making remarkable progress in the past few years, which has gone back to the system of co-education, and which last September opened a big year of further progress, according to the principal, Dr. Dan Howard. Memorial Hall was filled with students and their parents and friends and the large student body. The girl students lent a true coloratura air with their white dresses, and the young men and boys with their college blazers and light trousers. On the secretary's table before the platform flowers of the season cast their spell of colors and spread their odors of springtime and the diplomas, tied in red ribbon, and the prizes and other awards created a setting gratifying gradation and the end of a college year and for some the departure from the school for the last time.

College Proceedings

While the friends were gathering Mr. Franklin Styles, B. A., A. T. C. M., L. R. S. M., played the musical prelude. On the entrance of the scholars with the graduating class, the board of governors, and the college staff along with the principal and the guest speaker of the occasion, Rev. Dr. H. A. Kent, Principal of Queen's Theological College, the audience rose and stood until the procession reached the platform from which the ceremonies were conducted.

After invocation offered by Rev. Dr. James Semple, Principal Howard said that the statement that this was the 81st graduation ceremony did not quite convey the full story of the hundreds of youthful lives which had left the halls of Albert College to enter into the fullness of the activity of life. The 81 years had meant to many opportunities of service, otherwise they would have been deprived. It had opened closed doors, he said, so that hundreds have been qualified to go out as graduates and do their duty in life. The principal paid tribute to the Board of Governors and the staff of the college and the staff which had given their talent not for remuneration but because in the background of their lives there was the endeavor to make a contribution to the cause of training youth so that these young men and women might go out into the world and serve, God, and their king and the country they love.

'The Best Yet'

"I am profoundly grateful to the staff of Albert College, but we must have the material on which to work. I have to say without mental reservation that we are proud of the record of the students," stated the Principal using the phrase 'the best yet.'

Dr. Howard also paid a tribute to the loyalty of the governors of the college and those friends who "kept the colors nailed to the mast" in the time of depression.

Results of the work and the success of the examinations, not counting those examinations yet to be written were read, by Dr. Howard. The junior department passed 98 per cent of all examinations, and the lower school 79 per cent of papers passed, middle and senior school 61 per cent were successful in the examinations, the average being 80 per cent, and junior university second year sets of Queen's, 75 per cent or higher. In the athletics, the school made a record, showing that the scholars were not high-pressured bookworms, but ordinary normal boys and girls.

The autumn outlook was for an even more successful year ahead.

Conclusion

There was a happy reference to the value of examinations in the college. "We are delighted with it," Dr. Howard explained, "it is a very happy phase of our work here."

Diplomas and certificates awarded in the conservatory were presented by Mr. Anglin.

Mr. Newton Coburn, the winner of the oratory contest also delivered the Albert College medal on behalf of the class that was leaving. He spoke of the fourfold development the college has inspired, of the many friendships made in college, of the debt owing to the principal and faculty. There was also a reference to the undergraduates and the graduating class.

Prof. R. M. Anglin read the "Invictus" in very happy style and form.

Religion and Education

Dr. Kent of Queen's Theological College, spoke on religion and education, pointing out there were two attitudes on those of the present and the historian. He chose the historical angle. "History is the best short cut to a correct view of life," the guest speaker said. Confidentia, he went on to state that education has come from the Greeks, who were the first to cultivate the mind. Philosophers, the first great people of letters and the first mathematicians were Greek. What we do today is to think something out as the Greeks. Today we maintain statue does not look well by the Venus of Milo. Mental ideals came to us the Greeks did. Euclid gave the world a book which has remained unchanged since the time of Christ. Aristotle had the most scientific mind of his time. There was an expert in all lines. Still we read Plato.

"We have learned our science, music, art, from this amazing people—but we fall short of attainment from them. They had scant interpretation of religion, but somewhere of the Greek did not grow alongside with the intellectual development. That is the tragedy of the Greeks. He came to be despised by the Romans because they copied his art and literature."

Religion from the Jews

A little people, the Jews, who have been kicked around, found in the ancient world a spiritual life so vitalized that it was not only an art, no music, never had an army but imparted, though he be intellectually naive, he missed everything the Greek had but he had a factor of power. The interplay of force of knowledge and character was the chief cause of the decline of the ancient Graeco-Roman world. It was bored out by spiritual strength which the foes of the civilized world then had.

The Christian church attempted to bring these two things together. All through the dark ages and the middle ages the church kept the lamp of learning lighted. The speaker noted that Benedictine monks had earned's name for their preservation of the classic literature and literature. He said that later the church became a foe of the church threatened to destroy knowledge. Then came the Renaissance, that wonderful era.

And now has come again the age of art, music, every discover of knowledge and religion. Unfortunately the world has been training in a generation for perhaps as long as twenty years, to whom spiritual values have not been of as much value as they ought to have been. Knowledge of things has gone ahead more rapidly than man's control of himself. Men have not learned to live together in harmony. Dr. Kent said he was not pleading for the old dogmatism of the church, noting how the church has opposed sciences and not one church more than another. But he saw the need of relationship of the things of intellect and the spirit.

In closing Dr. Kent said the young people must see that the fine things in life are not separated from the spiritual. Such institutions as Albert College bring together in proper proportion those things which belong to the intellect and the spirit.

'Youth To Break Its Way'

"I pray you, young people, don't join the army of those who go around blessing that the world gives them no chance. Youth is an adventure. Youth is always hard to break its way into the world. When people talk of the good old times, please just believe there never was any such time.

"Now in my role as prophet I predict for you a very successful future and a very much improved society because of your life here.

The graduating class then presented to the college a reproduction of the painting "The Tangled Garden" by J. E. MacDonald. Dr. Howard accepted the gift on behalf of the college.

After the presentation of scholarship prizes and medals and the class of the convocation, the parents and friends were entertained at an At Home in Ackerman Hall.

EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS PLANS

150,000 Expected to Attend Congress at Quebec June 22-26

Accomodation is being made for 150,000 persons at least on the grandstand in the Battlefields Park for the Eucharistic Congress to be held in Quebec, June 22nd., to 26th inclusive. Additional construction will be made if and when found necessary. It is in the public interest to know that there will be no seating reservations, being first come firs, served.

There will be some one hundred and fifty thousand visitors in the city during the Congress and measures have been taken to prevent exploitation of the visitors who will come to the city of Quebec to attend the event. The establishment of lunch counters and the hawking of articles along the route of the procession will not be permitted, nor on the Battlefields Park grounds where the main ceremonies will be held. Some vacant property not too far distant may be utilized for the purpose of providing refreshments, so there will be no cause for uneasiness on the part of the public as to food.

Special honor is being paid to each of the Roman Catholic Dioceses of Canada when their Archbishops and Bishops come here for the First National Eucharistic Congress June 22nd. to 26th.

A series of triumphal arches will be erected along the route of the procession, which is the closing event of the Congress.

These various arches, which will be symbolic in character, are all the work of local architects. The arch representing the Diocese of Kingston will be a presentation of the English architecture.

It is expected during the First National Eucharistic Congress that there will be some 2500 priests attending, each saying Mass every day of its duration—this will mean at least 10,000 masses during the Congress, in addition, a number of priests will arrive some days before the start of the Congress. For this purpose 400 supplementary altar tables will have to be prepared and some 100 new altar stones constructed. Many local churches already have side altars not commonly in use and these will be made ready for the celebration of Mass. Temporary folding tables to the number of 65 will be distributed throughout the various city parish churches and send public chapels. Twenty five of these altars and altar stones with them will be sent to St. Patrick's parish churches and institutions.

Laita

Laita — Mrs. Robert Crawford has returned home after visiting relatives in Prince Edward County.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCreary motored to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hunter's and took them to the Graduation of the nurses, as their daughter, Miss Ruth Miller, was one of the nurses who graduated, and they received tickets to a banquet at the close of the evening.

The Institute met at the home of Mrs. Harry McCreary on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGeannon spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton.

Mrs. H. K. Denyes spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. Denyes.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wilder, of Redcreaville, spent over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McCreary attended the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ashley on Monday.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Earl Cuivater and family in her recent sad bereavement.

Foxboro

Foxboro — Mrs. (Rev.) Horton returned on Tuesday after spending the week-end with friends at Bath.

There was no service in the United church on Sunday evening owing to Conference Sunday.

Miss Marion Daniels attended the Bush-Snider wedding on Wednesday afternoon.

A number of local sports are enjoying a fishing expedition in the north.

Miss Jones is being entertained at the home of her friend, Mrs. L. Hagerman.

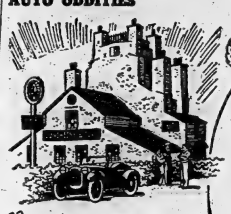
General sympathy is extended to Mr. Reginald Skinner and the D. Ketcheson family in the great loss sustained by the passing away of a beloved wife, daughter and sister, in the person of Mrs. Reginald Skinner. Her pleasant and genial disposition endeared her to everyone and while she had been ill some time, her death came as a shock to the community.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sills spent over Sunday with a daughter, Mrs. Frank Parks, of Hay Bay.

Miss Lena Sills, of Toronto, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. W. Hodgen.

Mrs. C. Pitman of Stirling, spent few days at the home of Mr. George Wickett.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Monigomery and daughters, of Stirling, were Sunday evening callers at Mr. W. Hodgen's.



Mr. Frank Eggleton spent a few days in Toronto.

Miss Vera Wait was a dinner hour guest on Sunday at the home of Miss Marion Daniels.

CANNERS PREDICT A HEAVY TOMATO YEAR

Nearly one-half million tomato plants raised in the hotbeds of the Metcalfe Foods, Company of Deseronto have been issued and set out by farmers of that district this week. Fruit from the plants will be canned in the Deseronto plant this season, which is expected by canners of the central section to be one of the largest tomato years on record.

41 CANDIDATES LOSE DEPOSITS

Five Candidates in Regina Come Under Penalty

Regina June 8 (CP)—Incomplete returns indicated today that 41 of the 156 candidates in yesterday's Saskatchewan general election forfeited their deposits to the Saskatchewan treasury.

A deposit of $100 is required from each candidate and the deposit is returned to him if he gains 50 percent of the winning candidate's total vote. The treasury stands to retain $4,100 of the $15,600 deposited by the candidates.

Social Credit candidates topped the list of losers. Seventeen of them forfeited their deposits. In addition the two candidates who ran as Independent Social Credit candidates also lost their deposit.

Eleven Conservatives lost their deposits including the two in Moose Jaw City. Five candidates of the C.C.F. forfeited their $100 and the others were one Independent, one Independent Conservative, two Labor-Progressives and two Independent-Labor.

The biggest rout was in Prince Albert where all three candidates opposing Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General, lost their deposits. Hanna five candidates forfeited their $100 in the nine-cornered fight for the two seats while in Saskatoon the race was sufficiently close that no candidate lost his deposit.

ONE KILLED IN CRASH

New Liskeard, Ont., June 9—(CP)—A man, believed Gordon Grenell, Chalk River, was killed and two others slightly injured today when the truck they were riding in crashed down a steep embankment three miles south of here.

Jack Garner and Tim Fitzgerald, both of Haileybury were in the truck at the time of the accident. Fitzgerald received deep cuts on the face and Garner only minor bruises. Both went home after receiving treatment.

ATTACKED ON STREET

Guelph, Ont., June 9 (AP)—Attacked by an unknown assailant and beaten about the head at an early hour today, Albert Wakefield, 39 Toronto Street, Guelph, is in Guelph General Hospital.

Toronto Resident Embarrassed by Zealous Citizen

A net of circumstances woven together by a kindly gesture, suspicion on the part of a transient who apparently had not too many dime-thrillers pertaining to drugs, and the stern arm of the law, resulted in enmeshing a prominent Toronto resident in an embarrasing situation early yesterday afternoon.

Accosted by a shabby dressed man, apparently a transient on Front Street, the Torontonian immediately proffered him a cigarette. Thinking a second man, who followed on the transient's heels in the same category, he also extended him the package. This man, however, extended his hand in a gesture of acceptance, hesitated, then withdrew and hurried away.

Thinking no more of the incident the Toronto visitor went on his way. A few minutes later, a plain clothes police officer leaped out of his car and demanded the package of cigarettes. After identifying himself to the satisfaction of the officer, he, quite naturally, demanded an explanation of the strange happenings.

Then to his surprise he learned that the local police station had received a telephone call to the effect that a stranger had been seen passing out marijuana (a deadly drug) cigarettes to pedestrians.

Later, happening to meet the man who was reticent about accepting his generosity, he inquired as to why the telephone call was made. Apologizing for his action in calling the police this man told the "victim" that he had read in the papers of the habits of drug traffickers who, in an effort to popularize the use of marijuana cigarette, were in the habit of passing them out to indicent pedestrians.

"I have driven my R&G Ford V-8 13,000 miles and find it a very trustworthy and economical car to operate."

WRITES AN R&G BUYER

THE statement quoted above is by one of two hundred and four owners of two and three year old R & G used cars who replied to the question put them, "How do you like your R & G car?" The enquiry was sent to motorists who had operated their cars an average of slightly more than eight months. Taken together, the answers tell a convincing story of economical performance, dependability, and of the pride which owners have in their R & G cars!

Ford Dealers have R & G used cars of all the popular late models and makes. This year they have a great range of cars which owners traded in on the 1938 Ford V-8. And they have the very best selection of late model used Ford V-8s which are offered with the protective 2-day money-back guarantee and 50-50 thirty-day warranty against mechanical defects.

Ford Dealers take particular pride in living up to the terms of the R & G plan. Cars which are to carry the R & G emblem on the windshield are renewed for thousands of miles on the road. They'll save you money on running expense and service . . . give the maximum of satisfaction. They'll look smart and drive well . . . be a sound investment for a long time to come.

Prices and terms will please you well. So why wait longer? You can go to your Ford Dealer's used car lot today and start out tomorrow with a fine automobile!

RUSH—SNIDER

On June 1, the eighth, at two o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Laura May Snider, of Belleville, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. G. Mitchell became the bride of Kenneth Ray Rush, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rush of Trenton. Rev. D. T. MacGregor, pastor of Tabernacle Church, Belleville, performed the ceremony under an arch of grapevine blossoms and bells banked with irises and peonies. The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. W. P. Warham of Belleville, cousin of the bride, who was flower girl at the wedding of the bride's mother.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her step-father, wore a gown of blush pink sheer, trimmed with touches of basket weaving. Her head-dress was of orange blossoms and she carried Talisman roses with baby breath.

The bride walked on a path of rose petals.

The bridesmaid was Miss Alma Snider, of Belleville, sister of the bride, and the flower girl was Freda Mitchell, half-sister of the bride.

The former wore a gown of Venetian blue sheer, trimmed similarly to that of the bride's, and carried pastel-toned carnations with baby's breath. She wore carnations in her hair.

The flower girl was gowned in pale pink organdie and carried a basket prettily decorated with sweet peas which held the rose petals.

The groomsman was Mr. Donald White, of Belleville, cousin of the groom. During the signing of the register, Misses Arnold and Fred Mitchell sang "I Love You Truly."

After congratulations and best wishes a dainty lunch was served in the dining-room to over forty guests. Decorations of pink, white and blue were used. The waitresses were, Misses Marion Daniel, Marilyn Todd, Julia Jeffrey and Aileen Robinson. The girls were assisted in the kitchen by Mrs. Stanley Grills, Mrs. John Lynch and Mr. Sidney.

The bride's mother wore navy blue sheer with corsage of sweet peas and roses. The groom's mother was attired in navy figured sheer with corsage of sweet peas and roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a yellow gold watch; to the bridesmaid a bracelet; to the groomsman a yellow gold tie pin; to the flower girl a gold necklace, and to the pianist a gold compact. The bride received a lovely array of gifts including substantial cheques and money.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Rush left on a wedding trip to Western Ontario and Detroit and Lansing, Mich. The bride's travelling dress was of printed blue silk with matching jacket and navy accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Sidney.

The out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Fred Johnson, Miss Freda Johnson, Mr. Ross Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leavens and Kenneth, Mrs. Clare Leavens and Jackie, all of Toronto; Mrs. Alden Mr. P. Gummer of Shie, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. R. Snider, Harold and Miss Evelyn Todd, of Campbellford.

Praise Child, But Do It Wisely

Commendation That's Not Sincere Invites Trouble, Says Lisa

By LISA GRENVILLE

SIX-YEAR-OLD Willie wasn't quite as smart as his brothers, Jimmie and Tom, or as quick. He was always a couple of jumps behind, Mother felt sorry for him. Even Father felt sorry for him.

Because they felt sorry for him, and because they loved him and couldn't bear for him to be left out of it, Father and Mother were always encouraging and praising Willie.

"Oh to it, stout fellow! My money's on you," his father would say. "Of course, you can do it as well as anyone, and better."

Mother would say: "That's fine, Willie! That's wonderful!" even when it plainly wasn't.

Cascades of Handicap

All his mother's and father's good and kind intentions, all their encouragement and praise, finally only resulted in making Willie far more aware, far more constantly conscious of his handicap.

Without their quite realizing it, his mother's voice, and even his father's, were definitely different when they addressed Willie. There was an unmistakable soothing note, a patient tone, just a touch of patronage, perhaps. They saw him less strict with Willie, less critical.

Willie might not be on the bright side but his senses warned him there was some conspiracy afoot, that there was something "phony" in all this boosting business. Why Mother and Father talked to him as if he were sick, and unwell, or upset or excited! Was he sick? he wondered.

Praise Insincere

Willie needed praise, needed encouragement, as do all children, especially slightly-backward children. But insincere praise is bad business. Sooner or later you are bound to be found out, even by a backward six-year-old, and then you find yourself in real trouble. He'll never believe you again. Just put yourself in the child's place. Wouldn't you feel like an awful fool when you found that you were being praised for something that was not worthy of praise?

Willie's parents should have limited their praise to efforts and accomplishments that really did do him credit, that he could see himself had passed and he could really be proud of. Both parents made a mistake in treating Willie so differently from his brothers. I know the voice is hard to control, but it is important that a child's ear detect a boy like Willie occasionally gets harsh tone, than always to speak to him in the soothing note used to invalids.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

DOES PROSPERITY INCREASE DIVORCES?

Lawyers who specialize in divorce suits are writing their books about the "recession". It's a pretty well established fact that as prosperity mounts so climbs the divorce rate. A cupboard bare as Mother Hubbard's seems to be a great welder of homes.

Ten years ago, when "Prosperity was just around the corner," and decided to remain there, we had such a sharp drop in divorce suits that certain clergymen and serious folk, known as "quitters", wrote magazine articles on the blessings of poverty, and that enforced thrift was bringing back to the country the old-fashioned home.

There is no question that when a HOME is the end and aim of one's ambition, the sacrifices made are robbed of all bitterness. And living on a shoe-string becomes an adventure in which there is a good deal of fun, and that a dollar saved is a dollar sanctified. It takes on comic proportions, for the money saved is for the home in which children grow up to be good citizens. And the homes of good citizens make for good countries.

People engaged in saving for a home need few outside diversions, contentment sits on their hearthstone and they put into it youth, love, hope and the joy of fighting the battle of life together.

There is a way this tremendous incentive and marriage loses its final quality. It is no longer the permanent institution in which our ancestors found refuge.

When we have easy money, the home looms farther and farther in the future. There are so many things that seem more pressing. The new car, for instance, is obligatory, and why pinch and save when one can be going only once. There's dancing to be done and drinking and drinking and week-ends at the shore and clothes and hospitality which must be returned—and the movies.

And the screen Romeo makes love much more charmingly than friend husband, who probably has forgotten how to make love at all. Take this gentleman's letter, for instance:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"It's downright silly to be jealous of men whom your wife has never seen or spoken to," but that's my case. My wife is 'nutty' over at least three screen stars, and she's always comparing me to them, to my disadvantage. Why don't I kiss her like —— (name of screen star) wear becoming clothes like ——? Why can't I do this, that and the other like ——?

"I tell you I'm fed up on these birds who make such big money cheapening husbands.

"When we were first married, my wife was crazy for a nice little bungalow in the suburbs, where she could have a garden and grow flowers, but now all she does is to chase the movies.

Small-Town Ohhilie."

While I'd be the last in the world to wish poor hack to anyone, a mild personal reconsider might be helpful to this couple's problem. If the lady were saving her pennies and half dollars toward the bungalow in the suburbs, she'd have less time to compare her husband to his disadvantage, with those never-to-be-met Apollos of the screen.

acknowledge the announcement, or, if we do, we usually write a short note of best wishes to the bride, or in case of congratulations to the groom, or a note to both, if we know both.

If there were no wedding invitations, as in the case you mention, then we would make the acknowledgment consistent with our degree of knowledge with the couple or with either one. If, for instance, the bride is a very close friend of yours, of undoubtedly would wish to send her a wedding present. Or a note of best wishes might be the appropriate gesture. In the last analysis, it all depends on what you wish to do. It is never out of order to at least write a note of good wishes.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a vegetable side dish (such as peas) is served in a restaurant, should the waitress ask for R.

"If possible, use a fork" is the suggestion to remember in all cases of doubt. Mind you, however, that whether the vegetable in the individual side dish is served with no sauce or with one, if it has any sauce then the fork's the silver-ware to use. If it's butter, cream and butter for instance, and the sauce lures you, then you must, of course, use the spoon.

First Names?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going steady with a nice young man, and I have met his family. He has a married sister, and she and I are in doubt as to how I should address them? Should I use "Mrs." and "Mr." or should I call them by their first names?

G.

You'd show surest taste if you address them as "Mrs. Smith", or "Mr. Smith" until they make the suggestion that you use their first names.

Wedding Anniversary Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what the proper gift is for a second wedding anniversary.

A.

There is not a unanimity of opinion about the symbol appropriate for the second wedding anniversary for some authorities maintain that the symbol of the second anniversary is paper and the second cotton, and some reverse these. So, if you want to give symbols in your gift, you must make your own choice. As a matter of fact, however, nowadays we don't pay much attention to the symbols of wedding anniversaries and for our gift, we choose something that we judge will be welcome for the bride.

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to become a mother. Should the announcement cards be sent while I am in the hospital, or should we wait until I get home before the announcement cards are mailed?

Reader.

These birth announcements are sent whenever it is convenient to send them. It doesn't make any difference whether they are sent while you are in the hospital or when you return to your home.

Note to Newlyweds

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here is my problem: A friend of mine is engaged to be married. The father is announcing her marriage by mailing out announcement cards. How should we respond to such announcement?

B.

It is not strictly necessary to respond to a formal marriage announcement. But circumstances dictate whether or not we do make an acknowledgment. In what kind of acknowledgment we make. For instance, when there has been a very large wedding, and we have not been included in the list of guests invited, it would be obvious that we are only very slight acquaintances. Then we might not

STIRLING SCHOOL ADDITION TENDERS TO BE OPENED

Tenders for the construction of the addition to Stirling High School for which bids have been submitted by at least one local contractor, will be opened by the Stirling Board of Education on Friday evening of this week. J. A. Thomson of this city is architect of the new addition, which is estimated at $24,000 with equipment. Stirling's share of this cost will be $15,000, the Ontario Department of Education to pay the balance.

JUST ABOUT one of the nicest evening ensemble seen this season is a lovely print in yellow, with a design of apple blossoms. This is worn with a bolero in satin, half yellow, half print, with allover apple blossom embroideries.

LOOKING AHEAD we find that the cloth coat with silver fox is still first favorite. An advance model in black woolen has silver fox covering the back to the waistline, and running down the outer side of the sleeves, which are finished at the wristline.

WARM DAYS will bring out fashions that are cool and comfortable. A nice dress is in dotted swiss in navy and white. The shoulder treatment is lattice bands of the fabric. The round neckline is collarless, and has flower buttons in white for trimming.

GODIVA STRONG is the evening frock with tiered skirt. A strapless evening gown of black lace has the tiers wired to stand out in lampshade formation. Fine lace, pleated, edges the heart-shape decolletage.

TRIM AND TAILORED is a charming frock of black silk with a seagull design in white. With the dress is worn a fitted, hip-length jacket in black crepe with scenes of the print, and having a row of black and white buttons down the front. And black buttons down either side.

NEVER ENOUGH smart prints. A nice model is in violet sheer with a design of feathery carnations in delicate pink. Pleated tulle in pink marks the low square neckline and the cuffs of the short, full sleeves. A short bolero of pink charmeuse would turn this into a charming ensemble.

VEDA ANN BORG....Shes the latest addition to cinema coiffures.

TO THE hair-dressing profession the women should take off their hats in reverence for what they've done more to make women more pleasing to the eye than any form or influence. The bob, which was considered a wicked horror when first arrived, has proved to be material for enchantment and youthful arrangements.

The lifted coiffure is making headway. It is a complete change from ringlets flying about the nape line. To every woman this change is something of an entrainage. It doesn't stand to reason that the first experiments will be precisely right. The individual pattern must be worked out slowly.

The hairdress should be a harmonious detail of the entire composition—the good-looking woman. The profile must be considered, especially the nose and shape of the head. The figure, too, must line up with the mode. The small woman indulges in fluff, the large naturally one must carry a coiffure that is closely fitted, dignified.

New styles are being created without growing much more "foliage". The hair is swept back at the sides, up at the back and ends done in flat, sculptured coils, large ones. Or locks may be put up in rolls or puffs, placed in fanciful designs.

Have in your cosmetic cabinet a tube of cleanser of cold cream. It is useful when any slight skin inflammation appears. The girl with a nose that is inclined to redden should apply it every night.

Good health is not only necessary for good appearance but for mental health as well. When a woman is under "par", feels tired, hates exercise and loafs through life, she lacks energy that is necessary to make herself an interesting companion.

Cosmetics play a big part in making women decorative, but they must have the backing of vitality. It is the woman who avoids fatigue, who gets out-of-doors every day for some form of exercise, who sees that her body is properly nourished, who laughs at time.

P. E. YACHT CLUB PLANS REGATTA

One Thousand Dollars in Prizes to be Given Away

In keeping with the tremendous strides made by power-boat racing in the Bay of Quinte that borders their county, members of the Prince Edward Yacht Club, of Picton, slated by the success of their 1937 regatta, an event that drew favorable comment from the many representatives of power-boat associations of the United States and Canada in attendance, are planning an even greater similar event for Dominion Day this year.

Already entries are flocking in for the many events which will be headlined by the new famous Gold Cup race, won last year by the "Gray Goose" a Florida-owned speedster that has been crashing world's records in her class this year.

In that part of the beautiful Bay of Quinte nestling among tree-fringed cliffs that rise sheer from the water line near Vandusenz Cove a scant half-mile from town, outstanding speedboats from all parts of the continent will vie for racing honors on Canada's sailcraft holiday. White-winged sailing craft will add an additional touch of color to a scene that for sheer natural beauty is unsurpassed in Canada.

But as an added incentive for the people of the county and province to attend this outstanding function, officers and members of the Prince Edward Yacht Club are instituting a novel departure from the usual form of attraction.

One thousand dollars in cash will be given away by this up and coming organization for the correct or nearest correct guesses as to the number of people who will attend the regatta. First prize will consist of $500.00; second prize, $250.00; third prize, $100.00 and three other prizes of fifty dollars each.

There are no strings attached to the contest. All one has to do is to sit down, estimate the number one thinks will attend the Dominion Day function, place the estimate on the stub of an admission ticket which can be purchased for 25 cents, and send the estimate to the Treasurer of the Prince Edward Yacht Club, Picton.

With many outstanding power-boat and other craft enthusiasts of the United States and Canada signifying their intention of attending officials of the regatta are anticipating a bumper crowd Over twelve thousand attended the first annual regatta held last year, but this number will likely be exceeded in July.

Officials are leaving no stone unturned to make their July 1st. celebration one of the best events yet staged. Plans that exceed by far those made a year ago that culminated in a regatta that drew favorable concern, from all parts of the continent are even now in the stages of completion, with present indications pointing to one of the most colorful exhibitions of nautical racing ever seen in the smooth waters of Picton's part of the beautiful Bay of Quinte.

Holy Name Society Parades Sunday Next At Kingston Ontario

Their Excellencies Most Rev. Felix Cesterier, Bishop of Alexandria and Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough, have granted their intention of assisting at the Rally.

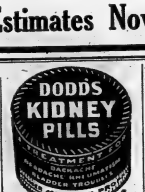
On Sunday next the members of the Holy Name Societies of the Archdiocese of Kingston will march in what they hop. to make the largest and most colorful Holy Name rally, since it has become an annual event. The exercises will be held in the Richardson Memorial Stadium, Queen's University.

Great interest is being displayed in all the parishes and large delegations are expected from all points. The men will assemble in the Cricket Field in time to be ready to move off sharp at three o'clock, Standard Time.

The route of the procession will be by way of Sydenham, Johnson and Alfred Streets to the Stadium

At the Stadium

As soon as the processionists are seated at the Stadium there will be a brief address of welcome by Rev. R. E. Farrell, Diocesan Director of the Holy Name Society. The sermon of the day will be delivered by Rev. Gregory F. Kelly, rector of St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto. The sermon will be followed by a brief address by His Grace, Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., LL.D., Archbishop of Kingston, after which there will be Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, during which the Holy Name Pledge will be renewed. This will close the ceremonies of the day. The ceremonies at the Stadium will be broadcast over Queen's University Radio Station, CFRC, starting at 2.45 p.m. Standard Time.



A public address system will be installed at the Stadium and all attending will be able to hear every word of the exercises.

Seating accomodations for ladies and children will be available on the eastern side of the Stadium and a cordial invitation is extended to all, including those of other denominations, to find accomodation there.

Belleville members of the Holy Name Society have made arrangements to have a special excursion train leave Belleville at 1.15 p. m. (Daylight Saving Time) from Pinnacle Street at Victoria Avenue and return, leaving Kingston at 7.30 p. m. (D. S. T.) Stops will be made at Marysville and Napanee to pick up members from these points.

Members are requested to be at parish assembly point to move off at above mentioned hours. At intermediate points the members are requested to take advantage of this kindly provided escort. The police escorts will be under the direction of Inspector of Provincial Police Hunter of Brockville.

The city police, under Chief of Police Robinson, will co-operate with the Provincial Police in directing traffic in the city and keeping the processional route clear.

To Use Praying Mantis In Effort to Destroy Western Grasshoppers

A new departure in parasitical cultures for the control of Canada's insect pests is being attempted at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory where several thousand Praying Mantes in the egg stage of development are being prepared by laboratory workers for shipment later to Western Canada where they will be used in the fight against the western grasshopper hordes.

Some of the voracious predators, which consider grasshoppers their especial fare, were sent last year from the local plant to Alberta. This year shipments will be made to British Columbia, following the success of last year's work.

The strange insects, which are picked up from time to time on the streets of Belleville, are not unusually common, and care is needed for their culture. They are large insects with a body over one inch long, and are given their name through their peculiar "praying" manner when at rest.

Intermediates Defeat Napanee to Head Loop; Giants Increase Lead

Ninth Inning Single by Reid Gives Belleville 4 to 3 Win Over Napanee in Int. Tussle

"Bud" Johnson Hurls Fine Game Especially in Pinches

WELL-PLAYED CONTEST

Locals Outhit Losers But Their Misplays Nearly Lost Game

Harold Reid's scorching single, that tore between first base and the clutching hands of a Gibbardville second-sacker in the last half of the ninth inning, not only broke up an nitty a brand of intermediate baseball as has been seen here in many a moon, but put the local aspirants for the Bay of Quinte Intermediate Baseball League title into undisputed possession of the top rung of the loop ladder, by virtue of their 4-3 victory over Walt Gerow's Napanee squad at the Exhibition Grounds last night.

The win was the second for the locals and incidentally the first defeat for the lads of Gibbardville.

With Bell, Napanee hurler, who got his mail in Winnipeg last season, and Bud Johnson, who essayed the mound job for the Meyrick, and who incidentally turned in a stellar performance, booking up in a pitching duel, the pastime belonged to anyone until the fateful ninth when with the score tied three-all, the Weirmen smashed out two singles in their wake of a Napanee bobble to send Johnson racing home with the winning run.

Johnson Versatile

The versatile Johnson, who is equally at home on the football gridiron, electrified the handful of fans who attended operations with a fine twirling performance. He scattered eight safeties most effectively and on two occasions turned back the Napanee threat with winning runs cluttering up the bags. He struck out five, walked four, and but for the bobbles on the part of his mates on one occasion would have won by a larger margin.

Bell on the other hand was equally effective, but the ability of the locals to bunch their hits in the fourth, when they smashed out a double and a brace of singles to score a duo of markers, and again in the ninth when they clustered a pair for the winning run, turned what appeared at times to be victory into defeat. The lanky right-hander whiffed seven and did not issue a free ticket.

Dwyer's single, a long fly and a local error paved the way for the first Napanee run in the first inning. Reid added another in the third, when Johnson issued two of his four passes, and McChiveon accraned a long single to left field. Their final marker arrived in the seventh, when a walk and a costly local error, plus a long single by sent Dwyer, diminutive right-fielder who incidentally scored all of his team's runs, scampering across the plate with the last tally.

Sero Hits Double

Sero's smashing drive, that went for two bases with Simpson and Weir who had singled ahead of him, across the plate for two Belleville runs in the fifth after they had scored one in the previous innings. That issue of tallies tied up the game tighter than the tonsils of a frog and that time on it was anybody's dice. Napanee threatened in the eighth when Lucas' triple with one out looked like a run-maker in Europe and again in the ninth, when Spratt was injected as a pinch-hitter after Gerow and Kinkley had struck ahead of him. On both occasions, Johnson coolly bore down to retire the side runless, a particularly brilliant effort coming in the ninth as he struck out Spratt.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
Ken I. Colling

After nearly a week of mingling with the dignitaries of High Court, we return to the lower and more thrilling plane of sportdom. It has been said, "a change is as good as a rest," with that thought in mind we chose the Court assignment as our pet diversion for our vacation week—with no regrets. Of course today's column may lean slightly in favour of the legal phraseology with the odd—to wit, the party of the first part or the said guilty as charged, but aside from that we hope to get back into the harness with some harness pronto. There we are already—pronto being a good old sport, eh what?

Being in the mood for inside dope here's another one—from a reliable source we hear there will be no hockey team, competing in the Ontario Hockey Association when Trenton Air Force next winter. The latest off the grapevine before the fire, that is, before a scribe took a vacation in Ottawa and Montreal, is that the Senior Valley League along with the Carswell Flyers and Belleville Combines will form a circuit. The news came in a around about way, but seems to be a reliable one, especially with the recent transfers that have passed out of the Trenton fold.

A fiction finish with timely hitting in the ninth inning gave the Belleville nine a well-earned decision over Walt Gerow's Napanee Bay of Quinte bailiwick at the Fair Grounds last evening. After a handful of patrons saw "Bud" Johnson hurl the locals to their second victory, that elevated the Weirites into the leadership of the Bay loop. The pastime was well played and thoroughly enjoyed, but the absence of the fans was rather discouraging. The game was productive of that type of thrilling finish, that satisfies the hometown fans. That three-all going into the ninth, successive hits with Harold Reid supplying the mourned blow, sent Bud Johnson home with the winning run to win his own ball game.

The game gate was exactly $22.00. Just how the baseball fans can expect to have a club meet ordinary expenses with such peanut money, is hard to understand. Napanee's Manager Walt preached no lost spring relative to why Belleville could not have a baseball team. Today this fair city along the shores of the Bay of Quinte has a good intermediate team, playing good baseball. What more do the fans want? At present they are leading their loop, but had it not been for the Napanee supporters, we hate to think what the gate receipts might have amounted to. It has been suggested the team return to the old Wednesday afternoon games—those in favour say "aye".

It was truly a good pitcher's battle between elongated Bob Bell, Napanee's imported hurler from Wining,g and "Bud" Johnson, a local product. Both pitchers worked well and should be given equal credit, although Johnson was pitching his first O.B.A. and came through with flying colors. The locals proved they have plenty of punch, while the fielding on both sides was above average for intermediate ball. Incidentally every team in the loop has suffered at least one loss and the league race is of such a nature as to create much personal feeling and add interest throughout the entire circuit. For an intermediate loop the Bay of Quinte is exceptionally close, with the clubs very evenly matched.

Witnessed the showing of the Armstrong-Ross fight at the Capitol theatre yesterday. This boy Armstrong is everything they claim. Has a rapier left, that Ross could not evade, but what impressed us most was Armstrong's continual boring in, he never quit crowding Ross from gong to gong. At times Ross must have thought he was fighting a phantom, as the little brown bomber was always on the move. The fight pictures are clear and give one a good conception of just how badly Armstrong did beat Ross to win the title.

Ideal weather, keen competition and willing athletes resulted in several school athletic records being shattered at the annual track and field meet held at the O.S.D. yesterday. Frank Cunningham's charges must have benefited considerably from their recent mingling and competing at district track and field meets. Incidentally the new modern track and field equipment is afforded the O.S.D. athletes during their competitions, running laps and all the trimmings being in evidence. Weather permitting the R.C.I. will hold its field day today.

George Brank, Picton golfer, recently achieved his golden dream in the golfing world—a hole-in-one, Mr. Brank, who has played for seventh green over the Picton course only this week, the Picton chip hop is a short one, it is also a difficult one, as the ball has to be lifted over a group of evergreen trees. Young Brank is but 18 years, the son of Mr. Howard Brank, who is a Picton golfer of note. It is seven years since a hole-in-one has been shot on the Picton course.

Calling 'em as they came the quarter back of the pennant race, Paul Mickelson of the Associated Press leaks for New York and Chicago to fight it out in the National League, with the Cubs a few percentage strads on top as they get home. He regards Pittsburgh doubtfully as a threat of the second players who may wind up as low as sixth, and taps St. Louis as a team with lots of power and mediocre pitching. The Yankees are due to win the flag, and in his opinion with Cleveland, Boston and Washington as perennial possibilities.

When "Bud" Johnson showed his best hurling last night was with men on base, hopless having at even dozen men stranded on the runways. This lad Bell hurling for Napanee, has plenty of control, he failed to issue a single base on balls to the locals.

Things were quiet and orderly when the masked Marvel wrestled Vic Christie's world championship wrestling crown (or we should have said one of the many) down to Toronto last night. From now on the Wooden Cross Christie will only wear is made but the title crown in the bargain.

The Davis "Tumour" of Kingston gave the local National Grocers a lesson in netball at Cataraqui Park last night. They caught the "grocermen" were minus the services of several likely better players and had a hard-fought struggle 9-5. The Kingston side boasted as well-known athletes as "Bang" Jardine former Toronto netball player, Tubby Gee and Ron Gordon of Kingston hockey fame and others. Harrison clipped one of Freddie Vinall's stanis for the circuit in Kingston. On the edge, while Orval Gallery lurked sleep, ball and was given equally as good support to be returned the shooting picket.

HODGE PODGE: Terry's Giants are steadily moving out into the open while the Cleveland Indians are fast losing tongues—spoiling the Junior loop...Vernon Kennedy's season's undefeated record came to an abrupt end at the hands of the lowly A's yesterday.

INTERNATIONAL BACK TO NORMAL

Newark Bear Again Beaten For Third in Row

(By The Associated Press)

The International League is back to normal again, now that Newark Bears have been proven vulnerable and the long losing streak of the Baltimore Orioles is at an end.

Buffalo Bisons demonstrated their double victory over the Bears Tuesday was no fluke when they walloped out No. 3 over the champions yesterday by a 12-3 count and moved within four games of the pace-setters.

The Orioles not only broke their 13-game losing streak by defeating Montreal Royals 7-5 but regained the services of Lefty Carl Fischer, who broke an 8th earn early in the season. The ace southpaw relieved young Johnny Wittig in the sixth inning and held the Royals to one hit in 3 1-3 innings to receive credit for the win.

Jersey City Giants took their third in a row from Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3, behind the seven-hit pitching by Ky Vandenberg, and Rochester Red Wings split a double-header with Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs won the opener 2-1 but dropped the second game 4-0. Rookie Cardin Gillenwater smashed out a homer in the ninth inning for the lone run to break up a hurling duel between Leo Johnny Gee and Rochester's Si Johnson.

ATHLETIC MEET OF O.S.D. PUPILS HELD THURSDAY

Girl Athletes Break Six Records For School And Boys Two

KEEN COMPETITION

Meet Under Direction of Frank Cunningham, Physical Director

Smashing six school track and field records, girl athletes of the Ontario School for the Deaf paced their male fellow students who were content with lowering the marks in two events and equalling another in the Annual Athletic Meet held on the school campus yesterday.

Champions in the respective colours were declared late yesterday afternoon after a fiercely contested competition on the part of all participating students.

Myrtle Kimbell, versatile hockey, football and track star of the school, nosed out Robert Pierce for the senior boys' title, that was not decided until the last event was run. Kimbell garnered 18 points against Pierce's seventeen.

Sam Grasiano, school intermediate athletic ace, won the title in his class with his mark in all clashes of twenty-seven points. D. Bostnari was the runner-up with 12 points.

Raymond Cork led A. Hazlett to the wire for the junior boys' title with a total of 14 points against Hazlett's 10.

Girls' Quite Active

Kathleen Pratley, versatile girl athlete entered the senior girls' title with 16 points. Betty Wood followed with 13. Eleanor Charron starred in all events, compiling a total of 26 points to win the intermediate girls' title. Hazel Blair was runner-up in this division with 11 points. Olga Wirtuk is the new junior girls' champion who compiled twelve points to nose out Jessie Auld who finished with 11.

Four juvenile boys, J. Little, D. Moore, N. Rose, and G. Loucas, were tied for the title in their class, each garnering five points.

The meet was exceptionally well-handled under the competent supervision of Mr. F. Cunningham, physical director of the school, ably assisted by members of the staff.

Crossroads

by Kathleen Norris

"More than two hours later, almost nine o'clock, Kari came out of the sickroom and closed the door behind him. He found Gloria waiting in the hall. They walked away together toward her own suite upstairs and down and across a corridor. Kari came into her sitting room with her, and they sat down.

"How is he?" Gloria asked.

"He's all right. He had some hot milk and something to put him to sleep. It was only weakness."

"Is she with him?"

"Yes, and Miss Russell was there. Mrs. Miller will always be the little room; they've made up the cot."

"She got her supper tray?"

"Oh, yes....Now, my dear, what about you? You've had no supper and you look as white as a sheet," Karl said, with his toilet, professional pleasantness. "This had been a good deal of a shock, of course. Seeing him again, not expecting him. Shall I take you downtown or shall we have some of Tony's fried oysters? It's Saturday night; it'll be noisy in town. Would you rather come down in the kitchen and see what we can find in the icebox?"

"It's still Sunday night, isn't it?" She spoke vaguely, wearily.

Karl laughed. "Ah, you look for child! It was a surprise. And, if I may say so, also the kindest thing a woman was a distinctly unpleasant surprise. But she seems devoted to him, doesn't she? And she's good-hearted enough. She grabbed my hand and said not long ago that when I said that he had merely fainted—"

"Ugh!" Gloria ejaculated, with a shudder. "Yes, let's go down to the kitchen, shall we? I'll make a pot herself together. 'I don't feel up to facing Tony's fried oysters or some chicken—scrathing."

They went down to the kitchen. Like a woman under the heavy, deadening influence of a dream, Gloria opened the icebox door and bread tin, lighted the gas stove, put the kettle on, stopped her, as she came and went across the kitchen, and put his hand tenderly on her cheek. Clinging to him.

Karl, he couldn't take Jimmy away, could he, for six months, or a time?

"How do you mean take him?" he asked.

"I mean take him to Los Angeles," Gloria said passionately, "and put him in the care of that—that Ethel Miller?"

"But, Gloria," Karl said, puzzled by her tone, "you said that Ethel Miller was the best nurse you knew, and Peter wanted the child. Isn't that what he's now standing out for all this time?"

"Yes, but I thought—we all said, that Jimmy would possibly make—? to take care, of him in bachelor quarters! Now that Peter's ill in it," Gloria stammered, "perhaps he thinks he can. Well, I'll fight, father! I get Jimmy—all his—and full control of Jimmy—"I'll fight, father! I get Jimmy—all his—and full control of Jimmy—I'll fight, father! I get Jimmy—all his—and full control of Jimmy—I'll fight, father! I get Jimmy—all his—and full control of Jimmy—

Premier W. J. The Social Credit party elected but two members.

Man's Biggest Job

Called the "biggest thing on earth," the Grand Coulee dam, when finished, will be three times the size of Boulder Dam, with developed power half again as much power, and will provide irrigation for an area one and a half times the size of Rhode Island. The dam will be as high as a 46-story building and as long as fourteen ordinary city blocks. Its reservoir will be as thick as the length of a six-car train, and four times as the size of the "Queen Mary" which placed above the top. The twenty-three million tons of concrete in the dam will equal the volume of the Great Pyramid.

The gigantic mass to be seen today is not much more than the mere foundation of the whole structure. When finished, the dam will be nearly a mile long and 550 feet high as high as Niagara Falls. It will back up a lake 151 miles long clear to the Canadian border, and its generators will develop the equivalent of 2,700,000 horsepower, more than the hydroelectric power of all seven dams of the Tennessee Valley authority system.

The gorge of the Columbia river is to be filled with an arch-type dam. Grand Coulee must depend upon its massive weight alone to resist the pressure of the water it will back up. At the dams site the river is 700 feet wide and at times 70 feet deep. It is estimated that potentially this one river alone, exploited intensively, by a dam program, of which the Grand Coulee is the core and the Bonneville dam now being built 300 miles downstream is another, can turn out energy amounting to more than half the total hydro-electric power developed in the United States today.

When the engineers selected the present site of the Columbia they took advantage of an event that happened many millions of years ago. During the last great ice age a glacier moved into the present river bed and dammed the river as effectively as the modern concrete structure will. The impounded waters gradually filled the canyon and then overflowed the rim, cutting out a new river channel to the south. For centuries the river flowed along its new bed and then, capacity.

Easy Pickin's

By ADELIA MOODY

Pappy Short's eyes—the color of bluing water over your hand—shifted to the right warily, though his head remained pointed at the sewing-machine motor which he was operating in Sylvia's sun porch. Sylvia must have left the room, though you couldn't be sure with Pappy's poker face. The nurse's absence of hers. He continued a moment long fiddling with his tiny screw driver and then carefully turned his head full circle. Yes, the coast was clear. It was due on night shift. Luckily she trusted him completely. That was all to the good.

He heard the front door close a moment later and from the window saw Sylvia drive away in her car. It was a victory of sorts, Sylvia's car. Pappy snorted. She could afford a better one if she wanted it. She never quite regularly and had only herself to support. Besides, there were the pearls —a handful of them—which was as far as her quarrels had ever gone in the building of a genuine pearl necklace for her when she was a child. But Pappy wondered why she didn't sell the pearls. Her sentimental attachment to them was ridiculous.

Pappy had kept the pearls in a sandal-wood box behind some books in her bookcase. Pappy wondered whether another person in the world besides himself knew of its hiding place, or ever their existence. He chuckled. Sylvia certainly trusted him.

Pappy laid down his screw driver and stumped away on his cork leg toward the bookcase. He never under his breath at the clumsiness of his leg. It was better, he thought it second hand, and must have been the cheapest one leg in the world originally. His face lined with bitterness as he changed it from the floor. He'd be using this leg all his life, like as not. You couldn't hurt anything from tinkering at thirty-five cents an hour. That was all Sylvia ever paid him.

Hitching his odious old cork peg along as silently as possible he stooped and stood before the bookcase. Furtively his eyes moved about the room and swept the street beyond the windows; his ear also, required the presence of no human being in the vicinity.

His veiny rough hand was clumsy with the volume of medieval history which he removed from the case. The box fell open in the gap with a heavy slap. Pappy Short jumped and his eyes fluttered quickly about before he stooped to recover the book. He let it quietly upon an end table and removed two more volumes from the case. Sylvia must have chosen to put the pearls behind the volumes least likely ever to be removed by the young hand of a guest.

Pappy Short's hand closed quickly on the small sandalwood box. It was locked, but Pappy had little difficulty getting into the box.

He lifted the lid. He gloated. Pearls were money, not beauty, to Pappy. He counted them. Nineteen. That meant one and eleven in his possession. Soon he would have to put an end to this pilfering before Sylvia discovered her loss. She never seemed to look into the box with more than a fleeting glance to see if the pearls were safe. He did not doubt whether she ever counted them. If he stepped now, her brief glances into the box would not advise her of her loss. It had been years since Sylvia's birthday.

He removed a lone pearl with his thumb and forefinger. Always it was that one. He put the pearl in his vest pocket while he re-secured the lock. Then he replaced the box and the books before it. He took the pearl out of his pocket, chuckled with satisfaction.

No one would guess, he smiled to himself, as he returned to repairing the machine motor, that there were twelve hundred dollars worth of his ancient cork leg.

His work completed, he gathered his tools into a worn satchel and let himself out the door. He wished Sylvia's car were with her car. She often drove him home. But she would be busy at the hospital for thirty-five cents an hour! And she never thought of that. She just—forgotten to pay him at all!...

Pappy Short always arose at nine for the morning was usually very stormy. Then he slept until noon. This morning it was seven . . . he woke at eleven-thirty.

He looked for his old leg which always stood against the wall by his bed. The feel of it was somehow different this morning. He dragged himself upright and swung his head slowly. The leg stood there at the cork one. It was different! It was cork and wood, all right, and a high-priced one at that! How had it come there and where? Pappy's eyes suddenly settled with furious pumps—where was his old leg and the pearls?

Confusion and fear made him forget. With the folded paper his pocket from the floor. It bore his name, Pappy was scrawled in Sylvia's hasty handwriting:

"I dropped it on my way home from work this morning. I had forgotten to pay you the dollar for your work yesterday.

"This good new leg I bought for you in appreciation of your good work. I have mentioned to Dr. Jones you will like it and be able to get about better. It is just a little surprise I've planned for a long time.

"P.S.—I took the old leg along with me. I can use it for kidding."

QUESTIONS IN HOUSE

Almost every week complaints are made that certain departments of the civil service are being seriously injured by the activities of Ministers in answering questions asked in the House of Commons at Ottawa. This year is no exception. The routine work of government officers is being interrupted to such an extent that, according to one Minister, it is feared the taxpayers an extra $50,000 as a result.

It is doubtful whether investigation committees in the House will be impressed by this tale of vexatious labors caused by their inquisitiveness. But some effort should be made to curtail the question privilege of members within bounds.

The difficulty, of course, is to define any bounds. The motive behind a question may be a public one, or it may be entirely personal. A question asking for endless details concerning a bridge or a post office in some remote spot may appear a waste of valuable time to most people, but to the member asking it and to his constituents it may seem highly important.

Questions are an important part in our democratic system of parliamentary procedure. They are essential in principle and should be when the ice retreated, resumed its age-old path.

That left a dry river bed, from two to five miles wide and fifty-six miles long, high on the canyon wall, pointing away almost in the opposite direction from the great gorge of the Columbia. At the far end of this channel lie 1,200,000 acres of the richest arid agricultural land in the country. The present idea is to pump billions of gallons of water up a canal and a balancing reservoir to carry part of the Columbia to the arid acres of the Big Bend country.

Getting ready to build the dam is no job in itself. Two towns, a "contractor's town" and government town, have risen on opposite sides of the river for the nearly 4,000 workmen and engineers. A huge permanent railroad bridge and a suspension bridge for carrying cars across the river had to be built, as well as several side bridges and roads. To drill down to bed-rock to ensure firm foundations for the dam the engineers blew away over fifteen nine miles of hardened drill steel. Through this solid rock foundation granite itself is as strong as possible ten miles of grout holes, in drilled into the rock, 23,500 tons of cement "grout" were forced down into the holes under pressure to every crack and seam.

The dam grows in five foot blocks. Wet concrete, placed in alternate blocks measuring up to fifty feet square. The forms that hold each block are shaped to provide vertical keys to lock each other. With both mixing plants in operation a cubic yard of concrete is added to the dam every five and one-half seconds.

It is estimated that the dam and power houses will cost a total of $173,700,000, and that the completed dam and irrigation project will represent a total investment of $378,200,000. It will probably require another three years, as the present rate of work, to complete.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE BELLE

"Arsene Lupin Returns and "Swing Music"

The inimitable internationally loved comedians, Laurel and Hardy make their first co-starring appearance on the screen in more than a year in "Swiss Miss," a musical-comedy extravaganza laid in the Alps, which opens Saturday at the Belle theatre as one of the most spectacular and pretentious feature-length productions ever turned out by the Hal Roach studios.

A cast of striking distinction supports the comedy kings in the new film considerable interest being given the fact that the picture marks the debut on the American screen of Della Lind, ballet ace one of Europe's most beautiful singing stars. Also combining a brilliant vocal and acting talent is Walter Woolf King who has starred in a long list of Broadway musical-comedy hits. Eric Blore, who has added safety to every picture in which he has appeared, is also featured in the cast of "Swiss Miss."

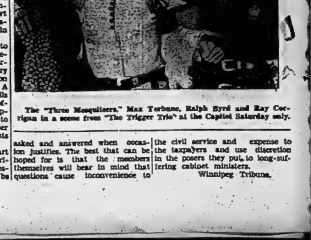
Five new songs are offered the people in "Swiss Miss," written by Phil Charig, who has won fame with "Sing and Be Happy" and "Love Song" and "I Can't Get Over the Alps." Also included are dance and ensemble numbers, with "The Mountain Shepherd's Dance" described as the Swiss version of "The Big Apple."

In "Swiss Miss," Laurel and Hardy appear as music-trap salesmen about to sell the phone-making country of its rodent population. At an Alpine inn they come upon a noted Viennese composer who is at work on a new operetta. His wife an actress has incurred her husband's jealousy because of the attiks given more attention to her singing than to his music. She follows him to the inn hoping for a reconciliation but he spurns all her advances. Laurel and Hardy, smitten with her charm and beauty become hilarious foils in the yarn they employ to regain her husband's favor.

Nogel routines indigenous to Switzerland are seen in the new picture. Flag-throwing is demonstrated by Franz slig, champion of the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin. Yodeling and the blowing of the Alpen horn are other customs of the Alpine folks included in the film.

"Arsene Lupin Returns"

Arsene Lupin that famous fictional character created by Maurice LeBlanc, is revived in "Arsene Lupin Returns," the added feature attraction. In this new mystery thriller the adventures of the famous gentleman thief, who is supposed to be dead are continued.



Melvyn Douglas, Virginia Bruce and Lionel Atwill share leading roles, with John Halliday and Nat Pendleton also prominently cast. In the supporting cast are Monty Woolley, E. E. Clive and George Zucco.

The story's action moves at breakneck speed from the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington and New York to the haunts of crime in Paris.

"Swing Music" Tonight

Two smart features are being shown at the Belle tonight only in "Swing Music," a film with a host of favorite stars and famed bandmakers including Andre Kostelanetz, Tony Martin, Joan Davis, Jimmy Mundin, Fred Allen of radio and screen fame, Marjorie Weaver and Louise Hovick.

If Mr. Moto can win, he would trap a phantom killer, if he lost, he himself would be killed! Peter Lorre, starred as the famous Saturday Evening Post sleuth in the newest drama of the 20th Century-Fox series, "Mr. Moto's Gamble," contagion the mystery that rocked American sports world in the film that is the second feature attraction on the same program. The last complete show begins at 8.30 p.m.

Jimmy Foxx and Lefty Grove Sure Starters in All-Star Game To Be Played in Cincinnati

First Sacker Hit 18th Homer And Grove Wins 10th Game of Year

CUBS DEFEATED

Vernon Kennedy of Cleveland Fails to Win Tenth Straight

By Hal Feder Associated Press Sports Writer)

Unless there's a major epidemic of broken legs or train connections between Boston and Cincinnati give out, Jimmy Foxx will be doing the American League's first-baseman chores in the All-Star game against the National League next month.

Jimmy's been in on the show before—in four of the five mid-summer classics—but never yet has he held down the first sack. Always he's been at bitch.

This year however, it's another story, what with Foxx taking the cover off the ball, Lou Gehrig amounting to just another ball player at the plate, and the rest of the opposition, with the possible exception of Hal Trosky, far behind Jimmy.

When Jimmy travels to Cincinnati he'll probably have company all the way in Old Mose (Lefty) Grove.

Lefty is the big league's only 10-game winner so far this season, having reached that point in what looks like a 25-game year by blanking Cleveland Indians 5-0 yesterday. Foxx drove in two runs behind Lefty's showing and contributed his 18th homer of the year.

Three Streaked For Giants

While the Sox were taking their series two games to one from the American League leaders, the National League spotlight remained focused on Chicago, where New York Giants made it three straight over the Cubs, largely through some more of that special Cub brand of master-baiting.

With the score tied in the ninth, two out and two Giants on base, Cholly Grimm summoned Rookie Bob Logan to relieve Tex Carleton. How Logan is a left-hander, and as such, figured to give the Giants more trouble than a righty. But Logan previously this season had appeared in just nine innings, and had obliged the opposition with nine hits and six runs.

8th gave up a hit to the first batsman, walked the second to force in a run, and finally was tagged for another hit, scoring two more. By the time old Jack Russell rushed in to put out the fire, the Giants had the ball game sewed up 8-5, and pulled a game and a half in front.

Pirates Win One

In the only other National League game, the Pirates clobbed Jim Turner for 10 hits and topped the Bees 5-2, behind Mace Brown's fine relief pitching. The Dodgers and Cardinals were rained out.

The Yankees stopped playing possum to Chicago White Sox and whipped Jimmy Dykes' outfit 8-3. Rookie Daris Lodigiani clouted a homer with the bases loaded and packed the Athletics to an 8-5 win over Detroit Tigers, ending Vernon Kennedy's run of nine straight victories. Jimmy Deshong and Pat Appleton pitched a four-hitter between them and Washington Senators sank St. Louis Browns 6-4, a 5-3 win over White Sox.

Jimmy Deshong, Senators—Held Browns to four hits for eight innings for 6-4 victory.

New York, June 10.—(AP)—Baseball trading deadline nears...Cubs and Cards both want Mungo .... Yanks would like Buck Newsom of the Browns but the chances are slim since St. Louis wants players rather than cash for the big South Carolinian.....

Brooklyn needs everything and will take anything...most of other clubs, particularly "Zimmerati" are content to go on with what they have rather than dig down in those jeans...the Reds are pretty well fixed as they are and will get better....anyway it looks like the races in both leagues will be closer than in years.....even New Yorkers have given up on a run-away for the Yanks.

Picard and Hines Low Scorers in First Round U. S. Open

By Ross Newland
Associated Press Sports Writer

Denver, June 10.—(AP)—Slightly grugey but still in there punching, golf's big-biz and less noted members of the clan let loose their best shots today in another bout with par which brought the United States Open championship through the second round.

It was "do or die" this day on ribbon-like fairways and treacherous greens of Cherry Hills. When the bombardment ceased nearly two- thirds of the field was slated to take that last long trek to the sidelines. The 60 low scorers and ties remained to fight it out in the last 36 holes tomorrow.

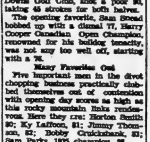
Pace setters Henry Picard and Jimmy Hines knocked out a first round 70. It was one under par for the mile high course where drives travel swiftly to greater distances in the rarefied atmosphere.

Just Normal Figure

Picard from Hershey, Pa., clubbed his sub-par effort into the records with a 36-34. Hines, blond New Yorker, reversed the figures for the same total.

Canada's lone hope, Kennie C. Zaboski, Winnipeg professional, carded a 79, going out in 40 strokes and coming home in one less. Melvin H. Luther, Buffalo amateur representing the Fort Erie, Ont., Downs Golf Club, shot a poor 81, taking 45 strokes for both halves.

The opening favorite, Sam Snead, bobbed up with a dismal 77, Harry Cooper Canadian Open Champion, renowned for his bulldog tenacity, was not any too well off, starting with a 76.



Many Favorites Out

Five important men in the divot chopping business practically ended themselves out of contention with opening day scores as high as this rocky mountain links rendezvous. Here they are: Horton Smith 80; Ky Laffoon, 81, 77; Thomas Sarazen, 82; Bobby Cruickshank, 83; Sam Parks, 1935 champion, 84.

Husky John Rogers, local professional, turned in a par-equalling 71.

Willie Hunter one time British Amateur champion ... now playing for pay out of Los Angeles, and Dick Metz, Chicago, both in good second round shape with 72's. Ernie Zimmerman, a "dark horse" had a 72.

Defending champion Ralph Guldahl and Gene Sarazen title holders, Gene Sarazen, Olin Dutra and Tony Manero, were scarcely placed with others at 75 strokes.

Be In Balance

Most golfers seem to recognize the need for body balance in everything but golf. They know that a swinging a club, the individual wrists and body, is aimed toward as much as though the positions and movements of his body didn't mean a thing.

Ask him about his balance and he'll look at you in some surprised look. He might even be offended by your question. The very idea of hinting that he might not be in balance! He feels that he is in almost perfect balance most of the time.

Of course, he never has studied movies of himself in action, but he feels that his balance is pretty good, so why bother to make a more accurate check? The fact that he is never sure about it one time or way he should start backswing is proof positive that there is something faulty about his balance.

When you are in good balance you need make no special effort to start your backswing. It will start almost automatically. By body balance I mean the even distribution of weight between the ball and heel of each foot, when some might call a heel and toe balance. Such a balance finds your midsection relaxed and ready to start your arms and hands in any movements they make.

The next time you stand up to the ball, think more about this heel and toe balance. You can acquire it only by standing much more erect than you do normally.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Migraine May Cause Headache

Migraine is a common and serious condition, even though it does not kill. It is the cause of more than four times the number of serious headaches which result from all other causes combined."

I am quoting Dr. Thomas Cecil Hunt, London, England, in an address before the International Medical Assembly at St. Louis last year.

The fact that migraine is common is known; that it is serious is not so well known except to the sufferers who would give much to be spared those days and sometimes weeks of extreme pain. In two of every three cases there is a family history of migraine and about three of every four cases are in women.

"The attacks usually begin during the teen age or in early adult life, and come on at regular intervals often to the very day, with no trouble between attacks. Attacks may be brought on by dyspepsia, a neurosis (thinking you have an ailment when none is present), excitement (pleasant or unpleasant), certain foods, cold, the menses or monthly periods, and other conditions and are apt to occur when the patient is most anxious to be free of them." The attacks are not often caused by eye strain.

An attack may develop suddenly or may start with yawning, drowsiness, irritability, depression, anxiosca, or with an attack of hives.

Dr. Hunt points out that migraine should not be called one-sided headache because the pain is on both sides of the head in at least half the cases; also vomiting may be absent in one quarter of the case so if it is not always a "sick headache". Also many cases of migraine—perhaps half—have appendix and liver trouble also.

In regard to treatment: before giving too much credit to any particular method of treatment, Dr. Hunt states that about fifteen percent of cases become free of attacks without treatment and that in about thirty to forty percent of the cases the attacks become much milder and stop entirely after the age of fifty years.

Apparently Dr. Hunt shares the view of many other physicians that the liver and gall bladder are a factor in causing migraine as he found that liberal doses of bile salts three or four times a day helped thirty-five percent of his cases.

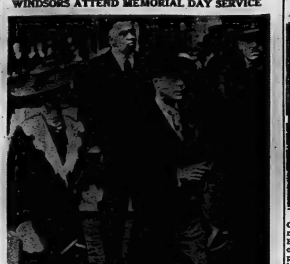
WHERE KIDNAPED CASH BOY'S BODY WAS FOUND

Searchers point to spot where Jimmy's body was found

Directed by Franklin Pierce McCall, 21 year old Princeton, Fla., truck driver, federal agents found the body of kidnaped James Bailey Cash, 5, of Princeton not far from the spot where James' father paid the $10,000 ransom. Searchers point to the spot where the boy's body was found. —Central Press

Kidnappers Break Faith



Face drawn from lack of sleep and anxiety, James Bailey Cash is shown here in the first picture for which he posed since the kidnapping of his five-year-old son more than a week ago. Cash paid $10,000 ransom for the return of his son—return that has not yet been made.

Weds Italian Prince

Prince Guido Colonna, Italian vice-consul in Toronto, wed Montreal-born Tatiana Conne. ABOVE, in New York recently with the consent of King Victor Emmanuel. Demands Autonomy

The hard-pressed democracy of Czechoslovakia was hurled into a new crisis when Father Andrej Hlinka (above), white-haired chief of the Slovak Catholic People's party, led 100,000 persons in turbulent demonstration for autonomy of the Southern province of Slovakia, home of three million. Meanwhile, Hans, under the leadership of Konrad Henlein, are demanding autonomy of another three million Sudetan Germans. Caught between two fires, so to speak, is President Benes, who must rule on the demands of both Hlinka and Henlein.

Newly Built "Atlantic Clipper" Nearly Meets Disaster

The Atlantic Clipper, first of Pan-American's planned fleet of six such flying boats, comes perilously close to disaster as she taxied in Elliott Bay, Seattle, Wash. As the giant flying boat attempted a turn the left wing was caught by a gust of wind and lifted high into the air, at the same time the tip of the right was plunged at least 10 feet into the water. The service boat, Panair, went to the Clipper's assistance and attached a tow rope to her stern while a sea anchor was lowered from the bow of the ship to hold her steady. The Clipper, which has just been completed, is designed to carry 40 passengers in the Pacific trade or 50 on the New York-London run this summer.

Planes Invade France

France has protested a bombing raid of nine Spanish airplanes on French soil across the Pyrenees Frontier. Map shows scene of bombing. One bomb destroyed electric power lines from the power plant at Orlu, less than three miles southeast of Ax-les-Thermes, and another exploded near the track of the main trans-Pyrenees railroad from Toulouse to Barcelona. Premier Edouard Daladier ordered French airplanes to pursue and force down any airplanes that threatened French territory.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was reading at the paper saying. Here's another king thats going to marry an American heiress. Willyms, the king of Sardonia where's that, Willyms?

I dont know but it doesn't come under the head of news, sayyay, pop said. It would of been news in the old days, when they was enough kings to go around and it was easy for a king to pick himself a nice one when he felt like moving over on his throne. But now there are only about half a dozen princesses left and they're probably kind of speckled, like the last half a dozen apples in the huckster's basket, so the kings just have to content themselves with American heiresses, he said, and ma said, My, I wonder how it is to be an American girl one day and wake up the next morning and find yourself a queen? I can tell you exactly pop said. You open your eyes and look around you, and you hear a strange, soft, haunting sound, the sound of a bowtill girl yawning. Ina fact it's yourself. Suddenly you are opprest by a queer feeling of unhappiness due to the last fingering taste of the other kings you drank at the wedding banquet so you get up and gracefully brush your teeth with your own personal toothbrush made in Japan and then you break a flat on an early meal of golden grapefruit from far off Florida or California and fragrant coffee from distant Java or Moka. Then how it feels to wake up and find you're a queen in Sardonia he said.

O Willyem if I didn't have any more romance than that in my system I wouldn't advertise it, ma said.

And she started in do the crossword puzzle and pop got behind the sporting page.

TORONTO STOCKS—CLOSE

Toronto, June 10—The Toronto market pushed along on the upward trail today with base and the golf steels displaying the greatest energy. Mining oils and other industrial groups leaned to the up side and all indices were higher at the close. Gains of a point or more were held by the mining leaders in both the base metal and the gold groups. Volume bettered the 800,000 share mark.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, June 10—Mild selling dribbled into the stock market today and leading issues yielded portions of their belated rally in the preceding session.

Light profit taking appeared after a fairly active and firm opening. Dealings then slowed to the familiar crawl of the past several weeks. There was a handful of gainers near the final hour and the general run of declines held to minor fractions. Transfers were about 650,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford
By Financial Service

The Trader in Barron's states that business is not relying on inflation for rescue and this is clear from the increasing curtailment in all lines of production, notably copper and oil, which, in the inflation environment of a year or two ago, were cited as the safest of all hedges since the products were under the ground. The oil industry is coming to grips in old-fashioned manner with the necessity of reducing unhealthy accumulations of the red metal.

To realists, the virtual closing of plants must correspond in gravity to the failing of the banks in March 1933. Thereafter, nothing worse can happen to business for sooner or later factors must open just as did the banks. The very worst that can occur is approaching and whether the stock market has altogether discounted it is the only question.

On The Street

Gatineau common is strong, reflecting the benefits....High quarters express the viewpoint that the recent reduction in allowables in Turner Valley by Royalite will be but temporary....The heads of an important Investment Trust with headquarters in New York are preparing to make a survey of the leading Canadian airplane companies....Canadian Celanese, this influential corporation was one of the first to show strength opening in the newsprint industry a few years back....Two parties of leading financiers are now inspecting certain mining areas of Quebec and Ontario....Representatives of the Bank of Canada are reminded that they will receive $5M. a share from the Government for their stock....High pressure salesmen are at work already on holders of this issue....Abitibi needs its production running about 80% of capacity before it can give a good account of itself in respect to profit.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 10—Trading was generally quiet on the Montreal produce markets, with a holiday tone prevailing. The Canadian Commodity Exchange was closed and business for the most part observed a half-holiday. Receipts for the day were announced at 981 cases of eggs, 1,500 butter and 6483 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Prices showed little change pending the issuance of formal trading after the holiday, but a firm undertone was apparent on butter, cheese and eggs. The overseas demand for cheese this week has been encouragingly good, dealers said.

The butter market was generally 25½c to 25¾c per lb. for No. 1 in large lots on the open market.

On the egg market graded shipments in used fillers cases were generally 26c for A-large, 23½c for A-medium or B, and 21½c for C.

The poultry market was quoted to the retail trade by wholesale jobbing houses as follows on A-grade dressed stock. B-grade being 1c to 2c lower: Turkeys, 37-38c; undrawn, 32c; mutilfed chickens, 29-33c; selected chickens, 26-30c; selected fowl, 19-22c.

Linotype Machine Operated by Setter 600 Miles Away

New York, June 10 (AP)—A man sitting in New York operated a linotype machine in Charlotte, N.C., last night.

All he did was punch the keys of a typewriter and feed his copy into a metal transmitting device. The machine, type set in column-width, in the office of the Charlotte Observer, 611 miles away.

The device, called aerisgraph, is the invention of Buford L. Green, veteran of 26 years' service in the Observer composing room. He perfected the aerisgraph after twelve years of work with the assistance of O. White, mechanical supervisor of the Observer; W. T. White, and the financial backing of Curtis B. Johnson, the publisher.

The typewriter used in New York was a standard machine which, each time it struck a letter, also sounded a "code" figure of one to six dots. Each line of copy contained from seven words, the number that appears in a line of type one column wide.

The pages of this copy were fed into a machine in which a pattern of electric cell picked out the coded dots—the letters—and sent corresponding impulses over the wire to Charlotte.

There, in The Observer composing room, a standard Associated Press printer, equipped with special type bars, reconverted the impulses into letters, and their accompanying code dots. This sheet, identical with the original in the New York office, went into the aerisgraph unit attached to a linotype, and another photoelectric cell transformed the dots into impulses that operated the typecasting machine.

Newspapers Chief Medium Used by Insurance Companies In Service Campaign in Canada

Newspapers will continue to be the chief medium used by the combined Life insurance companies of Canada in their "Life Insurance Service" Campaign.

Plans for the series of the next year were laid at the meeting that met in London, Ontario, of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association. Other media have been considered but the major correspondence will be placed in newspapers to bring the message of the institution of life insurance to the people of Canada.

The "Life Insurance Service" Campaign is unique in its character as representing one entire branch of industry. It is also outstanding in the fact that it has been running consistently for eighteen years. The messages have dealt with the various services that life insurance is providing to policyholders, with the social and economic influence of life insurance as an institution, and with some scientific interpretations of the manner in which insurance functions. The whole object of the campaign is to bring people over the Dominion informed of the manner in which their premium dollars are handled to bring them widespread benefits, and the trustee relationship the insurance companies hold to their policyholders.

Curly Christian, War Hero, Attends Albert Convocation

Sees His Young Son Douglas, Honored With Highest Award in Junior School For Contribution to Residential and College Life.

One would not think to look at the well-dressed man as he sat quietly in the academic garb of the cloistered halls of Albert College watching with pride and unfeigned interest as a white-gowned coed followed by the blue blazers and flannel trousers of male students walked solemnly to their places in the school chapel prior to the graduation exercises yesterday, that he was one of the outstanding figures of the Canadian Army during the World War.

For this quiet, unassuming man, a native of Virginia, and scion of a proud family of that state, is one of not the least of the local population case that survived the holocaust of war.

Joins Grenadiers

In 1915, Mr. Curly Christian, answered the call to the colors joining the 70th Canadian Grenadiers in Toronto. In the famous battle of Vimy Ridge, where Canadian troops wrote a fighting page in the book of British history, Mr. Christian was in the forefront of the attack with his regiment. Screaming shrapnel, hurtling bombs and the fading and terrific toll of the Canadians, found a billet in the body of Mr. Christian, "muddied but unbowed" he shells adding to the carnage, buried beneath a pile of dirt, bits and sandbags. A few months later both arms and legs were amputated in a successful effort to save his life.

Returning to Canada Mr. Christian again took up residence in Toronto where at present he is residing at 1421 Lansdowne Avenue. He is a staunch member of the United Church, one of the oldest Methodist churches in Canada.

His Son Student at Albert

With his son Douglas, Sgt. Ar. A. Baker and their respective wives, Mr. Christian yesterday attended the commencement exercises at Albert College where his only son Douglas, an outstanding student, was awarded the coveted Pinlayson prize for leadership and contribution to residential and college life in the junior school.

Mr. Christian is a member of the famous "Fragments from France", is the Canadian Amputees' Association is known among war-veteran circles. He has been presented on numerous occasions at Buckingham Palace, and during his visit to England with the Canadian War Veteran delegation that attended the unveiling of the Vimy War Memorial two years ago, was given a special chair and attendant during his tenure in London by King Edward the VII., now the Duke of Windsor.

Cleverly constructed artificial legs enable Mr. Christian to walk without the aid of cane or crutch. He has a cheery disposition and is indefatigably proud of the achievements of his son as a student at Albert College.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, June 10—Trading was generally quiet on the Montreal produce markets, with a holiday tone prevailing. The Canadian Commodity Exchange was closed and business for the most part observed a half-holiday. Receipts for the day were announced at 981 cases of eggs, 1,500 butter and 6483 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

Prices showed little change pending the issuance of formal trading after the holiday, but a firm undertone was apparent on butter, cheese and eggs. The overseas demand for cheese this week has been encouragingly good, dealers said.

The butter market was generally 25½c to 25¾c per lb. for No. 1 in large lots on the open market.

On the egg market graded shipments in used fillers cases were generally 26c for A-large, 23½c for A-medium or B, and 21½c for C.

The poultry market was quoted to the retail trade by wholesale jobbing houses as follows on A-grade dressed stock. B-grade being 1c to 2c lower: Turkeys, 37-38c; undrawn, 32c; mutilfed chickens, 29-33c; selected chickens, 26-30c; selected fowl, 19-22c.

HALF MILE RECORD LOWERED 11 SECS. AT B. C. I. MEET

Bill Pigden in Intermediate Class Runs Distance in 2.15.5 Mins.

School athletic records on track and field fell before the efforts of the contestants assembled at the opening of the annual field day of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School at the Exhibition Park this morning. Ideal weather and keen competition marked the morning events, with two new school records being established in the boys' events, while every record established last year was bettered by the competing girls in all groups during the morning meet. The meet will continue this afternoon.

Mr. Mills clipped two seconds off the junior 220 yard dash record when he broke the tape at 25 1-5 sec., while in the Intermediate class Bill Pigden established a new school record for the half-mile run, breaking the tape after 2 mm. 15 1-5 secs. to lower the school record of 2 mm. 21 1-5 secs.

Dorothy Hudson won every event in the senior girls' program this morning. The meet is under the supervision of Miss Allison and Mr. G. Laughlin, respective athletic directors at the B.C.I. and V. S. Frank Cunningham, O.S.D., acted as official starter, while Fred Hicken, Y.M.C.A., assisted as a judge.

The result of the morning events were:

PROPOSED HOUSING ACT CONSIDERED

Principle Involved is Economically Unsound, Says Mayor Bone

Members of the Ontario Property Owners' Association at a special meeting held in Toronto yesterday, at which this city was represented by Mayor Jamieson Bone, first vice-president of the provincial association, placed on record as protesting any move on the part of the governments to consolidate plans to augurate tax-assistance legislation in new construction.

A resolution which will officially record this protest, and which will be forwarded to the provincial government, moved by Mayor Alex. McLean, Oshawa, and seconded by Mayor Bone was passed at the meeting.

The meeting went on record also as not favoring the proposed 75% loan by the Dominion Government on building, pointing out that such loan was bestowed with too many restrictive clauses and was unsound in principle. It was stated that its unsoundness in principle was readily shown through the fact that the government itself could not secure this money at a rate cheaper than three per cent.

"In spite of the many representations made by the Ontario Property Owners' Association, other associations of the Province, and the municipalities themselves to the governments, they can not yet appreciate that if the present burden of taxes was removed new construction in Canada would start almost overnight without bonusing by the government," Mayor Bone stated the meeting announced. He said there was ample money ready for construction if the taxes were cut.

Referring to the protest on the question of tax-freeing of properties for a stated period it was declared that this would work hardship on those with older properties of the cities and towns who would be forced to bear the expenses of others, and would in no wise promote toward new construction.

Dealers are Death on slow sellers

YOU can't blame them, Mr. Manufacturer. They are in business to sell your goods not to store them. But give YOUR product the support of newspaper advertising and watch the SELLING support dealers will give it then! Newspaper advertising makes fast sellers out of "stickers." It makes money for both manufacturer and dealer and SAYS it for the consumer!

Will Celebrate 50th Anniversary Of Wedding Date

Surrounded by a small coterie of their immediate friends and relatives Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hadden, prominent Picton residents, will on Monday celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Well known in this district for the past fifty years Mr. and Mrs. Hadden are at present enjoying good health. For a half century Mr. Hadden was active in the C. B. Hadden hardware store, founded by his father, Mr. Hadden in 1854.

Mrs. Hadden was formerly Lottie Thrasher, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thrasher of this city. Since her marriage she has been active in the affairs of her husband she enjoys the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends. She has two brothers, James Thrasher, Frankford and Joseph Thrasher, Belleville, while a sister, Mrs. H. J. Clarke also resides here.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadden's son, Mr. (Dr.) T. S. Philp, Picton. One child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hadden, a son Richard who manages the hardware store, while a granddaughter, Kathryn, is an accomplished pianist of radio fame.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inadequate circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

What is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories give only temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Now piles can be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is a new internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in life found that piles were caused by tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. Its internal medicine increases the pressure of blood in the veins, tones the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money. Just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. J. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers by 1935—a law of business. This loss must be replaced or his business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the larger chain store, must win again and increase his turnover by good merchandising linked with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Cloudbursts! These rank high as an exhibition of tremendous forces of nature. Imagine a mass of water of sufficient volume and velocity to strip a mountain side of its trees and carry down rocks as big as small hodses with mud and debris enough to form a dam. This was the result of cloudbursts in the mountains of California, which was described as coming in several waves. The first wave, curiously enough, was accompanied by clouds of dust caused by the oncoming flood breaking off pomas of dusty earth and rock as it great roar; it brought down a load of trees. The second wave bore rocks one of which measured 8 by 12 by 16 feet; and there were letters between. The remaining waves carried mud.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 11 (CP)—Synopsis: Pressure is high over the Western Provinces, Northern States and the Atlantic Coast, while a trough of low extends from Manitoba southward over the lake region to the Southwest States and pressure is also relatively low over the Upper Mackenzie Valley. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in many parts of Ontario and Quebec while in the Maritime and Prairie Provinces the weather has been fair. It has been comparatively cool in Western Canada but moderately warm the Great Lakes eastward.

Lake Superior: Fresh west to northwest winds; mostly cloudy and cool with showers in southern portion. Sunday, moderate to fresh northwest and west winds; fair.

Manitoba: Moderate west to northwest winds; fair today and most of Sunday and becoming a little warmer.

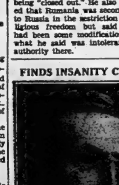
Religious Restrictions in Rumania Second Only to Russia, Baptists Told



Brantford, Ont., June 11—(CP)—Rev. H. Rushbrooke of London, Eng., told Baptists from Ontario and Quebec at the closing session last night of their annual convention here that evangelizing work could be carried on only with the utmost of prudence in Germany and Italy.

Dr. Rushbrooke, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance said that small churches were being "closed out." He also claimed that Rumania was second only to Russia in the restriction of religious freedom but said there had been some modification of what he said was intolerance of authority there.

Ontario has a liquor problem which is a "growing menace," said Rev. M. C. McLean of St. Catharines, Ont. President of the Ontario Temperance Union, Dr. McLean called the problem of the province's "public enemy No. 1," and one on which millions of dollars was "wasted" annually.

Reports of the Social Service Board, presented by Secretary Alexander Stark of Toronto, was adopted and it was suggested that in the coming year the Board consider the question of indecent literature and of the marriage annulment question in Quebec.

Pipe-Smoking Crow With a Flair For Pickpocketing Has Champion

Montreal, June 11—(CP)—Jacko, a pipe-smoking, wisecracking crow for the high art of pickpocketing, may be a nuisance to some residents of Rosemount but to Thomas Jeffery, his owner, he's a much maligned and rather remarkable bird— as remarkable Jeffery will "fight to the highest courts in the land" to keep him.

The harassed owner has received no less than eight summonses, three of them in the last fortnight, ing as to the conduct of the pet he reared. Others were from a group of mischief-bent boys. The summonses charge Jeffery "did unlawfully have in your possession, or did keep, certain wild birds, viz., Corvidae, an animal, to wit, a crow, which unlawfully carried away divers articles were heard by the neighbors.

But Jeffery, nothing daunted, is fighting, but poppycock.

"He is a great favorite in the neighborhood and when he had a little party here the other night for some of the kids, Jacko appear, ed to enjoy it as much as any of the youngsters," he said.

Jeffery has hired a lawyer to defend his case in record's court and has been asked to circulate a petition that he may be allowed to keep the pet.

KAI-SHEK ORDERS CONSCRIPTION ALL ABLE-BODIED MEN

Order Means End to Existing Unfairness Where Certain Class Are Exempt

BASED ON POPULATION

Shanghai, June 11 (AP)—General Chiang Kai-shek today ordered an unprecedented conscription of men for the war regardless of family, wealth or influence.

Advices from Hankow said that eventually the conscription would be extended to women, according to a basis of population of the provinces.

The order, it was believed, was meant to end existing unfairness, especially evident in Shanghai where hundreds of young bloods of wealth are now living on business and are dancing at night.

A vanguard of Szechuan Province troops from far southwestern China arrived in Hankow. It was said to be the first of 100,000 new troops expected from Szechuan.

The generalissimo's order was announced while rearguards were fighting desperately to hold Changchow, the junction city 300 miles north of Hankow, the provincial capital of Kiangsu, reported ready being partially evacuated, and Japanese warplanes and warships were pounding Chinese positions in the Yangtze River as an advance on Nanking, 215 miles southeast of Hankow.

Rain impeded the Japanese attack on Chengchow, already in ruins as the result of bombardment and the application of the Chinese "scorched earth" policy, but there was no lessening no useful thing for Japanese occupation.

Japanese claimed to have cut the Peiping-Hankow railway south of the city, but Chinese said their flying attacks east of the city were halting the invasion.

In the land, air and naval battle up the Yangtze River, Chinese reported a Japanese destroyer at Kiukiang, a Japanese destroyer at Kewkiuh, and Japanese gunboat at Wuhu, many sailors were killed.

They also said a Japanese bomber was shot down when 27 Chinese planes attacked 10 Japanese planes over Taiung, Anhwei.

THIRTEEN KILLED AS TORNADO HITS TEXAS VILLAGE

Forty Injured in Storm And Two-Score Houses Toppled

SLOW MOVING STORM

Rescue Workers Fearful That More Bodies Are in Debris

Clyde, Tex., June 11—(AP)—A slowly-moving tornado killed 13 persons in this west Texas village of 700 last night, left several missing, injured at least 40 others and shattered two-score houses.

Many witnesses described the debris today, fearful that more bodies lay in the wreckage.

Clyde was isolated several hours when the tornado tore down communications lines, delaying calls for ambulances, doctors, nurses and volunteers from Abilene and other nearby towns.

Like a huge snake, the storm crept upon the town shortly after dusk. Many saw it coming and assembled safety inside storm cellars. Others gambled vainly that their houses would withstand the shock.

Freight Train Split

The wind split a freight train, rumbling box cars along the rails. At least one transient was killed. Some reports said three were hauled dead from the wreckage.

Survivors told terrifying tales. J. B. Battering, whose wife was killed, said:

"When we saw the storm coming we went back in the house. I wish we hadn't. All at once the wind hit. The house seemed to fall apart. A chimney fell all over me. I scratched my way out and began looking for my wife. She was under a piece of timber. Lord, but she was twisted and torn. I couldn't get her loose. I was holding her head when she died."

Moved Very Slowly

Ralph Short, newspaperman, saw the cloud while he was about eight miles from town. It moved very slowly, he said, and thinking he could outrun it he seemed an eternity before it hit. It was said that it looked like a vast column of brown earth, sitting in a big brown bowl.

In the mad dash for safety, 25 people crowded into one small cellar and 20 in another.

Four were killed when the wind struck their cars, the two machines were found hundreds of yards from the bodies.

The storm did not strike the business district.

In last past the cemetery, about 100 feet south of the school building, virtually wiping out the community. There was no trace of the storm. The tornado suddenly lifted and apparently blew itself out.

'Friend of Maria Chapdelaine' Will Honor Author of Story

Louis Hemon, at Chapleau, Ont.

Chapleau, Ont., June 11—(CP)—Friends of Maria Chapdelaine will pay tribute tomorrow to the memory of Louis Hemon, who died in unknown hero before his epic portrayal of the peasant life of French Canada raised to immortality the cheery, laborious "habitant" of Quebec.

Recognition of the place held in Canadian literature by the stirring novel "Maria Chapdelaine" comes 26 years after Dr. Hemon's death and accidentally while in search of further literary material.

Sister And Brother Present

Prominent Canadians will gather at this northern Ontario railway town to unveil a monument over Hemon's cemetery. Attending the ceremony will be Hemon's sister, Mlle. Marie, who came from France with the author's daughter, 25 year old Lydia.

Maria Chapdelaine's increasing fame will be observed in the formal dedication of the monument, a granite memorial bearing a bronze plaque with the inscription: "Louis Hemon, 1880-1913. In the adjoining cemetery lie the mortal remains of the immortal writer of Maria Chapdelaine, the story of rural home life in French Canada." Hemon's widow died of cancer of the heart, fell devotion. La Societe Des Amis De Maria Chapdelaine, A.D. 1938."

Hemon's Life

Little was known of Hemon at the time of his death in July 1913. He had written articles and books in Britain and Canada and left but one, the manuscript of "Maria Chapdelaine," which he had completed in a few months. Kindly people of Chapleau did not know the dead man, but, when it

A LIVELY SCENE

Allegations Hurled by Both Speakers on Many Subjects

Ottawa, June 11—(CP)—If R. B. Bennett leaves politics at the end of this month he will leave fighting. The House of Commons will have a fresh memory of one of the sharpest parliamentary battles in years —a duel of words between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Mr. Bennett.

Just three weeks from the opening of the convention which will select a new leader for the Conservative party, Mr. Bennett levelled charges of political corruption at the Liberal administration and drew himself's allegations in turn from Mr. Mackenzie King.

All day the House yesterday abusive epithets were hurled back and forth, and more than once only a word had to be withdrawn at the direction of the chairman. It was one of the liveliest scenes since the 1935 general election, and reminiscent of earlier clashes on the Beauharnois canal scandal.

He Charged Liberal Members

The conservative leader made no personal charges against members of the government, but in the public lobby King accused him of conspiring with other members of the cabinet in 1935 to bribe three Manitoba constituencies with money for road building.

Mr. Bennett's ammunition against the government consisted of allegations relating to contracts and jobs in Kingston, the constituency of Labor Minister Rogers.

In return the Liberal leader at times fairly smothered Ralph Webb, former Mayor of Winnipeg, and Manitoba Conservative organizer to Mr. Bennett, with the way Prime Minister in 1935.

The letter urged federal participation with the Manitoba government in the contraction as a relief measure of the Piney-Norden highway and Lac Seul-Dryden highways. Col. Webb informed the Prime Minister this would be good politics and would ensure the election of Conservative candidates in three ridings, Provencher and St. Boniface.

King Reads

Mr. King said Mr. Bennett's charges of patronage at Kingston related to the enlargement of penitentiary compared to the state of affairs disclosed by the Webb letter. The Kingston penitentiary affair was nothing compared to it. The discussion would follow Mr. Bennett to the end of his days.

ALCANTE NOW CITY OF RUIN

Madrid, June 11 (AP)—Alicante now is a city of ruins, emergency hospitals and funeral cortages today at the end of two weeks of insurgent bombardment of government ports.

Alicante was leveled by a Roman Cath, lic, he was buried in the Catholic cemetery here.

His book soon began to attract attention that eventually led to its being published in several French editions, and translated into a dozen different languages.

The St. Jean Baptiste Society erected a monument over his grave. Readers of his story expressed their sympathy for formation of the Society of the Friends, of Maria Chapdelaine.

No Barrier Against Jews at Varsity, Einstein's Collaborator Joins Staff

Toronto, June 11—(CP)— No discrimination will be shown against Jews at the University of Toronto, Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University, told the Alumni Association's annual commencement dinner last night.

Dr. Cody spoke in connection with his announcement that Dr. Leopold Infeld, collaborator with Albert Einstein in relativity research, had been appointed to the university staff. Dr. Infeld, like Einstein, has felt the Nazi persecution in Europe.

"It will be with the depths of my heart to be a British subject," he declared. "I am little Canadian for a glory as much to be ing a British subject as in being a Canadian."

Commenting on the fact a University of Toronto team had won first place in a continental wide mathematical competition, Dr. Cody pointed particularly to the achievement of Irving Gaplansky, who gained a place among the first five in individual competition.

"He's a genius—keep your eye on him," Dr. Cody said. "In a day when the race to which he belongs is being harassed and massacred in countries that call themselves Christian, I'm glad there is in the British Empire and under the British flag freedom for all and a fair opportunity for all who come."

DANGER SIGNS IN MID-EUROPE ADD TO ANXIETY

Experts Believed to Have Detailed Measures to Protect Ships

DETAILS ARE SECRET

London, June 11—(AP)—New central European danger signs today brought new anxieties to British officials continuing their search for ways of ensuring respect for the British merchant marine in Spanish waters.

Germany's sudden virulent Anti-Czechoslovakia press campaign on the eve of Sunday's municipal elections perturbed officials as they prepared for the arrival of shepherd-British freighters for Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Halifax, who are due back in London from Berchtesgaden after the Whitsuntide holidays.

Measures Are Drafted

Experts are believed already to have drafted detailed measures to protect freighters suspected by Britain, noncontraband trade with Spanish loyalists.

The measures, which will be submitted to the cabinet as a whole Monday, are kept secret but it was believed they contained provisions for safeguarding British owned vessels under charter to the French government. In this category were most of the ships recently attacked.

Four British ships have been attacked and 78 British seamen killed in the Spanish civil war. Spanish civil war started nearly two years ago.

In Touch With Foreign Office

Both the Prime Minister and Lord Halifax were in touch with the foreign office over the week end.

Political quarters eagerly awaited the speech Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary is scheduled to make in the Leamington constituents, tonight. It is thought he may comment on foreign affairs.

CORONER'S JURY TO RENDER FORMAL VERDICT

Miami, Fla., June 11 (AP) — A coroner's jury was called into session here today to render a formal verdict in the death of James Bailey Cash, 27, whose kidnap-slaying was fully solved yesterday with the announcement by federal agents of a confession from Alvin Karpis to Pierce McCall.

Mrs. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Karpis confessed he alone was responsible for abduction of the Princeton, Fla., child. Previously Harold Hall told of writing three ransom notes an doollecting $10,000 from the boy's father.

Terrors of Spanish War Quench Insatiable Thirst for Adventure

Windsor, Ont., June 11—(CP)—Hemingway, Dos Passos and Orwell once thought was fits insatiable thirst for travel and adventure was quenched—for the time being at least. The terrors of the Spanish civil war behind him, the 17 year old Maria, said he had enough excitement and hopes to settle down and get a job.

Maita, fought with the Spanish government forces for several months, deserting in Barcelona after historic Teruel was recaptured by the insurgents. He slowed away on a British ship in Barcelona harbor and eventually landed at Liver, pool. He said he later returned to Spain but found remnants of the fighting loyalist forces.

He went to France where he was arrested but was released on condition to leave the country within 15 days. Homer did just that. He slowed away aboard a Quebec-bound liner, he related on his return to his home here, gave himself up to the ship's officers as an alien who had worked his passage across the Atlantic. From Quebec he "rode the rods" to Windsor. Now he hopes to go to Montreal and get a job.

Of Syrian and French ancestry, Maita was placed in a French brigade when he first landed in Spain but wound up in the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion, the Canadian unit of the international brigade. He said he got his fill of war at Teruel where "there was no need to dig graves." There were "plenty of them already dug in front of our trenches," he said. "We just dumped the bodies in and covered them up."

Young Doe Becomes Entangled In Lines Of Fishermen

Dartmouth, N.S., June 11—(CP)—Here's the latest fish story from the backwoods of Halifax county, and four Dartmouth anglers were back in town today with a picture to support it.

The four were fishing in Ship Harbor Lake, 60 miles from here, when R. H. Harrison and W. G. Austen got a girlie. Looking around they saw a young doe struggling in the water, entangled in both their lines. The fish hooks were removed, the doe was given a few tears took a picture of it before they turned it loose in the woods.

LOVE IN FULL FLOWER

Newark N.J. June 11 (AP)— Frank Hague's "finish fight" against groups he has labelled Communistic takes the top spot at the moment in his official life yet the Jersey City Mayor can't resist a chance to talk about his first love, politics.

Even in Federal Court where he is a defendant in an injunction suit brought by the committee for industrial organization, American civil liberties union and others, Hague had an opportunity yesterday to give some open secrets of his political set-up.

Epicentre of Shock Believed to be 200 Miles Distant

FELT IN BELGIUM

Thousands Who Were In-doors, Felt The Most Shock

London, June 11 (CP)—Great Britain, Belgium, Northern France and the Netherlands were jarred at noon today by earthquakes that swayed buildings, toppled chimneys and made millions dimy for a few seconds.

Damage apparently was minor and no serious casualties were reported.

In Belgium, where the shocks were described as the severest in the nation's history, a few persons were injured when several tiled buildings collapsed in the first tremor.

Frightened Belgians streamed from houses and factories in Brussels, where the first series came lasting from 10 to 30 seconds. Roof tiles crashed to the streets and many windows sjuntered.

A second milder tremor came two hours later.

London observers said the quake's epicentre was in the North Sea some 25 miles northeast of London, West Coblenzer.

It was felt particularly in the Southern counties of the Netherlands. A wall collapsed in the Hague and a bookcase overturned at the United States legation.

London from "the City" financial subject swayed gently. Tea splashed from lunchtime teacups. Telephones jumped from their tables.

Employees of one Regent Street firm said "everybody got dizzy." "I was sitting at my desk," said an official of the British Broadcasting Company, "and suddenly I felt my legs shaking. I thought I was ill. I looked down, and my legs were 'jittery.'"

Did You Hear Seismo?

"We were sitting in the office" said a typist who works in Lincoln's Fields. "When all the trail began to shake. It was about 30 seconds before the walls were completely sit again. We did not hear any sound of an explosion which could have explained it."

In France shock was limited to Northern areas.

Walls cracked in Lille and instruments of the city observatorsgeological laboratory were broken.

City and District News

NEW TEST PLOTS ARE CLOSELY WATCHED

Experimental farm plots planted in this section under the instruction of the Dominion Department of Agriculture as test plots for the growing of new, and in some cases, unnamed varieties of grain which as yet are not identified only by numbers, have been attracting attention of district agriculturists. One plot on the farm of Earl Dorland, Carrying Place, where rows of wheat, barley and oats are being grown has been visited by many who show considerable interest in the growth of new rust-resistant varieties.

SLOW TRAFFIC SIGNS ON NORTH ROADS

Motorists using northern roads of the county over the week-end are advised that in some sections road repair work is being carried out and slow speeds are necessary for comfort and safety. On the Belleville-Marmora road oiling operations were being carried on yesterday, and for some distance south of the village of Marmora, the surface has been coated full width, making slow travel compulsory until the gravel surface is added. No. 7 highway from Marmora to Peterborough is rough in some sections.

WASHINGTON BIRD CAUGHT AT BRIDGE

Banded in Washington last December by the United States Biological Survey, a starling was captured this week by C. Hamilton, a Church near Brighton in his stable. Notifying the Department in Washington of the metal tag carried by the bird, Mr. Chambers has received the explanation. It was only one of many which had been marked with numbered tags to find the migratory habits of the starling.

ANTIQUE AUTO WILL PASS THROUGH CITY

The oldest car ever to attempt a cross-continent trip is expected to pass through this city some time over the week-end, or early next week. The machine is an 1903 Belleville one-cylinder automobile, an "open job" with two seats and is being driven across Canada by Roger Perrier and Richard Gelinas of Montreal. The machine and occupants left Montreal last Monday and arrived in Kingston yesterday. It is expected to be in Toronto early next week. The average speed of the machine is 18 miles per hour and the heavy car gets up grades with little difficulty, it is reported by the drivers.

CHAMBERS ADVISED OF BRIDGE OPENING

Chamber of Commerce of this city has been advised that work on the bridge authorities that the Provincial Inland Waterways Bridge will be ready for traffic on August 18, the date set for the official opening. The Amelia Street span between Collin's Landing and Wellesley Island will be ready for traffic at a slightly earlier date.

FEWER BOOK PASSAGE FOR OVERSEAS TOURS

Unsettled conditions in Europe this season are believed responsible for the decrease of bookings by intended tourists from this city and district for overseas points according to reports of local steamship agencies. It was estimated by one office this week that a drop of about 25 per cent in last year's travel figures had been experienced locally.

TENT CATERPILLARS KILLED BY FUNGUS

At the peak of their cycle, and formerly threatening by sheer weight of numbers to strip and kill all vegetation in orchards, and along country roads, the tent caterpillars of this and other sections of the district, have suddenly been attacked by a noticeable fungus growth, it has been discovered by local and provincial officials.

The parasitical growth which has appeared on the breathing tubes of the insects along the sides of their bodies, is killing them off by the hundreds, it is reported. Such parasitical growth always appears when the caterpillar reaches the peak of its cycle, and is believed Nature's own way of keeping the voracious pests under control.

STRAWBERRIES MAKE 1938 DEBUT ON CITY MARKET
Sell at 30 Cents Box, But Decline to 25c in Later Hours

PRICES FIRM

New strawberries, vintage '38, standing out in market baskets against the green of spring vegetables made their debut on the city market Monday when an attractive offering of new and old produce greeted a large number of interested shoppers.

Unusually large and colored to be of much better quality than the usual early season crop, the berries sold in a lively barter marked during early hours at 30 cents per box. Large quantities arriving during midday market hours caused a reposition for a 5-cent decline to 25 cents, which held firm.

The berries were fairly plentiful, with indications pointing to a heavy crop of them, another condition contributing, a number of vendors vanished.

New gooseberries, that sold at 20 cents per box when extracted a large number of shoppers.

Asparagus, slowly increasing in quantity, and little change in the steady prices that have characterized it since the season opened, small bunches selling at 10 cents with pound bats quoted at 25, 30 and 35 cents. Spring vegetables, at 5 cents per bunch, some choice radishes at three bunches for 10 cents, rhubarb at almost any price, and head lettuce rounded out a veritable display of spring foodstuffs.

New eggboards.

New spinach, in quantities ranging from peck to bushel baskets, was plentiful and found a ready sale at 25 cents per peck and 50 cents per bushel. Old potatoes were also plentiful here, with the Irish Cobbler quoted at 20 cents per peck although in many cases 30 cents per bag were available at 65 and 70 cents.

Potted plants and cut flowers headed by a colorful display of Iris that sold at 30 cents per dozen, added an additional touch of interest to a market that fairly glowed with the greens of fresh vegetables.

Brothers headed an attractive chicken display in the inside section with chicken and birds selling at from 19 cents to $1.00 per pair. Year old chickens were offered at $2.50 per pair with fowl selling anywhere from 80 cents to as high as $3.00.

Eggs were offered from all week long with "A" selects selling at 25 cents, "B" selects at 22 cents and pullets at 20 cents. Extra large eggs were quoted at 24 cents per dozen. Farmers' butter sold from 25 cents per pound, while cottage cheese was

Graduation Day at O. S. D. Happy Occasion for Pupils; Efficiency Prizes Awarded

Honored Guest is J. T. Shilton of Ontario Deaf Association

ATHLETIC PRIZES

Memorial Tablet to Late Dr. Coughlin is Unveiled

Yesterday afternoon was a memorable occasion in school life at the Ontario School for the Deaf when diplomas, awards, pins and medals were presented for academic proficiency and athletic prowess at the annual Closing Exercises of the institution. The staff and students were honored in having as special guest yesterday, Mr. J. T. Shilton, B.A., Toronto, President of the Ontario Association for the Deaf, who made the presentation of proficiency prizes on behalf of the Association to Kathleen Darling and John McAnulty adjudged the outstanding students of the 1938 term.

The program took place in the Assembly Room of the school in the presence of the pupils, staff and a number of interested friends. The stage was tastefully decorated with flowers from the gardens of the school. The prizes were attractively wrapped in the school colors of blue and gold, the same colored ribbons tying the diplomas.

Superintendent Chairman

Mr. W. J. Morrison, Superintendent of the School, was chairman and was assisted by Mr. George F. Stewart, a former teacher, former editor of The Canadian, and a lifelong friend of the deaf. In addressing the pupils Mr. Morrison pointed out that the school had been built in 1870 and many changes had taken place in the sixty-eight years. The pupils today enjoyed many advantages not possible in early years. Formerly the school course was only seven years this had now been extended until pupils could continue for fourteen years coming to the O.S.D. as tiny tots and having well trained in vocational work, that would help them take their place in life. Students had great reason to be thankful to their supervisors for their delightful care during the year, to Mr. Chesher and his staff to Mrs. MacClaggage the matron and her assistants, to Mr. Bolton who with his helpers operated the school farm, to Mr. McCabe the bursar, and Miss Bawden the secretary, to Mr. Taylor. Special appreciation was due Mrs. Gilbert, in charge of the junior residence, to Miss Connell in charge of the senior residence and Miss Ford who is in charge of the boys' residence, and also to Dr. Thomson, Miss Mills and the school nurse for their care. The Superintendent of Education, regarding everything possible to give the children the best education, and the staff of teachers the children had reason to be thankful. Mr. Morrison also thanked the staff and the local press for its support throughout the year in reports of school activities.

Unveil Memorial

First on the program yesterday was the unveiling of the Coughlin Memorial Tablet erected by the Ontario Association for the Deaf which was draped with red, white and blue. On this tablet is inscribed the last year the name of the boy and girl who by their academic work, their proficiency in games and by their conduct in the residence had shown themselves to be ideal students who would represent the best in the deaf life of the province. These were Kathleen Darling and John McAnulty and the honor of unveiling the tablet was given to Catherine Ford whose long association in the school made her singularly understanding of the problems of the boys and girls.

Special proficiency prizes were also presented to these students, the presentation being made by Mr. J. T. Shilton, B.A., Toronto, president of the Ontario School for the Deaf. In introducing Mr. Shilton, Mr. Morrison pointed out that he was a graduate of the School for the Deaf. After completing his course there he had attended the University of Toronto, receiving his degree of Bachelor of Arts from Victoria College of which Mr. Morrison is also a graduate, Mr. Shilton is one of the leading men of the deaf in the province, has conducted a successful printing business for a number of years, and has been untiring in helping the deaf of the province. Mr. Morrison spoke of a recent conference which he and Mr. Shilton had attended in Toronto, including Mr. Shilton, Mr. E. B. Lally, Mr. Morrison and others, had had with the late Hon. Alfred MacBride, Minister of Labour, regarding the position of the deaf in industry. The result was very hopeful and the death of Mr. MacBride was keenly regretted. Mr. Morrison welcomed Mr. Shilton and Mrs. Shilton to the school.

Address as Given

Mr. Shilton gave a very interesting address using the sign language, his speech being read at the same time by Mr. Stewart. It was as follows—

"Today you are about to witness the presentation of the Princess Alumnae and Alumnae Prizes donated by the Ontario Association of the Deaf for the purpose of encouraging leadership among the younger deaf people. Many years ago there were plenty of leaders among the deaf, but of late we have been seeing the danger of dearth in this line. The deaf need leaders of high calibre to lead them in the guided aright in the battle of life. Should the prizes succeed in encouraging the spirit of aspiration for higher ideals in the young people, the Association will certainly feel its attempt in this respect to be amply justified.

"Always latent in youth, there are certain worthy traits awaiting utilization of opportunity to serve the best interests of humanity. It seeks a good standard of living and manifest itself. In most schools of the day, some of the coveted prizes are donated to the successful aspirants so that the country at large may be benefited by statesmanship, professions, business, religion, organization and industry. We hope that the Ontario School for the Deaf should have this chance of showing interest in encouraging the much desired talent in the deaf children coming here for schooling. Good character and high intellectual qualities can only be developed in the right kind of environment. We are all sure you are enjoying this privilege here. It is our sincere hope that you are able to realize it and strive to show yourselves worthy of it at all times since carelessness and indifference towards higher ideals are fatal to whatever merit may be present in deaf youth. Faithful adherence to these ideals will surely bring much desirable good not only to the holders of the prizes but also to all with whom they may contact in the days to come.

"Now I, as President of the Ontario Association of the Deaf, feel honored and glad to call upon the head boy and girl chosen by the authorities of the school, Kathleen Darling and Jack McAnulty, whose names are to be inscribed on the Coughlin Memorial Tablet, to receive their 1938 Princess Alumnae and Alumnae Prizes. You both have received this high honour through your efforts towards the attainment of a worthy ideal—all round proficiency.

"You are surely a credit to your school in your present success. It is to be hoped that earnestly hoped that you may continue to be of help to your fellow-people after you leave school and to lead them in the right way to a better and happier object in life. As said before, we need leaders. May these prizes serve as symbols of the knowledge you have acquired through your years in this school, and may it ever increase in the service you will in the future render to humanity!"

Pupils Reply

Both students made gracious replies to the words of congratulation, speaking, and then translating their addresses into the sign language.

"I feel greatly honoured in having been selected to receive the Special Proficiency Prize for the year 1937-38," said Miss Darling. "I wish to express my gratitude to the Ontario Association of the Deaf for their interest in our school and my personal thanks to them for the very generous prize which has been awarded me. I thank Mr. Shilton for presenting the prize to me and I will also kindly convey to the Association my sincere appreciation.

"I also wish to thank Mr. Morrison, the Superintendent, the teachers and the instructors for their great patience and kindness in teaching me. I shall always have happy memories of the years I spent at the School for the Deaf and my great endeavour will be to prove myself worthy of the honour I have received."

"It has been a very great and wonderful surprise," Mr. McAnulty said "to learn that I have been awarded the Special Proficiency Prize this year. I appreciate the honour of having it presented to me by Mr. Shilton and I take this opportunity of expressing to the Ontario Association of the Deaf through Mr. Shilton, the gratitude of the boys and girls of this school for the kindly interest always shown by them in all that pertains to the welfare and advancement of the Deaf.

"I have much pleasure in thanking Mr. Morrison, our Superintendent, the teachers and instructors for their patience and care in preparing me for my life's work. I trust I shall always be worthy of the trust and honour bestowed upon me."

Certificates Presented

In awarding the High School Entrance certificates, Mr. Morrison pointed out that this class was one of the largest in the history of the school. Some of the pupils were totally deaf, born so; handicapped others had lost their hearing after a few years, and one just recently. Pupils attending High School Entrance Certificates were: Kenneth Ansley, Dorothy Antonow, Thomas Blower, Leslie Fowler, Frank Mair, Ruth McKitrick, Bruce May, Marjorie Shilton, Kathleen Pratley, John Taylor.

Presentation of diplomas to graduating pupils and most advanced classes was as follows:

DUEL OF WORDS

was more like a circular letter. Copies had been sent to Hon. J. Earl Lawson, Hon. W. A. Gordon and Hon. R. J. Manion, all Ministers in Mr. Bennett's government.

Mr. Bennett's allegation, regarding Kingston were that a contract for the purchase of coal had not been given to the lowest tenderer because the man was a Conservative.

Preferences Given?

That preferences were given to Liberals in employment in the reconstruction of Port Henry; that supplies belonging to the Defence Department had been sold at sacrifice prices;

That two furniture dealers claimed they had paid A. R. Dansbury $199 to be placed on the patronage list at the sale of furniture to the government;

That 32 cans of white lead had been taken away from the Port Henry project.

Investigation had failed to disclose any basis for these charges, said Mr. Rogers, Mr. Bennett would have served the public better and avoided the debate by bringing such gossip and rumor to the attention of the Department so that it might be investigated at once.

Defence Minister Mackenzie echoed the debate and dared Mr. Bennett to air his charges before a committee of the House. Arthur Slaght (Lib., Temiskaming) said the Conservative leader seemed more interested in making political capital than in punishing wrongdoers.

Beauharnois Report Up

"In all the history of the Canadian parliament never has there been a disgraceful an exposure of corruption and bribery," said Mr. King, referring to Beauharnois.

Waving Beauharnois investigation report, Mr. Bennett suggested Mr. King read Abraham Lincoln.

"Beauharnois is not a shadow on this thing," said the Prime Minister. "My Right Honorable friend shouts Beauharnois and after he has talked about Beauharnois he sits as a cabinet minister and does something that is infinitely worse than anything ever done with Beauharnois that was done by the men who were not even members of the House."

Mr. Bennett: "Quite, and neither was Wrong."

Mr. King: "No but my Right Hon. orable friend was Prime Minister."

Mr. Bennett: "And so were you."

Dennis Knowledge

Mr. King: "But I had not any knowledge of it. That evils my friend speaks about."

Mr. Bennett: "The records show you had."

Mr. King: "No, I had not and my friend knows it. He himself was the engineer of this, whole business."

In making that statement Mr. Bennett said he attached no direct blame to Labor Minister Rogers. He did not question the Minister's good intentions, or allege any participation by the Minister in improprieties. He did believe, however, that a political machine at Kingston had been too strong for Mr. Rogers.

The debate was still raging merrily when the House adjourned last night and there was every indication of its being resumed next week.

Before the government's axe directs the House to the estimates on which the discussion will be based, it is expected to seek to advance the new housing bill through second reading.

Ivanhoe

Ivanhoe—The Ivanhoe Institute held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Dave Webb, Mrs. Tom Fleming. A large number was in attendance. The president opened the meeting by all singing the Institute Ode, with Mrs. Milton Shaw at the piano.

The motto "Our Neighbors" was given by Mrs. C. Sills. Song: "The More We Get Together" was sung. The business followed. A song "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was sung. The flower garden contest then gave a very helpful address and asked for co-operation in the work of the Institute. Mrs. Clifford Metz read a poem "Throwing Stones", Mrs. Morley Haggerty delighted with a vocal solo. Mrs. Jean Kilpatrick gave the Topic on "Comparing our Grandmother's Kitchen with the Modern Kitchen" which was very interesting. Miss Emerson in a very cute way sang "Jesus Loves Me" in Chinese. Collection was received. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The hostess assisted by others served a delightful lunch and all enjoyed a social time.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Metz were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Arbuckle, Roslin, on Sunday.

Mr. John Wood is spending a few days with his son, Mr. Percy Wood camping north of Bancroft.

Mrs. Clifford Metz and Larry have returned home from a week's visit with Miss Dorothy Joblin, Port Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ashley, West Huntingdon were "at home" on Wednesday to their friends and relatives on the occasion of celebrating their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary. A number from Ivanhoe called with them throughout the day and all had an enjoyable time.

Mrs. George Hollinger, Metra, is visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Will Shaw.

Rev. Mr. Lackey attended Conference which was held in Napanee.

THE INSPIRATION OF A COLLEGE

Albert College was paid a high tribute by Principal Dr. Kent of Queen's Theological College at the graduation exercises on Thursday, when he said that Albert College was a school in which relationship between the spirit and the intellect was as it should be. In an institution showing none of the signs of the prevalent divorce between knowledge and religion, the possibilities for the training of youth are tremendous. The aim is the four-fold development of life. Youth is a most important time in life's course and in this the responsibilities of an educational institution are heavy.

Those who attended the eighty-first convocation can realize that the aims of the college are being carried out as the founders of the institution would wish them to be. Albert College is more than a thoroughly modern school in its equipment, it stresses the fundamentals and the essentials of life.

In the visible signs of a school's progress, Albert is developing and the spirit which indicates the invisible elements points to high influences at work. While the past year's work was defined as "the best yet." Dr. Howard, the principal, looks forward to next year as one with still greater influence and achievement in every aspect of the institution's and the students' life.

HELPING IN BEACHES CANVASS

Thirty canvassers under the leadership of Mr. John McIntosh are engaged in a campaign to raise funds for the development of the Beaches project. Some are members of the Chamber of Commerce and the others members of the Beaches Association. So far they have met with fairly good response, which only needs to be continued to achieve the goal set out to reach.

It must be remembered that Belleville Horticultural Society has done good work this year in planting three hundred trees on the Beach and park grounds. Others may be able to emulate the work of these by contributions.

The canvassers welcome donations of any size for they want everyone to help even if it be with a mite, for everything will count in the purpose to which this is going to be put—to extend and improve the beach, to level the grounds and for other purposes essential to the foundation of the park.

DECLINES TO PROPHESY ABOUT ROAD

A piece of roadway, which has been much in the irritated thoughts of motorists, on Thursday found itself referred to in an unusual place — in the address to a graduating class at Albert College, when the Principal of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, wanted to show the difference of two viewpoints on life. These were the historical standpoint and the prophetic standpoint. He explained that the prophet had the more dangerous role as he could not prove by any means what would happen. The historical viewpoint was the easier. He himself took the historical standpoint on the question of Education and Religion, and then came the roadway's great moment.

"I do not know what is going to happen with the road between here and Marysville, but I do know that it is bad for I came over it an hour ago."

Others, like Dr. Kent, will decline the role of the prophet in connection with the road. Many complaints have been heard of the road's condition, but the best complaint has been made by Rev. Dr. Kent, who brought it out into a full college convocation.

NATIONAL GALLERY OF CANADA

The National Gallery of Canada has made a number of important accessions during the year 1936-7, with an El Greco, "Saint Francis in Meditation," and a Paolo Veronese "The Rest on the Flight into Egypt." These are works of masters of the great Renaissance period, the time of the flowering on the arts of painting and sculpture. Besides, Canadian artists' works are finding a place on the walls of the gallery, including the work of J. E. H. MacDonald, who is more and more being appreciated.

Important prints and drawings have been added to the collection dating from the sixteenth to the twentieth centuries, Canadians likewise being represented in this group.

The annual report of the National Gallery contains illustrations of Renaissance, later and modern works of art, the illustrations giving a fine representation of the originals.

The National Gallery is an important place in Canada, for it stresses the arts, in which Canada some day will no doubt stand in a very high place.

That the people of Canada generally do not consider the visionary doctrines such as have been taught in Alberta and which Premier Aberhart and his Alberta friends tried to teach their neighbors, the people of Saskatchewan is clear as a result of the recent elections in Saskatchewan. The people elected one of the older parties and gave no opportunity to the Social Credit group. But two seats were carried by the new arrivals in the political arena.

"A FABLE"
Plus a Moral

There was a young rooster, who loudly complained
"You can't find no worms any more,
I've looked all around in the soft mushy holes
Where they used to be found by the score.
It seems they're becoming uncommonly scarce
Ever since we have had this recession."
And he settled himself on the top of the fence
With a woebegone, hungry expression.
"I think that I'll sit here and rest for awhile
And manicure each of my claws
There's no use of scratching and running about
When there's nothing to put in your jaws."

An elderly hen then came strutting along
And heard the young rooster's complaint...
"Young man you're sure wrong" she gleefully clucked
"It's where you were looking they ain't.
Get out in the fields where the earth is baked hard
And lazy young chickens won't go
Then scratch like the dickens from dawn until dark.
And worth while results you can show
That's worms in them fields, but they won't come to you
So scram and get busy—don't shirk
And then you'll come home with your crop full of grubs
It only needs one thing—that's work."

GEORGE GRAHAM, the veteran New York actor, tells the story. In the heyday of prohibition he attended a party in a country home close to New York, and on arrival there he found great consternation. It seems that mine host's bootlegger had fallen down on the job and there was no liquor available for the festivities. Fortunately the guests included a prominent district attorney. The honorable officer of the court reassured his host and dashed away in an automobile. An hour later he arrived with several cases of assorted beverages amid the cheers of the assembled and thirsty multitude. "Here's the stuff all right," exclaimed the sturdy guardian of the law as he mopped his brow, "but I had to make twelve raids to get it!"

JAPAN IS REALIZING THE HIGH PRICE OF WAR, having just given the United States of America a cheque for $2,214,007.36, for bombing the U. S. Gunboat Panay, and inflicting other damage, at same time expressing deep regret for the incident. The sum of $268,337.35 of this amount covered death and personal injury indemnification affecting United States nationals.

DEMONSTRATING THE POWER OF ADVERTISING is the question most prospective Canadian home builders ask when they first approach an architect or contractor. Before they discuss plans or lay-out the big majority ask: "What about Toronto?" Ten years ago, according to builders, most people didn't even know what the word meant.

HOME CONSTRUCTION IN CANADA THIS YEAR, in order to catch up on the deficit through the depression years, should total $300,000,000 according to government statisticians. In normal times home construction averaged $100,000,000 a year. In 1932 it dropped as low as $32,000 and today Canada is about $200,000,000 behind. Which accounts for the housing shortage.

THE COME-BACK

A British bluejacket walking down one of New York's busy thoroughfares was stopped by a few American naval cadets. They gathered round him with the remark: "Are you a British bluejacket?"

"Yes, I am," said Jack.

"Well," said one of the Yankee sailors, "we could capture your great fleet and have it in New York harbor in twenty-four hours."

"That may be so," replied Jack; "but it would take a smarter man than Columbus to discover America the next day."

On Settling an Argument

In these days of wars and threats of wars and bitter talk among nations it is cheerful news to hear of a dispute between two countries that has been settled by the method that is plainly the best for both—in court.

A smaller air Trail, in Canada, year after year sent out fumes that blew over the border into the United States and caused damage to farms on the other side. But the President of the United States did not utter tirades against the Canadians and charge them with a sly attempt to cripple the United States' agricultural production. The Canadian Prime Minister did not counterblast to cry that the nationalist honour of the Dominion was being impugned.

Instead, the two countries agreed to set up a tribunal to investigate the whole matter. They appointed one of the two judicial heads from each country, and then an eminent legal authority from a neutral country as chairman. The tribunal delved carefully into the claims of the United States residents near the border, heard evidence, and scientific investigations were launched in the Trail district itself, laying down the damages that should be paid if the claim was unanimous.

We hate to think what would have happened if there had been a similar situation between two European countries. There would probably have been charges that one was trying to poison the population of the other by sending over poison gas. The frontier troops in the district would probably have launched a counter-attack long ago.

The Trail award is an example of what can be accomplished by international arbitration. We only wish more international disagreements could be settled in the same way.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

LAST SURVIVORS

One has to be careful about claiming last survivors. Memory recalls thousands of claimants by the "One of the Six Hundred" of Balaklava, Claiming to be the last survivor of the siege of Khartoum; Samuel George Jones, formerly of the 52nd. Berkshires, is still living in Wellington, New Zealand. Well over eighty years of age, Mr. Jones has made certain journeys overseas, and today he believes he is the sole survivor of the fifty-odd of General Gordon's men who escaped when the city fell two days before the arrival of the relief expedition.

Jones believes he is also the last survivor of the British force which took part in the tragic and bloody struggle of Malwand. Fought on July 27, 1880. He took part in the battle of Kandahar, fought under General Sir Frederick Roberts (later Lord Roberts) on September 1, 1880, at the termination of his famous march from Kabul. Medals were awarded by Mr. Jones, besides the Afghan medal and clasp, are those awarded by the British Government for the Egyptian campaign of 1882-3, and the Khedive star presented by the Khedive of Egypt for the same campaign. After his war service he returned to his home town, Reading, in Berkshire, where he was a member of the town council and came to New Zealand with his family in 1908.—Brandon Sun.

That Body of Yours

Gall Bladder Disturbances

We may be inclined to smile at the food faddist who tells us that everybody not only eats too much but eats the wrong kinds of food, but experience shows that with most men and women of today (taking little or no exercise) what we do eat too much and also (because we do not exercise) eat the wrong kinds of food. And the truth of this statement is made known by the number of cases called dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia means hard to digest, or painful digestion, and while many cases of painful digestion are due to ulcer or cancer, the majority of them are due to disturbances of the liver and gall bladder.

In order that patients suspected of gall bladder trouble, Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, at the International Postgraduate Medical Assembly some months ago made these suggestions to the physician present.

Inquire, carefully and in detail, whether there is a history of severe pyrosis (heartburn) (sensation of distance) causing severe attacks or pain. Has there ever been jaundice? Remember that dealing with gas after a heavy meal (typical of gall bladder trouble)? If so, when and how long did it last? Ask patient if pain is severe enough to cause vomiting, make him calculate his breath, or require morphine for relief.

Even after operation for removal of gall stones 15 percent of women will continue to have symptoms, in most cases because of a psychosis or fear of continued gall bladder trouble and sometimes because these patients are allergic or sensitive to certain foods.

I believe the advice Dr. Alvarez gives in the treatment of gall bladder disturbances should be made known to all gall bladder sufferers, for it is now estimated that two of every three individuals whether they know it or not, suffer to some extent, at times, with gall bladder trouble—indigestion, bloating, gas pressure, wakefulness.

The gall bladder disease, insist that the patient reduce the size of his meals, reduce the amount of fat in his meals, and have a light (the) dinner (the) meal of the day) at noon."

It will thus be seen that as far as the consumed form of indigestion is concerned—gall bladder disturbance—the food faddist is not far wrong when he says we eat too much and the wrong kinds of food.

MONEY DEFINED

Money is more than a medium of exchange. It is whatever the man who has it makes him—the cause of happiness for the less fortunate, or the basis of a perfect selfishness in himself. It is at once the source of generosity and greed, and good. So much has been said of it that there is little to add from any point of view. Perhaps the definition from Condemnation to enthusiastic praise, which will best fit its value depends upon the circumstances of the man who uses it. Ironed out, the old philosopher's definition is made to cover many present-day conditions. He has pointed the way for those of the world's wisest men who seem to regard great wealth as a trust given them that they may help the helpless.

Men will always be collectors to whom the chink and clink of coin will be sweeter than music. For the most part misers are born, not made by circumstances. Even a bank book with a big balance is better to look at than a treasure trove of jeweled lovelier far than anything Corot ever painted. And there are the willing sharers of riches, and the kindly givers of what can be spared without pain to poverty.

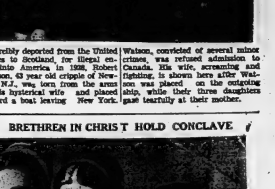
The world is not ungenerous, but the remedy that is applied to social ills does not always go to those who have the means to give may well be cynical, but it is not on the pocket, the signature on the cheque, that the most generous sacrifices are replaced by a refusal to act on impulse—a recommendation to seek help in the proper places. Good Samaritans are growing wary. Where a helping hand of some sort could be rendered of kindness, it is wise to be cautious.

The world may owe each man a living, but it is up to him to earn it and collect. Only when there is an alternative will the debtor be willing to accept a payment giving in return according to his ability.

Money is useful as well as munnie. Continued thanks for unearned help is apt to weaken the moral fibre.—Ottawa Journal.

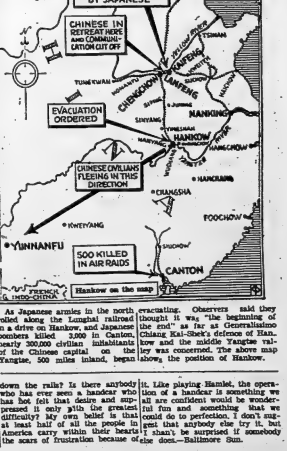
HAND-CAR ANTICS

I can't say that I know any of the "puncture artists" of R. and Q. Handcar by Five Highlandtown boys the other evening and of their amusing "race" with a police scout car—indeed, I don't approve of it. Let's get the moral part over with at once and call it a reprehensible act and a dangerous trick. But failure to approve of such doings does not necessarily condemn those who do.



And who doesn't understand the urge to ride a handcar? "A handcar and to ride it whizzing down the rails? Is there anybody who has ever seen a handcar who has not felt that desire and suppressed it only with the greatest difficulty? My own belief is that at least half of all the people in America carry within their hearts the scars of frustration because of

Wife Screams as Mate Deported to Scotland



Forcibly deported from the United States to Scotland, for illegal entry into America in 1928, Robert Watson, 43 year old cripple of Newark, N.J., was torn from the arms of his hysterical wife and placed aboard a boat leaving New York. Watson, convicted of several minor crimes, was refused admission to Canada. CHINESE EVACUATING HANKOW

As Japanese armies in the north rolled along the Lunghai railroad in a drive on Hankow, and Japanese bombers killed 2,000 in Canton, nearly 300,000 civilian inhabitants of the Chinese capital on the Yangtse, 500 miles inland, began evacuating. Observers said they thought it was "the beginning of the end" as far as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's defence of Hankow and the middle Yangtse valley was concerned. The above map shows the position of Hankow.

DEATH OF MRS. ELIZABETH WATSON

Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, widow of the late Thomas Watson, died at the home of her son, Mr. Thomas Watson, Bridge street, Belleville, on Thursday, June 9th, 1938, in her 87th year.

Mrs. Watson was born in Belleville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hall. She was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Her husband predeceased her by many years. She is survived by one son, Mr. Thomas Watson, Belleville, and by one daughter, Mrs. Frank Hall, Belleville.

The funeral will be held from the residence of her son, Mr. Thomas Watson, Bridge street, Belleville, on Saturday, June 11th, 1938, at 2.30 p.m. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Aikens W. M. S. Pays Tribute To 'Popular Honorary Member

It was a happy occasion on Wednesday when Aikens W. M. S. met at the home of their Honorary member, Mrs. Abe Pinkle, for their June meeting.

Members were received at the door by Mrs. Pinkle and her daughter, Mrs. Roy Spafford, whose cheerful hospitality was much appreciated.

The meeting was opened with quiet devotions by the president, Mrs. Thomas Irvine. Mrs. Harry Pinkle led in prayer and the Scripture was read by Mrs. Arthur Bennett.

Mrs. Wm. Hamilton gave a reading "Shut Your Mouth, Boy, Or Close Your Eyes" which was answered with Scripture verses on Temperance. During the business session plans were made to make a quilt and Mrs. Albert Page, the Supply Secretary, asked for donations for the bale which she is preparing. A letter was read from Mrs. Catharine Bonisteel, expressing gratitude for kindnesses received during her recent bereavement. Also a letter read concerning the School for Leaders to be held at Trenton, August. A cash donation was presented to the Society by Mrs. Pinkle.

It was decided to hold an All Home on June 28th, in the church. Temperance reading were given. "Awake Thou That Sleepest," by Mrs. E. Weaver and "Temperance Begins at Home," by Mrs. Fred Moon.

Mrs. Johnson, wife of the Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of Aikens Church brought forward a helpful discussion on "Should Christian Temperance women approve of the use of soft drinks?" which brought many pros and cons from the members. One member said that we all drank milk from a bottle, another added that milk from bottles would never create in a child's mind a desire for something stronger, which pop, with a sting in, may do.

This was followed by a reading by Mrs. Johnson, "The Helpers on the Stairs," and prayer by Mrs. Pinkle. A fine temperance playlet "Mischief Maker, or Peterboughs," was then given with Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Spafford, Mrs. H. Hamilton and Mrs. E. Hubble taking part.

Mrs. Irvin then called on Mrs. Jas. Weaver, who read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Pinkle and Miss Jennie Moon presented her with a pant. Mrs. Pinkle, though taken by surprise, very graciously thanked her friends and spent a few moments in reminiscence of former days working in the society after which she requested the members to repeat with her the 23rd Psalm which she said had been of great comfort to her during the past months. The hymn "Almighty Father Who Dost give," brought this impressive service to a close. Members were pleased to have present Mrs. Sam Lloyd, Mrs. Johnson, and Miss Margaret Johnson. Lunch was served. Following is the address:

Dear Mrs. Pinkle—

It is indeed a great pleasure for us, the officers and members of Aikens Women's Missionary Society to meet with you in your home today on the occasion of our June meeting.

Although you have moved from our immediate vicinity we still have the honor of claiming you our Honorary President, and a faithful and devoted Life member of our W. M. S.

We look to you, Mrs. Pinkle, as our Missionary Mother. When we first organized in the year 1910, you were our president, holding that office for eleven years.

We feel it is to Christian women like you, the builders and faithful workers to whom we owe our present successful thriving organization.

You lighted the torch in W. M. S. work and held it high, setting an example for us to keep it ever burning, which we have endeavored to do, thus spreading the gospel light of Jesus Christ to those less fortunate than ourselves.

When problems have arisen even since your removal from our midst we have been helped by your counsel and advice.

Your hearty hand shake and wholesome countenance have cheered many of us, and a friendly chat with you has always brought us a little nearer the Master.

God made the sunshine and the flowers.

God made the blossoms and the flowers,

And blessed them with that dew.

God made the stars that shine at night,

God made the sunshine too.

And then to make this earth worth while,

He made Christian women like you.

June also holds a very important date in your life, that of your birthday. Although our meeting did not fall on that day, we extend to you our hearty greetings and best wishes for many more birthdays.

Best of luck through all the year.

Peace of mind and friendship true

Joy and happiness and cheer

May your birthday bring to you

As a token of the love and esteem you hold in the heart of each member, we ask you to accept this plant, not for its value, but for the spirit in it which it is given, and as a remembrance of your faithful services in the past and to bring cheer and comfort and happiness in the future.

Mrs. Calista Bonter.

Signed on behalf of Aikens W. M. S.

DECORATION DAY BURR CEMETERY

Memorial Service Conducted by Rev. Mr. McRae at Burr Church

Burr's — Sunday was Memorial Service and Decoration Day at Burr United Church and cemetery. As the day was fine that could be desired the church was filled and was a bower of beauty as plants and cut flowers banked and filled the front of the church. Rev. A. R. McRae gave a fine address and Mrs. Howard Hogle sang a beautiful solo, "Lead Kindly Light My Hand". At the close of the service, those who were taking flowers went out first, the rest following across the road to the cemetery. The flowers were placed on the graves of departed friends. Burr's Cemetery is one of the most beautiful country cemeteries in the province with its flower beds and bordered walk, and a driveway around the four sides. In addition a bird bath has recently been placed in memory of "Kenneth Fox, a Lover of Birds". Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harnes is presented by their pupil Miss G. Party Held for Graduating Class Queen Alexandra Sch.

The June meeting of the Queen Alexandra and School Club was held Friday afternoon, June 10th, when in the form of a party in honor of the graduating class.

The meeting was opened with the singing of several songs, with Mrs. Ross Hunter presiding at the piano. Mrs. S. Hibbard read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. W. H. Pinkie then welcomed the graduates and called on Principal D. D. Anderson to introduce each one.

The program consisted of a boys' and girls' chorus singing, "Aren't You Glad to Have Summer Come" and "We Thank Thee"; "Early One Morning" and "I Love The Whistler" showed very skilful coaching by Miss Potter and Miss Clemence. A vocal duet was very sweetly sung by Jean Freeman and Marie Dunsberry, "There's a Smile in the Sky." A piano duet by Norma Correll and Elinor Pinkie was much enjoyed.

In the absence of Judge Deroche, who was to be the guest speaker, Mrs. Pinkie called on the Principal, who gave a few timely remarks in his graduating talk. He stressed that each pupil strive to make his or her life a success, and not merely "play the game."

Mr. Morley Anderson, in speaking on behalf of the graduates, tendered a vote of thanks to Mr. W. G. Anderson for the use of the rest in them.

The girls then voted their approval with three rousing cheers for the Principal.

On behalf of the class, Armstrong Boyle thanked the Home and School Club for the birthday party.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King" after which ice cream, cake and chocolate drink was served. Mrs. Ted Clarke donated the birthday cake decorated in candles.

The prize for attendance was won by Miss MacPherson's room.

DASHING is the word for an evening frock with black crepe and the spreading skirt, which is circled by tier upon tier of black marquisette ruffles. A wide cummerbund sash and a white organza top complete a lovely garment.

Queenly Carriage Required

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT MAY be "arty" and "cute" to throw the shoulders forward, make the feminine body look like a question mark, but it doesn't get a girl very far ahead in the beauty road. The girl who makes an appeal and admiration is the one who is vivacious with health and vitality, who carries herself with appropriate grace and wholesome, not a piece of human chiffon.

With frocks showing snug waistlines, wide shoulders and frocks that cling to the figure, it takes a girl to have a figure that is not just a wisp. Reasons are in style. It may not be long before the hip rollers will stop their rolling, consider high waistlines. Fashion in figures change the same as fashions in clothes.

If you are a young thing and have been resorting to slinky poses, wise to what is going on. Throw your locket up your chest and pull in your tummy, you are getting to look terrible when autumn comes. When styles start in a new direction they last for a good while. You've got to be healthy, alert, attractive, and you've got to carry yourself in a queenly fashion.

An egg mask is helpful when the tissues of the face have sagged and tiny lines have put in an appearance. Beat the egg white to a froth, spread it over a clean skin surface.

Let it remain on for 20 minutes; it acts as a powerful astringent. Dip cotton in cool water, remove mask, dry the skin. Get out your massage cream, smooth it into the skin with upward motions and brisk tapping with the finger tips.

A rowing machine which can be bought at any store that deals in sporting goods will work wonders on a dead bust. It's good fun, too, not as boresome as the calisthenics.

Let the legs rigid. When sending the body forward tense the chest muscles.

"Swiss Miss" is All Laughs and Music

Funniest of Laurel and Hardy Productions—Musical Comedy Staged in Switzerland—Elaborate Scenery and Colorful Costumes.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy bring the belt to their new musical comedy film, "Swiss Miss" now on the Belle screen.

The comedy pair were never funnier than in their guise of mouse-trap salesmen who believe that because of the large Swiss output of cheese the Alpine region will be a fertile field for their endeavours. Their demonstrations with devices of those Goldberg pattern constitute many minutes of unadulterated hilarity. Also provoking loud guffaws is the scene in which they are compelled to work out their board bill, washing dishes, sweeping floors, each resulting in greater disaster and more complete despair to the unwilling workers.

To picture has been given the locale fairly in production. As the locale is the Swiss Alps, elaborate scenery and colorful costumes add their part toward making the background realistic and the picturesque. Chief interest centres in the Alpen hotel an attractive inn in the Tyrol which is the stage for a large part of the action. In its courtyard the villagers ....singers, gymnasts, yodelers, dancers and musicians...gather for their gossip and their fun, and "Swiss Miss" becomes almost a variety show with a display of diversified talent.

Included in the unusual routines are bell-ringing, flag-throwing, the blowing of the huge wooden Alpenhorn and the hilarious mechanics of yodeling. Musically the picture is full of catchy melodies, which incorporates folk tunes of infectious rhythm and vocal melodies that carry rare appeal. Interpreting many of these numbers are Della Lind, blonde and beautiful Hal Roach screen "find." John G. Blystone directed with merits acclaim for his judicious blending of slapstick, romance and pictorial charm. The result is entertainment of a high order.

"Arsene Lupin Returns"

Arsene Lupin that famous ...tional character created by Maurice LeBlanc, is featured in "Arsene Lupin Returns", the added feature attraction. In this new mystery thriller the adventures of the criminal who is supposed to be dead, are continued. Melvyn Douglas, Virginia Bruce and Warren William share the honors, while Jonathan Hallday and Nat. Pendleton also prominently cast. In the supporting cast are Monty Woolley, E. E. Clive and George Zucco.

The story's action races at breathless speed from the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington and New York to the haunts of crime in Paris.

Two complete shows will be presented Tonight (Saturday), the first show starting at 6.30 and the 2nd complete show at 8.10 p.m.

Famous Authority on Etiquette and Love and Marriage

GIRL TELLS PARENTS PERILS OF TOO RIGID DISCIPLINE

Please, please, if you are a schoolteacher, a mother, an aunt or a school teacher—anyone, in fact, who has charge of girls—read the following letter.

It's an unconscious sermon written by a sophomore on how the gentle art of sneaking effects her. I've had dozens like it, some even from other girls of her age. And it seems high time for mothers, grandmothers, aunts, etc. to understand fully the dangers of too rigid discipline.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am 15 years old. I have counted out of my class at high school how many girls go out with boys, and only 2 out of 25 do not go out with them. Ours is a sophomore high school. These girls "can't" go out, too.

"I am only allowed to stay out till nine o'clock at night. When I'm not allowed to go out and have a date, I suppose I hate to say this, because I feel mean and don't enjoy myself when I sneak. But all my girl friends are allowed to stay out until 10.30 p.m. and why should I put up with such unfair treatment as being home by nine?

"I wish mothers would understand and talk to us girls about our boy friends, instead of being so 'shut-mouthed,' and let us ask boys to dinner. And I also invite me less to go to a show, my mother refuses to let me go. This makes me feel rebellious and I quit trying.

"Why can't our mothers give us more freedom, put us on our honor and, we wouldn't have to sneak. My experience has been with the girls who don't know anything about human nature, and they are the ones who get into trouble. That happens too. But mothers wouldn't understand us, and understand us, we wouldn't do anything wrong.

"I want to be like other girls and not be called a 'baby' by them, behind my back, and say they are something, she can never go out.'

"I have plenty of chance to go out openly, but my mother won't let me go, so I have to sneak out in little annoying. I'd like to have boys come to the house like other girls and meet my mother. She's really lovely, but so strict. And I'd like to have little dinners for one for my girl and boy friends, on the electric toaster and grill. These girls "get" when they go out, too.

"Desperate."

Well, ladies, if I sat up all night trying to make excuses for the girl who has to sneak to get out, I couldn't do more intently as well as this youngster, who probably thinks she has to sneak to go to a show with a boy on Friday night, or have some of her classmates in for a little snack, prepared on the electric grill, treat it really is. Nothing to cause tension-maker, and if you'll put these girls see for themselves that there's nothing unlawful or harmful in their friends for a little "eat," and perhaps turn back the rug and let them dance to the victrola or radio it won't seem so wonderful to them.

Dessert-and-Coffee Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to entertain at a coffee party and would be grateful if you will outline the procedure?

R.

I am not sure but what kind of coffee party you mean. Some hostesses, whose friends are more fond of coffee than they are of tea, give a coffee party instead of a tea party, and the procedure is the same as that as a tea.

And in many parts of the country the dessert-and-coffee party has become very popular. Sometimes this type of party ... and a delightful party it is, too....is given after luncheon, before bridge or other forms of afternoon party or after dinner, before an evening of bridge or other games.

I imagine that you refer to this "dessert and coffee party," which seems have either luncheon or dinner; as the case may be, at home, and then proceed to the living room for dessert and coffee. The table covering and centerpiece are placed for a luncheon or dinner and on each side of the centerpiece is a dish of candy, usually white mints, so delicious with coffee. The table is set for the dessert course only. At each place is a china or glass dessert plate, with a lunch or dinner napkin on the plate or at the left of the fork. And the spoon at the right. Or, even better, and far more decorative, each place is set with a china or glass dessert plate or china plate and a glass dessert plate on it, with a finger bowl on the dessert plate. (A few small flowers may be floating on the water in the finger bowl. The napkin must then be placed at the left of the plate.

In front of the hostess is the completely-equipped coffee tray and while the guests are finishing their dessert, she pours the coffee, and it is handed around the table.

This kind of party is great fun, and is a boon to the hostess who likes to have her friends "at new table" and who cannot afford to give many parties. A minimum of opense it can be given a maximum of charm and graciousness as a prelude to bridge or other games to follow.

When Hostess Pours

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

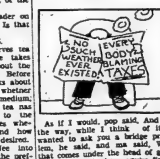
1. Is cream put in the cup before or after the tea, or coffee, when served by the hostess?

2. When serving serving refreshments at a tea party, are the salad and hot biscuits are served, where should the salad fork be placed—on the left or the right of the salad?

3. I place a butter spreader on the bread-and-butter plate. Is that correct?

S.

1. Before the hostess serves tea or coffee to a guest, it is the hostess special care to inquire about the preferences of the guest. When she pours the tea, she asks about the guest's choice as to whether the tea is to be "weak" or medium or be weak". Then after the tea has been poured "according to the specifications", she inquires whether cream or lemon, and how many lumps of sugar are desired.



Before pouring the coffee into the cup the hostess asks the difference as to sugar and cream, for it is the custom (unlike the custom when pouring tea) to put the sugar and cream into the cup before the coffee is poured into the cup.

2. When only one silverpiece is placed it is usually placed at the right of the plate.

3. The individual butter knife on the butter pressure plate is usually placed on the bread and butter plate. It should be placed either to the right of the bread-and-butter plate, parallel to the silverpieces at the sides of the plate, or at the top of the bread-and-butter plate, parallel to the edge of the table. To place it on a diagonal line destroys the symmetry of the place-setting. Both the butter knife and the plate the blade should be on the rim of the bread-and-butter plate; that is the tip of the blade should not rest on the centre part of the plate.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners (submitted by readers).

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were going out to play bridge, and pop was trying to himself in his private chair and ma looked in the living room saying, "Benny, the Browns will be here early, so if you have any getting out and then send part of it up and put it off till you get me in a state of aggravation.

As if I would, pop said. And by the way, what is that word, I'll look it up and tell ask you a bridge problem, he said. Now I'm in good humor and under the head of good news, because it shows you're finely educated. What is the game in general if subsidiary telling yourself that it's all a new way to learn a word and that's the only reason you play is to please me and make me happy. Now, what is the cleverest people in every walk of life all over the world playing bridge after all and why body can really scoff at it without thinking twice. It's naturally. Willthinking twice. I have to give it some thought to really become proficient in it, and that's why I'm so pleased to find you thinking of a bridge problem while you have time to there over a relaxed cigar without even a card in your hands. What's the problem, Willyum? she said.

It concerns an overbid, pop said and I'm not sure of the rules and you said. Suppose we call the Hearts over the Four and I bid them and he bids a spade and I bid spades and you said. Suppose we call the Hearts over the Four and I bid them and he bids a spade and I bid spades and he is more and we won't be able to get over game, pop said.

Willyum this is ridiculous, you know very well you never bid a spade, I bid something has ever been wrong with it, and I mite of knows you couldn't be serious about anything serious, so you get rite up out of that chair, ma said.

And he did laughing as if he felt better instead of worse.

"The author of "British Agent" who has written of his adventures on foreign soil, turns his pen to the land of his seventeen years in his book "My Scottish Youth." Bruce Lockhart has found no need on return to Malaya for the Malays of his youth no longer exist. He therefore, repaired to Scotland hoping to find there "the greatest adventure of life". The plant and life, the flower-trimmed cottages of childhood days, the lime trees that remote past with the present. The admirable grammar-school system of Scotland appears. Very real also are the schoolmaster father and the mother who quietly had her own way. Historic Scotland with its battles and alcohol, its feuds and its romantic mountains is recalled as the Scotland of former the last generation. These are compared with England today. Quaint Highland villages have fallen into decline and where descendants of the Jacobite rebels abide. "Only by the constant assertion of its will power," the author believes "can a nation hope to survive and to me the saddest thing in Scotland today is the decline in its national will-power". Bruce Lockhart is a keen observer of men and this story of Scottish boyhood is interesting from first to last.

Major-General A. C. Temperley of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Service in the British Forces Office, is the reviewer for the War Office in his book "The Whispering Gallery of Europe". The work of the Military Intelligence is described from its beginnings just after the War to be part in the present European situation. The volume is a catalogue of both opportunities that have been lost to governments under the stress of their immediate anxieties, and the fatal rate of the world seemed of less importance than the necessity of some strategic point over their neighbours. "The Whispering Gallery" is the story of Europe's lack of leadership, of the irony of the "Peace to end Peace," of former modest requests, the infelicity of which would have kept a modern regime alive in Germany. Brilliant pictures of leading figures on the Continent are presented. An interesting foreword to the book is by Anthony Eden in which he traces the part he will be widely read "as a sincere endeavour to see matters as they are, and a timely chequered experience of a recent past."

"After 1903—WHAT? is the perplexing question which Owen Bercsby asks in his latest book of the same name. Dealing with the ...one of America's leading business touches upon such varied topics as the "Hollywood Film," "sea shoppes", personal questions on income tax blanks, and women's clubs, confirmed singing and how to go insane. He places the blame for the "Roaring Gay" Nineties were not Gay in his memories of childhood days. Here is a book that one can open at random and enjoy the pages. Rowland Hilder Glynda Hilder's illustrations are, of course, present and add their hilarious note to the text.

A unique and useful book is that written by Stuart Chase in his volume "The Tyranny of Words". Here is a fascinating study that is still in its infancy. The author warns against the use of key words at their face value without reference to the time and to the context of thought. He uses to clarify his text numerous "boomerangs" employed by public speakers and others. What is actually meant when the word "democracy" is used, when people refer to the various "isms" of the day? In summation, when they say that this country is "good" or that "bad"? Stuart Chase points out the danger in use and abuse of words in present day speech in the good faith of the time but the study of semantics will be on school programs. The author's style is in the very lyrical Chase manner, controversial and witty.

Use Fresh Posies For Bridal Hat

By LISBETH

TO GIVE an original note to her wedding, the bride can have her attendants carry flowers in different ways than the conventional bouquet, says Mrs. Bert Schiller Rendall, former editor. Large straw hats when tied with broad satin loops and filled with flowers, make beautiful arm baskets. Quite fetching, too, are flower-trimmed bonnets. Tulle flower-trimmed muffs are also quite novel and attractive.

For a garden wedding many brides prefer to wear a hat in place of the traditional veil. If she chooses this type of headdress, the hat may be trimmed with fresh flowers and she can wear a corsage of similar flowers. Large picture hats trimmed with flowers to match the bouquets are also chic for bridesmaids.

The bride who has a quiet wedding in a tailored suit may be given a corsage—she does not carry flowers.

Classes Hat

The bride pictured has chosen broad-brimmed leghorn hat trimmed with a cluster of sweetheart roses in pink, of the traditional veil, but in place of an arm bouquet she wears a dainty corsage consisting of white lilies-of-the-valley and tulle centered at the waistline. This costume might also be worn by a bridesmaid. A close-up of the hat, and bouquet are shown above.

White carnations are gaining in favor for the bridal bouquet. Ivy terms or foliage are used with them. Stems are wrapped in white satin, and fluffy white tulle interspersed with the blooms produce the contrast and add a light and airy touch.

If it is always wise, when planning a wedding, to consult your florist well in advance as to what flowers will be most suitable. A good florist, accustomed to arranging wedding bouquets, will know the best types of bouquets for particular types of dresses. He can tell you exactly what will be in season and can be trusted to arrange the flowers beautifully on the big day.

The Bride's Page

The question often arises "who pays for the flowers at a wedding"? It is an old tradition that the bridegroom pays for the bride's bouquet. Either the bridegroom or the bride's family may pay for the bridesmaids' bouquets —usually it's the bride's parents. Corsages for the mothers of the bridal pair and lapel flowers for all the men are—bought by the bridegroom. This doesn't mean that the groom selects and orders the flowers. Floral arrangements are almost always made by the bride or her mother. Flowers used in decorating the home or church are the responsibility of the bride's father.

How Noise Influences The Health

Dr. Clendening Tells Effect of Din on Nervous System

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BESIDES the effect of continuous noise on hearing and on the nervous system, there are controlled experiments which show that it produces a number of functional changes.

Fatigue due to noise: If work must be done in the presence of a distracting noise, the nervous system has to make a continuous effort to adapt itself to that disturbance. A more intense mental application is required to focus attention on certain types of work, and eventually nervous or mental fatigue must occur.

Sounds are more apt to be fatiguing if their frequencies are either above or below the frequency normally used for speech. Pitch of sound is as important as intensity in producing mental fatigue. Experiments at Colgate university show that the annoyance effect of noise is dependent more on high frequency than on intensity. In other words, a low, frequent noise is more fatiguing than a loud, infrequent noise.

Attempt to Control Noise

In England the attempt to control noise by the public health authorities is much more active than in this country. The English public health service is convinced that although noise does not induce organic disease, it does cause a condition of functional weakness and disability. And this state of fatigue, although it is not a disease, opens the door to disease.

Proper air conditioning is a factor tending to diminish the ill effects of noise of all types. The preconstruction of closed windows doors and all other sound barriers commonly associated with artificial climates in public buildings, office buildings, department stores and theaters, may eliminate as much as 75 per cent of the noises of extraneous origin.

This helps a great number of workers, but in industry air conditioning does not promise much in the protection of workers who work in the same room with noise-producing machines. For them, artificial deafness or ear plugs may be of great value.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. R.: "What are taste buds on a person's tongue? Could they be cancerous?"

Answer: The taste buds are just what the name implies. They are rounded, reddish elevations seen on the back of the tongue and they have special nerve endings which receive the sensations of taste. Unless one knows they are perfectly normal, they do look as if they were cancerous growths, but they are not.

Training Child in Self-Reliance

In teaching a child to wait upon himself and be self-reliant, the mother should make things easy enough so that the tasks are not too difficult and the child becomes discouraged.

A little stool in the bathroom will simplify the entire business of hand washing, and a low hook where he can hang his coat will enable him to roll up his shirt sleeves and include his wrists in the job. You can't expect the child to hang up his hat and overcoat unless there are rods or hooks in the closet that he can get at easily. If you want him to put away the toys he has finished playing with, provide a toy box or a low set of shelves for his special use.

A child who is properly trained should be able to do many helpful things for himself and for others by the time he is, an early age—wash and dress himself, change to clean underthings, and attend to other little tasks that make him a self-reliant individual in his rapidly-expanding world, gradually he can take over more complex duties, such as learning to clear away the table, keeping his room orderly, and cleaning the bath tub after his bath. Praise for accomplishment should always be more emphatic than criticism of short-comings so that the child will experience a sense of self-importance when he does a job well.

YOUNG FOLK WANT "TO BE ALONE"

Husband's Mother Lives With Them, Is Untidy and Interferes in Their Affairs

By VIRGINIA LEE

I HAVEN'T had a complaint about mothers-in-law for a long time. But here is a very heart one:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I wish you would write something about mothers-in-law. Why can't they leave young married people alone and tend to their own business? All young people like to be by themselves, and not have some older person always ready to see what they are, and always butting in on everything they do or say.

"We, my husband and I, can't run our own home without h's mother poking something. Don't we get awfully disgusted. Please tell me something to do. This time keeping my house straightened up when she is with us, I never puts things back where they belong.

"Surely do mothers-in-law always have to stay with one child? Why don't they stay with the other children sometimes and let us have a little rest and quiet and be to ourselves? Please tell me something to do.

"A YOUNG WIFE."

Your mother-in-law doesn't seem to have been properly brought up if she is untidy. I hardly know what you can do to make her put things back in their places. That is the only thing, I guess, is to praise her when she does do it, and to call her attention in a nice way to the tidy looking house, and ask her if she doesn't like to see it that way.

I think when a mother has several children when she has no home of her own and is not strong enough to be by herself, and no means of support, she should stay a while with each, if possible. As you say, all married couples like to be by themselves sometimes. Also, every mother has a favorite child, however, with whom she is happier than with the others. She should not interfere with her children's affairs and make no comments when they are taking matters over, unless her opinion is asked. But you must admit it is a bit hard on a woman who has had her finger in her children's pies for years and years, and rightfully so. She has to train herself all over again. The wise mother-in-law however, does it.

The only thing you and your husband can do is to write to the other members of the family and ask them to urge their mother to visit them. She will not know you are writing, of course. The point is that it is pretty and for an older woman to be compelled to live with people who do not want her. I'll bet that one does owe something to a good mother, you know. Try to be kind but put it up to your husband's brothers and sisters that part of the responsibility for their mother rests on them. Good luck.

x x x

PUZZLED: It is me to tell her why people stare at her so. "Men women and children fairly stop to stare," she writes. "It is pronounced that, whoever is walking with me notices it; in fact, that is how I came to notice it. Someone that I was walking with noticed it first and I thought they imagined it, but I took particular notice and found it was a fact. They stare right in my eyes.

"I am a girl about 18 years old very quiet and mind my own affairs. There is nothing unusual about my looks. I dress neat and plain and never wear anything loud that might attract attention. People have called me sweet looking and cute, but never handsome. I would be very grateful if you could solve my problem for me."

Everyone likes to look at a young, fresh-looking girl, dear, and I imagine that is all this amounts to. Too bad your friend called it to your attention as something out of the ordinary. He or she was trying to be complimentary, and maybe you are self-conscious, so that you feel folk are staring at you more than they do at other young girls. I think you will find they are not, so try to forget about it and keep your mind on something more important. If the feeling persists, maybe you had better see a physician. Your imagination may be getting too active.

CRACKERS AND CHEESE DIVERSIFY THE DESSERT

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Individual Ham Loaves
Pineapple Slices
Scalloped Potatoes Kale
Mixed Vegetable Salad
With French Dressing
Cheese Crackers Coffee or Tea

Don't forget to serve crackers and cheese for dessert occasionally. You certainly will please the people who are trying to avoid sweets—and aren't there some in every family? If your crackers have lost their crispness, put them in a warm oven for a few moments. Wash and pick over the kale, then cook, without water, like spinach (but it takes longer to cook than spinach), until tender, season with butter, pepper and salt.

Today's Recipes

INDIVIDUAL HAM LOAVES—One and one-half pounds ground fresh pork, one cup bread crumbs, two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Have smoked ham and fresh pork ground together. Combine with bread crumbs and moisten with slightly beaten eggs and milk. Season and pack into greased muffin tins or custard cups. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done, 45 minutes to an hour. Serve with pineapple slices which have been browned in ham drippings.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Perfect Broiled Steak

The perfectly broiled, tender, juicy steak is a treat at any time. With modern methods making preparation easy, it is also a favorite meat with housewives, particularly when the weather is warm and apathy is widespread. Nor is there anything so capable of perking up jaded appetites as a nicely broiled steak.

"In the past broiling has been considered a very quick method of cooking, but according to the newest ideas on broiling," says Inez S. Willson, home economist, "broiling is easier and produces a more satisfactory result if it is done at a slower pace." So thoroughly prevent the broiling oven with the regulator set at "high", and instead of placing the steak close to the flame or heating element, put it so there is a distance of at least three inches between the top of steak and source of heat. This insures that the broiling is done at a moderate temperature, which makes turning more than once unnecessary. If the distance must be less, reduce the temperature accordingly. When one side is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper, turn and finish the cooking on the second side."

Ungraceful Sitting Posture Ruinous To Gown and Charm of Wearer

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

YOU MAY look wonderful in action, but give a thought to how you look when you repose. It is a chore to look well on a horse if you are a good horsewoman. You look right and graceful on the tennis court and golf course if you are good at these sports. Every where there is beauty in action, but that is not one must consider. Every sportsmen shows agility and rhythm it's simply that they have complete control over their bodies. They know the best and easiest way to make each move—result, a graceful performance.

The way you walk in a new dress certainly determines the dress' success as long as you are in easy, free motion. But you are sitting around in your clothes a great deal more than you are walking about in them. So it is particularly important that you look well in your new frocks if you want them to be seen at their best.

The line of the costume can be easily be ruined by bad sitting habits and they are anything but attractive. Recall the ugly sight of a woman seated with her knees spread apart. The line of her body is definitely squared off. The effect is not only vulgar, it gives a squat effect. The ideal line is one that takes the eye from shoulder to toe.

Naturally one of the first things to remember about looking pretty while sitting is to take your seat with ease so that your skirt will fall in natural graceful lines. Don't plop down any old way; that will necessitate later jumping up and down and skirt jerking.

Glenda Farrell
She is correct position.

The best way to sit down is to stand before your chair with one leg barely touching the front of it and the other foot slightly advanced. Le, yourself sink into the chair lightly, at the same time holding your head and back erect just as though you were making a curtsy. You won't have to rearrange your skirt if you sit down this way.

Clothes Get Disarranged

If you double over and sit down hard and then squirm around in your chair your clothes get disarranged and you land at a bad angle. When taking your seat slowly, you will find that your skirt falls into its natural folds. Then draw your knees together and forget your clothes. Or, if you wish to cross your k-nee, which is perfectly correct and quite comfortable, be sure to cross your upper leg well above the knee. This way of leg crossing permits your top leg to drop down easily and in the same direction as the supporting leg.

If you do it the wrong way you will have the under knee pushing the flesh of the upper leg into prominence. Remember to let your hands rest in your lap and keep them away from your face and hair. Thus is quiet symmetry attained.

Crime Responsibility Laid to the Parents

Psychologist Says Waywardness Is Bred by Failure to Teach Good Citizenship

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

IT SEEMS TO me that the most influential parents are the citizens most responsible for the appalling prevalence of crime. The move cultural educational opportunities and influence we parents have and the more we are looked up to as civic and moral leaders in our respective communities, the more should be expected of us to cultivate the highest sort of citizenship in our own children; and the more the behavior—and lie worst —in our children will be imitated by those children whose parents lack our opportunities.

For cultivating good citizenship in our own children with respect for the rights of others, no added taxes are necessary. Indeed, we might reduce our taxes, so much of which is now spent on crime, if through the good citizenship of our own children, those children with far less opportunity were afforded good models of citizenship in our children.

But, alas, it is quite apparent that by and large, many children in the homes of the upper 30 per cent, say, of our socio-economic-educational level, are not learning at home the alphabet of citizenship — respect for the rights of others — in their early years when such can best be learned. While for some of these ill-trained children to turn out well by and by, Bible-like, to subtle home influence or good neighbors whose children are well disciplined and guided, not all turn out well. And it appears that the percentage of crime from children of the so-called better homes is rapidly increasing.

Records Don't Tell Story

Of course, the juvenile court records do not tell the true story, since there are so many ways by which the delinquent youth from the "better" home can keep out of the reformatory, even out of the court—fever ways, however, for them to avoid sentence to the penitentiary eventually.

Yet there are many wonderful homes with culture, education, wealth and family traditions whose children from infancy have been model citizens.

If nearly all those parents who are looked up to as good citizens, especially of those who can provide fair physical home environment, were to se, about 95 find and purpose to train their children from babyhood in the A, B, C's of restraint, the unambiguous meaning of NO rarely heard, regard for the rights of others—the alphabet of citizenship—in an atmosphere of love, sympathy and companionship, we might expect a check, even a marked decrease, in crime, within a few years, and within a decade or so our reformatories, jails and penitentiaries would have many empty rooms.

HUMAN WELFARE PROGRAM

Under the leadership of the new president, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, the General Federation of Women's clubs is shaping its 1938-39 program, the keynote being, "Adjusting democracy for human needs".

"How can we promote public welfare or human welfare?" she asks in her acceptance speech at Kansas City, Mo. "Certainly we cannot go beyond our knowledge and our willingness to serve the desperate human needs of this hour. Nor can we live a complacent, satisfied personal life apart from our fellow man, for all ties bring a social thought of others. We must adjust our own attitudes to attitudes all our powers. We must accept new philosophies and right change, must provide definite, concrete and timely programs against these forces undermining the well-being of our people and producing many of the social maladjustments of the present day.

"We must hold fast to future ideals to make possible the action of today and to the finer traditions of our country".

Senior U. S. Woman Senator Never Has Been Politician

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

HATTIE W. CARAWAY, Democrat, of Jonesboro, Ark.; appointed on Nov. 13, 1931, and elected on Jan. 12, 1932, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway; re-elected on Nov. 8, 1932, for the term ending in 1939.

That is all the congressional directory says about Ti. E. Hattie woman senator, Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway.

Mrs. Caraway is not the first woman senator. Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, a dear old lady of 87, was given the honor of representing her state of Georgia by special appointment for parts of two days back in 1922. The first duly elected and actually functioning senator, however, is Mrs. Caraway.

She is a small, brown-eyed woman who has "kept house" from the look of sadness which came to her when she lost her husband, the late Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, whom she married back in 1902. She is quiet in her manner and admits she never took an active part in politics until she received her appointment to the senate.

She is very much interested in the problems of the people of her constituency—especially the farmers with whose problems she is familiar, as her husband was a farmer and he himself were of the farm. She may be depended upon to vote for any measure that helps the farmers.

Mrs. Caraway's home is in Jonesboro, Ark. She has had three sons, two of whom are living. And she attends the Methodist church in Jonesboro.

Best "All-Around" Co-ed

SCHOLARSHIP, athletic ability and extra-curricular activities all are considered in awarding the Neukom trophy of Miami university, Oxford, O., to Miss Gladys M. Jacbe, whose picture is shown here.

The awarded trophy annually goes to Miami's "best all around" junior class co-ed.

Miss Jacbe's home is in Dayton, O. In the college of liberal arts she is popular with students and teachers.

Her brother, Fred William Jacbe, graduates this year from the school of business administration, and a sister, Dorothy Emma Jacbe, is president of the freshman class at the same college.

Pigden Set New Mark in Pole Vault For School at 10' 1"

KEEN COMPETITION

Marjorie Hitchon Broke Every Record in Senior Series

Shattering records with abandon featured when their school athletic championships were won during the annual Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School field day yesterday. Outstanding feats of athletic ability and prowess featured the day's meet as a dozen new school track and field records were established.

The champions in the respective groups were:

Boys—Senior, Percy Everett; intermediate, Bill Pigden; and junior, Bill Mills.

Girls—Senior, Marjorie Hitchon; intermediate, Dorothy Lasenby; and junior, Helen Richardson.

Outstanding in the day's achievements were the efforts of Bill Pigden, senior intermediate track and field champion, who not only shattered four school records in his category, but in the pole vault established a new all-school record of 10 ft. 1 in., wherein a 9 ft. 9½ in. pole record established in 1936 at 9 ft. 9½ in. Pigden also established new records in the 440 yard dash, half mile run and the intermediate broad jump. Bill Mills, winner of the junior group, set a new record for that class in the 80 yard run, clipping 11 seconds off the old mark. The seniors failed to establish new times or distances however. Perhaps the most outstanding athlete in the boys' group.

In the girls' group, however, Marjorie Hitchon, the newly crowned senior girls' field champion, not only won every event in the senior girls' class, but established a new previous record set up in past years. Miss Hitchon was easily the most outstanding girl athlete to compete in the meet.

In every event of the day, exceedingly keen competition marked the contests, as the competing students specialized in certain events to make the competition the more interesting. In the case of some of the fine times were established by the Miss Clare placed second in both the senior class, behind Everett, and Gord Farquharson also emerged as a star class second to Pigden, the last event of the day deciding the intermediate championship, while R. Rowe was second to Mills in the junior boys' group.

PICARD'S SWING

Since adopting the interlocking grip Henry Picard's golf has shown a definite degree of improvement. Most critics felt that there was little room for improvement in his swing. Now the only way he could better his game was on the mental side. Picard pointed out that he did look tired and become tense in some of the tournaments.

In most cases they were willing to give Picard these things as the result of continual play under pressure without sufficient rest and a vacation from competition. It insisted that both tension and fatigue were caused mainly by tight spots in his swing, the tightest of which was to be found in his left wrist. As a cure I suggested the new grip which takes the thumb of the shaft and thereby loosens up the left wrist. As soon as he made the change his whole swing began to show a marked difference.

Within the last two weeks we spent about six days going over the positions and movements of the line he grips the club until the knuckles in his right hand show that today he stands alone in the matter of progress made about the swing.

I've never known a player with the courage Picard has shown in making changes in his swing. But they have enabled him to play better with much less effort. He will go into the open with the best swing in the field, and given the breaks he'll win.

St. Catharines Handed First Defeat of Season

First defeat of the season for St. Catharines Athletics and announcement of the withdrawal of Hamilton-Huntington Combines provided the news today in the Ontario La-crosse Association's senior league.

Athletics dropped a 15-13 decision last night at Fergus to the Fergus Thistles. The loss meant that the hitherto undefeated Athletics now occupied the first place standing with Orillia Terriers. Both teams have won five games and lost one.

Club President Russell T. Kelly announced the Combines intended only to play their scheduled game at Brampton tonight with the Excelsiors and then withdraw from competition. Kelly said the step was taken because of league action in granting the services of Don McCallum to the Hamilton Mountaineers.

Kelly claims McCallum lives closer to Hamilton than to Milnigo and should be with Combines.

The Thistles piled up a three-goal lead in the first period while holding Athletics scoreless. They led 7-4 at the half and 9-6 at the three-quarter way mark. Thistles were paced by R. Sergis, Gordon Gilmour, Lewis and Chambers, Campbell and Dean, who each scored twice. Ken Gilmour, Fergus, Union each tallied three for Athletics.

Lady Golfers at Country Club Win From Picton Team

Winning practically every match a team of lady golfers from the Bay of Quinte Country Club defeated a visiting team from the Picton Golf and Country Club in a tournament at the Country Club yesterday.

The four local golfers proved too strong and superior to the visiting Picton players, winning every match during yesterday's play, however, but play was marked with keen competition and a fine spirit of sportsmanship throughout. Following the golfing the dainty luncheon was served by the members of the Bay of Quinte Country Club and a social hour spent.

The teams were composed of the following:

Picton—Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Dunbar, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Tully, Miss Downing, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Owens.

Bay of Quinte Country Club—Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Stafford, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Chant, Miss P. Burrows and Mrs. Lyall.

Henry Picard Leads At Half Way Mark In U. S. Open With 140

By RUSS NEWLAND

Denver, Colo., June 11 (AP)—When the sun went down the Rockies late today they'll be crowning the 1938 United States Open Golf champion.

The big show will be over, unless of course, Ky Laffoon is called the stage for a play-off. Such an anticlimax would be a fitting close for the memorable battle between Billy Burke and George von Elm in 1931 that ended in a tie at 72 extra holes, a world's record.

The second half-way mark saw the advantage, slight as it was, hitch-hiking a ride with Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa. He took the lead at the end of 36 holes.

Picard continued to play good enough to set the pace when time for the finish in the field to fix the scores arrived.

Canada's lone hope, Kazmir Zakowski of Montreal, rallied yesterday to shoot a 78 and qualify with a 36-hole total of 151.

Buffalo Amateur Out.

Merlin Luther, young Buffalo amateur representing the Port Erie Golf Club, failed to get on the first 18, but his 87 of yesterday left him far out of the qualifying mark and Luther aggregated 177.

As they swung into the third stage of the battle, Dic Metz of Chicago was on Picard's heels. He had a three-under par 68 for 141. Paul Jug McSpaden, from Boston, and Ralph Guldahl, "dark horse" of Emery Zimmerman, were well on the pace with 142. Defending champion Ralph Guldahl, considered himself in a fine spot to repeat. Guldahl, yesterday at 45 strokes, only five away from the number one man, were Harry Cooper of Chicago, Mast, Canadian open champion, Mangrum, Dallas amateur champion from Los Angeles, Willie Hunter, left.

Dickey Smacks Two Homers To Pace Yankees to 8-2 Win Over Indians and Close Gap

Catcher Claimed to be Best "Clutch" Hitter in Baseball

CUBS RAINED OUT

Giants Increase Lead by Defeating Cards 3-1

By SID FEDER

Back in the Ruthian era of syat. they used to say that was the Babe goes, so go the Yankees.

The Babe is gone, but "doing" his baseball from a box near the visiting dugout, but the Yankees haven't stopped—because another cannon is booming. This one is sweet William Dickey. When he's around, the Yankees travel in high gear; and when he's missing, mediocrity creeps over all through the machinery.

They say Dickey is the greatest "clutch" hitter in baseball; that when there are "ducks on the pond," he'll pump 'em in that direction in tight ball game, and the Yanks need a run, sweet William'll do it.

One of the main reasons the Yanks are 3½ games out of first place right now, is because Bill was on the hospital list for six games. And the Yanks dropped four of 'em.

Dickey Back

Last week Bill had an ailing side, stayed out one game and the Yanks lost 6-5. The next day, the Yanks needed a run, so Bill went in as a pinch-hitter and drove it across. He stayed out the next three games and the Yanks lost 'em all.

That brought matters up to yesterday and the final game in a current set series with Cleveland Indians. Bill came back for that one, and all he did was clout two homers to spark the Yanks to an 8-2 victory.

Dickey shared a field day with the Indians' league lead, and, since Boston Red Sox knocked a walloping at the hands of Chicago White Sox, 15-2, the Yanks were left in sole possession of second place.

In the National League, only two games got by Old Man Weather. Prince Hal Schumacher allowed just three runners to get first base, and three Giants dubbed the Cardinals, 3-1, stretching their National League lead to two full games. Same page Cagey Cubs, whose till with the Dodgers was rained out.

Hugh Mulcahy tossed the Phillies to a 3-2 decision over the Pirates in the nightcap of the Becs-Reds encounter in Cincinnati.

Burr Harrison blanked eight and pitched St. Louis Browns to an 8-4 win over the Athletics. Detroit Tigers outlasted the Senators to come through 7-6 in 10 innings.

Sports Roundup

Speculator, N.Y., June 11 (AP)—Except for Tuesday, when rain kept exclusive for Barney Ross) this is the most ideal of fight camps.

Max Schmeling likes it so well he has trained here for several of his important bouts. . . . Until Baer came a cropper against Louis, the Cahorne brothers, who run the town, had never turned out a loser.

. . . Instead of burying himself in bed in the woods as he did at Naponach while prepping for his first fight with Louis, Max now keeps his hat in a cottage directly across the road from the open air ring-where he works. . . . Training autosits can see him reading on the porch or perhaps shooting arrows at poor Otto Petri, his closest friend, in the yard. . . . Petri is Schmeling's bet bodyguard and lawyer, . . .

Brig-Gen. John J. Phelan, head of the Boxing Commission, is due and Max intends making a personal plea for the reinstatement of Joe (Yussel the Muscle) Jacobs, his American representative. . . . Max Machon, the trainer, does most of the talking for the firm.

"Ja Max in Leads . . . Ja." . . . "Can he repeat over Louis?" . . . "Ach, ja, ja!" . . . "Why?" . . . "He vill vin, he vin again, ain't it?"

As for Schmeling, he simply says: "You go ask Joe Louis is he afraid of me?"

BEARS FINALLY HALT THE BISONS IN 11-FRAME GAME

Newark Retains Fine Margin in The International

Jersey City Wins Fourth in Row From Toronto by 4-0

BEARS . . . HoWld e'l' lou is .

Newark Bears who finally beat down those belting Bisons from Buffalo, are casting an unusually friendly eye toward Jersey City where their fortunes are perpaling to lend the International League champions some unexpected assistance.

The league-leading Bears, who dropped the first three games of the current series to the Bisons, finally halted the scourge of the runners-up in an 11-inning thriller last night. And, though they meet the Bisons today and tomorrow, they're counting on the Giants' classy hurling staff to keep the route against the O'Neillmen journey to Jersey City for the next series.

The Giants, who have had nine pitchers go the distance in their last eight games, are looking for their fourth straight over Toronto when Rollie Stiles blanked the Maple Leafs, 4-0, yesterday. It was a win 4-0, Stiles was the fourth successive Giant hurler to go the route against the Leafs, who have averaged less than six hits a game off him.

Baltimore Orioles, who broke a 13-game losing streak Thursday, lost last night, dropping a 5-3 decision to eleven hits, but the Orioles' pitchers were not exactly at a pure-ball game. After all it said and done it's the patrons who pay the shot and if increased crowds follow and demand new faces, why not give those who are, paying us a treat?

Corbett who in turn threw to Richardson at second to retire Bonura.

The fourth scheduled night game between Syracuse and Rochester, was postponed because of rain.

Early this spring, the Central Association ruled that cooperation to form inter-group schedules but the B. A. did not. C. O. B. is clever that they would have to manage as best they could with three teams left. They'll see what the boys are doing and it looks like a very interesting league with plenty of high-class baseball. And since the governing body was dropped the word "semi" was free its official name, will maybe the Bisons aren't as good as after all.

When it comes to scoring qualities, diminutive Bill Sweet, right-fielder for Wait Gerow's Belleville Athletics, is second to none. Sweet crossed the old home plate for the entire home runs needed by Bobby Gibbardville nine here on Thursday and is the leading batter in the loop. "Pitching to Sweet is like trying to throw sticks past a mad bull-dog with his head in his shell," quoth Sonny Green as Gerow worked his way through for final walk on Thursday. Incidentally the Belleville Boy of Quinte League entry has the next two games on the road, journeying to Napanee next Wednesday and to Picton the following Wednesday before returning to the home diamond the last week in June. If the Weirites can win 50 percent of those games on the road, they'll have bills to worry about, that is if they continue to be invincible on the home lot.

Two really outstanding athletes brought honor and glory to their respective schools at their school during the annual Belleville Collegiate field day yesterday when Miss Marjorie Hitchon, not only won the senior girls' championship, but broke every record in time or distance in track and field established last year. Miss Hitchon is an outstanding feminine athlete, one who has been seen competing in Belleville in recent years, winning with ease and establishing new records in the final sprints she was her forte, while this time last summer she was in the local events. This time also won the senior girls' senior title at the Intermediate meet in Trenton one week ago.

This year's crop of B.C.I. athletes very shattering athletic records of their school in the same manner as a bull would crash up chairs in a china shop and with about the same abandon. George Laughlin's athletes seemed to delight in establishing new school records. Take Bill Pigden, the intermediate champions for instance, Bill not only established school records for the 440; 880 and broad jump in the intermediate class, but he cleared 10 foot one inch in the pole vault, to better the senior record by nearly five inches. Pigden is a good middle-distance runner and should be encouraged along these lines. Even Bill Mills helped himself to a couple of records in the junior boys' series, but no senior records were established, with the exception of Pigden's outstanding pole vault effort. Incidentally we feel Pigden would have vaulted higher had he not undergone such a strenuous afternoon's program, however.

Previously we have suggested the establishment of a civic track and field meet in Belleville and are all the more enamoured concerning same since learning should be affected Belleville's track and field contests. After witnessing yesterday's program at the Fair Grounds it seems too bad to have such splendid athletic ability wasted after those young athletes leave school. Perhaps there should be staged periodic an Olympic champion, if he or she was only given proper opportunity for proper training and competition after leaving school. Civic track and field meets could be established in connection with the Belleville Fair and under proper auspices might blossom into an outstanding annual event in this city.

The Kinsmen-Kiwanis softball game last night might have been left to settle its own fate after interruption by Jupiter Pluvius, but the veteran Kiwanis men seemed to go for the Kinsmen-Kiwanis pedestal duck for water and today clasp an 8-3 victory over their previously egotistic Kinsmen rivals. Prexy Cleo Colling smacked a homer on the first pitch in the first man up, which was not appreciated by the Kinsmen and which got on it was all Kiwanis. Of course as umpire we are accustomed to getting the blame for the loss, but quite truthfully we deny this accusation. Nevertheless we are still in call our office contemporary, George Laird, and our own Bill Brotzer "OUT", regardless, Frankly speaking, perhaps it is a good thing the game was called on account of the storm, else the victorious Kiwanis might have added Only three innings were played, but it seems every game contested the score is four and a lot of fun was had by all.

Coming events sometimes cast their shadows before. Take for instance the prevailing conditions in the C.O.B.L., we hear the O.B.I. is most unhappy relative to so many imports being ejected into the "cobble" loop and as a last resort the C. I. seems both Kingston and Peterboro are guilty of using players who have not as yet graduated O.B.A. transfers and whose amateur status is not exactly of a pure white hue. After all is said and done it's the patrons who pay the shot and if increased crowds follow and demand new faces, why not give those who are, paying us a treat? Something for their money. Yesterday's Stars

Alex Kampouris, Giants—Single with bases loaded drove in two runs to beat Cards 3-1.

Bill Dickey and Lefty Gomes, Yankees—Dickey hit two homers and Lefty Gomes pitched a seven-hitter to trounce Indians 8-2.

Hugh Mulcahy, Phillies—Pitched eight-hitter and scored winning run in defeating Pirates 3-2.

Monte Stratton, White Sox — Handcuffed Red Sox with five hits and hit homer with bases loaded in 15-2 win.

Harry Eisenstat, Tigers—Blanked Senators with two hits in four inning relief pitching stint in 7-6 victory.

Buck Newsom, Browns—Held Athletics to eight hits and connected for two singles, himself, driving in one run, in 8-4 win.

Max Should Tag Joe On The Whiskers With Plenty of Rights Again This Year

The Louis beard of strategy. Left, Trainer Jack Blackburn, Cestes, the world's champion, Joe Louis, and Manager Mike Jacobs, chief of the big job ahead is to figure out a method of retrieving the title things that took place last June when Louis then only a contender for the crown, went down for the iron fists of Max Schmeling in 12 rounds.

By BILL BRAUCHER

New York, June 11.—Joe Louis defended his title against three men in a comparatively short time. But an impartial history of the fighting style reveals that he has made very little improvement in that time the night when Max Schmeling tagged him on the whiskers with a myriad of rights and lefts.

Tommy Farr hit him with plenty of right hands. Nathan Mann proved that hitting him with the right hand was so easy that he threw caution to the winds, which was his own undoing. Harry Thomas hit the champion with haymakers so obvious that the ringsiders gasped.

Joe Not Very Bright.

Louis is not a very fast thinker. There isn't much variety in his attack. Most of his fights are cut to pattern, and when his opponent crosses him up, he has a whole lot of trouble trying to untangle himself. Joe is at his best with an opponent who leads with a left jab. He shoots a paralyzing left hand counter when he lands.

That's how Schmeling beat him—at counter punching. I have studied a film of the last Schmeling-Louis fight for hours and the whole thing boils down to a short, straight right hand. Joe waits for Schmeling to lead to him with the conventional right. Schmeling does so, but he carries his right hand high when he does. The right hand not only blocks Joe's left-hand counter punch but goes on from there to his. There is nothing very complicated about that procedure, but that is how Schmeling beat Louis the last time, and it wouldn't surprise me if Max beat him again in the same way.

Schmeling's left hand lead is just as important. He sants Louis to counter with his left and then he comes in with a left hook. Max is inside it, blocking with his own right and starting a vicious short right jarring his head around with the force. You don't have to know much about fighting to appreciate the psychological effect of such a punch and punch as Schmeling uses it.

Of course, what I have said about Schmeling's style effective is Louis can do either.

To counter with his left after that first poke of Schmeling's. If he does, Schmeling is in trouble back with his left, instead of starting to punch Schmeling back with his left hand Louis should shift and bring over a right, the glory might be different. If he should use a right uppercut, instead of lashing back with the left hand cross Schmeling's jaw. The point is that all through his fight, Joe follows the same pattern, never letting his left hand lead him to slaughter.

King of Counter Punchers.

Joe had success against his more recent opponents not because he changed his style, but because his opponents were miles short of Schmeling's quickness and counter punching ability. Louis could hit Farr, Mann and Thomas with the left hand first and the final sprints was her forte, while this time last summer she was in the local events. This time also won the senior girls' senior title at the Intermediate meet in Trenton one week ago.

This year's crop of B.C.I. athletes very shattering athletic records of their school in the same manner as a bull would crash up chairs in a china shop and with about the same abandon. George Laughlin's athletes seemed to delight in establishing new school records. Take Bill Pigden, the intermediate champions for instance, Bill not only established school records for the 440; 880 and broad jump in the intermediate class, but he cleared 10 foot one inch in the pole vault, to better the senior record by nearly five inches. Pigden is a good middle-distance runner and should be encouraged along these lines. Even Bill Mills helped himself to a couple of records in the junior boys' series, but no senior records were established, with the exception of Pigden's outstanding pole vault effort. Incidentally we feel Pigden would have vaulted higher had he not undergone such a strenuous afternoon's program, however.

Previously we have suggested the establishment of a civic track and field meet in Belleville and are all the more enamoured concerning same since learning should be affected Belleville's track and field contests. After witnessing yesterday's program at the Fair Grounds it seems too bad to have such splendid athletic ability wasted after those young athletes leave school. Perhaps there should be staged periodic an Olympic champion, if he or she was only given proper opportunity for proper training and competition after leaving school. Civic track and field meets could be established in connection with the Belleville Fair and under proper auspices might blossom into an outstanding annual event in this city.

The Kinsmen-Kiwanis softball game last night might have been left to settle its own fate after interruption by Jupiter Pluvius, but the veteran Kiwanis men seemed to go for the Kinsmen-Kiwanis pedestal duck for water and today clasp an 8-3 victory over their previously egotistic Kinsmen rivals. Prexy Cleo Colling smacked a homer on the first pitch in the first man up, which was not appreciated by the Kinsmen and which got on it was all Kiwanis. Of course as umpire we are accustomed to getting the blame for the loss, but quite truthfully we deny this accusation. Nevertheless we are still in call our office contemporary, George Laird, and our own Bill Brotzer "OUT", regardless, Frankly speaking, perhaps it is a good thing the game was called on account of the storm, else the victorious Kiwanis might have added Only three innings were played, but it seems every game contested the score is four and a lot of fun was had by all.

Yesterday's Stars

Alex Kampouris, Giants—Single with bases loaded drove in two runs to beat Cards 3-1.

Bill Dickey and Lefty Gomes, Yankees—Dickey hit two homers and Lefty Gomes pitched a seven-hitter to trounce Indians 8-2.

Hugh Mulcahy, Phillies—Pitched eight-hitter and scored winning run in defeating Pirates 3-2.

Monte Stratton, White Sox — Handcuffed Red Sox with five hits and hit homer with bases loaded in 15-2 win.

Harry Eisenstat, Tigers—Blanked Senators with two hits in four inning relief pitching stint in 7-6 victory.

Buck Newsom, Browns—Held Athletics to eight hits and connected for two singles, himself, driving in one run, in 8-4 win.

Crossroads

"Mr. Rudd's cousin, Mrs. Miller, who arrived with him last night, is to sleep late," Gloria said. "She's in the room Mrs. Meade had."

"I see." Anna Russell said reservedly.

Gloria went down to breakfast wondering just how much she saw.

The next morning's day dawned perfect.

Ethel appeared some time toward noon, rested and quiet, and anxious over Peter's reaction. "Gloria was fine. Like a little boy, getting home," she said pitifully more than once.

"I never met any one so crazy about a child as he is about Jimmy; he couldn't wait to see him! And now, somehow, I don't feel that he's going to get well!" Ethel had sighed.

Gloria slightly shook her head. "He'll get well. He only needs rest. He's just tired out, and he evidently came out before he was really well enough."

"What was my fault?" Ethel said, going on with her breakfast after a moment of sorrowful reflection. "Gladys Moulton—that's her friend Gladys Moulton in San Francisco—came with us — and I never dreamed that he'd come!" she explained. "But he fell so shaky and blue when we were packing to come. Glad had to visit her sister in San Francisco anyway, so he knew we were going to be right in this neighborhood and it seemed as if he couldn't face it. He was all the day before we left, and it was the first day he got up, that he said, "Gloria, I'll buy you all your meals if you'll let me eat alone!" Well, of course, I'm crazy about Peter—" Ethel finished, rather suddenly.

"I could see that," Gloria didn't want to leave him at all, except for his chance to see Glad. She told him we'd do all the driving and not let him be tired, and he came along."

INSTALMENT 35

Gloria stretched a hand for her guest's coffee cup, refilled it.

"I was afraid, afterward, that I'd kind of shocked you talking about divorce last night," Ethel presently resumed. "But I thought it was all settled. Peter told me about it a long ago, before he was taken sick. He said he felt kind of now, you know, because of his wife and little boy. I broke a date to go with him to a movie; that was about when I was beginning to be so crazy about him. He said you were so smart and that you had met the doctor you liked so much. I thought it was all settled."

Exactly why the other woman's innocent recapitulation of her plans should make her feel a little cheap Gloria did not know. "It is all settled," she said briefly.

"Well, that's what I thought," Ethel said in relief. "And you do want the little boy has! the time?"

Gloria could only look at her patiently in response.

"Of course, I know you do!" Ethel said hastily, reading the look aright. "But Peter's counting on having him—on our having him half the time, too," she added. "Even when he was beginning to feel so terribly, day before yesterday, and Gladys and I were driving as fast as we could to get him here before he gave in, he'd talk about Jimmy—Jimmy, that was it all the time. The minute I get my face against that little, cool face of his I'll be all right! he'd say."

Again Gloria could think of nothing appropriate to say. She sat wretched, looking steadily at her guest.

"You'll have to tell me about him," Ethel said. "I've never had much to do with kids—Oh, hello, I know who this is!"

Jimmy, flushed from his school morning, had come in to stand beside his mother and look curiously at the strange lady.

"This is Jimmy ..., Jimmy, this is Mrs. Keller," Gloria said briefly. She put one arm about him; he rubbed his head affectionately against her cheek.

"Well, aren't you the big boy!" Ethel said admiringly.

"I'm not as big as George," Jimmy said.

"Are you an awfully good boy?" Ethel asked. "Are you going to do everything I tell you?"

Jimmy looked to look in bewilderment at his mother. "Am I, Mum?" he asked.

"I guess I haven't told him anything." Ethel said in surprise. "Now? ... Jimmy, you're a big child, "to come down south with Daddy and me and see how they make the movies?"

"My father's in Philadelphia," Jimmy said politely.

Gloria caught the other woman's eye and silently shook her head. "Dad's here now, Jimmy, and quite soon," she explained. "We can't any of us see him until he's much better."

"Dad is " Jimmy spoke in the mysterious whisper which, at four, indicates the possession of a secret.

"Oh, yes, he's better. And you can see him soon .... Now run and ask Carmela to help you clean up and I'll have your lunch ready when you come down .... I've never told him," Gloria said to Ethel when they were alone, "that there's to be any change. As far as he's concerned I hope there won't be. It isn't good for children to know the grownups' problems."

"Well, he'll have to know sooner or later, won't he?" Ethel asked, widening her eyes. "I mean, he'll have to call me something—he calls you 'Mum,' doesn't he? Maybe, he'd be all right as 'Mother' or 'Aunt Ethel' or something. You see, Mrs. Rudd, she went on, "Peter isn't a real friend in love with me as I am with him. And if you'll tell me why I'm so worried about this, I'll be grateful, and polaized, stopping for a little mirth-less laugh, "I'll be delighted to, you for I don't know! But I know that the one thing Peter Rudd loves in this world is that child! And when it was taking care of him while he was sick I'll BE as if he and I could have a little place and have Jimmy with us, and that's what he wanted! Oh, he likes me," Ethel finished honestly, "he thinks I'm nice, all that! But I mean I'm the one that's in love, so that's why I'm taking all this trouble to find out about Jimmy. His's healthy, isn't he?"

Whether Gloria answered in words or whether she answered in all, she did not know. Her spirit was sick within her. After a while Ethel peeped into the sick-room and, finding Peter in a half-doze, and departed, to be with her friend Gladys Moulton in San Francisco for a few days anyway, until the worst of Peter's relapse should be over, and Gloria breathed easier when she was gone.

Peter turned the corner on a long cliff-path one evening two days later. He had been very close to death; he knew that now, and he had had a shave and was propped on pillows, fully dressed, and sure he would be up, hungry for milk toast. When Gloria came in to him that night she was in the sickness and could look up and smile at her.

"You're better," she said, sitting down upon the bed. "Peter, you don't look—haven't you?" She put the tray on a nearby chair, turned back to him. "You look as if you'd had a long sleep," she said, with a proud smile.

She looked at him, saw that he could not speak for the lips were quivering and his eyes brimming with tears. He put out a thin, pale hand and she put her own hand into it, and for a while neither found anything to say. Gloria was afraid of stirring him too deeply. Peter was struggling with all the strength of weakness to master himself.

"I've dreamed so often of seeing you again and holding your hand!" he presently whispered. "I've known, for months—that I was going to be ill and that if I could only get here I'd be better. Just to smell the garden again, now when everything's in bloom, and to hear the leaves rustling! Now — now I'm so weak that I can't talk!" Peter faltered. "But it's so — so good to see you again and to hear the way you speak—not like any one else....."

There was a silence. Gloria laid the fingers of her free hand over his two weak coal ones; she tried to smile encouragingly; the smile would not come.

"Ethel was awfully kind to me. She is kind," Peter said.

"Kind-hearted," Gloria agreed.

"Oh, kind-hearted!" He took it up with weak eagerness. "And I was sick, I'll say I was sick, added pleadingly.

What could she say? What did he expect her to say? Gloria felt the bitter falseness, the absurdity of the moment; she and Peter agreeing that Ethel Miller was kind! But she could not talk seriously to him now; he was feebler than he knew; he was still hovering between life. The solution of her problem was not two worlds. And he must get well, he must live for. That would be to have forever—more a sense of failure!

"Gloria, what's going to happen?" he asked, with a child's pathetic confidence.

"I don't know," she said slowly .... "And God knows," she added in her heart, "I don't know!"

There was an interruption; the hall door-knob clicked, Gloria with consternation in her heart, looked at it as it slipped and twisted in the uncertain grasp of some one outside.

The suspense lasted for but a few seconds. Then the door opened and Jimmy was peeping anxiously into the room.

"Mummy," he began. In a respectfully lowered tone. "I'm sorry you were in here acause I saw you coming down the stairs!"

He stopped. There was an electric pause. Then the child gave a shout and came running to the bed.

"Daddy!" he shouted. "Jimmy, it's Daddy! Are you all right now, you so?"

The fair, small, tawny head and the sleekly combed dark one touched; Jimmy's wet cheek was against his father's cheek.

"My old boy!" Peter's voice said hoarsely, trembling. "My little old scout!"

x x x

The suddenness with which her house of life had come, like a pack of cards, tumbling about her ears, dazed Gloria. Her moment's terror had left herself all-powerful in regard to her own affairs. At the next she was merely one more bewildered and frightened woman in a world of burdened and frightened women, driven to the wall, desperate, faced with danger in whatever direction she looked.

Cutting deeper than the bitter sense that so recently she had felt herself right, sure of her path, sure of her reasoning, and that now she was somehow placed inextricably in the wrong, Eyes that had been so recently admiring her, were dubious now; Kitty and Tony could only bite their lips and shake their heads; even Karl could not help her.

For Karl never doubted that she would carry through the program they had outlined in happier and more confident days. It was unthinkable. It was awkward, that Peter should have turned up just when he had; it complicated matters to have him invalided at the Bayview and to have her pretty, talkative Ethel Miller in the picture. But that need not affect the original issue—the Reno visit, the divorce, the remarriage. Karl was earnestly and deeply in love.

On one side Gloria had this knowledge to steady her. On the other was Peter's weak and happy acceptance of her nearness and her ministrations.

INSTALMENT 36

Peter went on from day to day in that state of contented weakness which is the convalescent's recompense for hours of fever and pain. He spoke of Jimmy often; Ethel came over for half-hours he conversed with her pleasantly enough, but it was plain that these intervals meant little to him. Convalescence had completely altered the relationship between them; Peter's hospital and sick-room animated times were when Jimmy came in for talks and games.

Gloria, trying as best she might to maintain her place before the nurses, might tell herself a hundred times a day that the situation was impossible. The fact remained that it was not impossible; it existed. When Peter's arrival had first startled her, she had been conscious of a sharp pang of jealousy that she grew thin and anxious; uncertainly she had come to a decision like hers. A long, clearing talk with Peter would have settled it; she need somehow to restore to him that Peter, the man who had no natural affinity with Ethel, kind-hearted and pretty as she was.

Ethel was all actress, or wouldbe actress. The superficial world of the theater was her world; the darkest Manhattan alley leading to a stage door was equally at home; dressing rooms was paradise to Ethel. Gloria realized her with a steadily sinking heart. There was nothing vicious about Ethel, nothing mean. She was amiable, slipshod, lazy in the manner of her class. In some disorderly, pretty room well shaded against the sun, Ethel would sleep late in the mornings. Dressed for the street a few hours later, she would lip a landlady, a casual laundress, or an elevator boy with the pleading request: "Keep an eye on the little fellow, will you? See that he gets his dinner and gets to bed."

Peter would be there most of the time, of course. But what could a man do under the circumstances! He wouldn't stay at home and cook his dinner; she wasn't that sort. That meant restaurants; that meant a saucy little boy, heavy-headed and flushed, in a restaurant booth or a nervous little boy wide awake in a hotel, wishing Daddy would come back.

Looking at the other woman's pretty, undeveloped face, Gloria tried to see it as the face of the person to whom Jimmy's development, in some of the most impressionable years of his life, would be entrusted; and her heart failed her.

Gladiolus Thrips Can be Controlled

An insect new to Canada, the gladiolus thrips, has become firmly established, and gladiolus growers are urged by the Department of Agriculture, to make the application of control measures one of the standard practices in raising these flowers.

The treatment of the corms prior to planting is now looked upon as the most effective method of ridding them of all stages of thrips. Storing the corms in a place during the winter months is also important, and the spraying of growing plants with Paris green and brown sugar, if the thrips are present, will give good results, provided the work is done thoroughly and correctly.

There are three treatments which through effective use have become accepted methods for ridding corms of thrips. These treatments are (1) the corrosive sublimate dip, (2) fumigation with naphthalene flakes and (3) immersion in hot water. Full information as to the proper procedure may be obtained from Science Service, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

R.C.A.F. Nine Take Yourex's To Move into Second Place

Other Interesting News From Trenton is Reported

GOLFERS ACTIVE

Trenton, —June 10 — (Special) Failing to hold a five-run lead, that they took for themselves in the first inning of a scheduled 7 inn. S. A. game at Bayshore Park here, Wednesday night, Yourex Billiards dropped a close 10-9 decision to the R. C. A. F. nine in spite of a courageous comeback. The victory was the second in a row for the Airmen, who have each of their seven games in their last two games, and was a reversal to the Yourex aggregation who took the Flyers into camp 16-7 just five days previously. The last defeat does not seriously impair the's standing, as they have lost only two of six starts. The Red and Blue Airmen into a second place tie with Graham who have each won and lost three games.

Yourex started right out in the first to get home and when Bell homered over the head of Trepanier, who was playing left, Lane in centre field, he and three of his mates, who were on bases, galloped merrily over the rubber. Emerson had already gone the circuit, and Armstrong, Lane, Bell and Yourex was caught off third base.

The Flyers came to Flyers came right back with three, Strong doubling to help the cause; and then Gibson until the fifth. Both teams played the tightest kind of ball. The Airmen added three in that inning, Gibson tripling to score Patenaude and Johnny Laronde and scoring himself on the Legris' hit. In their half of the same inning the Flyers forged ahead once again when Mahoney and Ellis scored and Dr. Burtt almost made the circuit on a long hit that looked like a triple and certainly was no good as a homer.

The sixth was the decisive inning for both teams. Yourex scored four, seven hits, among them a freak triple by Patenaude and an equally bad bounce by Lecompte, knocked the R. C. A. F. total by four runs. Only three men faced Gibson in the sixth and only five balls were thrown to retire the Billard nine, big in the screen that rallied and both Burtt and Ellis scored after doubling. The pair also batted in even it looked as if the Yourexites might pull out a tie or even a win but Gibson, who pitched well in the fifth, struck out Bell and Stebbens to end the game. The fixture was one postponed from May 23rd.

Appearing a second time at the Twelve O'clock Point Pavilion on Wednesday evening, Oil Wagar and his music-loving dance band orchestra attracted quite a crowd of pleasure seekers, who seem to be finding the Point quite a popular rendezvous this season. Messrs. Bell and Trousdale are to be congratulated on their success in getting the Point off to a promising meeting with considerable success.

Among the spectators at the R. C.A.F.-Yourex game here last night, fall they will be under the direction of Jerry Brock (above), appointed coach for 1938, succeeding Mike Biehl. Brock comes from Cornell University in the United States and played with Tigers in 1934 and 1935. In 1936 he was barred under the residence rule.

Part of a parks project being carried out by Councillor Henry LaPlaix, a drinking fountain was installed this week in Governor Simcoe Park along Quinte Street at the spot where once previously a fountain stood. Many tourists and picnickers stop at the Park, Councillor LaPleur explained, but when they find no water they go on through town and somewhere else. The old fountain was unsatisfactory for a number of reasons, but the new one is being installed with great care and will undoubtedly be an asset to the town.

North Trenton Wins

North Trenton's wide-awake entry in the Mercantile Softball League added another to its string of victories at Bayshore: Park on Tuesday evening when it bested the Trenton Manufacturing Company by a score of 17-10 without great difficulty. Once again the high score rather disappointed some of the more critical observers who like to see the batters in competition, but the game was a crowd-pleaser from start to finish and there were plenty of thrills. Coughlin on the North Trenton mound had the edge on Anderson all the way through and recorded a number of strike outs. Help came when it needed the last frame determined to make the result only out of it; and so sertainly did they go about it that fifteen runs were tallied during the game.

Score by innings—

North Trenton	221 201 8	—17

BATTING LEADER

Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, above, young third-baseman with Brooklyn Dodgers, never cut much of a figure at the plate in his four years previous to the present season, but since the start of this season he has been leading the National League's batters most of the time. Cookie came to the Dodgers in 1936 from Pittsburgh.

J. Herity of Belleville, who gave a most interesting address on Canada's geological history and her immense mineral resources. The speaker was introduced by J. S. Cowan and a vote of thanks was proposed by Dr. J. M. Whitla.
